TAGGART SETS PACE IN FIRST

British Pro Shoots the Royal St. George's Course in 70, Two Under Par.

BERT HODSON SECOND.

SANDWICH, England, June 27 (AP)—Fred Taggart, a British professional, set the early pace to-day in the first round of the British open golf championship, shooting the Royal St. George's course in 70, two under par.

Taggart toured the outward nine in 34 strokes, two under regulation figures, and came home in par 36.

Bert Hodson, another British pro, posted a 71 fashioned from an outgoing 36 and a smart incoming 35.

Gene Sarazen, the 1932 champion, and betting-odds favorite, wasted strokes on the green and negotiated the first round in 75. Gene was out in 37, and back in 38, including a six on the par four 13th hole.

Robert Sweeney, American student at Oxford University, who qualified for the championship with 145, used up 80 strokes. Sweeney played the first 13 holes in one over perfect figures and then completely "blew up."

Bill Laidlaw of Great Britain projected himself close to the front of the field with a 71. Laidlaw went out in 34 and then lost a stroke to par for an incoming 37. It was his second 71 over this course in two days.

The "No-Bowling To-night" sign was hung all over our club yesterday, on account of rain, and incidently caused the Lindsay Club to postpone their tournament until Thursday. But to-night, if the weather holds good, we expect a record crowd at the mixed tourney, commencing at 7.30 p.m.

There is every indication that the Tip-Top Tailors' Trophy, to be played for on Monday, July 2nd is going to go over big. Already there are as many rinks entered as we had last year, and that shows just what can be done when the boys all pull together.

But that is not nearly enough. We want 24 rinks. We owe it to The Tip-Top Tailors, and we owe it to Ken Sloane, local branch manager—out of consideration of his efforts in securing for our club this beautiful cup and the individual prizes—four pairs of white flannels.

We realize that there are tournaments outside of Peterborough—and that some of the boys will be going away—and rightly so—but we are still of the opinion that there will be plenty left at home to make up one big entry.

So we ask all skips to get in touch with any member of the greens committee and they will be only too glad to help you in every way possible.

Elgin Takes Free Hitting Tilt 23-19

HASTINGS, June 27.—(Examiner Correspondence).—In a free hitting, loosely played, but full of excitement all the time, Outlaws won from Elgin 23 to 19, in a Hastings Softball League game. The rural boys had the game in the bag in the seventh inning when the game could have been quite easily called on account of darkness as many of the other games in the past have been. Both teams were guilty of many costly errors that kept theeir pitchers continually in the hole. McKee on the mound for the winners, struck out five, while Richardson got three.

"Dit" Clapper was the main man with the willow for the winners getting two circuit smashes. Thompson also had one. G. Richardson and Grady hit for the circuit for Elgin.

Outlaws: Bond, ss; Vincent, c; Philips, lf; Clapper, 1b; Thompson, 2b; Radford, cf; McGee, p; Sargent, 3b; Brinklow, rf.

Elgin: J. Preston, c; J. Richardson, p; M. Scott, 1b; R. Scott, 2b; L. Fleming, lf; M. Preston, 3b; G. Richardson, ss; Stinson, cf; Grady, rf.

STEVE HAMAS NEXT IN LINE TO FIGHT FOR BAER'S TITLE

Conquerer of Schmeling Has Written Agreement With Max's Managers.

NOT THIS YEAR

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1934, by Central Press Canadian)

NEW YORK, June 27.—Steve Hamas, the Penn state collegian, is without doubt the outstanding challenger at this time for Max Baer's heavyweight title.

Hamas, 180 pounds of ambition, an earnest youth of clean habits, advanced himself to the position of challenger No. 1 by beating Max Schmeling, the former heavyweight champion, in Philadelphia last winter.

If Baer should decide to make another fight this year, Hamas would be his opponent. Indeed Hamas' manager, the veteran Charley Harvey, has a bit of writing from Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, promising to give Hamas a bout.

This was set down before the Carnera fight, but on the premise that Baer would win.

Not Likely to Fight

I don't believe that Baer will make another fight this year. His by-products as heavyweight champion will be greater than any sum he might realize from a fight. He is obligated to the Madison Square Garden Corporation for another fight, and some of his advisers are urging him to make this fight at once to clear off the obligation and leave himself free to deal with the highest bidders in the future. But I doubt that this is sufficient incentive. Baer wants to enjoy his new glory awhile, and who can blame him?

Bar the sudden appearance of some new heavyweight wonder, Steve Hamas will probably remain the outstanding challenger when the promoters go looking for an opponent for Baer next year.

All Hamas has to do is to hold still. It has been the writer's observation of heavyweight contenders that if they keep fighting each other, they almost invariably ruin each other as contenders.

Steve Hamas

When you finally get a heavyweight contender in No. 1 position, the way to keep him there is to let him remain inactive, unless some fellow bobs up who is a real serious threat to the No. 1 spot. Gene Tunney let a year elapse from the time he beat Johnny Risko before he fought Dempsey the first time.

Gene realized that all he had to do to get the title match was to wait. So it is with Hamas.

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

CHAPTER 34

The man wore gloves, he fidgeted now with the buttons, and Pointer hoped he would discard them. Pointer did something with what looked like a cold blowpipe, in reality he was snapshooting the man who stood in an extremely good light by the large window.

"Lucky she slipped her latchkey under the mat outside, or I couldn't have got in at all," the visitor now said suddenly.

Pointer agreed that that habit was useful. There was no key under the mat, and he had heard the tingle of a key ring as the lock was turned.

"Did she say how long she would be?" the man now went on.

Pointer shook his head. "Absent-minded lady, ain't she? She didn't seem to rightly know what was wrong with this basin, yet she had asked us to come in and look at it. Ladies of that age are apt to forget."

"Of that age? Of what age?" The visitor had spun round and was staring fixedly at Pointer, and with evident excitement.

"Why—well——" Pointer looked embarrassed. "Sort of fortyish, I mean."

The man tore off his gloves and flung them on the mantel, then he lit a cigaret with hands, big but slender fingered, with nails bitten and broken to the quicks. "Look here, that wasn't Miss Dundas; what was the lady like?"

Pointer described—not too closely—Mrs. de Souza. He might want to modify the likeness later for this young man might have just been with Mrs. de Souza and know that she could not have been here. Strange, if that really was his name, looked uneasy, he was listening with really extraordinary closeness to what the plumber was saying.

"Reddish fair hair combed down in a wave on this side and rolled up from her neck?" he asked, illustrating what he meant with remarkable deftness. Now Mrs. de Souza's most noticeable characteristic was the way she wore her hair. Just in that fashion. So the man did know her and was, though intensely interested, not scrupulous at hearing that she had been to Gillian Dundas' studio. Pointer said he had not noticed her hair.

"Must have been a friend of Miss Dundas'," Strange finally said. "What did you say she was doing?"

"I thought she was sitting at that there writing table," Pointer suggested, "but I didn't notice pertikler."

"She didn't say why she had come? She left no message?" Strange seemed puzzled. Pointer would have liked to put a message about some green spun glass into the imaginary lady's mouth, but he did not dare let his fancy roam. He had an idea that Strange's next move in any case would be to have a word with Mrs. de Souza. So instead of replying, Pointer breathed heavily as he "wiped" an already welded joint and said:

"Must be a handicap being deaf."

"Deaf?" Apparently Mr. Strange was slightly afflicted that way himself.

"Used one of these electrical ear things," Pointer went on. Strange looked utterly at sea.

"Come to make some new curtains I thought myself," the plumber now explained. "I thought she was just a-jotting down measurements at that there writing table."

Strange's face cleared. "Oh, that's very likely!" And there was an amazing amount of relief in the tone and eye. "Very likely indeed. I thought, for a moment, you meant a lady I know too, but it doesn't fit."

The plumber began to search his greasy old carpet bag and then his pockets. "I suppose I couldn't ask yer for a pinch of tobacco, sir? I ain't cadging, but I've left me pouch at home. And seeing as the lady isn't here—I can't work proper without a pipe."

Hardly listening to him, Strange shook some out on to the table. "Help yourself," he muttered, turning to stare out of the window again.

Pointer thanked him, filled his clay pipe and swept the remainder into his pocket apparently carelessly, in reality into an envelope opened in it. It was the same tobacco as that of the dottie. It confirmed the idea that the man, who evidently had a latchkey, knew the studio well. The question was, among many others, did he know it as a friend of Miss Dundas' or not. Obviously he was the man who had sat and drummed on the wooden arms of the chair just by the fire, and even as Pointer thought it, the other dropped into the seat and began tapping his finger ends impatiently on the sides of the arms. Pointer would have taken the man for an exceedingly affluent actor, judging by his clothes, or—or more likely, a man who made his living by grimaces, in film work, but why those broken nails? They were not bitten, he saw now, or not only bitten, they were also ragged and jagged from other causes. What causes? The man's hair, too, showed signs of neglect, the back of the neck was badly in need of a barber's clippers. Yet the hair was smartly waved. The man was a curious problem. He certainly was ill at ease. Though whether for himself or not, Pointer could not make out. Was he afraid of Gillian Dundas' knowledge or was he afraid for her? His uneasiness was certainly connected with her. If she knew something that made this man nervous, that made Lady Ida nervous, was it something for knowledge of which John Tait had been murdered?—and Lord Mills shot himself?

Starting up from his chair, the visitor hurriedly said he would come back again in a little while, and strode off. Pointer hurried after him, reaching him just as he got to the front door.

"You haven't left no message," he said, as though one were a necessity. Strange looked irresolute. "If the young lady comes to whom the studio belongs, tell her I'll ring up again shortly and find if she can spare me a minute," and so saying he hurried off. The plumber returned without another glance at him. The man who had brought the tools and outfit would see to that. Which was why Pointer had spoken to Strange in the doorway. He himself went upstairs again, put his tools together, changed, removed all traces of his presence in the flat, and was just about to leave, when again the telephone rang.

"Is the plumber there?" asked the voice of his own man.

"Speaking," and Pointer gave a code word.

"Reporting from a police station, sir," came the reply. "Kensington High Street Police Station. I followed the man to a house close by here, where I've left a constable to watch the doors till I get back—the house of Mr. Westmacott in Palace Green, sir. He let himself in by the side door into the garden. Looked right and left first—the door opens into a little short cut from Church street which passes the corner of the house. The door key turned and the door opened and shut without a sound."

"He paused to look up and down the street before he unlocked the door, you say. Did he pause again and seem to listen before opening the door and going through it?"

"No, sir. Put his key in, opened the door, slipped in and closed the door all in one swift silent motion. Highly trained burglar couldn't have bettered it, supposing he isn't one. For he'd made sure—as he thought—that he wasn't being followed. Went through the whole bag of tricks. Underground passage out of Barkers—he went there first—then two railway stations—but he was quick with it all."

"You are sure that he has no idea that he was followed?"

A Tired, Worn Out Woman Can't Make a Happy Home

MILBURN'S HEALTH AND NERVE PILLS

There is no happiness in the home when the mother is sick and worried by the never ending household duties. She gets run down and becomes nervous and irritable, has shortness of breath, faint and dizzy, can't sleep, and gets up in the morning feeling as tired as she went to bed, and is downhearted and discouraged.

Milburn's H. & N. Pills will soon convince women it is not necessary to suffer, as they build up the nervous system and bring back the former health and vigor.

For Thursday, June 28

A day of excitement and probable turmoil may be expected, judging by the strong aspects of major planets. Some suddenly precipitated news or correspondence may be a vital factor in upsetting the orderly course of events. This may incite to sudden change for advantages at the hands of elderly persons or institutions. Strong reactions may be found in the personal, domestic, social or romantic associations and interests. Be careful with papers.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a particularly lively year, with possible unexpected excitement and agitation and much stirring about under high pressure of circumstances. Important changes may come through sudden news, necessitating changed plans and prospects and reacting radically on the private affiliations. Elders may be looked to for co-operation and wise counsel. Sign all writings with precaution. Be alert to treachery or misrepresentation.

DURHAM HOLSTEIN BREEDERS HELD SUCCESSFUL FIELD DAY

Judging Competition Held at Farm of A. J. Tamblyn—Addresses Follow.

GOOD SPORTS PROGRAM.

BOWMANVILLE, June 27.— The annual field-day of the Durham County Holstein Breeders' Club held at Orono on Saturday last attracted an unusually large number of men, women and children from all parts of the county who thoroughly enjoyed the outing which was featured with a judging competition in the morning, followed by a basket lunch and addresses, and then in the afternoon all settled down to a program of sports of interest to both young and old. The judging contest took place at the home of A. J. Tamblyn, whose herd provided a large number of exceptionally good type animals in both males and females for the contestents to work on. Through the use of good sires and record of performance work, Mr. Tamblyn has succeeded in building up one of the best herds of Holstein cattle in the province, and as the different classes of young bulls, mature cows and heifers paraded the yard, they were the admiration of everybody.

R. B. Faith of Brantford, Director of Extension for the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada stressed in his talk to the assembled crowd, the importance of having a definite constructive breeding program broad enough in its make-up to take care of the essential requirements in herd improvement which he referred to as type, production and health. "All three", said the speaker, "are so important today, that unless we are prepared to give them first place in our promotion and development activities, individually as breeders, and collectively under club leadership, there can be no hope of gaining reward through the expansion of markets and raising the standard of prices to higher levels". In this connection he mentioned the great need existing for more careful thought in the selection of sires, blood-testing for the control of Bang's Disease, and keeping records, rather than estimating the value of a cow through guessing at her yearly production. Mr. Faith let it be understood that through the work of the Extension Department, an export market for more than 22,000 head of purebred Holstein cattle had been opened up during the past three or four years, and the prediction was made that if Central Canada could produce Holstein cattle of the type and quality wanted by buyers in foreign countries, that an even larger and more profitable market awaited the breeders of this country.

A. E. Summers, agricultural representative, who followed, expressed it as his view that the time had come when breeders of livestock, particularly dairy cattle, would have to put an end to the common practise of selling their best females with a view to retaining suitable foundation stock for herd building. He asked for closer co-operation in helping his office to rid the county of poor type undesirable herd sires, claiming that such a move was going to be found necessary, if improved breeding was to make the headway desired.

R. M. Holtby, veteran fieldman, told of some of the experiences he had met with on his recent trip to England.

At the conclusion of the day's proceedings, the breeders in conference with Messrs Faith, Summers, and Holtby asked for a herd sire demonstration which was agreed upon to take place about July 20.

Apsley

The first picnic of the season was held on Thursday afternoon under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. George's Church and was a success in every way. The proceeds were in aid of the organ fund, which will probably benefit by about $40, after all expenses are paid. Supper was served in the Parish Hall, and was well patronized by the residents. There was a stall containing fancy work and other needlework, most of the articles being made by members of the W.A. A beautiful quilt and spread, both made by the ladies at their Dorcas meetings were on exhibition. Tickets were sold on the former for a draw, Mrs. Taylor being the holder of the winning number, while Charles Smith became the possessor of the spread for being nearest in estimating the number of beans in a sealer.

After supper adjournment was made to the fair grounds for children's races, and a ball game between teams from Camps 4 and 5, the former beating Camp 5 very easily. The teams were afterwards the guests of the W.A. to a fine repast which was greatly appreciated. The hall was well filled later in the evening for a moving picture show, at the close of which a dance was held until twelve o'clock, music being supplied by musicians from Camp 4. Great credit is due to the members of the W.A., who worked hard and richly deserved the success attending their efforts.

Miss Robson of Middlesex, who has been addressing branches of the Women's Institute throughout the district, was in Apsley on Thursday, and had a conference with the local branch in the evening.

REV. R. W. PATON RECEIVES HONOR

Presentation and Address Read at Alnwick Reserve Social Gathering.

SUMPTUOUS REPAST

(Examiner Correspondence)

ALDERVILLE, June 27. — On Friday evening, the Indians of the Alnwick Indian Reserve, met in the council chamber to pay honor and esteem to their pastor, Rev. R. W. Paton, M.A., B.D., who has been a faithful worker during the past four years. At 6.30 p.m., the tables, in their snowy white linens, with huge bouquets of cut flowers, looked beautiful and were laden with a variety of wholesome food, including roast chickens, fresh fish, etc., which the people of Alderville are noted for in their cooking and serving meals.

Immediately after dinner was served the gathering was called to order by Chief Ernie Crow, and after a few remarks asked Constable Thomas Marsden to act as chairman for the evening. Mr. Marsden briefly spoke of Rev. R. W. Paton, and his work on the Reserve, where no one was left out, if they were it was not the fault of the minister, Mr. Paton, for he could say truthfully that Rev. Mr. Paton was ever faithful and ever willing to help any person or society on the Reserve. He then asked Mrs. Alfred Simpson, Rev. Mr. Paton and Chief Chrow to come to the platform.

The presentation was made by Chief Crow and the address read by Mrs. Simpson, which was as follows:

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen: "We are assembled here this evening for a social time before the departure of our pastor, Rev. R. W. Paton, with whom we have been associated for the past four years. While we will miss a resident missionary, we believe ways have been opened up for the better development of the people, both socially, intellectually and spiritually, as has been shown by the Young People's Society, the prayer meetings, aid song services.

"We would like to express our regard for our pastor, and his sister, Miss Mary Paton, R.N., with whom we have many pleasant memories and associations, and take pleasure in presenting to you at this time a gift, with our very best wishes for your future in your new charge, and at any time in the future we would be pleased to see you and your sister on the Alderville Reserve."

Signed on behalf of the Alderville Indian Reserve,

Chief Ernie Crow,
Mrs. Alfred Simpson,
Albert Crow.

Mr. Paton, in a few well chosen words responded his appreciation to the people of Alderville.

During the evening the school children sang a chorus "Lightly Roll;' also short speeches were given by Miss Dorcas Atkinson, John Smake and others. Mrs. Black and her brother, Mr. Albert Crow, provided spicy music for the evening, and closed this pleasant event in singing heartily the National Anthem.

On the following Sunday, the church was comfortably filled when Rev. Mr. Paton preached his farewell sermon, choosing his text from St. Luke's Gospel, 19, verse 3: "And he sought to see Jesus, who he was; and could not for the press, because he was little of stature."

Taking the subject of "The advantages of disadvantages," and telling the story of Zacchaeus and his wonderful faith in Jesus.

The choir rendered two beautiful anthems, "Praise ye the Lord," and "Mercies of the Lord."

Archbishop McNicholas

Will Hays

Representing 200,000 members of the Catholic league of decency, bishops of the church have been meeting Hollywood officials at Cincinnati, demanding that moving pictures be "purged of filth and smut", and branding indecent pictures as "occasions of sin." Archbishop John T. McNicholas, of Cincinnati, was one of the leaders of the group which invited Will Hays, czar of movieland, to attend the conference. While the meeting was in progress it was announced at Columbus by Dr. B. O. Skinner, in charge of the Ohio board of censors, that "The Life of Vergie Winters," a scene from which is depicted above, would be banned. Rt. Rev. Msgr. John L. Hand, Toronto archdiocesan director, also assailed present-day films.

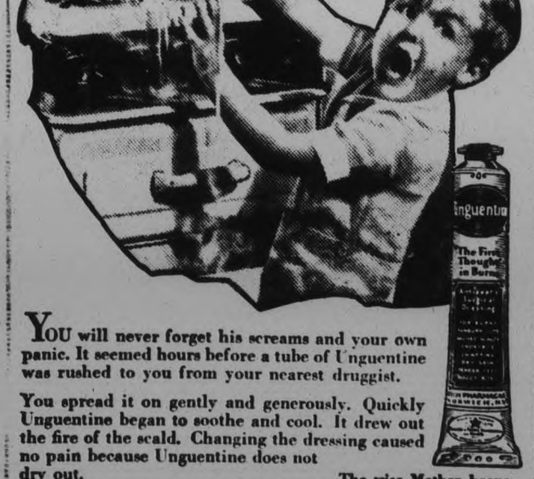
Anniversary Held In Dartford Church

WARKWORTH, June 27 (Examiner Correspondence). — Successful anniversary services were held on Sunday afternoon and evening in Dartford United Church. Rev. C. W. Barrett of Brighton was the special speaker, and gave excellent addresses at both services. In the evening the Scripture lesson was II. Timothy, 2, 3: "Endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ." The subject of the sermon was: "Whether we want our religion to appeal to our strength or softness."

The members of the Alderville choir gave special music which was thoroughly enjoyed.

The church was beautiful with a lovely display of flowers.

When Bobby.. scalded himself!



YOU will never forget his screams and your own panic. It seemed hours before a tube of Unguentine was rushed to you from your nearest druggist.

You spread it on gently and generously. Quickly Unguentine began to soothe and cool. It drew out the fire of the scald. Changing the dressing caused no pain because Unguentine does not dry out.

Today, there is no disfiguring scar. Just a memory of the accident and a resolution kept to always have a tube of Unguentine where you can reach it instantly.

The wise Mother keeps a tube of Unguentine in the kitchen where it can be reached quickly—and another in the medicine cabinet for cuts, infectious scratches and bruises.

Unguentine Quick!

Henry Stays In Office Two Weeks Longer

PREMIER - ELECT ASSUMES REINS IN TWO WEEKS

Henry Government Will Carry on While Hepburn Enjoys Holiday.

AGREED AT CONFERENCE.

Makes First Entry to Queen's Park Through Back Door.

TORONTO, June 28 (CP)—Premier-elect Mitchell F. Hepburn will not assume the reins of office for two weeks, or the week of July 9, it was announced by Premier Henry after the two had conferred at Queen's Park to-day. In the meantime, Mr. Hepburn is departing on a holiday, and the Henry Government is carrying on.

Premier Henry, in an official statement, said:

"The Prime Minister had a visit from the Premier-elect this morning, with reference to the date of his assuming office. Mr. Hepburn intimated he would like to have a short holiday before taking over the reins of office, and Hon. Mr. Henry undertook to take care of the routine business of government for the next two weeks. No definite date was fixed, and this will be agreed on after Mr. Hepburn's return."

Premier-elect Mitchell F. Hepburn conferred with Premier George S. Henry at Queen's Park.

Mr. Hepburn arrived at the Legislature Building accompanied only by George Ponsford, a personal friend. Because the road was torn up in front of the building reporters waited at the side entrance. But Mr. Hepburn made his first entrance into the building as Premier-elect through the back door.

The Liberal Leader will confer this afternoon with a number of members-elect and it is considered possible he may announce his Cabinet line-up after the gathering.

MOUNT JULIAN, June 28 (Examiner Correspondence) — Suffering a scalp wound received during blasting operations near Camp 2 at Cedar Lake yesterday morning, F. Carnrite, 52, of Trenton was admitted to the Red Cross Outpost Hospital at Apsley. His condition is not regarded as serious by Dr. H. E. Manning.

Carnrite was struck on the back of the head, it is stated, when after apparently failing to hear a warning he remained within range of a shower of stones and debris that followed upon a dynamite blast, during the course of road work operations. The accident happened at nine o'clock.

HEPBURN KEEPS QUESTIONERS IN MUCH DOUBT

Returns to Toronto and Locks Self in Hotel for Seclusion.

WAIT IN VAIN.

Refuses to Answer Questions Concerning Membership of His Cabinet.

TORONTO, June 28—(CP)—Back in Toronto today after consultation with his old leader, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Premier - elect Mitchell F. Hepburn of Ontario today kept observers guessing what his cabinet line-up might be.

The leader of the next Ontario administration drove in here last night and went straight to his hotel and locked himself in his room while many persons outside sought vainly to question him about reports Hon. Peter Heenan, former Dominion Ministerof Labor, might get an Ontario portfolio.

Some sources said they believed Mr. Hepburn had abandoned his idea it would be necessary to obtain services of an expert outsider as Minister of Education and had reached the conclusion he might entrust that portfolio to Dr. L. J. Simpson, member-elect for Simcoe Centre.

Others viewed as authoritative the report of the Toronto Globe that a two-man Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission would be established administered by Hon. W. D. Euler, Liberal member of the House of Commons for Waterloo North and former Minister of National Revenue, and T. Stewart Lyon, director and former editor of The Globe.

Education Aides

Belief that Dr. Simpson would get the education portfolio led some to express opinion that he would have as his aides Dr. G. E. Reaman, former superintendent of the Boys' Training School at Bowmanville and Professor D. McArthur, head of the History Department at Queen's University, Kingston.

Considerable speculation was current as to whether Mr. Hepburn would be premier and president of the council or whether he might add to his tasks that of the Treasury Department, leaving Harry C. Nixon, former Progressive leader, the Provincial secretaryship, or give Mr. Nixon both the Secretary's and

SMITH IS OVER LAST OBSTACLE ON WAY TO OCEAN

Hurls His Frail Craft Through Treacherous Lachine Rapids.

MOST HAZARDOUS.

Battles White Waters for Two Hours in Daring Exploit.

(Special to The Examiner)

MONTREAL, June 28 — John Smith, the Peterborough canoeist successfully shot the Lachine Rapids yesterday afternoon on his way to Europe. The intrepid youth navigated his tiny craft through the last series of rapids of the St. Lawrence system and thus passed the final hazard before he reaches the open sea.

Slept In Canoe

Arriving at the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club on Tuesday night from Brockville, Ontario, Smith slept in his canoe overnight and yesteday moning paddled to the Lachine Canoe Club's quarters. There he refused to be photographed saying that he was not interested in publicity and immediately set about gathering information on the dangerous and tricky piece of water ahead of him. He first interviewed Henry Malo at Lachine and for the rest of the morning travelled about in the neighborhood gathering what help he could on the best method of approaching the rapids.

At noon he met Zephyr Robert and Romeo Lefevre both of Lachine. He had just come from Ville LaSalle and had had a look at the famous Lachine Rapids. The two Lachine men gave Smith much useful information about the trip and "stood" him lunch while they imparted their tips.

At 2.15 Smith went to the Lachine wharf to get his canoe from the Malo Motor Boat Service, where he had left it. He embarked and set out on the trip, first crossing Lake St. Louis as far as Caughnawa thereafter following the route taken by the rapids boats. Robert and Lefevre meanwhile had crossed the Honor Mercer bridge in their car met Smith at the Caughnawaga side. Smith continued his way down the stream, keeping close to the shore, in ear shot of advice proffered by the two Lachine men.

After he left the Lachine wharf the canoeist stuck to the middle of the river until after he had reached the two bridges that link Ville

Moose is Reared On Bottled Milk

DIGBY, N.S., June 28 (C.P.).—A baby moose nursed on a milk bottle by an Annapolis County farmer since it was one day old, has been turned over to the Nova Scotia Game Sanctuary. Abandoned by its mother several weeks ago, its plaintive cries attracted the farmer, who found the animal in his pasture at Greenland. He experimented before learning how to feed it, and finally tried the milking bottle. It worked, and to-day the baby moose was fat, healthy and frisky as it romped off to its new home.

The bank will not operate as a commercial institution, but will be the fiscal agent of the Dominion Government, issue bank notes and be a repository for gold reserves, both of Government and the commercial banks. Shares will be sold the public but many safeguards were placed against control being gained by commercial banks or financial institutions.

Head office will be in Ottawa, with a governor appointed by the Dominion Government at the head. Premier R. B. Bennett has announced he will bring in an outsider for this post, and the name of Sir Edward Peacock of England has been mentioned. The board of directors will be appointed provisionally by the Government, but when the bank begins to operate, the shareholders will appoint them. All profits of the bank after deducting interest to the shareholders will accrue to the Dominion treasury.

LOOKING BACK 20 YEARS FROM SARAJEVA MURDER

Bombs Hurled Again in Vienna as Though Princep's Pistol Shot Had Been Forgotten

(By The Associated Press)

To-day is the anniversary of monumental murder.

Twenty years ago Favrilo Princep slew Archduke Franz Ferdinand of Austria, at Sarajevo, Bosnia.

The blood that streamed that day from the bullet hole in the Archducal throat spread a red flood over the earth. Before that flood was stopped November 11, 1918, it had claimed 25,000,000 men—dead, wounded, maimed, broken.

War rode the bullet from Gavrilo Princep's gun.

To-day in Vienna bombs were hurled, damaging government railways and power plants. It was as though the crack of Princep's pistol 20 years ago hadn' been loud enough to carry down through the years; as though new violence were somehow needed to refresh memories quickly dead. Gavrilo Princep was 19 years old and had a grievance.

With the touch of his finger to the tigger of his weapon Gavrilo Princep:—

Swept the German throne away;

Beckoned the Czar of Russia and his family before a blood-lusting firing squad;

Re-mapped Europe; and dug 5,000,000—and more—graves.

An Austrian court, which could not see into the future, decided that fit punishment for Princep would be life imprisonment. They sent him to a cell—he sent the world to catastrophe. There he died.

Hardly anyone remembers Princep to-day. The match is forgotten when the house burns down.

Twenty years after, Sarajevo is much the same, except that it is larger by about 10,000 population, and prospers, in a way, from travellers who would see what kind of a place it is that could send millions of men against each other in combat to the death.

Twenty years after, the United States, France, Italy, Japan and Great Britain plan bigger navies, the World Disarmament Conference is in suspension: France charges Germany is secretly rearming: troops drill.

In Germany to-day, 20 years after, flags fly at half mast for it is the anniversary, too of the Versailles Treaty signing: and as Germany sees it—Sarajevo and Versailles each mark bitter unforgettable, unforgivable defeat.

TAKE OBJECTION TO HYDRO PLANS AS ANNOUNCED

One-Man Commission Will be Opposed by the Hydro Municpality.

ASSOCIATION MEETS.

Government is Only the Banker of the Municipalities.

OTTAWA, June 28 (C.P.).—Strong objection to the proposals of the incoming Ontario Government to dismiss F. A. Gaby, chief engineer of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, and to establish a one-man Commission, will be expressed in a resolution to be presented to the Ontario Municipal Electric Association mid-summer convention.

After a heated discussion of the resolution by the Provincial executive, it was decided to have the resolution come as a recommendation of the Toronto executive committee rather than from the Provincial executive.

The Association is meeting here in conjunction with the Association of Municipal Electrical Utilities. The former is an organization of municipal controlling bodies, while the latter is formed of those who assisted in the practical operation of Hydro.

The resolution points out that such a dismissal is a distinct violation of the prerogative of the Provincial Government, as it is only the banker for the municipalities. Objection is also made to political interference with the independence of the Hydro Commission. The Government exceeded its right if it dictated to the Commission the discharge of Mr. Gaby. Moreover, it was felt that it was inimicable to the best interests of Hydro to dismiss Mr. Gaby and that his knowledge and experience of Hydro matters was absolutely indispensable at this time.

Con. James Simpson of Toronto, vice-president of the Association, who drafted the resolution, stated that if one man only was appointed to the Commission he would become either the representative of the government or the municipalities. If he were a cabinet minister, naturally he would be representative of the government.

Little Man Turns Sneers to Cheers

SALAMANCA, N.Y., June 28 (A.P.).—They all laughed when a slight man wearing glasses lined up with seven husky young farmers and woodsmen for the Western New York wood chopping championship.

He did not even remove his coat or cap. The crowd joshed good-naturedly.

But the little man won the championship in three minutes, 3 seconds, about half the time of the runner-up. He turned out to be Louis G. Fisher, an old-time woodsman.

THREW BODIES INTO DEEP GORGE YOUTH STATES

Relates His Part in the Murder of Two Constables by Indians.

DRAMATIC STORY.

One of Murderers Order Boy to Drive Car Containing Remains.

OITERTON, B.C., June 28.— (C.P.)—A simple but dramatic story of events leading up to the slaying of Dominion Constable F. H. Gisbourne and Provincial Constable Percy Carr on the Canford Indian reserve last September was entered into court records here to-day.

Testimony of Henry Brown, 19 year old Indian youth, revealed the part he played in removing the bodies of the two police officers from their automobiles and throwing them into the Nicola river. Three Indian brothers, Richardson, Alex and Eneas George are charged with the murder.

Eerie elements were present and appeared to heighten the recital of the youth's part in the crime as he told his story before Justice Dennis Murphy in Assize Court here Wednesday. A sudden mountain squall swept across the valley. Torrential rain fell and the skies darkened as Brown's words were accompanied by the moaning wind and distant reverberations of thunder.

Brown said Richardson George came to his house and demanded he drives the car containing the bodies to a spot where they might be thrown into the Nicola river.

One Still Alive.

"Gisbourne was dead," Brown said, "but Mr. Carr was moaning when we reached the river bank and Richardson George pushed him into the river. His body turned and turned in an eddy and George waded into the stream armed with a long pole and pushed it out into the stream which carried it away from our gaze."

Brown testified that, when he first reached the car, which he said had then contained the bodies of the two slain officers, Richardson George had entered the car and searched the bodies. A moment later, he said, Richardson left the car and picked up a large rock, with which he dealt Carr two heavy blows on the head.

INSTIGATOR OF BROWNLEE ACTION IS YOUNG STUDENT, LAWYER SAYS

Interested in Obtaining Money From Premier Through Girl.

COMPLETE DENIAL.

EDMONTON, June 28 (CP) — Premier J. E. Brownlee, against whom an action alleging seduction has been entered by Vivian MacMillan, will enter complete denial of all the charges, A. L. Smith, K.C., defence counsel, told the court to-day.

Outlining the case for the defence, Mr. Smith stated he would call Mr. Brownlee and Mrs. Brownlee as witnesses. He would call all janitors at the Parliament Buildings, where Vivian MacMillan charges she went on Saturdays and Sundays with the Premier.

Miss Brown, secretary to the Premier, will be another witness, he said. It will be shown, he said, that except on odd occasions Miss Brown did not leave the Premier's office until her employer had left.

Mr. Smith said witnesses would show John Caldwell Edmonton medical student was directing head of the whole enterprise and that he was financially interested in obtaining money from the Premier, through the unfortunate girl, Vivian.

"Caldwell was the dominating person in the conspiracy," defence council said.

Mr. Brownlee took the stand at 11.15 a.m. He denied that while in Edson, in 1930, he had offered to act as guardian to Vivian MacMillan.

Marie Dressler's Condition Serious

SANTA BARA, Calif., June 28. (AP).—Marie Dressler's prolonged illness had reached a critical stage to-day and a nurse was in constant attendance on the 60-year-old actress.

The Ontario born actress, who came to an estate here for a rest a few weeks ago, is suffering from complications including ailments afflicting the kidneys and heart.

HITLER STANDS AT CROSSROADS OF CAREER AS GERMANY SEETHES

Growing Outbursts Against Radical Nazi Policies Causes Reflection.

MUST MAKE CHOICE.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
(Copyright, 1934 by The Associated Press).

BERLIN, June 28. (AP).—Adolf Hitler stood to-day at a crossroad marked "right" and "left." Germany seethed while he debated his choice.

The Chancellor came back to Berlin after several days of quiet reflection in his mountain home—reflection following growing outbursts against radical Nazi policies.

Two groups began powerful efforts to have him take their side. It is a struggle for "the capture of the soul of Hitler," one cabinet minister said.

On the one hand there was the radical young wing of impetuous revolutionaries, typified by Joseph Goebbels, Minister of Propaganda, and Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, philosophic dictator of the Third Reich whose books on religion have been proscribed by the Vatican.

Non Satisfied

They insist the Nazi revolution has just begun and that no loyal German can be satisfied until the Nazis exclusively control every phase of German life and endeavor, including religion.

This group was credited with bringing the arrest by secret police of Edgar Jung, publicist, who gathered material for the speech of Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen June 17, which touched off the battle between Conservatives and radicals.

It was this fact that Hitler rebuked yesterday by refusing to dissolve the steel helmet war veterans' organization, "backbone" of the Conservative movement.

Other Group Bids

On the other side, bidding for Hitler's backing, was an older group of realistic "sub-leaders" like Rudolph Hess, Minister Without Portfolio; Wilhelm Frick, Minister of Interior, and Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Minister of Aviation, who believe it is not wise to regiment people strictly. They want a social state in which private initiative and property are recognized—not a Quasi-Communist one.

Both groups have powerful organizations behind them.

Total storage stocks of eggs in Canada at June 1 were 9,949,535 dozen, as compared with 11,507,606 dozen on June 1 last year, and with a five-year average on June 1 of 11,270,061.

Prisoner's Weight Wins Him Freedom

LEXINGTON, Ky., June 28.—(C.P.).—Investigations decided that the culprit in a burglary case was an agile second-story man who climbed a "two-by-four" and entered a narrow window from a shed roof. So they asked that the indictment against their prisoner, Welton Niles, be quashed. Judge King Swope took one look and freed the Negro.

Welton weighs 499 pounds. He picked up nine of them while in jail.

MAY PROROGUE PARLIAMENT AT END OF WEEK

Will Finish in View House Starts Working Overtime.

NEW LEGISLATION.

Premier and Opposition Leader Agree on Early Conclusion of Session.

OTTAWA, June 28. (CP).—With prorogation in view the House of Commons starts working overtime to-day with morning in addition to the regular afternoon and evening sittings. It is hoped to bring parliament's business to an end Saturday, if not Friday night.

Both Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and Rt. Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King, Liberal leader, agreed yesterday on the desirability of an early end of the session which has continued since January and has been characterized by the greatest collection of new legislation to come before any single session of parliament in recent years.

Two of the major measures of the session have yet to receive final approval from the House of Commons to say nothing of the senate. One is the Bank of Canada bill which will provide this country with its first central bank and the other is the public works bill.

Opposition's Stand

Yesterday the opposition with a series of amendments made a last stand in the fight for public ownership of the central bank but were ruled out of order by the speaker. The debate on third reading of the bill continues to-day.

The Prime Minister again declared it as his opinion that the Central Bank Bill was probably the best measure of the kind on the statue books of any country. It provides for public control but private ownership. He had given serious consideration to complete state ownership but had rejected

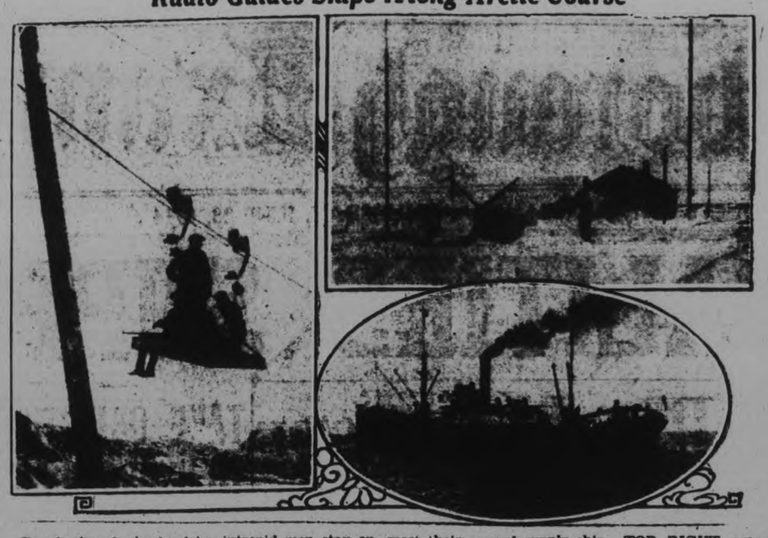
Radio Guides Ships Along Arctic Course



Rough though the land be, intrepid men stay on the job all year long keeping safe for shipping the new Hudson Straits to Churchill route from Europe to the middle west of Canada. The above scenes show (LEFT), a cable tramway to allow radio operators to meet their annual supply ship. TOP, RIGHT, ocean freighters now call with full cargoes at trading posts and Churchill in the eastern Canadian Arctic. Radio guides them. LOWER RIGHT, one of the government stations on the Hudson Straits route.

RADIO PROTECTS SHIPPING ALONG HUDSON'S STRAITS TRADE ROUTE

Isolated Stations Give Bearings and Weather Reports All Year.

LATEST IN RADIO

CHURCHILL, June 28 (By Central Press Canadian).—Though the most northern entrance to the continent, the Hudson Straits, is seldom free of ice, more ships are using it every year to bring freight from Europe to Canada and take wheat away from North America for England. A chain of modern radio stations has made the most northern gateway to the continent safe for navigation.

An aerial expedition and daily weather reports have shown that the Hudson Straits, despite its northerly position, never freezes over. The Straits are often, and especially in winter, choked with ice floes, but this ice keeps moving, slowly at times, toward the Atlantic ocean. In summer there is plenty of open water between the icebergs and ice floes, enough for ships to pass through with safety.

At the entrance to the Straits, on Resolution Island, is the first of the radio stations. Half-way along the coast at Cape Hope's Advance is the second. The third is on Nottingham Island, where the Hudson Straits joins the Hudson Bay. And the terminus station is at the new seaport of Churchill, on Hudson Bay.

Latest in Radio.

All four stations are equipped with the latest in directional radio. Ship captains passing through the Straits can constantly verify their position by keeping in contact with the direction finding radio stations. Readings from the two nearest stations plotted on a map will show the captain exactly how his ship is progressing. In addition the radio stations warn of any floating bergs which are known to be in the path of the steamer, and ships keep a constant lookout for ice while passing through the Straits.

At the same time these four radio stations can keep in contact with Ottawa, and so the rest of the world via the short-wave transmitters at Churchill and Cape Hope's Advance. A ship passing through the Straits, though it be too far from its home port to keep in touch by its own radio, can do so by the short-wave stations on the most northern ship route on the continent.

The Hudson Straits route is being used because it cuts the sailing time between Europe and the centre of the North American continent by several days, as well as making for a considerable saving in handling costs for there is no recurrent loading and unloading as required on the usual route via the St. Lawrence river and the Great Lakes.

Is Awarded $12,982 In Death Of Husband

HULL, Que., June 28—(CP)—Mrs. Alexima Bouchard, Gatineau Point, Que. was awarded $12,982 damages with costs by a jury in Hull Superior Court late last night in an action for $20,000 against the Gatineau Power Company, over the death of her husband, Merilde Bouchard, who was drowned in the Gatineau River, July 9, 1932.

The jury found that Bouchard was drowned as a result of a sudden flood of water let out of the Farmer's Rapids Dam of the power company, while he was standing on a log jam in the river gathering driftwood. The jury in its award found the company 80 percent negligent and Bouchard 20 percent negligent. Over 50 witnesses were heard. Mr. Justice MacDougal, Montreal, presided.

PREMIER SEEKS HAVEN OF REST

Worn By Cares of Government, MacDonald Plans Holiday.

CANADA IS CHOICE.

LONDON, June 28.—(C. P. Cable)—Worn and tired by the cares of government, Prime Minister Ramsay Macdonald stayed away from affairs of state today and surveyed the world's map for a haven of rest. He was described in London newspapers as already virtually decided on Canada.

Mr. Macdonald cleared his desk late yesterday, placing the reins of leadership in the hands of Stanley Baldwin, former premier and Lord President of the Council in the MacDonald cabinet. He was off for a vacation of three months on orders of his physicians who prescribed complete rest as the cure.

The Daily Herald said today the Prime Minister had "practically decided" to spend his vacation in the Rocky Mountain country of Western Canada, indulging in hikes through the picturesque Alberta and British Columbia Rockies. The Daily Mail said he may visit Newfoundland on the way back.

There was no definite word of When Mr. MacDonald would leave England on his search for health but it was believed he would get started as quickly as possible. His daughter Ishbel, who has been his companion on many journeys abroad, was expected to accompany him.

Girl's Flowers Win Her Municipal Post

BOLIVAR, Mo., June 28. (CP).—Miss Julia Porter's flowers have broken down all party lines in this city.

For years she has paid tribute with a sprig of posies at every funeral held here. One day the suggestion was made that she seek the position of city treasurer.

"But this is a Republican town," one person protested. "Julia, as a Democrate, will never win."

W. W. White, owner of a funeral parlor here, suggested that "We run Julia upon a posy platform."

She won overwhelmingly.

Heavy shipments from Argentina have helped arouse business optimism there.

BROWNLEE TO TAKE STAND IN OWN DEFENCE

Typist Concludes Her Case in Suit Against Premier.

PARENTS TESTIFY.

Maintain Girl's Health Has Been Ruined Since Going to City.

(By George Finlay—C.P. Staff Writer).

EDMONTON, June 28 (C.P.). — Alberta's 50-year-old Premier whose alleged intimacies with Miss Vivian MacMillan, young stenographer, have been aired in Superior Court during the past two days, was to mount the witness stand to-day to testify in his own defence. Premier J. E. Brownlee has been sued for unstated damages by the typist who claims he seduced her.

Miss MacMillan is co-plaintiff wth her father, former Mayor of Edson, Alta., in the Supreme Court action. In a counter-claim, Premier Brownlee has brought suit against Miss MacMillan, and John Caldwell, young medical student, for $10,000 damages. He alleges conspiracy.

The case for the plaintiffs was concluded yesterday when parents of the former Government typist testified on her behalf. Since their daughter had gone to Edmonton to work in the Parliament Buildings she had suffered ill health, had lost weight, and was "a wreck to-day," Mr. MacMillan declared. A doctor who had treated Miss MacMillan in hospital also testified.

Maid's Testimony.

One of the highlights of yesterday's hearing was the appearance of Jessie Elgert, who had served as a domestic in the Brownlee household early in the year that Miss MacMillan came to the city from her family home in Edson.

Miss Elgert recalled she had seen the stenographer get into the Premier's car late one night in October,

POLICE APOLOGY ORDERED IN ARREST OF YOUNG GIRL

TORONTO, June 28.—Deploring the lack of discretion shown in enforcing the vagrancy bylaw when an 18-year-old girl was recently arrested and jailed, the board of police commissioners yesterday afternoon asked the officers who made the arrest to make an apology. The board was informed the girl was sitting on a park bench about midnight with a young man when she was approached by the police. Though the couple were conducting themselves properly, they were questioned, later charged with vagrancy and put in jail for the night without being granted bail. When brought to court they were acquitted.

He Came Stooped And Went Away Erect

North Carolina Patient Made Remarkably Swift Recovery and Voices His Thanks.

The very tall and genial gentleman who has attended the clinic for nearly a month was not nearly so tall or so genial when he arrived. He looked much older than his admitted age of 33.

Frank Swanson, Pilot Mountain, South Carolina, was a sallow and sick looking man when he arrived in Williamsburg. He was wearing a brace for his back and even with this support, he had a decided stoop. He was also markedly lame, and he had to walk with a cane. The above afflictions he brought with him but he brought something else. He brought optimism, determination and courage. During our two years here we have met thousands of patients and seen thousands of remarkable recoveries but, for keen optimism we grant first place to Mr. Swanson. He came with a full conviction that Dr. Locke could and would help him. He was definite about that. How long he would have to remain he did not know nor did he ask. He expected he would have to remain for a long time. This optimism regarding recovery has been fully justified. He has, for an arthritic patient, made amazing and speedy strides toward a perfect recovery. He is both surprised and grateful.

A Changed Man.

After three days' treatment he was advised by Dr. Locke to discard the brace he had on his back. He did so and missed the support but gradually became accustomed to doing without it. Very soon he was able to lay aside his cane and has never since required to use it. His lameness vanished and stiffness became less marked. Now, as we interviewed him, he stood perfectly erect and had no discomfort in so doing. He walks easily where and when he desires and is enjoying life to the full.

Mr. Swanson is a popular member of the Circle and he goes around radiating joy and confidence. While he has a decided fondness for conversing with the ladies he yet mingles much with mere men and his talk is all about Dr. Locke and the wondorous things he has done for him. We now quote Mr. Swanson's own statement:

"I have been suffering with arthritis since June, 1932, and after seeking relief for many months from many doctors, I have finally found the Healer of Mankind.

"It is discouraging, or has been with me, to spend as much as six months in a hospital undergoing experimental treatment, and feel worse, in every way, upon returning home. I am thankful to God, the giver of all that is good, that I will not return this time as upon other occasions. I now have a different view of the future. The clouds are now passing and the light is coming back. Dr. Locke has released me from the dreadful disease already. Now I not only walk differently but I see and talk and have my being as I have not for many months.

"Dr. Locke cannot be given too much praise and credit for all that he has done for me, but I believe that we must have faith, and do as the doctor advises, if we are to have the relief which we are seeking. Love, honour and obey the Healer of Mankind and give God the glory and we will be well and happy.

"I am leaving soon for home, and the business which I have not been able to carry on for one and half years, with no fear as to my relief from arthritis. God, through Dr. Locke, is making me able to carry on. My humble prayer is, and shall be, that Dr. Locke shall be blessed to continue the great healing and that many thousands shall be relieved by his hands. Further that I may be able to bring some of these here who have not had opportunity to get well.

"FRANK SWANSON,
"Pilot Mountain, N. Carolina."

The above was taken from the Williamsburg Times of June 22, as a tribute to the wonderful work of Dr. Locke.

THE M. W. LOCKE SHOE

A UNIVERSAL NEED IS MET

Your Feet—The unsuspected cause of many ailments.

Long clinical observation led Dr. Locke to the conclusion that weak and fallen arches and bone displacement in the feet cause incorrect postures and cause such ailments as Arthritis, Rheumatoid Arthritis, Synobitis, Neuralgia and Neuritis.

Dr. Locke believes that if the bones of the feet are restored to natural position and a shoe worn that will maintain the bones in the correct position, nature will complete the cure.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why external remedies as applied to sore and painful Piles are only local in effect and do not reach to true circulatory cause?

Why Piles may "come back" even after a first removal by cutting?

Do you know the cause of Piles is internal?

That there is congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the veins flabby, the parts lifeless?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy for itching, bleeding or protruding Piles discovered by Dr. Leonhardt, known as HEM-ROID and sold with your money back if not joyfully satisfied with the help one bottle gives?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by relieving congested circulation and helps to heal and restore the sore surfaces.

HEM-ROID is so successful in even the most stubborn cases that Middermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store and other good druggists advise every sufferer to get a bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets to-day—take them as directed—then if not completely satisfied with results—your money back.

PUPILS PRESENT FINE RECITAL

Piano and Vocal Pupils of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade Heard in Recital.

LARGE AUDIENCE.

The vocal and piano pupils of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade presented a very interesting recital in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A. last evening before a large audience of parents and friends who enthusiastically applauded the varied numbers.

The room provided an attractive setting with a profusion of rose peonies in tall vases and silver baskets of roses on the piano.

The piano pupils acquitted themselves very creditably, although it was the first appearance of some before the public. They played entirely fro memory with ease and smoothness, showing marked training and splendid technique. One of the outstanding advanced pupils was Bob Maybee who rendered Mendelsohn "Andante and Rondo Capprcose" brilliantly. His numbers were greeted with prolonged applause and he responded by playing a melody "The Bells of St. Marys" in variations. He plays with assurance and wonderful genius.

The vocal pupils were exceptionally fine from small Dean Cutmore, who sang "The Wasted Crust" to the more advanced pupils.

Warren Gamble in his unchanged boy soprano sang "Be Strong" by (Francis) showing great sweetness and power of voice. Miss Jane Shields of Mount Pleasant the sixteen year old girl winner of the silver medal for Durham County, delighted the audience with her solo's "It was the Rose Who Sadly Sighed", (Franz) and Fairings (Martin, from Songs of the Fair).

Mrs. Mitchell an advanced pupil, sang "A Brown Bird Singing". She has a delightful sweet captivating and haunting voice, taking the high gird-like notes with east and sweetness.

Clifford Cruickshanks who so recently was the sweet boy soprano surprised and delighted his listeners with his deep bass voice in his solos.

Miss Ena Young delighted all with her solo "The Wind's In The South" (by Pringle Scott). This selection gave the youthful soloist an opportunity of exhibiting her sweet powerful voice and the wonderful control she possesses. From the sweet lingering cadences to the powerful strong tones she was wonderful.

The following is the program:

THURSDAY, JUNE 28, 1934

PETERBOROUGH'S GOOD SHOWING.

In a special report on municipal tax collections during 1933, the Citizens' Research Institute presents some interesting statistics that show Peterborough in a very favorable light.

This city's tax arrears last year amounted to $9.91 per head of population, and out of 36 Ontario municipalities considered in the report only five had a lower per capita tax arrearage, Woodstock being the lowest with $5.00 per capita, Kingston next with $5.06, Owen Sound with $8.72, Timmins with $9.19 and Ottawa with $9.70 next in line.

In fact, among the municipalities in all parts of Canada covered in the list Peterborough's per capita tax arrears were smaller than all but nine, only four Quebec cities as well as the five in Ontario already mentioned making a better showing. No city in the Western Provinces nor in the Maritimes could show as low a per capita arrearage.

Speaking of the situation generally, the Institute points out that Canadian municipalities on the average had even less satisfactory results in the collection of their taxes in 1933 than in 1932.

The total levies in 1933 in 245 urban municipalities covered in a study made by the Institute amounted to $198,831,289, equal to two-thirds of the total taxation in Canada for municipal purposes, and the total amount of uncollected taxes, current and previous years, but not including tax sale lands, amounted to $101,623,990 or 51 per cent. of the 1933 levy.

This compares with 43 per cent. in 1932 and 21.6 per cent. in 1931.

WELL DONE, THE RANGERS.

The very fine showing made by the Peterborough Rangers at the annual inspection of the unit the other night should be a source of satisfaction to all ranks of the regiment and of gratification to the citizens generally.

Carrying on a militia unit in these days of inadequate financial support and of thoughtless criticism from people who fail to see the necessity of some measure of military training is certainly not a sinecure, and it speaks well for the efficiency of the Rangers' officers and non-commissioned officers and for the zeal and enthusiasm of the rank and file that such splendid results should have been obtained.

The overseas veterans who have given the benefit of their experience and training and the public-spirited young men who have felt enough consciousness of their duty as citizens to fit themselves as efficient members of the militia, as officers or in the ranks alike, deserve commendation.

While Canada has gone further toward total disarmament than any country in the world, it would be crash folly to scrap military training completely, and so patriotic citizens are carrying on in the face of scanty funds and public indifference, keeping alive the spirit of Canada's militia and maintaining a valuable nucleus of trained officers and men upon which, in case of need, an army could be built.

It is a job that needs to be done, and as the Rangers demonstrated conclusively the other night, is being well done; knowledge of that fact is perhaps the only reward that militia men are likely to receive.

THE PROBE SHOULD GO ON.

The Examiner believes that the majority of Canadians are hopeful that the inquiry now being conducted by the Stevens Committee will not come to an end with the prorogation of Parliament, but will be carried on by converting the committee into a royal commission.

While a great deal of investigation has already been done and a large amount of valuable information has been obtained, many matters remain for the committee to go into thoroughly, and it is the feeling of the public that the probe should be completed.

As a contemporary expresses it, "an abrupt conclusion, leaving the investigation in the air, would be unfair to business."

Certainly the inquiry should not be left in a semi-finished condition, for in the first place business firms whose methods have been under fire should have a chance to present their side of the case, and secondly, there are other branches of industry and business that the public has a right to demand should be looked into.

While a royal commission could not bring forth legislative action—that would have to wait until the next session of Parliament—it could at least bring out additional information and lay the foundation for governmental activity.

Meanwhile, it is declared that the probe is paying for itself, for already it has produced substantial revenue in the form of income taxes that have been uncovered by reason of the activities of Government auditors.

THE COST OF THE DEPRESSION.

Some idea of the immensity of the cost of the prolonged depression to the people of the United States may be obtained from the estimate made by the National Industrial Conference Board, which places the total for the years 1930, 1931 and 1932 at the enormous sum of one hundred and eight billion dollars ($108,000,000,000).

Of this loss the Board estimates that about thirty-seven billion dollars represents what wage and salary earners of the United States dropped during the three years, while the remainder was taken by business investors.

With millions of workers idle or on reduced wages and with scores of industries operating at a loss during the depression years, it was obvious that the total loss would be large, but the appalling size of the estimate made by the National Industrial Conference will surprise even the most pessimistic individual.

That such a startling financial transformation could follow so quickly upon the heels of one of the greatest periods of prosperity the United States had ever known makes the shock of this enormous loss even more severe.

There is a lesson in this situation, but whether humanity in general will grasp its importance is problematical.

As the Kingston Whig-Standard says, one hears that people will never again be duped as they were in the feverish years before 1930, that they have learned a lasting lesson on the evils and dangers of unthinking speculation. It is to be doubted. The next generation, with more money to spend than it knows what to do with, may find it just as easy to lose.

SIZING IT UP.

(From the Toronto Star)

It would, perhaps, be well for the incoming administration in Ontario to study the facts and find that its overwhelming success at the polls in the province was due, not to the overwhelming popularity of the Liberal party and its leaders, but to the overwhelming unpopularity of the fallen administration.

Mr. Hepburn brought to the aid of a Liberal party discouraged by many defeats one great thing, youth. He brought, too, courage and that touch of audacity without which a man seldom gets on in public life. His coming, therefore, was nicely timed to the needs of the occasion. He deserves great credit and is getting it.

Yet after all it was not a sudden admiration for the Liberal party and its new leader which caused thousands of polling booths to reverse the votes given five years ago. Take Owen Sound. Five years ago Mr. Taylor, Progressive Liberal, won his seat in North Grey in spite of a majority of over a thousand against him in Owen Sound. This year Owen Sound gave a majority in his favor of over a thousand.

The new administration should examine this and things like this all over the province and they will see that the overwhelming vote is not for a new administration composed of men whose names are not yet known, but against an administration, the names of whose members were altogether too well known. Tens of thousands of voters who usually voted Conservative voted against that party this time. They had had enough and voted in favor of the change that was offered them.

Mr. Hepburn, no doubt, freely acknowledges the debt he owes to this army of electors.

A FARMER'S VIEW.

(By Rusticus in the Stratford Beacon-Herald)

On the farm: It rained on the day before election. Not likely that the fact that Ontario was going to poll a record vote the next day had anything to do with the rain, but that is a mighty handy way to remember on what day it did rain. Working in the corn ground right now one would hardly guess that it had so recently rained, but it did rain and it kept right on for five or six hours. Not a heavy downpour that would leave the land hard, but a nice rain unaccompanied by the usual summer thunder-storm.

Every drop of that rain was needed by the crops and every drop was used because none ran away. Unfortunately the ground was so dry that even now more is urgently needed. How the grain did grow after that rain! Crops took on a new lease of life, and prospects to-day are certainly a good deal better than a week ago. The rain too will add a good many loads of hay to the crop that at best is going to be a smaller one than this district has mowed away in a good many years.

Pasture fields, too, were helped, but many of them are grazed so bare that the grass is not going to have any chance to gain on the stock. It will require very frequent and generous showers to prevent a serious pasture shortage in July and August.

We did enjoy that rain on Monday afternoon. The sound of falling rain drops was the finest music we have heard in a long time. It was the first time since seeding started that we had to cease field work because of a rain. May another equally efficient shower blow our way shortly.

* * * *

Then on Tuesday the province turned out to vote. One would have thought that after so generous a shower they would have turned out in a kindly way. Some of the old grievances might have been forgotten. The farmers certainly were feeling better on Tuesday than they have for some weeks past, but they did not make that feeling manifest so far as the old Government went. Old Man Ontario spoke. He did not whisper. He did not fuss about it. He simply yelled out loud and told Mr. Henry's Government to vacate.

Mr. Hepburn fought a hard fight. The depression may have helped him some, but his seemingly endless number of charges of one kind and another against the Government in power, and the fact that these charges were not met with what seemed like reasonable explanations, probably won the day.

We do not write these regular letters to discuss politics, much rather do we prefer to write about our farm problems, but taxation is one of the most serious of them.

Farmers have had to repeatedly tighten the belt and curtail expenditure. They have had to let many necessary repairs go because of lack of funds, and they feel that the Government should at least make some effort to lighten the load of taxation, and rightly so.

Mr. Hepburn is young. His majority in the House is a serious handicap to good government. We doubt if any other Premier of the province ever assumed power under more trying circumstances. Mr. Hepburn has made many promises. Can he fulfill them? Farmers certainly will be looking forward to his effecting the economy promises he has made, and they are prepared to accept a 50 per cent. cut in the "services" the Department of Agriculture is supposed to give them. We have not the space to mention even a few instances to show how the average farmer fares in the returns he gets from the money spent by this department in "assisting the farmer." Much of the assistance is more beneficial to the individual who gets a nice salary because of some new act or regulation that is supposed to prove of such practical value to the man on the land.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The best summing up of the Ontario election to date is that of the New York Times, which observes: "There was a general grouch 'agin' the Government."

There is no rush of Government officials to resign. Evidently they have decided to wait until the new Government swings the axe.

No arrangement has been made to provide ex-Premier Anderson with a seat in the new Saskatchewan Legislature, and he will have to do his criticizing from outside the House. It is a situation that does not usually lead to the best results in government.

The C.C.F. is claiming credit for the increased vote registered in the Ontario election, and probably the new political organization has some right to make such a claim.

Mr. Hepburn has not yet informed the public as to whether or not there will be reserve bids on those Government cars that are to be auctioned off at Queen's Park in the near future.

NO COMMISSION

To the Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—The Civil Service Act of Ontario is called the Public Service Act. It provides for a civil service commissioner who investigates to see if an appointment is needed and if it is the government makes the appointment. It is not like at Ottawa where the appointment is made by a commission after examinations.

It is for the provincial government to make an appointment or to renounce an unnecessary one and not for any commission.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

TABER, ALBERTA

This town, which flashed across the hockey firmament a few years ago with a championship team composed almost wholly of members of one family, is one of the few that went to the United States for a name.

In the summer of 1903, Senator Tabor, a millionaire mining man from Colorado, was making a tour of Canada. He happened along at this settlement when the citizens were attempting to choose a name, and Aaron Johnson and F. W. Russell, a committee appointed to choose a number of names to submit to the post office department at Ottawa, included Senator Tabor's name. Ottawa officials selected Tabor as the name of the new town.

When the C.P.R. moved a station to this spot, the name was erroneously spelled Taber. Representations were made to the railway to change the name and they promised to do so, but the request never was fulfilled. Accordingly, officials of the town petitioned the post office to change the spelling to Taber, for uniformity. The request was granted.

A Thought

BEAUTY IN NATURE

There's not a tint that paints the rose,
Or decks the lily fair,
Or marks the humblest flower that grows,
But God has placed it there.

There's not of grass a simple blade,
Or leaf of lowliest mien,
Where heav'nly skill is not displayed,
And heav'nly goodness seen.

There's not a star whose twinkling light
Illumes the spreading earth;
There's not a cloud, so dark or bright,
But wisdom gave its birth.

There's not a place on earth's vast round,
In ocean's deep or air,
Where love and beauty are not found,
For God is everywhere.

I don't like people to say, "will you do me a favor?" without first telling me what the favor is.... Why should I sign a blank check?

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

THE OLD TIME CHARIVARI

On this date, in 1682 the first charivari in the history of New France was recorded. This form of mental (and sometimes physical) torture to newly weds was of course, introduced from France. There it was the custom for the common people to manifest their dislike of certain sorts of marriages by demonstrations of various kinds, mostly noisy but sometimes unpleasant as well, as when the joy of a bridal night was interrupted by a visit from noisy folk who would not be denied. The custom was denounced more than once by the bishops, but, like other things, which were placed under the ban, it survived even the thunders of the church.

Chivaree, as it was known in Upper Canada, came from both England and Ireland. E. C. Guillet in his "Early Days of Upper Canada", thus describes what happened: "The chivaree party would steal up to the home of the newly wedded (generally where an old man had married a young girl or a widow or a widower had taken a second spouse sooner than the community thought proper) usually after midnight and sudden music (?) from the horns, horsebells, bull roarers, horse fiddles, tin pans and copper kettles, would burst upon the ears of those within the house. If the groom did not come forth and meet the demands for refreshments or money (to be spent at the tavern) the discordant uproar would continue the rest of the night, and often on succeeding nights, when the marriage was considered particularly objectionable. Sometimes the chivaree was much more serious than a mere serenade. The roysterers climbed on to the roof of the house and closed up the opening of the chimney with the intention of smoking the wedding party out. Fighting and sometimes death resulted." Now and again the aggrieved victims would seek redress in the courts, but it was no use, N.J.P. dared decide such a case, for fear of local ostracism and no jury would convict.

We have got past that stage these days, but when one hears the auto horns and tin pans emanating from autos chasing a car in which a bridal couple are trying to get away one wonders if the spirit of the chivaree does not still survive!

Popular Astronomy

THE MOON

Flowers of the sky! ye too, to age must yield,
Frail as your silken sisters of the field.

BY H. W. L. MAHOOD

LUNAR ECLIPSES

They are of two kinds. One total and the other partial. The Moon is a masquerader. Often it hides its light under a bushel. Then again it buries its talent in a napkin. Sometimes it hides its face from what goes on in the night hours. Over many a scene it throws a concealing veil. Glorious it is when it rides forth in its might. The eclipse is total when the Moon is completely immersed in the Earth's shadow. Mystery is crowded into the scene when the whole disc is thus darkened. The eclipse is partial when a portion of the disc can be seen outside of the true shadow.

While the path of the Moon about the Earth is somewhat irregular, the average distance away, the diamater of the shadow is a little more than 5,700 miles.

An interesting phenomenon may be witnessed when the moon passes through the centre of the earth's shadow. The eclipse lasts almost two hours. The time between the first contact and the last is about two hours additional. The face-disc of the moon is never totally invisible. The refraction of the Sun rays in traversing the atmosphere of the earth blurs the vision. But this effect does completely hide the moon.

An unusual eclipse occurred in 1884. The moon on that occasion could not be seen by the naked eye so complete was the eclipse.

The coppery light, which my readers have often observed, has aroused some questioning in your minds. Why is it not red, nor pink? To give the answer may be premature. You might wish to do a little research work. Here is the answer. Confirm it with you own study. The blue and green rays are absorbed by the atmosphere.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

MONTREAL, June 28 (C.P.).—Irregularity prevailed on the Montreal produce market yesterday, the continued advance in the price of eggs being the outstanding feature.

The egg market was up ½ cent, graded shipments bringing 21½ to 22 cents for A-large, 20½ to 21 cents for A-medium, 19½ to 20½ for B and 18½ to 19 cents for C. Receipts were 839 cases.

Butter was ¼ of a cent easier, fresh No. 1 selling for 19¾ cents, against 19¾ to 20 cents Tuesday. Small lots to retailers were 21 cents for solids and 22 cents for prints. Arrivals were eight boxes.

Cheese declined fractionally. Ontario colored commanding 10½ to 10¾ cents and Quebec cheese 10 to 10⅛ cents, off ⅛ of a cent. Receipts totalled 621 boxes.

The potato market was steady. N.B. Mountains sold for 80 to 85 cents per 80-pound bag, Quebec Whites 70 to 75 cents per 80-pound bag, and Prince Edward Island Mountains $1 to $1.05 per 90-pound bag.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, June 28. — Light selling, which came in the nature of spreading operations by Chicago houses, chiselled small fractions from wheat prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday and left the market ⅜ to ¼ cent lower at the close.

Export business in Canadian wheat was small and turnover was limited. Foreign interests, however, afforded considerable support, and on the whole the market resisted the influence of rains in Western Canada in sound fashion. Precipitation in the Canadian Prairies fell largely in Northern and Central Saskatchewan and reports from the dried-out areas showed only showers had been received.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 28. — Backbone in the grain markets yesterday came largely from notable strength which developed in corn. Abnormally high temperatures, reported as reaching 109 degrees at some places in the corn belt, were looked upon as a daigerous menace at the present stage of corn growth. Rallies witnessed at times in wheat were attributed to Washington advices tending to confirm recent bullish European estimates of curtailed world wheat production.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

INDUSTRIAL STOCKS

TORONTO, June 28. (CP). — Prices for industrial shares firmed somewhat in the last hour to-day on the Toronto Stock Exchange, giving gains a margin over losses for the day. Distillery, steel and bank issues finished the day on the up side and oils, foods and utilities broke about even. Volume also picked up a little.

Cancellation of the proposed split-up of Industrial Alcohol shares, helped the distillery group and they all closed higher. Walkers Commons and Preferred, Distillers Seagrams adding ⅝ each and Industrial Alcohol 'A' gained ⅞ to 9⅝.

International Nickel spurted in the last hour to $25.95, up 35 cents; Ford 'A' was off a little and C.P.R. took a loss of ⅝ to 14.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 28 (A.P.). — Stocks worked into moderately higher ground late to-day after moving with an irregular and hesitant tone earlier in the session. Transfers approximated 580,000 shares. Mining and sugar issues again provided the leadership, with several reaching new highs, including Cuban American Sugar Preferred, which advanced more than 4 points. Amusement shares, together with Allied Chemical and Corn Products, were a bit heavy.

Treasury Collects Big Estate Death Tax

LONDON, June 28.—(C. P. Cable) —The British Treasury got another windfall today in the shape of death duties on the estate of the late Viscount Tredegar. The estate amounted to $11,000,000, and the duties totalled $5,900,000 under the stiff rates imposed in recent years.

Courtenay Morgan, the first Viscount Tredegar, died recently at the age of 67 years. He had an estate of 40,000 acres in Monmouthshire.

SMITH NOT SEEN SINCE SHOOTING LACHINE RAPIDS

Paddled His Flimsy Canoe Through Seven Rapids of St. Lawrence.

LOOKOUT IS KEPT.

Confidence Canoeist is Still in Waters Near Montreal.

MONTREAL, Que., June 28.—Although nothing has been seen of John Smith, Peterborough's canoeist, on his way down the St. Lawrence, since he passed through Montreal last night, and police of both north and south shores of the river confess ignorance of his location, authorities here to-day expressed confidence that he is still in local waters.

Nothing has been seen or heard of him since he waved to some people on the shore after he succeeded in navigating the Lachine Rapids yesterday afternoon.

Even the Dominion Signal Service agents along the river have been on the "lookout" for the canoeist, but up to noon to-day they had not seen or heard of him. Many suburban police chiefs along the river are of the opinion that he is still in local waters and that he passed the night on some small island not far from the rapids in the vicinity of Laprairie or Verdun.

Doubt Crossing Atlantic.

Smith is given credit for his bravery in paddling his flimsy craft through seven rapids between here and Peterborough. It is probably the first time that the feat has ever been done. However, in spite of this, they believe that he is hardly able to cross the Atlantic in an open canvas-covered canoe, 15 feet long. Under the best of conditions it would take him at least a month.

Smith left the Lachine Racing Canoe Club wharf in his boat at 2.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and immediately paddled toward the Caghnawaga shore. He kept close to the shore line all the way down to the river until he reached the head of the rapids, which he allowed to pull him down stream. For ten perilous moments, he paddled his craft on both side to avoid being pulled down the main rapid channel and after passing the lower Heron Island point where the water was less choppy, he waved to the Lachine citizens who had followed him along the shore. The Canadian National Express Company said to-day that they had received a parcel for the paddler, but owing to the fact that his location was unknown, they were keeping it for him until he called for it.

SENSATIONAL DISCLOSURES ALARM POPULACE OF LONDON

Germans Experiment With Poison Gas and Bacilli in London and Paris.

DOCUMENTS DISCLOSE.

LONDON, June 28.—(A.P.)—London read with alarm to-day sensational disclosures of alleged German experiments at poisoning the vast undergrounds transport systems of London and Paris with bacilli and gas.

The magazine "Nineteenth Century Review" printed alleged secret documents describing the spreading of harmless bacteria through underground ventilating systems by secret agents to determine the percentage of germs which could be introduced among the thousand of underground travellers.

"If the facts are not true," said Wickham Steele, editor of the magazine, and widely known British publicist, "they are well invented."

The magazine claimed the documents came from responsible persons in Germany, and that one of them revealed "very good results" from a dozen tests in Paris. Billions of germs, the document said, had been sprayed into the air near the Place de la Concorde and drawn by air currents to other stations.

Another document was said to stress the importance of detailed information on London's underground systems because they would be important safety points in event of bombing attacks.

FARM LABORERS FOUND SCARCE

Already There Are Few Unfilled Orders at Employment Bureau.

SITUATION NOT ACUTE.

When talk of labor shortages begins to arise, prosperous times can not be far away. A shortage of farm laborers to assist in the harvesting of the hay crop may be experienced in Peterborough County during the next ten days.

Already a few unfilled orders for farm help are on hand at the Employment Services bureau. A number of men have accepted farm jobs during the past few days, but the abundant opportunities offered by the local road building activities are proving the better attraction. The current farm wage in the County is $15 a month with board as compared to the 25-cents an-hour rate being paid by the road contractors.

If a farm labor shortage does materialize, it will not be acute, however, Hugh Robertson, manager of the bureau stated. The hay crop in the County will be very light this year and only a small percentage of the extra help required in other years will be needed. Haying is expected to be general around the district by the end of the week.

Huge Estate Is Left To Hamilton Church

HAMILTON, Ont., June 28.—(CP) —Details of the will of the late William Carroll, Hamilton chain grocery store operator, disposing of an estate of approximately $1,000,000 were announced today by the executors. The will is to be filed for probate in a few days. Included in the estate is $600,000 life insurance, believed to be the largest life insurance ever paid in Hamilton, particulars of the will are as follows:

Community of the Sisters of St Joseph, of the City of Hamilton to be used for the purpose of building a new home or orphanage in or near Hamilton. Money to become due and payable when plans are prepared and contracts let for at least the first wing of the building $100,000.

Perjury Stains Canadian Courts

OTTAWA, June 28 (C.P.). — Perjury has increased tremendously in Canadian courts in recent years, Premier R. B. Bennett told the House of Commons to-day. He said he knew of "most terrific cases" even where human life was sacrificed for greed and gain.

Perjury, said the Prime Minister, who has been a leading lawyer of Western Canada for years, often appeared a trivial offence to a man held on a more serious one. To escape one offence he committed another and the practice was becoming too prevalent.

GOLD ISSUES HOLD INTEREST

Base Metals Steady While Silver Stocks Unchanged in More Active Trading.

OIL GROUPS WEAK.

TORONTO, June 26.—(C.P.)—Interest centred in the gold shares again to-day on the mining section of the Toronto exchange and prices were firm to strong while base metal issues were steady and the silver group a little more active and generally unchanged. Oil shares were slightly weak. Volume on the whole was a little under that of Wednesday.

A few advances appeared in the big gold group with volume better than the recent average. Dome dropped 3, the amount of its dividend pay-off to-day, and Hollinger also sold down just the amount of its dividend. Teck Hughes, Wright Hargreaves and Pioneer Oil added a few cents each and Lake Shore was up 15 at $53.90.

On a second charge which dealt with assault, causing bodily harm, Adrino was sentenced to serve two years in Kingston. "In each case I am inflicting the maximum sentence in view of the fact of your extraordinary record of previous convictions," Magistrate Jones told the prisoner.

Job Printing REASONABLE PRICES

CENTRAL BANK IS ENDORSED

Conservatives voted solidly for the Bill, supported by eight United Farmer members, Messrs. Gardiner, Spencery, Kennedy, Speakman, Lucas, Luckovich, Irvine and Carmichael, and two Labor members, Messrs. Woodsworth and McInnis.

All Liberals voted agaist the measure, with Messrs. Garland, Coote, and Miss Agnes Macphail, of the U.F.A. group, and Humphrey Mitchell, Labor.

No time was lost sending the Bill to the Senate, which had been standing by impatiently for some legislation to consider.

Ruled Out of Order.

The amendment moved yesterday by J. S. Wordsworth (Labor Winnipeg C.), to the Bank of Canada Bill, was ruled out of order to-day by Mr. Speaker Black. This amendment provided that the Bill be not read a third time, but that it be referred back to the committee stage with instructions that it might be amended "so as to safeguard the sovereignty of Parliament over the Canadian financial policy."

The sovereignty of Parliament could not be affected by the passing of a Bill, said Mr. Speaker in ruling the amendment out. He quoted from the B.N.A. Act in support of his statement.

He would not challenge the ruling said Mr. Woodsworth. Such a procedure would only delay the House. It was, however, an open question whether the sovereignty of Parliament was being safeguarded in the measure. He would go further and say that the sovereignty of the people was not being safeguarded.

H. E. Spencer (U.F.A., Battle River) moved an amendment which would send the bill back to committee for amendments which would have the effect of establishing and maintaining a stable currency and credit system based upon goods and services.

Mr. Bennett called the attention of the speaker to the fact that to adopt the amendment would mean the complete re-drafting of the bill with no assurance that it would be possible to achieve the ends indicated. Mr. Speaker ruled the amendment cut of order and there was no challenge.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe (Liberal, Quebec East), then took up the debate, speaking particularly with respect to the Government's refusal to provide that notes and currency of the proposed Central Bank be bilingual.

The Government had said it would stand or fall by its stand against the amendment, said Mr. Lapointe, to have each bill printed in the two languages in place of printing some in French and some in English. The House then had defeated his amendment and he did not propose to offer it again as it would create the opportunity to say he was actuated by political motives.

He wanted to protest against insinuations made on his amendment. He was at a loss to know how the Government could say he was violating the constitution. Mr. Lapointe stated he stood for equality and that was the purpose of his amendment and there had been no notice, he said, to have the minority dominate.

The bill was then given third reading on division: For 97; against 50.

George Gibbons Is Going To Timmins

George Gibbons, well-known in local business circles as district manager of the Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada, will depart to take a new post with his company in Timmins, Ontario, next week. He plans to go west with his family next year and make his permanent home in British Columbia.

Mr. Gibbons has been 10 years in this city, and is in his fourteenth year of service with the Mutual Life Assurance Company. He came here from a post he held as manager of the Central Alberta district. A member of the Peterborough Golf Club and active in the Masonic Order, he has gained a wide circle of friends. His family, residing at 314 Frederick Avenue, will not follow him until a later date.

A farewell banquet to the department manager was tendered by the Peterborough field force in the Empress Hotel Tuesday evening. Among eighteen present were G. M. Fisher of Waterloo, representing the home office of the company, and representatives from many points in the Central Ontario region. Mr. Gibbons was the recipient of a handsome suitcase and a beautiful bouquet was presented to Mrs. Gibbons.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

REV. SEYMOUR IS HONORED ON LEAVING TOWN

Purse of Money Given Rev. and Mrs. Seymour on Departure for Springville Charge.

ADDRESS READ.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 28. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — For the past year pastor of St. John's United Church, Campbellford, the Rev. H. P. L. Seymour and Mrs. Seymour, prior to their departure for Springville where Mr. Seymour takes charge of the church at that point, were honored last evening by members of their congregation and friends, when about two hundred people gathered at their residence to wish them God speed and to show their appreciation of their departing minister and his wife, by tendering them a parting gift of a purse of money.

Mr. and Mrs. Seymour welcomed their many guests and friends, who filled the house and were seated on the verandah and lawns. With additional outside lighting, many short addresses were delivered by members of the congregation and other friends, and a short program given, concluding with the singing of the hymn, "Till We Meet Again."

The parting address was read by Mrs. C. W. Turner and was signed by Andrew Milne, chairman of the committee in charge of the arrangements, and the committee, the presentation being made to Mr. Seymour by Mrs. G. W. Hammond. Mr. Seymour graciously responded to the many kind expressions of regret voiced at his departure from Campbellford, and assured the gathering that he had enjoyed the work and the fine co-operation he had been accorded by his many friends. He thanked them for the gift, the material token of their appreciation of his service, and paid tribute to Mrs. Seymour, whom he said was his partner in all his labours. Mrs. Seymour also spoke a few words of thanks.

The regret at Mr. Seymour's departure was voiced by Mr. Milne, who, as chairman for the evening, opened the program by giving a short address in which he stressed the good work done by their pastor during the past year, and the regret felt at his leaving, and wished for him and his good wife every success and spiritual blessing in their new sphere of labor. Other addresses of appreciation were given by Reeve W. J. Duncan of Seymour, E. H. Lewis, Dr. S. L. O'Hara, Mr. Wilson, H. Atkinson, and T. Rowe.

Community singing was led by Mrs. C. J. Vesel, with Mrs. C. W. Turner at the piano. E. H. Lewis rendered two vocal sols, "Friend of Mine," and "My Task," Mrs. Seymour accompanying, and "The Rugged Cross" was delightfully sung by Master Gordon Seymour.

The address, read by Mrs Turner, was as follows:

Campbellford, Ontario,
June 27, 1934

Rev. H. P. L. Seymour,

Dear Friend.—For as such we know you and as such we meet this evening, to bid you a very reluctant goodbye. It is always hard to part with those with whom we have become intimate, but if our loss is going to be your gain, and such we hope and believe, the parting will be made easier. During your ministry in Campbellford over the past year, we have come to know you and your life partner, and to appreciate and respect the work you have so ably done. Your accomplishments as a minister of the Gospel, and the faithful service you have rendered the church and the community in which it stands, will always remain as a guide and inspiration to us.

And our earnest prayer is that some of the Christian good that you have done among men, here in this little town, may return to you and yours with an increased blessing. May the future hold many good things in store for you, and in your new sphere of labor may you reap the success which comes from Christian service among Christ's people.

In token of what we feel toward you, and in appreciation of your ministry among us, and the help we have derived from that ministry, we ask you to accept this small token of our esteem and respect."

Signed on behalf of your many friends.

Andrew Milne, Chairman.

1930. How did she recognize the car, she was asked.

"I had been out in it myself," she answered.

"Had you driven with Brownlee before?" asked counsel for the plaintiff. But she was not allowed to continue. A sharp objection came from defence counsel, and Mr. Justice J. C. Ives upheld the objection.

Wife is Present.

It is expected that Mrs. Brownlee will go on the witness stand to-day after examination of her husband has concluded. Throughout the hearing, Mrs. Brownlee has been constantly at the side of her husband.

MAY PROROGUE PARLIAMENT

it because it was essential that the bank be free from political influence.

This was particularly important in a country like Canada because of the constant pressure for regional, racial and religious presentation in all government appointments regardless of the qualifications of the men named for the jobs they were to fill.

The public works bill which appropriates a sum close to $40,000,000 for building construction throughout Canada to give an impetus to industrial and business recovery has also provided a target for opposition fire. Liberals have assailed it as a dodge to win the favor of the electors at a general election and have charged the distribution of the works is unfair in that districts represented in parliament by Conservatives are given the preference over others.

Radio Report

The Radio Committee of the Commons may make its report today. As the Prime Minister intimated it will recommend continuation of the present system of radio broadcasting under government control for another year with a study in the meantime by departmental officials on certain matters in connection with radio.

A Liberal motion of want of confidence in the government urging an immediate general election and based on the success of the Liberal party at the polls in Ontario and Saskatchewan will come shortly. As Mr. King intimated yesterday it will not be made the occasion of a long debate and there may be only two speakers, Mr. King and Mr. Bennett who will make the reply for the government. The expectation is Mr. Bennett will give no assurance of an early election.

The Liberals, said Mr. Mackenzie, were just as opposed as ever to an outsider becoming head of the new bank. He reminded the Prime Minister that Sir John Aird, president of the Bank of Commerce repudiated Mr. Bennett's statement there was no Canadian qualified for the position.

"We need to have a Canadian as head of the Bank of Canada," said Mr. Mackenzie, "a man who knows the complexities of our life, the peculiar problems of British Columbia, the Prairies, Ontario, Quebec, and the Maritimes down by the sea. I suggest no man who is not a Canadian and conversant with those problems, should be appointed to the position."

Premier R. B. Bennett wondered why party politics had been injected into the debate at the 11th hour. At one time, the Prime Minister admitted he favored public ownership of the bank. Later he swung to the opposite view, influenced by reading and by studying political appointments made in the past to public boards and commissions. Under the bill the bank's unchallenged independence was assured.

Deprecating what he declared were attempts by the Opposition to raise prejudices and passions with respect to appointments to the central bank, Mr. Bennett outlined the steps which would be required to bring the central bank into being. The provisional directors would be named by the Governor-in-Council as well as, at the start, the governor, deputy-governor, and assistant deputy-governor.

Describing the provisions under which the central bank would take over the gold reserve the prime minister reverted to the statement of Sir Thomas White that there had never been any indication of political interference on the part of the finance department in its relation with the chartered banks of Canada. This had been advanced as an argument that a publicly-owned central bank would not be beset with political interference. Mr Bennett contended there was no opportunity for political interference in respect to the finance department but the situation would be different in the case of the central bank.

Mostof the Dominion notes taken from the finance department by the banks under the Finance Act, Mr. Bennett said, had been "largely for window dressing purposes and nothing else."

The government had given the very best consideration it could to this measure and firmly believed that it was as good if not better than any other central bank bill in any other country. It insured that there should be no political patronage in the operation of this great institution. It lifted the bank out of the medium of political patronage. He was making no charge against any political party in this connection but having regard to the frailties of human nature—"the pressure which cannot be resisted."

What happened between 1922 and 1930, not because the government of the Rt. Honorable gentleman opposite happened to be in power? Mr. Bennett asked. He referred to the enormous amalgamations, the mergers and the disasters which followed to the investors.

Referring to the borrowings under the Finance Act as a result of the great amalgamations, Mr. Bennett declared these developments had brought ruin to many people.

"I am not blaming the government of the day," he said. "However they saw it being done and did not stop it. I can say that much."

Taking issue with the contention that a man of experience in world banking was not necessary for a central bank, the prime minister stated that the Bank of France and the Bank of England had never failed to solve the difficulties with which they were from time to time confronted.

LITTLE APPEAL IS SUSTAINED

Previously Convicted by Magistrate Langley of Fishing Through Ice.

FOUND TACKLE.

The appeal of Henry Little, young Smith Township farmer against his conviction by Magistrate O. A. Langley, of contravening the Game and Fishery Act by fishing through the ice at Chemong Lake on March 25 last, was sustained at a hearing before Judge Robert N. Ruddy yesterday afternoon. Appellant was represented by W. J. Arthur Fair.

In allowing the appeal His Honor observed that Inspector Fred Marshall of Peterborough and Reginald Windsor of Lindsay, both Game and Fishery officers, had given evidence showing certain facts upon which the appellant might have been convicted with illegal fishing if illegal fishing had been proved. No fish had been caught, and His Honor felt that the strongest point against the appellant was that he had been found in possession of a snare and a decoy.

Found Tackle in Bushes

Commenting upon the defence offered by appellant, and by three other witnesses, that Little had found the fishing tackle in some bushes near an old ice hole on the lake, and that they had given an explanation of the blanket, board and crow bar, they had been carrying in the rear of the truck when apprehended by the officers at the lake, the Judge stated, "It is hard to believe that such men would deliberately perjure themselves."

"The accused person is always entitled to the benefit of the doubt. He does not seem to have received it in police court. The whole thing is very suspicious but I sustain the appeal without costs." His Honor decided.

The Game and Fishery officers related in evidence how on Sunday March 25, after remaining in hiding on the shores of Chemong Lake for several hours they had observed a light motor truck draw up on the ice on the lake. There were three men got out of the truck. After placing a board on the ice, the accused got down by the hole in the ice, and unwound something which according to Inspector Marshall was "something like a snare." The Inspector saw "something" drop from Little's hand into the hole. Afterwards, he testified Little's head was covered with a quilt by his companions, while he peered into the ice hole. The other men appeared to watch the shores of the lake meanwhile.

Hole Frozen Over

William F. Walsh and Jack Milburn who were companions of appellant on the day in question, and George Tindle, Smith Township farmer testifying for the defence all declared that the ice hole was an old hole, and that it was frozen over to a depth of two or three inches. The two former witnesses bore the appellant out in his claim that the fishing tackle which the officers had found in the possession of Little, had been discovered near the old ice hole in some bushes.

In arguing the case, V. J. McElderry for the Crown, commented upon some discrepancies in the evidence offered by the defence relative to the measuring of distances, and spoke of the defence generally as "the greatest cock and bull story heard in this court in a long time."

SMITH IS OVER LAST OBSTACLE

LaSalle to Caughnawago. After he passed beneath the Honore Mercer Bridge Robert and Lefevre shouted to him to come close inshore until the rapids were reached.

Got Out Several Times

Before actually approaching the rapids, Smith got out of the canoe several times to speak to the two men and finally off the Durant property on the east shore of Caughnawaga near the point where the rapids gather into a boiling torrent, he came to shore for the last time and shook hands with Robert and Lefevre.

He then pushed off rapidly and shot into the current keeping as near the shore line as possible. The two men followed him as closely as they could and finally saw Smith wave his hand to signify that he had got through safely. They were the last to see him in the rapids and he shot through at about 4.30 in the afternoon.

Many interested spectators gathered at the Lachine wharf to greet the daring adventurer and to inspect his gear and his progress down the rapids was keenly watched by many who gathered on the banks of the river and automobile traffic on the Caughnawago road halted while he passed in the rapids.

HEPBURN KEEPS

Treasurer's departments. Those who believed Mr. Heenan would become a member of the cabinet saw him slated as head of the Departments of Lands and Forests and Mines. Their opinion seemed prompted by the fact Mr. Heenan is a northerner, but they were at a loss to guess how he could obtain a seat in the House unless some other Northerner were persuaded to drop out.

Other Posts Filled

Some observers said other posts would probably be filled like this:

Attorney - general, Arthur Roebuck of Toronto; Minister of Health, Dr. J. A. Faulkner of Belleville; Minister of Agriculture, Duncan Marshall, former Alberta Minister of Agriculture; Minister of Highways, T. B. McQuestin of Hamilton; Minister of Labor and Welfare, Mayor David A. Croll of Windsor; Minister without portfolio in charge of the Liquor Control Board, E. G. Odette, Tilbury motor manufacturer; Minister without portfolio, Paul Leduc of Ottawa.

This line-up left the ministries of Public Work and Game and Fisheries unoccupied and its proponents admitted additional arrangements would be necessary.

Mr. Hepburn planned to consult his chief lieutenants during the day but there was no indications whether an announcement would be made thereafter.

Due to curtailment in Canadian lumbering operations and in Newfoundland's lumbering, fishing, and mining, there was a heavy carry-over of molasses in Barbados, British West Indies from 1932 to 1933. This year the demand from Canada for fancy molasses has been brisk.

BIRTHS, DEATHS AND POPULATION - ARE NOW RECORDED BY MACHINE

Estimator is Used at Bureau of Statistics in Ottawa.

USED FOR FOUR YEARS

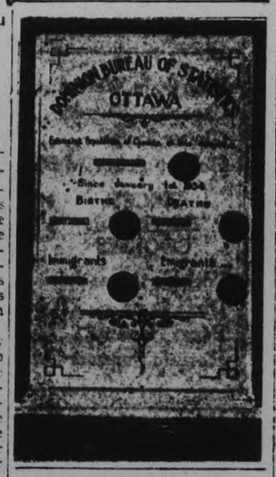
(By Central Press Canadian)

OTTAWA, June 28.—A simple-looking contraption which very seldom draws the attention of the people in this city who pass it daily is the population estimator at the Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa. The estimator is the "last word" in mechanical perfection, and is as authentic as the sun itself. It has been in usage for four years and has not varied a fraction of a second in that length of time.

For instance, if there is a "hurry up" call for "Old Man Stork" the little electric light bulb opposite the birth indicator flashes, which simply means that there has been another person ushered into the world, while on the other side of the estimator a flash may show another person or persons going to their eternal reward.

Also indicated are number of immigrants who come to Canada to seek their fortune. If there have been ten persons admitted to the Dominion, the light flashes, or it may be that number of people leaving the country for other destinations. This would be registered by the flashing of the light indicating emigrants.

The writer watched the estimator do its daily task one day and was surprised to find that "Mr. Stork" had a clear "right of way" over the other three indicators, for one hour the stork had gained a 75 "baby" handicap. The stork does not always hold that margin, as to-morrow it may be directly opposite and very much in a distinct favor for either the grim reaper or the persons classed as emigrants.



The population of Canada as recorded has varied very little, since both the left and right-hand side of the estimator have had an equal share in work. The estimator (or population recorder) is mechanically controlled by a synchroneous motor, perfect in every respect and, as previously stated, is as authentic as the sun. The figures for the estimator are compiled and supervised by the Bureau of Statistics.

"Murder in Trinidad" and "He Couldn't Take It"

Both of these pictures make snappy entertainment. Together, they provide a lengthy and extremely vital sort of program.

Crooks apear in both, with a different locale.

Mr. Lynch, the special investigator with a great fondness for peanuts, and a pet monkey, goes to Trinidad to look into diamond smuggling. Two murders occur within a short time. Then comes a pirates' island and a swift unrolment of the mystery and some more vivid scenes. This is a highly entertaining feature, with Nigel Bruce and Heather Angel and Victor Jory in the main roles.

"He Couldn't Take It" is the story of a redhead who craves for action—and gets it. He becomes a special investigator too, and his habit of slamming them on the jaw stands him in good stead in this position. Ray Walker, Virginia Sherrill and George Stone are the three main guys in this feature. See Jim Case and his buddy, Sammy, in their interview with the bad man—Sweet Sue—and mark how they get the best of the killer.

For plenty of vim and peppy action, this double bill is a real winner. There isn't a dull moment in the two pictures.

PAPER IS FINED IN TYPIST'S CASE

For Contempt Publisher is Assessed $300 or 10 Days in Jail.

COSTS REPORTER $100.

EDMONTON, June 29 (CP) — Convicted of contempt of court, Charles E. Campbell, publisher of The Edmonton Bulletin, and J. S. Comper, staff writer, yesterday were both fined by Mr. Justice W. C. Ives, presiding at the civil action of Vivian MacMillan against Premier J. E. Brownlee.

Mr. Campbell was fined $300 or in default ten days' imprisonment with hard labor in Fort Saskatchewan jail. A $100 fine was imposed on Mr. Comper. In default of payment, he must serve three days, with hard labor, in Fort Saskatchewan jail.

Both were granted until 10 a.m. Thursday to pay the fine. The fines were immediately paid under protest.

Mr. Justice Ives directed all representatives of The Edmonton Bulletin except stenographers, be excluded from inside the court rail—from the press tables—until the contempt had been purged.

The sentence followed complaint made by A. L. Smith, K.C., Brownlee counsel. At the morning session he complained of articles in the hearing published by The Bulletin under the name of Mr. Comper.

H. H. Parlee, Edmonton solicitor, appeared for the newspapermen when court conveped. He had just been called in and asked an opportunity to consider the matter, to read the articles of the law governing them.

Mr. Campbell, he said, who controlled the publication of The Bulletin, had instructed his managing editor to cover the case, fully, fairly and impartially.

Mr. Parlee said it was only fair he be given an opportunity to prepare his case.

Mr. Justice Ives replied he was sorry if that for the first time he was thought to be unfair. Three "contempts" had been brought to his attention. The matter was serious in this case because, unlike a criminal action, the jury was not locked up in civil cases.

The jury was in the same position as the public. The reading matter was not censored as in the case of a major criminal court jury.

The presiding justice then pronounced sentence, and Mr. Campbell and Mr. Cowper left the court room.

ALL-TIME GOLF RECORD

SANDWICH, Eng., June 28. (C.P. Cable).—Henry Cotton's blazing round of 65 in the British open to-day is an all-time record for any of the 11 "championship" courses in England and Scotland. The former record of St. George's was 68, held jointly by E. Martin Smith and Douglas Grant. Cotton's 65 also is a new record, of course, for the British open, two under the mark of 67 by Walter Hagen in 1919. That was at Muirfield. The championship record for nine holes in '31, set by the veteran James Braid 30 years ago.

BOY IS RESCUED FROM DROWNING

Belleville Youth Plunges Into Swift Flowing River to Rescue Lad.

BOAT OVERTURNED.

BELLEVILLE, June 28.—A thrilling rescue took place here last night at 6.45 in the Moira River, when Jack Lundberd, 13 years of age, was rescued by Harold Smith after a lengthy battle with the swift flowing stream. Young Lundberd was boating in a fragile tin skiff when his craft overturned. Smith, a middle-aged man, dived to the boy's recue from an eight-foot wall at the river's edge. He grappled with the boy, who resisted his rescuer's efforts, and at one time drifted completely away from Smith's grasp. Four additional rescuers plunged into the stream fully clothed, and through their combined efforts the boy was brought to shore. Medical Health Officer Dr. D. S. Cronk was summoned, and after resuscitory methods Lundberd regained consciousness. Dr. Cronk stated that the boy will recover. Mr. Smith was completely exhausted following his midstream battle. Detective Isard of the city police said, in commenting upon the accident, which barely escaped being a tragedy, that the boys in the town had been using tin boats such as Lundberd's to navigate the river. He said that the dangerous craft would be confiscated to prevent any further accidents.

GERMAN TEACHERS ARE ORDERED TO SHOW NO KINDNESS TO JEWS

Prison Camps Are Utilized as Punishment for Defiance.

MANY PREFER DEATH

By CORALIE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

MUNICH, June 28.—The role of women under the new dispensation in Germany is limited to bringing babies into the world, preferably boys, of course. In their spare time, they may plant potatoes, shovel manure, pitch hay, plow the fields and take part in route-marches with the boys on Saturday afternoons and Sundays. If they don't like doing these things vountarily, they are sent for a spell to a state work-farm, where they are taught discipline. Should this not help, they may make the acquaintance of a concentration camp. There are half a dozen such camps for women now in the Reich.

"How much free time do you have?" I asked the chambermaid in my hotel here in Munich.

"I have no free time whatever," she replied. "On Sundays I have to march twenty miles with the unmarried girls."

"Why don't you get married?" There is a premium on marriage now. You get your furniture free and no taxes the first year, no taxes the second year if you have a baby?"

"Alles Schwindel," she said. "Alles Schwindel und Bluff." (That's all bluff and bolony). "When you get married you are not allowed to earn any money at all and with your husband in a labor company somewhere in the bush or on the land working for one mark a day, it means starvation at home." (A mark is forty cents). "Moreover," she added, "those premiums on marriage do not exist any longer. They have been withdrawn."

"How much do you earn?" I asked a stenographer in a travel bureau.

Two Marks to Unemployed

"Forty marks a month. (Sixteen dollars.) But of that money I must give two marks for the unemployed. It's done this way: I must give the cost of one meal per month to the unemployed. The authorities figure that a meal costs me two marks. I wished it were true, but I haven't eaten two marks' worth of food for years."

"Why don't you get married?"

"I like babies too much to bring any in the world just to be assassinated in war."

"How is it you have been allowed to continue as a teacher? I thought most female teachers were replaced by men now?" I asked a Bavarian young woman, whom I met in a friend's home.

"I taught in the higher grades formerly," she replied. "Now I am in charge of a kindergarten. If I don't accept my new position I am sent to work for some land-junker or other. My sister, who was also a teacher formerly, works for a farmer. She sleeps in the hayloft with another girl and two boys, and is treated like a beast of burden."

"Why does she stay? Why doesn't your sister run away?"

"If she runs away she will have no job at all and no unemployment pay either. She is doomed to stay where she is."

"How much does she earn?"

March in Barefeet

"Ten marks a month she is supposed to get. But from that money is deducted for the unemployment fund, for the upbuilding of the country's aviation. She can scarcely buy a pair of shoes a month. The last few Sundays she has been marching on her bare feet?"

"Marching?"

"Yes, marching with the Storm Troops. She is compelled to go out with them on Sundays. Thousands of girls are compelled to do that."

"I have seen girls marching on the road," I said, "but they seemed quite happy and enjoying the fun."

"O yes, when they approach a village, or meet travellers on the road they are commanded to sing and wave the flags and act as if they are having a good time."

"May I ask you," I said to this teacher, "whether you have any Jewish children in your class? And are they treated differently than the other children?"

"I have seven Jewish children in my class. They must sit apart and play apart. My instructions are not to show them any kindness, but to make them feel as early in life as possible that they are inferior."

"Do you as a civilized woman carry out these instructions?"

Some Prefer Suicide

The teacher had tears in her eyes when she replied: "Please don't talk of civilization, but I must carry out instructions, if I don't, I lose my job in no time and then it's the farm for me, too."

"H ave all teachers in Germany obeyed these instructions?" I asked.

"No," she said, "dozens have preferred suicide."

"Then the Germans are still a civilized people," I said.

There are five million more women in Germany than men. Since the new regime came into power the number of female unemployed has risen forty-five per cent. Before Hitler, seven million women were earning their own living in Germany. That number has fallen off by three millions, but since women are not listed in the unemployed statistics, and since they have been replaced by men, the balance makes a fine impression on paper for foreign consumption."

"What becomes of all the women who have lost their jobs?" I asked a female medical doctor in Munich.

Forced to Prostitution

"There has been an enormous increase in prostitution in the last few months," she answered. "It's terrible to make the avowal, but literally thousands of women and girls have been forced into prostitution."

"But the Hitler authorities claim to have cleaned up in Berlin, Munich and other big cities. Isn't it true that the Storm Troops are always on the hunt for what are called "Freudenmaedchen" in the newspapers?"

"That is true enough. A great deal is done for appearance's sake. But the root of the matter is not touched. It stands to reason that if you systematically deprive women of their livelihood, prostitution must increase, and it does increase. The work in our venereal clinic has trebled in a year's time. It's the same in all the cities."

"If women are systematically eliminated from business and there are five million more women than men in the Reich, so there is no possible chance for them to get married, what will become of German womanhood? I asked.

"Slaves. Female cattle!" came the awful reply.

CORNWALL, Ont., June 28. — (CP). George Goodfellow, of Lancaster, was found partly responsible for the death of William Magil, by a coroner's jury yesterday, inquiring into the 27-year-old Lancaster farmer's death resulting from an accident in which Goodfellow was alleged to have crashed into a crowd listening to election returns last June 19. Two others were injured in the accident. Joseph Lavert's left arm was torn from his body and Napoleon Saucier suffered minor injuries.

In police court a week ago on a charge of manslaughter, Goodfellow was granted $6,000 bail and is scheduled to appear for preliminary hearing July 4.

DEANE MINER'S VIOLIN PUPILS GIVE RECITAL

Youthful Performers Present Delightful Program at Conservatory.

PROMISING PLAYERS.

A good attendance marked the recital last evening in the hall of the Conservatory of Music by violin pupils of Deane Miner. And the audience was most appreciative of the excellent playing by the youthful performers. Mr. Miner provides his students with an extremely careful technical equipment and a deep mental grasp of the scope of the selections played.

The senior pupils played the major portion of the program, several having mastered the difficulties of from four to five major compositions. However, the seniors could not claim all the honors. Jimmy Lillico, a small boy pupil, played with assurance and ease and round, smooth tone, a vivacious Mazurka that brought him much applause. His easy bowing arm and his mastery of double-stopping interludes, combined with a presentation entirely from memory to make his selection most interesting.

Max Warne also played from memory, with a facile ease and a meticulous attention to true pitch that made his violin number one of the highlights of the program. Possessing a smooth, fluent tone with a singing, or cantabile, quality, that is most attractive, he played with artistic expressiveness the lovely melodic cadences of "The Evening Star" from Wagner's "Tannhauser." A great deal of applause greeted the effort of this skilful musician.

Opening the program was Vivaldi's Concerto in A minor, played by Neal Mackenzie, an expert with the bow, who plays with thorough musicianship and a fine mastery of the difficulties of compositions of the sterner sort. It was a spirited selection that was negotiated with ease and skill.

Miss Catherine Corkery, a clever player with a very rich, smooth rounded tone that makes her music extremely pleasing to listen to, also possesses a fine technical equipment. Her solo was Mozart's Sonata No. 4 in E. Minor (first movement, played with excellent finish.

Promising Player

Harry McDonald, a boyish violinist who attacks his work with a thorough mastery of the hazards, displayed a real mastery of the instrument in his rendition of an exacting selection, de Beriot's Concerto in G, which calls forth nearly every trick of the skilled violinist, both in instrumentation and bowing. This student gives promise of a bright future in his chosen realm of music. The piano accompaniment was brilliantly played by Russell Rowan.

Clifford Shea played the always-popular and lovely "Londonderry Air" with difficult variations that were done very creditably. It was an expressive rendition of the haunting melody.

Later, came another solo by Neal MacKenzie, displaying again extremely skilful technical handling of a difficult composition: Beethoven's Romance in G, Opus 40.

And Miss Corkery repeated the splendid impression of her first number by playing with rich tonal expression, the lovely "Meditation" from "Thais."

Bach's one and only violin composition, a Concerto for two violins, was played in duet, by Miss Corkery and Neal Mackenzie, who gave the second (Largo) movement; a trio composed of Miss Corkery, Neal Mackenzie and Harry McDonald excelled in their rendition of the soft, dreamy Slumber Music from "Masaniello" and the concluding item was also a trio (unaccompanied, in the best style of chamber music), by the same players, rendering three movements—Allegro assai, Andante and the tarantelle, from Lachner's "Sonatine."

Accompaniments for the soloists were Mrs. J. F. Mackenzie, Mrs. D. Howat, Miss Josephine Lynch and Russell Rowan.

Assisting with the program were two youthful piano students of Miss Elizabeth Webber, both of whom gave an excellent account of careful tuition. Iris Fitzgerald played "Dance on the Green" and Barbara Richardson played "Blue Danube Waltz" both performing from memory.

The stage was very nicely arranged with mock orange blossoms, peoonies and lighted floor lamps.

Lovesick Lake Artist's Paradise, Angler's Fulfilment

KAWARTHAS CONTINUOUS CHAIN OF JEWELS, LOVESICK IS A GEM

Little Rock Bound Lake is Skirted by Emerald Green Shores.

GOOD HUNTING GROUND

By C. L. MARSHALL

The Kawartha Lakes are a continuous chain of jewels, and of them all, the most scintillating is that little gem known as "Lovesick," so named from a legend, which, if it is merely legend, is none the less beautiful and inspiring. The little rock-bound lake is skirted by emerald green shores, with here and there a sombre pine top standing out in contrast to other and more brilliant growths, its surface dotted with islands of enchantment, on some of which are neat cottages —havens of rest and sanctuaries for many a city family. On a bright summer's day, the placid waters of the lake match the bluest of blue skies, thus the name given to it by the Indians in years gone by, in the Chippewa dialect, "the Blue Lake." It is doubtful if the Indians ever permanently took up their abode on the shores of Lovesick, but there is evidence that it was a prolific hunting ground, and stopping place on the trek from the Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario, and was, perhaps, the scene of many a bloody battle between warring tribes, for on one of the islands, buried beneath a foot of gravel, have been found a quantity of exquisitely chipped arrow heads, flint tomahawks, etc.,—relics of the chase and battle. The beauty of Lovesick is enhanced by the high cliff of hard limestone which rises almost perpendicularly from the water's edge on the south shore. For the most part densely wooded, the strata of limestone, layer upon layer, can be seen through gaps in the forest, layers so straight and horizontal that the illusion is created of ruined castles, battlements and fortifications. Whence came the cliff? For an answer we have to go back into ages so remote that it becomes a matter of surmise rather than calculation, but it can safely be said that many thousands of years ago a huge glacier—a mountainous river of ice, slowly and irresistibly swept from the north through this section of Ontario, grinding and sweeping before it in its path the super-imposed limestone, some 150 feet deep, which covered the under strata of Laurentia granite—the oldest of all rock strata—the first to form when the earth, a molten mass, gradually cooled and solidified. Next the question may be asked "How was the limestone formed?"

A Toronto geologist gives as a reason, that away in the past, perhaps a million years ago, perhaps more, a vast inland sea covered that part of the world which is now Ontario, and from the waters of this sea were deposited sediments which gradually petrified and became limestone, a slow process because it is estimated that the deposits would not exceed much more than one inch in a century, perhaps a foot in 1000 years, and if this estimate is correct the cliff was 150,000 years in the making. An ascent to the top of the cliff overlooking Deer Bay discloses history written in stone, which the thousands of years have not effaced, for here are to be found embedded in stone fossils of fish, of lizards and of shell fish, and here too, at the top of the cliff, and at the very edge of it, is a mound of glacial drift — boulders, sand and gravel, mute evidence of the titantic force exerted by the long moving mountain of ice. From the same spot there is no more glorious view to be obtained anywhere than is here unfolded. Immediately below nestles little Lovesick in all its pristine beauty, to the North silvery bands of laughing waters, broken here and there by pine clad islands, leading the eye to Buckhorn, some six miles distant, where a lake of the same name empties into Deer Lake. If it is sundown, a fiery ball of copper is partly obscured by a roseate fleece of cloud; the northern sky is ablaze; dark pine tops are silhouetted on the horizon; a zephyr ruffles the surface of the opalescent waters, the silence is broken by the weird call of the some loon to its mate—God is manifesting Himself to a hungry soul. How wonderful are Thy works, O Lord. Yes, Lovesick has a charm all its own. Miniature bays and inlets; emerald green rice beds, the tumbling waters of Black Duck and Sunset Creeks, the roaring rapids of Burleigh Falls, all within reach of Peterborough, less than an hour's drive by motor, and be it said, the lake has never been depleted of fish, the gamest of bass—the wolfish fighter maskinonge, which are to-day plentiful despite the fact that it has been fished every year for the last fifty or more. Lovesick is the artists' paradise, the angler's fulfilment of an angler's most sanguine dream.

Bonarlaw

The new St. Mark's Church at Bonarlaw will be solemnly consecrated by the Right Rev. Dr. John Lyons, Lord Bishop of Ontario, on Friday, July 6th, at 10 a.m., Eastern Standard Time. It is expected that a large number of the clergy of the diocese and adjoining parishes will be present. Church members and the general public are cordially invited to attend the service.

Mr. William Webb of Toronto, spent the week end with his father, Mr. John Webb.

Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne and family, paid a visit to the rectory on Friday of last week.

St. Mark's church was filled to overflowing on Friday evening, the festival of St. John the Baptist, when Marmora Lodge, A.F. and A.M. No 222, attended divine service here. There were also a number of Masons present from Madoc and Stirling Lodges. The members of the order formed in procession on the Rectory lawn and marched into the church a few moments ahead of the choir processional.

The first lesson was read by Rt. Wor. Bro. C. H. Buskard, of Marmora Lodge, and the second lesson by Wor. Bro. W. J. Hill, of Madoc Lodge. The rector, Canon W. G. Swayne, who is a Past Master of Moira Lodge, Belleville, welcomed the members of the Order and preached a fine sermon, taking as his text part of the lesson of the day, the words of Jesus: "Among those that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist."

The altar was beautifully decorated with flowers, a gift from Wor. Bro. L. K. Crawford, I.P.M. of Marmora Lodge. The blue, green and pink tints blended wonderfully with the rich hues of the three memorial windows above.

During the offertory Miss Gwen Swayne and J. F. Baker sang a duet "In the Garden," accompanied by Mrs. (Rev.) W. G. Swayne, who also acted as organist for the service.

Many of the visitors remained for a few moments after the service admiring the beauty of the structure.

Christian Science Headquarters

The triangular shaped structure in the center includes on the right the Original Mother Church edifice and the dome surmounted extension on the left. The long building to the left of The Mother Church extension is the Administration Building. The long rectangular light stone building is the newly erected Christian Science Publishing House, which was built in the depression at a cost of $4,000,000, and paid for entirely through voluntary subscriptions without the necessity of mortgage.

BRITISH TO GET NEW P.O. STAMPS

Penny Denominations Promised in August With Other Varieties Later.

LONDON, June 28 (C.P.).—New postage stamps are to be available in August, according to a statement by the Postmaster-General, Sir Kingsley Wood. The first will be the penny and a half stamp, then will follow the one penny stamp, and in the course of some weeks the remaining denominations will be made available.

An endeavor is being made to produce stamps of a more pleasing appearance than those at present in circulation, Sir Kingsley said. There will be minor changes in design, with a more solid background displaying His Majesty's head in relief, and the colors would be richer. The stamps are being printed by the photogravure process.

Any variation in size would mean the complete alteration of stamp machines, of which there were 9,000 in London alone. The Post Office, Sir Kingsley said, sells 20,000,000 stamps a day.

Previously stamps have been printed from dies made at the Royal Mint, and the new process severs a long-standing connection between the Mint and the Post Office.

Gold valued at nearly $6,000,000 was recently carried on a liner from Capetown, South Africa, to London.

BENSFORT PICNIC IS HUGE SUCCESS

One Hundred and Fifteen Persons Take Part in Annual Sunday School Event.

GOOD PROGRAM

BENSFORT, June 28.—(Examiner Correspondence).—About one hundred and fifteen persons attended the S. S. picnic held in the woods and nearby field of W. C. Dawson on the north shore of Rice Lake on Saturday afternoon, June 23. The grounds are ideal for picnics, especially as there is a good swimming beach.

The first part of the afternoon was spent in swimming. After the swimming the older boys enjoyed a game of softball in the field. Then all moved over to the woods where the ladies had supper all ready, the tables being set on the grass in a semi-circle.

After supper races were enjoyed by young and old, especially the three-legged race which turned out very humorous.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dawson and family, of Peterborough, visited Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bebee on Sunday.

Congratulations are extended to Misses Betty Perrin and Marion Monerief, who successfully passed their first year high school exams. The two girls have attended Port Hope High School for the past year.

CREATORE BAND IS BIG FEATURE FOR OTTAWA 'EX'

Unusual Features Are Arranged for Annual Exhibition.

AUTO RACES

With the opening of the Ottawa Exhibition only about eight weeks off, the manager and directors confidently state that plans now competed give assurance that the 1934 exhibition will more than sustain the record of previous years for novelty and excellence along the various lines. The exhibition dates are August 20th to August 25th and six full days and six big nights are promised to young and old.

To many the outstanding factor will be the return of Creatore and his band. On previous visits the last being in 1930, this great maestro and his wonderful organization of artists have created a furore among music lovers. Creatore is different from all others. He is in a class by himself. His repertoire is one which appeals to all and during exhibition week two programs will be given each day from the shell bandstand, no extra charge being made.

For the feature evening attraction there will be the Follies Revue of 1934. This will be on an elaborate scale not attempted before for outdoor amusement and will bring back the musical comedy days of the legitimate theaters. Broadway artists, mostly girls, will give the latest in songs and dances, with a generous amount of comedy, and the production will be lavishly costumed and gorgeously staged.

Government displays again will be featured, both the Dominion and Ontario government departments making displays. All will be educative and interesting but possibly most attention will be the Ontario display of live fish, game birds and wild animals.

For the last two days of the week there will be automobile races in addition to the other features. Thrills aplenty are assured as some of the best professional dirt divers on the continent will be here. For the first four days, horse races will be featured.

Junior agricultural competitions, poultry, pets and live stock; automobile show, pure food displays, dog show, displays by merchants and manufacturers, agriculture and horticulture, child welfare and baby show, displays by women's institutes, nightly horse shows in Coliseum, machinery demonstrations and other factors will make the various buildings attractive to all. In the entertainment line there will be possibly the strongest bill of vaudeville ever assembled for the grandstand and a new midway will offer the latest in shows and rides.

It looks as if August 20th to August 25th will be red letter days in the Capital.

PAINTED PICTURE WITH HIS THUMBS

Danish Artist in Many Adventures Found Greenland so Cold Brushes Useless.

LONDON, June 27 (C.P.).—Emanuel Peterson, who was commissioned by the Danish Government to paint pictures of Greenland, has just returned here. He lived inside the Arctic Circle painting the pictures with his thumbs. Brushes would not work.

During that time he nearly died of scurvy, drifted for four days without food on floating ice, when alone and unarmed encountered a polar bear, and saw his baby daughter rushed to the verge of death by a runaway team.

Mr. Peterson, who is exhibiting at the Alpine Club Galleries, said the cold was so intense the colors had to be mixed with petrol to keep them from freezing solid, and they would not work with a brush.

"One day when I took my wife and six-year-old daughter on a sledging trip, the dog team that was harnessed to my little girl's sledge bolted out on to sea ice so dangerously thin that if the team had slowed for a minute they would have crashed through," he related.

"I gave chase. Realizing nothing of her danger, the little girl lay on the sledge laughing. At last I managed to turn the team on to firm ice. We were never nearer death, but my little girl thought it was just an exciting game."

The progressive sales of branded beef in Canada are clearly shown by the following figures:— (1931) 17,240,748 pounds; (1932) 21,748,768 pounds; and (1933) 30,682,609 pounds.

CATTLE SALES QUOTA PLACED

Voluntary Restrictions Placed on Cattle Shipments to Great Britain.

HOME SUBSIDY.

LONDON, June 28 (CP Cable)—Britain's "new deal" for the home producer of cattle was understood to-day to involve voluntary restrictions by the Dominion Governments of meat shipments to the United Kingdom under a quota plan. The scheme was outlined to representatives of the Dominions yesterday by Walter Elliot, Minister of Agriculture.

Mr. Elliot was said to have told the Dominions representatives that the Government proposes to grant subsidies to home farmers encouraging production which will leave Empire and foreign exporters with a smaller market here. It was understood he put forward specific figures.

Discussions on the expiring meat clauses of the Ottawa trade pacts will be resumed here on July 4. Yesterday's meeting lasted 2½ hours representatives attending from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, the Irish Free State, and Southern Rhodesia G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner, represented Canada

The Dominions made no commitments, it was understood, he High Commissioners promising consideration. The conference adjourned a week to enable them to refer the proposal to their Governments.

SEA MONSTER LURKING OFF SCOTIA COAST

Captain of Fishing Schooner Submits New Evidence of Experience.

SENT HARPOON.

25 Feet Long and Very Massive, Seemed Like Giant Shark.

YARMOUTH, N.S., June 28 (C.P.)— Further evidence that a monster of the sea is lurking off the coast of Nova Scotia was offered to-day by Captain Louis Crooks of the fishing schooner Gerald L.C., who expressed belief it might have been the same mammal which lifted another schooner almost out of water last week

Captain Crooks called other skippers and newspapermen aboard his craft as soon as he arrived in port last night for supplies. He had seen sharks and whales and dolphins before, he said, but never anything like the strange creature sighted on Monday.

"It was 25 feet long and very massive," he declared. "It was black in color, but white toward the head which was very wide like that of a whale. Its average width was about six feet.

Remained Quiet.

"Because it was quiet in the water the schooner was able to come alongside and I sent a harpoon into its body. It immediately lashed out and swam to bottom

"It moved its fin like a giant squid, but it seemed more like a whale or giant shark. I have seen lots of sharks and whales and dolphins, but I remember seeing a fish like this only once before—last year We couldn't get near it then."

Veteran skippers shook their heads, lit their pipes and went home without classifying the monster. It seemed a very lazy creature compared with the one that had caused terror aboard the schooner Marjorie E. a week before, but they believed it was the same.

The Marjorie E. was lifted and let fall back into the water with a crash that knocked three men out of their bunks.

BOUNTY OF KING STILL CONTINUES

Annuity Started by Charles II Goes to Citizen of U. S. A.

PAID FOR 300 YEARS.

MONTREAL, June 28 (CP)—The King's annuity, paid to the direct descendant of Elizabeth Pendrill, who, with her brothers, saved the life of the eldest son of King Charles I., who subsequently became Charles II. of England does not end with the death of Dr. Francis Cox Walker.

Goes to Brother

His sister, Mrs. Calvin Lord of Montreal, to-day stated that the annuity of £50 now goes to another brother, Dr. Dacre Walker of Andover, Mass. The annuity, given by King Charles II. in perpetuity to descendants of Elizabeth Pendrell, after Mrs. Pendrell Yates, always goes to the eldest son in direct descent. Mrs. Lord said. As Dr. Francis Walker had no sons "it automatically goes to Dr. Dacre Walker, who is the next eldest." Mrs. Lord added.

The story of the annuity is a page from English history. Prince Charles fled from the field after the disastrous Battle of Worcester in 1651, pursued by the victorious "Roundheads" led by Oliver Cromwell. He revealed his identity to Elizabeth Pendrell, who, with her five brothers, hid the Prince.

Years later upon the restoration of the monarchy Charles the Second established the annuity in gratitude.

The last recipient, Dr. Francis Walker, Professor of English at the University of British Columbia, died in Italy a few days ago. The Walker family, according to Mrs. Lord, has been long resident on this continent. A great-grandmother of the name is buried in a Boston churchyard. The family moved to Annapolis Royal in Nova Scotia before the American Revolutionary War.

IN MEMORIAM

PATTERSON — In loving memory of William Patterson who died June 28, 1932.

"Even death has a wonderful mission;
Though it robs us of those we love.
It draws us from our surroundings
To long for the meeting above.
No matter how heavy our loss is,
No matter how great our despair,
Doesn't Heaven seem nearer and dearer
To know that some loved ones are there?"

SHED CATCHES FIRE

Sparks from a rubbish fire in the back garden at the residence of Mrs. Drury, 553 Elm street, this morning set fire to the roof of a shed, and resulted in an alarm for the Fire Department being sent in from Box 37 at Elm and Cambridge street. The first was extinguished with a garden hose, before arrival of the brigade within a few moments of the alarm being sent.

Shortly after ten o'clock last night, the brigade attended at Hood and Cummings service station, where defective electrical wiring had caused an outbreak of fire in the attic of the building. In both cases, damage was slight, according to the Fire Chief.

This morning he is believed to have suffered a hemorrhage as a result of which he was removed to hospital upon medical advice.

TWO BROTHERS START FLIGHT

Set Out to Fly From States to Warsaw, Poland.

BIG MONOPLANE.

BROOKLYN, N.Y., June 28 (C.P.). — The Adamowicz brothers, Benjamin and Joseph, silent partners in business and in flying took off at 5.40 E.S.T. to-day on a flight to Warsaw, Poland, their ancestral home.

Promised fine weather for the next 48 hours, they headed for Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, there to refuel and turn out across the Atlantic to their native land.

They were accompanied in their red, white and blue monoplane "Warsaw" by HolgerHoirilis, who flew to Copenhagen in 1931 in the same plane— then "Miss Liberty." Hoirilis was to leave the brothers at Harbor Grace.

Their great ship rumbled down 3,000 feet of the 4,100-foot runway before finally lifting heavily into the air. After rising to only about 50 feet, it "mushed" down, but then gathered altitude and rose safely to disappear in the early morning to the north.

100 Are Present

Only about 100 persons were at the Floyd Bennett Airport when the brothers, prompt in their air appointments as they are in business, arrived from their home at just 5 o'clock E.S.T. They wheeled their plane from its hangar five minutes later, warmed it up and were off, while two fire trucks and an ambulance stood by in the event of any emergency.

Their prospective route would carry them to Harbor Grace in ten hours; then over the Great Circle route to Dublin, Berlin, and Warsaw.

They carried six sandwiches, a dozen hard-boiled eggs and coffee.

Hoirees said the brothers would set forth from Harbor Grace "just as soon as they get tanked up."

"As noncommittal as ever, the chunky Polish-American pilots — perhaps the most inexperienced and the first "brother act" in trans-Atlantic flying—were confident of reaching their goal.

It was a come-back. They started out from Floyd Bennett Field once before—a "test flight," they called it—but their ship cracked up while landing last August at Harbor Grace.

This time they had another year's training and the experience of Hoirilis to aid them on the first leg of their journey.

400 Gallons of Gas

With their big ship carrying 400 gallons of gasoline, there was just room enough for the stocky brothers and Hillig-Benjamin stuffed in the cockpit with the veteran pilot. Joseph cramped up in a place behind the gasoline tanks. Benjamin, 36 years old and married, and Joseph, 39 and single, have been flying only since 1927.

Their ship has a white body with red trimmings. "Warsaw" emblazoned in red on the side, and blue wings.

"The red and white are the Polish colors," said Mrs. Benjamin Adamowicze, who acts as business manager for the brothers, "and the blue is the American."

The brothers are residents of Brooklyn and partners in a mineral water business.

If they complete their flight, the brothers will land at Okencie Field, Warsaw's new municipal airport, opened only about three weeks ago and considered one of the world's finest flying fields.

Perry Battles Way To Quarter-Finals

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 28. — (C.P.-A.P.).—Hopes of keeping the all-England men's tennis title in its native element continue to burn brightly to-day, but the flame flickered threateningly while Fred Perry and Young Roderick Menzel were out there on the grass of Wimbledon staging a terrific duel before a tense gallery.

Perry justified the confidence placed upon his shoulders by turning Menzel back, 0-6, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2, in the tournament's most sensational battle to date.

The gallery cheered the brilliance of the Czechoslovakian as he parried Perry into complete submission in the opening set without the loss of a game. Each time when things looked blackest, however, Perry rallied to finally pull the match out of the fire and earn the plaudits of the excited gallery.

SOMERVILLE ENTERS.

WINDSOR, June 28 (C.P.).—Late minute entry of C. Ross "Sandy" Somerville of the London Hunt Club provided the finishing touches as the Ontario amateur golf championship tourney got under way at the Essex Club course this morning.

SHOPPING WITH ANNE

Remember girls, charm depends on an appearance that is at all times fresh and lovely. Do not sacrifice all that when you select a reliable and dependable line of cosmetics and if a little care is taken you can swim, ride, lie on the beach, and still retain that charming appearance that is so necessary to good grooming. Your face is the constant contact point of your personality with all the world. To be always charming and attractive you must have that face naturally soft, smooth, with a clear petal-like complexion. For golf, and all out-door sports, first of all apply a generous supply of a good foundation cream, and be sure to wear one of the large cart-wheel hats of light weight materials that are so very fashionable and are such a protection to the skin. Some ladies are wearing dark glasses now when exposed to the sun. How they do protect your eyes from the strong glare of old Sol.

A starched black lace hat is the correct accomplishment of a sheer black frock.

How lovely the velvet summer jackets are this year. They so gorgeously top a fluffy chiffon gown. We noticed a stunning blonde lady dancing the other evening and she was exquisite in a ruffled white starched chiffon dress over which she wore a three-quarter length coat of soft supple chiffon velvet, also in white. She was a vision of loveliness as she danced to the strains of "Play To Me Gypsy."

Alpacas are new. Not like the ones grandma wore. They are of silk and have not the stiff feeling that one associates with the kind used in days gone by.

A dress of navy blue alpaca, with a white top and a jacket also of white, with white and blue flowers, a three-quarter length sleeve (that length is so important this year). Worn with this is a white pique hat —and don't forget the gloves are longer this year to meet the shorter sleeves.

Shoes are going elegant. Some of the new slippers for evening are trimmed lavishly with gold and silver decorations. We saw a lovely chartreuse green pair in a velvet weave with a delicate tracery of gold around the top and running into a motif on each side. Wouldn't they peep coyly from under a long lace or chiffon frock.

Slip covers of chintz are adorable for the summer months. Chairs like folks should be dressed for warm weather. You wouldn't dream of wearing "red flannels" in August, so why expect to be comfortable sitting in a chair of warm velour when for a very moderate price you can have a lovely cool-feeling and cool-looking chintz, linen, or crash slip made for the suite. How they do protect your fine upholstery from the dust and dirt that filters in through open doors and windows in the summertime. Such interesting and attractive patterns can be had at a moderate cost. Some people make their own—and if you do not wish to do that—they can be made up very reasonably by any of the furniture stores.

You can get through the summer with about one dress if you assemble enough accessories to disguise it now and then. The obvious way, of course, is the bright colored silk coat or the dark flannel one, or a couple of smart linen ones There are other ways, however, which are not nearly as expensive. A scarf and belt to match is another way of changing the appearance of a frock. Taffeta collar, hat and gloves of a dark shade worn with a white dress can convert it into an altogether different costume. If you prefer an all white ensemble, wear with it a white hat, gloves and shoes.

A black sheer frock or suit with crisp white accessories looks fresh and smart even in the wilting heat in the city.

• • •

Beach coats of terry cloth are the very last word in beach apparel.

BEHIND the SCENES in HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, June 28.—

Good notices are an old story to Mitchell and Durant, but Lew Ayres paid them the biggest compliment when they were assigned to his picture.

"What are leading men going to do when they get in with such fellows?" asked Lew. "We had a make-up test yesterday and they even stole that."

WITH UNBELIEVING eyes, the M.G.M.'ers have watched Greta Garbo come down to the studio every day for two weeks to get costume fittings for her new picture.

La Garbo usually does just about what she pleases and one of her whims is to put off costume worries until just before her picture goes into production. But this time, the starting date is still far away. The studio has been one big question mark.

Low down is, La Garbo thinks very much of Adrian, M.G.M. style mentor, and is breaking her long habit so as he can get away for his first vacation in 12 years.

GARY LEON, the Santa Monica dancer who figured so torridly in the Fay Webb-Rudy Vallee marital mess, has broken with his latest partner and will do a double with Tut Maco, blonde acrobatic dancer. The pair met when both appeared at the Biltmore Bowl here. They'll break in their act at Agua Caliente.

HELEN LOWELL, who has kept that twinkle in her eye, says that being nearly 60 has its compensations—at least the Hollywood gossips do not report her as being "that way about Dick Powell.

GUS KAHN, the lyricist, likes to tell this story on Samuel Goldwyn. And Ann Sothern likes to hear him tell it.

Two years ago, when Sam was looking for a young singer for "Whoopie", Kahn and Walter Donaldson, his song-writing teammate, suggested Harriette Lake from the cast of "Of Thee I Sing."

"Never heard of her," Goldwyn is said to have answered. "We need a name."

Recently the producer summoned Kahn and Donaldson to write the tunes for his new Eddie Cantor picture. "And I have a discovery for the heroine," he told them. "Wait till you see her; wait till you hear her sing."

It was Harriette Lake, now famous in the movies as Ann Sothern.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

The science of disease, pathology, is a perfectly logical science, and it is possible, as has been many times pointed out in this column, to predict from the structure and the functions of an organ, from a consideration of the work which it has to do, what sort of diseases will affect it.

Certainly it is true of the foot. Essentially the foot is a framework of bones over which are laid various other structures necessary to the smooth operation of that framework.

The foot has a very large number of little bones provided, in order to give the greatest possible play to its movements. These many little bones are held together by ligaments and if, on account of the weight forced upon them, some of these ligaments stretch or give way, we have the various forms of flat-foot. The shape of the foot and the weight of the individual have, naturally, a great deal to do with the development of flat-foot. Other things being equal, an overweight person is going to have more foot trouble than a lighter one, because the foot has to carry more strain. Other things being equal, a long, thin foot is weaker than a short, broad foot. People with short, broad feet are liable to have little flat-foot trouble, no matter how heavy they get. But the person with long, thin feet is subject to it, no matter what the bodily build.

The surface of the foot is also subject to more infection of certain kinds than any part of the body. There is no day when all of us do not put the bare feet on the floor or ground, or a wet shower room floor, or in stockings that have been lying on the floor and have picked up germs. So the skin of the feet is constantly open to eruptions and infections. Regular bathing and scrubbing with soap and water are the best methods of reducing this chance.

Besides these two forms of danger, the necessities of civilization have made the skin and underlying bursae of the feet constantly chafed and pressed on by hard shoes. This results in the formation of corns, bunions and other evidences of irritation.

Muscles and tendons of the foot.

Finally, the foot is part of the body. It has blood vessels going to it which may become hardened in time, just as vessels in any other part of the body. In its joints may light rheumatism (arthritis) and gout. Such general infections as tuberculosis and venereal diseases may select the foot and develop on its structures. And all of these things are made worse by the very thing the foot is most subject to—trauma, or injury or strain.

Local Woman's Niece Is Instantly Killed

Mrs. Ayden Moore, 43 Frank street, has received word from England of the sudden death of her niece, Mary Hilton, who was recently killed in an automobile accident. Miss Hilton was the only daughter of Mrs. Moore's only brother, who died three years ago. She was returning from Blackpool with a companion when another automobile collided with theirs.

What the Co-operative Committee, composed of representatives of the Dominion Experimental Farms System, the Ontario Agricultural College, and Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, are doing in the study of the pasturage problem is another example of the value of collective approach to an important problem of vital concern to the farmer.

This menu may be served for luncheon or supper. The blanc mange may be poured into individual molds, then when it is time to serve, unmold on pretty plates and surround with strawberries, top with whipped cream with a berry on top, and serve with assorted cakes.

Today's Recipes.

Stuffed Tomatoes.—Six medium tomatoes, one jar shrimp, one can lobster, two or three stalks celery, two-thirds cup mayonnaise. Cut tops from tomatoes and scoop out pulp to leave a firm shell. Sprinkle insides with salt. Chill, upside down, in refrigerator. Cut shrimp and lobster fine, and add minced celery. Season with a dash of cayenne and a little lemon juice. Mix all with mayonnaise. Fills tomato shells. Arrange handles of green pepper strips on tomatoes. Serve ice cold on watercress or lettuce.

Sally Lunn.—One-half cup butter, one cup sugar, two eggs, one cup milk, two and one-half cups flour, one-fourth teaspoons salt, three teaspoons baking powder. Cream butter, add sugar and beaten eggs. Sift flour with salt and baking powder. Combine mixtures. Bake in shallow tin about 30 minutes in oven 350 to 375 degrees.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Rhubarb Ice

Cook three cups cut rhubarb with one cup sugar and one-half cup orange juice. Put through a sieve, measure and add enough orange juice to make one and one-half cups liquid. Combine one cup sugar, two cups water and the juice and rind of half a lemon and cook for five minutes. Add the fruit, cool and freeze to the mush stage. Stir thoroughly and add one large banana sliced thinly. One additional stirring will make a smoother product.

Leftover Paint

If you have some paint left over and have carelessly thrown away the lid to the can when it was opened, pour melted paraffin over the top of the paint, just as you would preserve jelly. This will keep the paint soft for further use.

Wash the Mop

Wash the oil mop occasionally in lukewarm mild soap suds. Rinse well in clear water and allow to thoroughly dry before reusing.

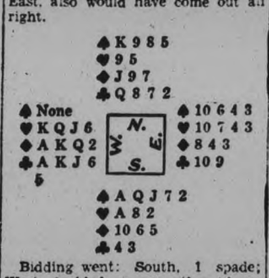
WEST HAD WHAT HE ADVERTISED

East never had heart of the new double-then-bid method of reaching the best final call, but West had what he advertised, and the bidding came out all right, as Esat did know enough to answer the informatory double. What might have happened had North's hand been held by East, also would have come out all right.



Bidding went: South, 1 spade; West, doubled, as any other player would have done, whether or not he ever heard of doubling, then bidding. The funny thing about the whole performance was that West had expected to double, then bid, but he held an ideal doubling hand, without need of bidding afterwards, as his first response from partner must show the best final call, unless East happened to hold 4 diamonds and 4 clubs. When East responded with 2 hearts, South bid 2 spades, but North dared not overcall West's jump to 4 hearts.

The opening lead was the 4 of clubs, which turned out to be as good as anything. Dummy's K won the trick. When the K of hearts was led, South won with the ace, and led his last club, which dummy's ace took.

The Q of hearts was led, hoping to drop South's last heart. East could not afford another round of trumps, so he led dummy's lowest club. When North played the 8, East ruffed with the 7, and South won the second and last trick for his side.

South led his ace of spades. Dummy ruffed with the 6. North played his 8, as a come-on. The declarer led the 6 of clubs from dummy. North covered with the Q. The declarer ruffed with his last heart, but dummy held 1 trump, 4 good diamonds and a long club. A diamond lead put dummy in and 5-odd were won.

It always is instructive to see what would have happened to an informatory double, or other bit of strategy, had two hands been exchanged. Suppose East had held the cards dealt North. West would have doubled the opening bid of 1 spade. North would have passed. East would have bid 2 clubs, which South would have overcalled with 2 spades, and West would have jumped into 5 clubs. No matter what opening lead South made, a small slam would have resulted. The only trick the defenders could have taken would have been the ace of hearts. Of course neither East nor West would have been justified in bidding higher than game.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

The lovely Claudette Colbert, whose beautiful orbs make women envious and men enamored, always wears dark glasses when exposed to the sun. Claudette believes that the eyes always should receive some protection from the glare of the summer sun. And with oorbs like hers, no one can blame her taking every precaution to guard their loveliness.

Claudette is a little wiser than most of the Hollywood damsels, however. For in addition to donning dark glasses, this charming lass always smooths a bit of cream or oil around her eyes before going out into the sunshine. As Claudette puts it, while the sun can't penetrate her dark glasses, the heat can. And heat alone is enough to parch the tender skin around the eyes.

However, I know that a good many of the sweet young gals who patronize the beaches and summer resorts have a great dislike for hiding their eyes behind dark glasses. Any gal who has a nifty pair of orbs wants to be sure that the beach sheiks gets a good look at them. And so she entirely disregards the fact that those orbs of hers won't impress the beach sheiks at all if she neglects them.

The sun's glare on bodies of water, on glittering beach sand, on smooth roads and on any like reflecting mediums, tends to strain the eyes and cause the formation of squint lines about them. The direct rays of the sun tend to dry out the sensitive under-eye tissues, also, and accentuate any lines and wrinkles already formed.

To give the eyes proper protection, you should shield them as much as possible from the sun's direct rays. Wear large-brimmed hats. The shadows they cast will give your orbs some protection, anyway. They're now consideerd very smart, too. Utilize beach umbrellas when you can. And why not try those dark glasses? They're no longer consideerd freakish. And if a celebrity can get away with them, why shouldn't you be able to?

It is also a good plan to smooth a bit of rich cream around your eyes before exposure to the sun's rays. It you dust a bit of powder over the application, the grease won't be obvious. And it will certainly help to prevent squint lines, and to keep your eyes fresh and youthful in appearance.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

In the matter of cherries Mother Nature has been most generous. Cherry orchards are found in many parts of the world. Furthermore, many a back or even front yard does its bit toward filling yawning pie shells. There are dozens of varieties of cherries. All these can be classified for cooking purposes into two main groups, sweet and sour cherries. Sweet cherries are delicious to eat as they come from the trees and are good for canning or spicing. Sour cherries are nearly always cooked and require sweetening. These are the cherries that make the tarts that are honored in song, story and verse.

* * * * * * *

The following recipe is a good one for the first ripe cherries of the season:

* * * * * * *

CHERRY TARTS—Two cups pitted sour cherries. One cup boiling water. One cup sugar. One tablespoon cornstarch. Eight small tart shells. One-half cup whipping cream. Method: Drain juice from cherries. Combine the cherry juice, boiling water and sugar. Bring to a boil, cook ten minutes and strain. Blend the cornstarch to a paste with a little cold water and stir into the hot liquid. Cook, stirring, over the moderate heat until it thickens. Remove from heat and beat with rotary egg beater to remove the scum. While hot, pour over the cherries. When cool, fill freshly baked tart shells. Garnish with whipped cream and serve.

* * * * * * *

The following is a good recipe for Cherry Ice Cream: Two-thirds cup sweetened condensed milk. One cup cherry juice (from can of sour pitted cherries). One teaspoon lemon juice. One-half cup cherries (chopped). One cup heavy cream. Method: Blend sweetened condensed milk, cherry juice, lemon juice and cherries. Chill. Whip cream and fold into chilled mixture. Pour into refrigerator pan and freeze. Remove from refrigerator once or twice during the freezing period, scrape the mixture from sides and bottom of the pan and beat thoroughly

Simcoe Boy Drowns Chasing After Ball

SIMCOE, June 28. — Misjudging the depth of the later in Lake George at the rear of the Westand Company foundry here yesterday afternoon, Peter Simmons, 8, lost his life when he plunged into the lake to retrieve a ball with which he had been playing. The drowning occurred about 4.30 yesterday afternoon as the lad was playing about the yard of the foundry directly across from the children's playground.

Before starting to clean a meat grinder run some stale bread through it. This will clean out the pieces, then take a stiff brush to wash it, with plenty of soapy water. Rinse in clear, hot water, and dry thoroughly.

INDIVIDUALITY IS THE AIM OF GUILD OF ARTS AND CRAFTS

Several Small Private Exhibitions Are Held Each Year.

FORMAL EXHIBITION

The Guild of Arts and Crafts of the Women's Art Association includes in its minor activities the holding of several small private exhibitions at meetings at the homes of members, while a larger formal exhibition takes place once a year. Individuality is the aim and some of the members have produced delightful pieces for which they made their own designs. Others have altered designs originally and effectively to suit their purpose.

In a recapitulation of the activities of the Guild, in commenting on this exhibition, one member writes: "From our professional craftsmen members we may expect lovely things and because of these exhibitions we make attractive and appropriate things for our homes.

"This past year, crafts exhibited included spatterwork on lampshades and book covers, leadwork candlesticks and flower holders, stencilling on drapery and book-covers and colored gesso-work, very lovely in design.

During its existence, the Guild has sponsored several loan exhibits held in the studio of the Conservatory of Music—most interesting of which were an exhibit of lustre pottery, one of old prints and another of glassware."

Descriptions of some of the Guild's activities are included in these little articles, written by various members of the Guild. Tie-dying is considered, as follows:

"Tie-dying is not for the practical, precise person, who does everything by rule and expects the results to be standard. But if one has a decided sense of adventure, a love of riotous colorings and a philosophic tune of mind; then there is nothing more fascinating than tie-dying. Do not think of this craft as a passing fad. It originated centuries ago in the Orient and has cropped up spasmodically ever since, in many countries.

Simple Apparatus

"One advantage of tie-dying is that no elaborate equipment is needed—a good pot, plenty of water, reliable dye, odd pieces of cloth—at least for beginners—a ball of twine, patience, an eye for colour.

"All cloth used must be previously cleansed of any filling or starch. Almost any weight of cloth may be used, the heavier weights using more dye. Canton flannel is one material that dyes successfully for drapes—having a velour-like texture. Factory cotton (previously well boiled), is another good cloth—and many use this extensively. Any cotton material will not have the same richness of finish that silk has. Celanese in any form cannot be dyed with satisfaction.

"Much of one's success depends on systematically planning and marking the chosen design. Small designs are in most cases not feasible. One has to take into consideration the weight of the material used.

"Bands are one of the simplest patterns used. Sunburst effects can easily be obtained by the amateur. Only by experiment can one become proficient in the art."

The following description is given for the making of block prints:

"One must selet a very thick linoleum and a sharp pen knife or a set of tools for making block prints.

"There are so many different uses for them that the pattern or design must be chosen to suit the purpose, whether it be for a lampshade, scarf, cushion top or Christmas card. If linoleum is hard, a slight warming will make it pliable.

"Draw design the opposite to that which you want when the article is stamped. If there is any printing, such as greetings on cards, the letters of the words must be opposite too.

"Cut block from linoleum, size suitable to design, which is easily traced by means of carbon paper. Hold you pattern and carbon paper in place with thumb tacks. Trace the pattern on to the linoleum block. Hold block firmly on table, and with penknife or small chisel or tool, start to cut the background of your design. Leave your design raised and cut away that part of linoleum you do not wish to print. Hold knife on a slant away from design—making each cut on line of design, and as knife is held on a slant always, the design will not be under-cut. This is most important, as a fine line undercut will not stand up but will hold the ink and make a blot.

"In using printer's ink for stamping, place some ink on a sheet of glass. Then work back and forth with Photographer's roller until the roller is evenly and thinly coated. In the block with roller, turn block onto piece to be stamped and roll with second roller, or press firmly with weights.

"If design is small, glue back of linoleum to block of wood for support. Apply oil paints or dyes with water colour brushes. Holding block, stamp your design with a firm, even pressure, being careful to keep it steady in order that the pattern be distinct and clear cut.

"During printing, it is advisable to clean block frequently by pressing it on newspaper, as sometimes the ink collects in small corners, making your design slightly burred.

"Blocks are improved with use, so it is advisable to print many times on old paper or cloth, until a perfect specimen is obtained."

Spatter Work

Another member writes as follows of another craft:

"My fancy was directed to spatterwork, a form of decoration used on pottery and porcelains many years ago. I decided to try this form of decoration on book covers and lampshades and made some experiments with colour solutions and wire meshes, spattering the colour through the mesh with a stiff brush. After several failures caused by the use of unsuitable colours or tools, I hit upon ones that gave a fine effect—a soft, velvety background for a design of leaves and flowers. These results were obtained by using Velox Transparent Water Colour Stamps, or coloured ink, a fly screen, several nail and tooth brushes, and the material for the design.

"The steps used in the process of spatterwork are as follows:

"1st—Pick sprays of small flowers and finely cut leaves and fern and press between newspapers under weights for several days. When dry, select suitable ones for design and clip away any superfluous or unsightly parts.

"2nd—Place material to be decorated on drawing board and block out space to be covered with design. On this space arrange the pressed leaves and flowers, allowing some of them to overlap the edge of the area.

"3rd——Protect all the material surrounding this area by fastening paper snugly over it by the use of thumb tacks. Let the protecting paper come close to the edge of the design.

"4th—Above the space to be decorated, place a small wire fly-screen resting on props to a height of about one and one-half inches.

"5th—Prepare colour solutions by use of Velox Transparent Water Colour Stamps or show card ink or dye solutions, placing different colours in separate dishes. (About one teaspoon solution in each dish is sufficient for small design.)

"6th—For each colour provide separate small brush. Apply small amount of colour to wire screen above and rub with brush over one part of area. Then apply another colour to second part of area and finish with third colour. The merging of the colours where they overlap often improves the effect. The colours will be separated with tiny dots on the material not covered with flowers and leaves, with the result that when these are lifted, the design will stand out in relief.

"7th—When dry, remove coverings surrounding design, also the leaves and flowers. A border may be added by use of a flat sable brush guided by a ruler.

"This is not a new art, as so many proclaim, but an old art with a new application."

FAREWELL PARTY PRIZE-WINNERS

Fine List of Prizes Distributed at Dance.

In connection with the report presented by C. W. Holland at the farewell party given last week in the Moose Hall at which Mr. Black and his orchestra furnished the music the following is a list of the prizes and prize-winners:

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, joint prize, pair of large bath towels; Mr. and Mrs. Lane, joint prize, 1 large size oyster table cloth; George Downer, silver cigarette case and lighter combined, all ready filled with cigarettes and suitably engraved; E. Williams, 1 box of white pocket handkerchiefs (6); Phillip Lindsey, 1 silk and cotton brevat 'or neck tie'; Mrs. Kelley, 1 fancy decorated cheese dish; Walter Ferguson, 1 fancy decorated fern pot; Mrs. Weaver, 1 fancy decorated rose bowl; Miss Ellen Harding, 1 pair glass "colored" pepper and salt dusters; Stanley Clark of the Rangers, won The Examiner Dictionary.

In his remarks Mr. Holland referred to the sympathetic actions of Mr. James Dutton, who on numerous occasions had put himself out to help, when special appeals had been made to him by the organization.

Pressure was brought to bear on Mr. Black to have him continue the Saturday nights dancing during the summer months, as these nights were much appreciated and his orchestra came in for a great deal of applause, but he stated it was impossible to do so which was requested. He did, however, contribute an extra hour which was taken advantage of by the 182 men and women present.

160 CHICKENS STOLEN.

MILTON, June 28.—Provincial Police have been notified of the theft of 160 chickens early yesterday morning from the chicken house of William Nunen, farmer, Ninth Line, Trafalgar Township. Neighbors heard the thieves but were unable to see them.

The Feeding Stuffs Act states that in meat products in which the phosphoric acid content exceeds 10 per cent. the word "bone" must appear in the description, thus, "Digester meat and bone tankage," "Meat and bone meal."

KINGSTON GIRL MISSING.

KINGSTON, June 28 (C.P.).—D. Driscoll of this city reported last night to police that his daughter, Marie, 24, had been missing from her home since last Monday. HAMILTON OPENED on Tuesday with a crowd of over three thousand on hand and plenty of rain. Revonah, the notorious mud runner from the Arthur Hullcoat Stable had the honor of winning the first race. Eddie Seagram broke into the limelight right on opening day when his consistent little mare Young Kitty easily capturing her event and Shady Well accounted for the feature event of the afternoon. If you remember we told you last week that Seagram's horses would fairly fly over the Hamilton race track. Young Kitty is about the most consistent piece of horseflesh in training. She has started seven times this year and won five, was third once and fourth the other time. In other words she has had a slice of every purse they have sent her after and don't think she is through yet because she will win many more races before October.

Shady Well has also reached her top form and this means she will step out in the most select company and hold her own. Willie Morrissey's Lace Shawl crashed into the headlines when he won on Tuesday at Hamilton and paid the record priceof the Canadian season to date, namely $122 for a two dollar ducat. This same gentleman has two more called Golden Spur and Soil Gills and is noted for putting over long shots, so mark these two in your hat band for future consideration. He only took up the training of horses about two years ago but seems to have learned all the tricks in a very short time. Previous to that he was a fight promoter in Toronto.

CRAPSHOOTER has at last crashed into the winner's circle and the price was very small, but this was due to the muddy racing strip and he is known far and wide as a superior mud runner and everybody and their brother had a ticket on him. They have one down at Rockingham Park called Boocap who is all ready for a melon cutting. The Labrot Stable expect Leonie, and Toy Time to each cop a race at this plant. Both were on razor edge when they pulled away from Long Branch. This plant handled over two hundred thousand dollars in wagering last Saturday afternoon on seven races.

It looks as if Boston fans are hungry for the thoroughbreds. C. V. Whitney has a large string down there and he never ships horses to any but first class tracks. The Hamilton racing strip is in rare shape at the present time and some records should go by the boards. It is the only track in Canada with a water main right around the entire track, making it possible to turn the hose on at any point desired. The late Sam Hilldreth often said that this was the best track in America for horses to run on and he should know as he raced extensive strings everywhere, and was one of the best known and successful trainers on this side of the pond.

He will be lost to the team for at least six weeks. While Jurges is in the hospital, Ellswood English will replace him, Grimm said.

Tenth Inning Rally Wins for Lee's Senior Petes

ABBIE ROSE'S SINGLE BRINGS HOME TWO RUNS IN HECTIC FINAL FRAME

Veteran C.O.B.L. All-Around Star Holds Ponies Hitless In Relief Role—Petes Lose First Canto Advantage Of Four Counters When Kitchen And Calladine Shelled Out Of Box.

FOLEY AND ASH LEAD KNOTTY LEE CLUBBERS, MURRAY AND KONOPKA STANDOUT IN INFIELD

KINGSTON, June 28.—(Special).—In a hectic game that saw Peterborough lose a first inning lead of four runs in the seventh when three pitchers paraded to the mound, Knotty Lee's Liftlock team battled through to the tenth, when they flashed three runs across to beat Kingston Ponies by an 8 to 5 count It was old "Abbie" Rose, veteran of many a C.O.B.L. game, who dragged his aged frame to the pitching round when Russ Kitchen and Bill Calladine were found wanting, and it was the same oldster who stopped the Ponies in their tracks and then delivered the blow that sent two runs across the plate and put the game on ice.

Wildness of Kitchen in the sixth got him in trouble, but his support pulled him out of the hole. In the next inning, however, he was even worse, and Knotty Lee yanked him. Calladine was no better, and in desperation, after the Ponies had scored four runs and tied up the old ball game, Lee fished around for a twirler and out of the bag dragged the aged Rose. And Abbie simply shut out the Ponies and produced a couple of runs himself to show that the Petes have been making a big mistake discounting him in the efforts to land on top.

Poor Support in First.

"Yammy" Jamieson went the route for the Ponies, and but for some slovenly fielding in the first inning, would have pulled through a winner. But when the game went into extra innings, Jamieson failed to stand the test, four hits in the tenth spelling defeat for him.

Tom Foley and Freddie Ash were the leading clubbers for the Petes, the centre fielder gathering a single, double and triple, while Ash collected two singles and a double. Scrutton, Smith and Stone, with two hits each, did the best batting for the losers.

In the field the work of Murray, at second, stood out. He handled eleven chances nicely. Konopka's work at short was also good.

The Petes started after the game in the first frame when Konopka walked and Batten hit to Quinn. Trying for a double play, Quinn tossed badly to Stone and both runners were safe. Foley's hit was juggled by Joyce and the runner was called safe after first being waved out. With the bases loaded Murray singled through short to send in Konopka and Batten. Whatley laid down a sacrifice and Ash hit to Quinn, whose throw home was poor, and Foley counted. Burton then dropped a single into centre, scoring Murray. Hollingsworth flied to left and Kitchen rolled to Quinn.

In their share of the first the Ponies got one run back. With one out Scrutton singled and was forced by Boyd. Smith then drove out a long three-bagger to tally Boyd, but Joyce rolled to Kitchen.

Petes added a run in the fourth when Konopka walked, was advanced on Batten's sacrifice, and scored on Foley's long three-bagger.

Kitchen Weakens in 6th.

Kitchen was visibly weakening in the sixth when he walked two men in a row, but he fell apart in the seventh. Jamieson was safe when Konopka made a poor throw to first on his hit. G. Arniel was hit in the chin with a pitched ball, and both runners advanced when Whatley heaved the ball to centre field. Scrutton walked to fill the bases, and out went Kitchen. Calladine started by forcing Boyd to pop to Murray, and on Smith's tap to the box, Jamieson was nailed at home. Then the bombardment opened. Joyce banged out a single to score Arniel. Quinn came through with a double, sending Scrutton and Smith home. Stone's single sent Joyce home with the tying run, and Calladine was yanked. Rose then forced J. Arniel to fly to right.

Wins Own Game.

Rose sent the Ponies down in order the last three innings, and while Foley doubled in the ninth, he was left stranded. In the tenth the balloon went up. Whatley led off with a single to centre. Ash laid one down and beat it out. Burton sacrificed to advance the runners, and Hollingsworth hit to Quinn, but Whatley beat the throw home. Rose then came through in the pinch with a long single, sending home two runs and really ending the game, though the Ponies made a feeble attempt in their share.

Once the stem of an elm tree has been attacked by Dutch elm disease which has broken out in the United States, nothing can be done to save the tree.

GOLF FACTS, NOT THEORIES!

BY ALEX. J. MORRISON

The proper hip action seems to be the most difficult part of the swing for the average person to understand.

The players who can approximate the correct movements learned them when they were young enough to imitate some good player.

As the older person undertakes to perform these movements they revert to whatever seems natural to them.

There is always the incorrect movement.

By trying to pivot most golfers succeed only in pushing the right hip back away from the ball instead of keeping the right leg vertical so that the body turn can be comfortably made on the right hip joint.

Check up on what you do in your own swing. It'll improve your game immediately when you turn properly on the right hip joint.

Making a practice swing toward anyone is about as dangerous as pointing a loaded gun at the person.

You may swing 100 times without hitting the ground or sending a divot flying in the direction of your audience. But, it invariably happens, there's be one time when you'll hit a stone or stick in such a way as to send it right at some person's face.

There is never any occasion for this.

You can swing in another direction and if you are concerned about others walking into your swing then walk away until you are a safe distance from everyone.

Otherwise don't swing at all.

ST. PETER'S TAKES 16 TO 8 DECISION

Better Hurling and Harder Hitting Gives Saints Triumph Over Hawks.

St. Peter's School grabbed off a 16-8 decision in a bantam City Baseball League game last night in Riverside with Hawks. A fair crowd saw a snappy contest, with the Saints getting better pitching and harder hitting. Some real long clouts were conked by hitters on both sides, Clarey, Robson and Lucano hitting triples, the latter's a man-sized drive that hit Louis Yeotes' sign in deep left.

Lucano turned in a nice twirling display to hold the Birdmen to seven hits and fan eleven. Hawks used three hurlers, Clarey, then Pammett and finally Fosters, Pammett looking the best. The losers tried hard to pull up in the late stages, scoring four runs in the sixth frame. A Pammett-to-Brioux double-play and a smart running pickup by Harding were fielding features. The teams:

YANKEES GAIN ON IDLE CATS

Lefty Gomez Forced to Retire in Ninth Frame—Ruth Connects for 12th.

First Shutout For Red Sox.

(By Canadian Press).

In the American League the New York Yankees gained a half-game on the idle Detroit Tigers as they hung up their fifth straight victory on the strength of Ben Chapman's 11th inning homer and some fine relief pitching on the part of "Fordham" Johnny Murphy. The score was 8 to 7, with the Chicago White Sox again the losers.

Vernon "Lefty" Gomez started the game, seeking his 13th pitching triumph, but had to retire in the face of a ninth inning rally. Babe Ruth hit his 12th homer, drove out a double and a single before retiring for a pinch runner in the seventh.

The Boston Red Sox, with Henry Johnson pitching, scored their first shutout of the season in beating the Cleveland Indians 6 to 0 to move back into third place. Johnson was touched for only three hits, two of them by Willie Kamm, and struck out eight.

Senators Win First Game at Syracuse But Chiefs Capture Second.

BEARS ON TOP 7-3.

(By The Associated Press)

Any hopes the Buffalo Bisons have of repeating their hurricane finish of 1933, when they won the league championship after just managing to get into the playoffs, are rapidly diminishing.

Losers of five of their last 13 games, the Bisons are in a position where they must show a reversal of form quickly if they are even to get into the playoffs. To-day they were in seventh place, seven games back of the Royals, which at present are occupying the fourth play-off position.

Lose to Royal, 4-3

The Bisons dropped the first of the series with Montreal last night, losing 4 to 3, when the Royals put on a three-run rally in the eighth. With Jimmy Ripple connecting with four hits, including his 8th homer of the year, the Royals fell on George Milstead for nine hits and made most of them count.

The Newark Bears contributed to set a burning pace, winning their sixth straight game as they again defeated the lowly Baltimore Orioles, 7 to 3. The Orioles outhit the league leaders, 11 to 8, but had 15 men left stranded on the bags for the somewhat dubious record of having 545 men left on the bases this season. Woodley Abernathy, Baltimore first baseman, cracked out four hits in as many times at bat, but his blows were offset by three Newark homers, hit by Vince Barton, Vito Tamulis, and Joe Glenn.

The Toronto Maple Leafs strengthened their hold on second place by rallying in the 9th and 10th innings to defeat the third place Rochester Redwings, 5 to 4. The Leafs broke out against Pete Appleton in the ninth, counting four times to tie the score and then went on to win the 10th, when Joe Morrissey led off with a single, advanced to third on two sacrifices, and scored on Murray Howell's single to left.

The first important battle of the Civil War was the first battle of Bull Run.

Tough Fight Assured Friday's E.P.L. Tilt

Fosters and C.G.E. are billed to meet in an East Peterborough Baseball League game at six o'clock to-morrow (Friday) evening in the Exhibition Grounds. With the Electrics working hard to keep pace with the league-leading Cogs, and Fosters battling to break into the win column, a tough fight is assured. These two teams generally dish up a good ball game, and to-morrow's should be no exception.

Fosters may have Lefty Dunkerley back on the mound, and if this smart southpaw is ready, C.G.E. is in for a tough evening. Manager Doug Hatton has McGillen, Barry, Hetherington and Armour all ready to step on the slab, and it's just a toss-up which one gets the call. C.G.E. is coming along fast, looking for a play-off berth, and playing heads-up baseball lately. Fosters have been shaken up again and have been practicing hard. Once they get the pitching, they should beat both the Electrics and Cogs. Friday's game holds fine possibilities for a real upset, and it deserves a good crowd of fans.

NINTH-INNING COUNT GIVES CARDINALS WIN OVER GIANTS

De Lancey's Homer Settles Issue—"Dizzy" Dean Gets Credit for Victory.

SEVENTH FOR CUBS.

(By Orlo Robertson, A.P. Sports Writer.)

The Chicago Cubs' latest winning streak, equalling the burst of speed that sent them to the front at the start of the season, to-day had tied the season's record of seven consecutive victories and made the National League pennant race a little more uncomfortable for the pace-setting New York Giants.

Charley Grimm's men opened the season with seven straight triumphs and that record was unequalled until the Boston Braves went on a winning spree on May 27 and did not end it until June 2. The Cubs opened their current drive on June 21 in the second game of the series with the Giants and since then have knocked off the world champions three times and the Brooklyn Dodgers in four games, limiting the two metropolitan teams to the low total of 10 runs.

With Guy Bush showing a return to their early season form, the Cubs turned back the Dodgers 3 to 1 yesterday to shave the Giants' lead to one and one-half ames with the help of the St. Louis Cardinals, who defeated the champions 8 to 7 and advanced within two games of the leaders.

Another Win for Dean.

The Cardinals gained an even split in the four-game series with the Giants and gave Herman (Dizzy) Dean credit for his 12th pitching victory of the year in a nip and tuck battle decided in the ninth when young Bill Delancey, St. Louis catcher, poked a home run over the fence. The triumph was Dizzy's second of the day, as earlier he received notice he had been credited with winning Saturday's game over the Dodgers, a victory originally awarded Bill Hallahan.

The Pittsburgh Pirates and Boston Braves also gained on the Giants. The Pirates, with Larry French looking more like the French of 1933, made it four out of five from the Phillies with a 4 to 1 triumph. The Braves licked the Cincinnati Reds 8 to 4 as Wally Berger hit his 11th home run.

KEENE GIRLS WIN SOFTBALL TANGLE

Jean Hickson Holds Visitors for 3 Innings, But Omemee Loses 22-17.

The port-side slants of thirteen-year-old Jean Hickson gave the Keene girls plenty to worry about for three innings last night at Omemee, when she fanned five and allowed just four hits, but from the third frame on the superior playing calibre and strategy of the visitors became evident and the Keene team won on the long end of a 22-17 count.

Omemee biffed out eight hits in the first innings, including a triple and double to push twelve runs across, from the offerings of Mary McCarthy, but were blanked in the second when Marilyn McCarthy, a sister of the first pitcher took the mound with two on and nobody out, and retired the side in order fanning two. From the second innings on the young Keene hurler was never in trouble and pushed her strikeout total up to seven. Keene secured most of their counters on past balls at the plate, when Hickson displayed wildness. She was relieved in the sixth by Sherin. Ev. Bigelow poled out the only homer of the game for Omemee while Isobel Short in right for Keene, made a beautiful running catch of a hard-hit fly.

Marmora Ball Club Loses To Coe Hill

MARMORA, June 28. (Examiner Correspondence). — On their own grounds on Wednesday evening the Marmora baseball team lost to Coe Hill in a league game by 9-4. The game was of the colorless variety and deteriorated after the fifth when the teams were tied.

Taking a five run lead in the sixth Coe Hill were able to hold their advantage until the end. In the third Deloro ran into a double play and the same fate befell Coe Hill in the fifth. Few strikeouts marked the game and pitchers were inclined to a little wildness. The teams:

SCHMELING MAKING COMEBACK

Scheduled to Fight Walter Neusel for German Heavyweight Title.

By DAMON RUNYON
Central Press Canadian Writer

NEW YORK, June 28. — Max Schmeling, of Germany, former heavyweight champion of the world, seems to be in earnest about fighting his way back up.

He came to this country last winter, and lost to Steve Hamas, in Philadelphia, his first ring appearance since he was flattened by Max Baer.

Then he went to Spain and beat the old trail horse, Paolino Uzcudun, in a fight that cost the promoters, a couple of gentlemen from the Hague, plenty of money. It was their first, and perhaps their last, fistic venture.

Now Schmeling is to meet Walter Neusel, a fellow countryman, for the heavyweight championship of Germany, a match that is expected to draw the largest gate in the short history of boxing in that country.

"Black Uhlan" Jealous

One reason Schmeling is fighting Neusell, perhaps the main reason, is that Schmeling is jealous of Neusel, because Neusel has become a distinct threat to the former proud title of first fighter in Germany long held by "the Black Uhlan."

Neusel, in America, impressed as a huffle-scuffle sort of battler, with much aggressiveness, and no punch. His style would have been made to order for the Schmeling of a few years ago, as Neusel lunges in, a perfect target for the old Schmeling right cross.

Neusel was brought to America by his manager, Paul Damski, a pleasant gentleman, who said persecution by the Nazis because he is a Jew drove him out of Germany. Damski is back in Germany with his fighter, and will be in his corner, opposing Joe Jacobs, also a Jew, manager of Schmeling. It is an interesting situation.

BRITISH PRO SHOOTS A 65 SECOND ROUND

Continues Smashing Pace to Hold 11 Stroke Lead Over Denny Shute, Defending Champ.

KIRKWOOD ALSO SECOND.

Cotton 12 Ahead of Closest British Contender, Bill Nolan, With 144.

SANDWICH, Eng., June 28 (AP). —Continuing his record-smashing pace, Henry Cotton, British pro., shot the Royal St. George's course to-day in 65—seven under par—for a 36-hole aggregate of 132 and an 11-stroke lead over Denny Shute, the defending champion, in the second round of the British open golf championship. Cotton carded a 67 yesterday.

Shute, with a 72 to-day for a two-round total of 143, was tied for second place with Joe Kirkwood, the Australian holder of the Canadian open, who posted a second-round sub-par 69. Shute had a 71 yesterday and Kirkwood 74.

In addition to leading the Americans by 11 strokes, Cotton was an even stroke more in front of the closest British contender, Bill Nolan, who had 73-71—144.

The two previous greatest rounds ever recorded in the British open championship were 66-68—134, shot by the redoubtable Bobby Jones at Sunningdale in the qualifying round for the 1926 title grind, which he won over the Royal Lytham and St. Anne's courses with an aggregate of 291.

28 Putts in All.

Cotton used 28 putts to-day, 16 out and 12 in. He had six one-putt greens coming in and almost sank two others. The Briton used 31 putts in scoring his first round 67.

The minute he changed his spiked shoes for a pair of civilian shoes, Cotton left the clubhouse and went to a neighboring hotel, where he was reached on the telephone.

"It was not particularly my putting that was responsible for those two rounds as every other part of my game worked perfectly, leaving me nothing much to do on the greens," he said.

"I only hope that I can keep up this form and shoot something even close to the same figures to-morrow."

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Bill de Lancey, Cardinals—His home run in the ninth inning gave the Cardinals an 8-7 victory over the Giants, and Dizzy Dean his 12th pitching triumph.

Henry Johnson, Red Sox—Held Cleveland to three hits and shut them out as Boston won, 6-0

Ben Chapman, Yankees — Homered in the 11th inning against the White Sox to give the Yankees an 8-7 victory.

Larry French, Pirates—Showed a return to his old form to best Curt Davis in a pitching duel and gave Pittsburgh a 4-1 victory over Philadelphia.

Twenty mixed rinks comprised one of the best local tournaments ever held at the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club yesterday. It looks as if these mid-week contests are here to stay. The mixed contests seem to appeal to the great majority and with such a small entrance fee they cannot help be a success.

The rinks skipped by J. Skinner, T. McDonald, and G. Coleman, Jr., won the prizes. Each member of the winning rinks received a pair of beautiful bath towels.

We have, from time to time, through this column offered suggestions that we think are for the good of bowling in general—and we might say that they have been generally accepted and put in force.

We have one more to make—and that is the widening of the playing greens from 12 feet to 15 feet. We can see no reason for all the players being crowded up in the centre of the greens especially when there is so much extra room at both sides of the green. We are convinced that with the widening of the greens, we would have less crowding, better bowling, improve the disposition of some of our bowlers, and also be easier on the grass.

One rink from our club went to Bowmanville to play in their annual tournament. It was composed of 2 Braunds, 2 Rays and 4 B's—now, do your own figuring.

Over at Cannington the Peterborough club was represented by three rinks. The rink skipped by G. Gimblett being the only one to get in the money. He came third out of an entry of 26 rinks.

Keene softball gals had the fright of their young lives in Omemee last eve before they finally pulled out a 22-17 win. The up-and-coming O's got no less than twelve runs in the first frame, chasing Mary McCarthy to cover with a regular confetti of base-hits. Marilyn McCarthy went in and showed 'em they couldn't kick her sister around, and blood is thicker'n Catawba wine or something. Anyway, Keene got the nod but they sure earned it. Keep your eyes peeled for this kid southpaw hurler for Omemee, Jean Hickson, who tips the scales at thirteen years of age. She throws 'em in faster'n any twirler in the circuit and puts a spin on the ball. But her control isn't so hot. When she gets that, oboy, oboy, oboy!

• • • • • • •

Westclox lasses went down to Lang and 32-14'd Sixth Line. Lil Bowie and Alberta heaved for the losers and Barb Blade flung 'em across for the Clockers. That's all we've got to say about it. We never learned to count over thirty at a ball game—if we ever do, we'll go in for reporting cricket games. These box-car numbers leave us colder than a cashier's eye when he puts the bounce on a dud cheque. Furthermore, the less we say about this tussle the better for everyone. After all, the two teams concerned will be wanting to live it down.

• • • • • • •

St. Peter's last night took a bantam baseball game from Hawks, 16-8, at Riverside. Lucano did some nice pitching and both sides turned in some clubbing that would be a lesson to certain senior teams we know. Next game is tomorrow eve at King Edward School when Hawks play King Edward at 5.45 o'clock.

Well, the Petes up and did it in Kingston last night! Yeah, they forgot all about being jinxed and went down there and licked the league champs, 8-5, in a ten-inning thriller. Any team that can do that, under the trying circumstances that have been facing the locals lately, with their two main hurlers on the crippled list and two losses in a row, must have some fight left in the players. The Petes seem to have Kingston's number this year and if they can keep knocking the Ponies off, there is no reason—except Oshawa and Belleville, and we don't rate them reasons enough—why they shouldn't be taking the bows when the C.O.B.L. trophy is handed out in September.

• • • • • • •

Abbie Rose, mound veteran of the Petes, was the hero of yesterday's struggle. After Kitchen and Calladine had been knocked out of the box, Abbie went in in the seventh, got the side out without a score and retired them in order the last two innings. Then he drove in two runs in the overtime stanza with a single. You can't ask much more from a relief flinger! The oldtimer—whose arm may be going but whose head holds a lot of baseball brains—deserves all kinds of credit for going in there in a mighty tough spot and coming through with flying colors. He was pitching ball games when most of his present teammates were learning to walk.

• • • • • • •

All the Petes played good ball, with the infield going in bangup style, particularly Murray. He, Foley and Ash were the big noises at bat. While Russ Kitchen, borrowed Cog pitcher, didn't last the game, due to wildness, still he was a big help, hurling smart ball till he left in the seventh. The Petes would have been in a tough spot if he wasn't handy to twirl as long as he did. Outside of streaks of wildness, the big righthander looked as good as ever. Bill Calladine ran into grief right from the start and didn't stay. But he should be ready to go in and start against Oshawa in the Motor City Saturday. Yeah, a swell ball game and the right ending—but not for the hard-losing Kingston crowd!

The following despatch is from Port Hope: "The Harry H., former rum-runner seized last December by Royal Canadian Mounted Police, was sold at auction here to-day for $180 to Stanley Crossett, Port Hope. The craft, 105 feet long, and powered with two gasoline engines, was at one time a sub-chaser, and was later used in rum-running." Local puck fans will remember Stan Crossett as the big defenceman who played with the Hopers here last winter, an ex-pro who was reinstated to amateur ranks.

The Campbellford-Kiwanis lacrosse game at Riverside was called off for Saturday early to-day, the Maroons claiming they couldn't be at full strength that day. They've dropped two tilts now and don't want to risk losing another. It wouldn't hurt them any to have sent word before as arrangements had been completed for this game. The local club were trying to-day to get in touch with Cobourg and have that team here for a league fixture on Saturday, but nothing had been settled at the time this was written. More about it to-morrow.

• • • • • • •

Dese, dem, and dose: Oshawa tops the Petes on percentage with two wins in three starts, the locals having three wins in six, Kingston two and a tie in five, and Belleville two and a tie in six..... Leaf bantams have acquired an Indian pitcher from Curve Lake .....A. Heckman may be ready to help the Petes out in pitching shortly.....Nearly two hundred 'phone calls re the baseball score were answered here last p.m.....The Belleville paper gives the local lacrossers plenty of credit for nosing out a win down there recently.....However, it's just a trifle wrong when it says: "The majority of the Peterborough squad has been playing lacrosse together for the past ten to fifteen years."....Kiwanis lacrossers practise at six to-night in Riverside Park.....If there is no lacrosse game here Sat'day, Herb Ralph's juvenior Terriers will play an exhibition baseball game at three in Riverside that day with Bowmanville Intermediates.

George St. Juveniles Tie Up Final Series

George Street Juveniles tied up their Church Softball League series with a surprise 16-11 win over St. James' at Central School last night. The winners were short three regulars. Ridley started on the mound for the other team, but was wild and left in the third with 11 runs in. Woods replaced him, and after a shaky start, went strong to restrict George Street to two runs the last four frames. Gunsolus twirled good ball for the victors. McClelland, Castle, Galley, and Ridley led the hitters. Both teams' fielding was only fair. Lecther tossed out seven at first with the Weese brothers also good. Don. Somerville Absent In Ontario Amateur WINDSOR, Ont., June 28 (C.P.). — Don Carrick, Toronto barrister, who holds the amateur golf championship of Ontario, marched to-day to the Essex County Golf and Country Club to defend his title against a formidable force of former champions and would-be titlists.

A notable absentee as play started to-day in the qualifying round was London's Sandy Somerville, whose most formidable rival Carrick once was. The 11th renewal of the Ontario tournament found Carrick facing all the former titlists except Somerville and R. M. Grey of Toronto Rosedale, who was the first winner in 1923.

The 106 advance entries include the other four former holders: W. J. Thompson of Mississauga, Toronto; John Lewis of Brantford, Jack Nash of London and Phil Farley of Toronto's Cedar Brook.

The London Hunt Club is represented by Jack Cameron, semi-finalist last year in the Canadian amateur.

OLD GUNGA DIN MAY have been a better man than Rudyard Kipling but we have our doubts whether Gunga was a hotter number than a couple of other Dins—or Deans as the modern spelling has it.

THESE DEANS ARE ST. Louis Deans and while they may know very little about handling the kris, poisoned dart and other playthings of the original Gunga's homeland these Dean boys certainly could have shown Gunga a thing or two in the way of handling a baseball.

EITHER DEAN — JEROME or Paul—would do nicely as a unit in a major league mound staff. The St. Louis Cardinals, however, have both of them which is the true explanation of why the Cards are pennant contenders at the moment.

JEROME OR DIZZY, AS HE is quaintly known, and his kid brother Paul have been truly remarkable on the mound this year.

SUBTRACT THEIR WINning margin from the record of the Cardinals and the Red Birds would fall right out of sight somewhere in the second division.

WHEN DIZZY ISN'T PITCHing Paul is, it seems since there has been a Dean on the mound in every game save a half-dozen or so that the Cardinals have played this season.

IT IS REPORTED THAT IN certain St. Louis quarters there is an agitation on foot to change the name of the St. Louis Nationals from Cardinals to Deans. To which we heartily subscribe.

WHILE THE NAME "DEAN" may not be as exalted ecclesiastically as the title of "Cardinals", there is plenty of dignity attached to it as any college graduate will agree. And, anyway, the name would really mean something.

* * *

THE ELDER DEAN, DIZZY cracked the major league picture under adverse circumstances. He pitched one game and won it for the Cards in 1930. Immediately he began to tell all who would listen that he was destined to be the greatest hurler of all time.

* * *

DIZZY SOUNDED LIKE A second-rate Art Shires but he looked like another Christy Mathewson. So the baseball world sat back and waited to see which he would prove to be.

HE ISN'T A MATHEWSON, not yet, but he's a good big league pitcher and probably will become even better. Strangely enough, now that he has actually proven he is good, Dizzy doesn't do so much bragging any more. He doesn't need to.

* * *

THIS SEASON PAUL HAS done almost as good work for the Cards as has Dizzy. In another season or two he may prove to be even better than the elder Dean.

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

CHAPTER 35

"Certain, sir," the report continued. "Struck me from the sort of way he never tried to see who was behind him that he was just following some usual rule of his. It seemed to me that he was that absent-minded really that he was sort of walking in his sleep. Another thing, sir, there's a sergeant here at the station who's a great pal of the Westmacott chauffeur, but he won't be on duty for another three hours. But the officer in charge here, he says he knows the household fairly well, he can't place any such man as I've described, says he's never seen any one like him coming or going—the constables here say the same. Yet he certainly had come and gone by that little side door before, sir. At least once, if not much oftener. The constable thinks they've changed a footman there lately. It may be him, of course." This ended the report. The man hurried back to a place where he could watch the house again.

It might be a footman, which, supposing his duties were more of a houseman's type, might account for his finger nails and dusty hair. His clothes might be his own exuberant fancy or some gift from a late theatrical employer. In speech and bearing he belonged to another class than a servant's, but that might mean nothing except misfortune. The fact remained that the man who knew Gillian Dundas and Mrs. de Souza, also knew Lady Ida Westmacott . . . the owner of the gold fountain pen marked with those strong teeth. . . . Like everything else so far linked to Gillian Dundas, it was odd and puzzling. That personal terror of hers, the alarm of Lady Ida, the acute interest of Mrs. de Souza. . . . Those poisoned filaments of green glass . . . a poison much in use among the natives of the Mediterranean countries . . . that villa bought by Mrs. de Souza from Lord Mills at Capri. . . . It was a tight coil this. Those poisoned filaments of green spun glass . . . of what had they been part? What had become of the whole? Pointer still saw them probably as something that would crush or burst if subjected to any pressure. Something small, if so, since only the first two fingers and thumb of the one hand, the right, showed the glass splinters. What had become of the article? However exploded, some fragments must surely be in existence. . . . Seeing that death could follow so quickly Pointer would expect him to have been given the dangerous article to carry away with him outside the house or room of the poisoner. But if so it had not been wrapped up, or some microscopic fragments of paper would have been driven in with the splinters. That was not the case. But how would he be induced to carry away an object not wrapped up? Made of green spun glass. . . . And what had become of it? Was it possible that some suspicions had been roused and that he posted the—whatever it was—dropping it in the pillar-box? Pointer had asked the postal officials to let one of his men search the box for a possible poisoned glass article, and, seeing the nature of it, for once the postal authorities had hastened to give permission. A postman and one of Pointer's men would be at it now. But still remained the puzzle o' what it was that, unwrapped, the doomed man had carried with him. He was not known to have flung anything away—unless that gold fountain pen top—he had not been seen carrying any object by the taxidriver who had held him as he died. Negative evidence all this . . . not like the presence of a man who had access to both Miss Dundas' studio and the house where lived the owner of that gold fountain pen. . . . Suddenly Pointer's eyes sparkled. He had been thinking over Strange's appearance, an appearance that fitted his name so well. . . . Pointer saw again the pretty little boutonniere he was wearing, a sprig of lily-of-the-valley half enwrapped in its own leaf. It had looked natural, this was early May, the sprig had been tiny, so had been its leaf . . . but was it natural? Could such things be imitated in spun glass? An artificial boutonniere made of spun glass, if such a thing existed, could be handled and taken away by Tait without any wrapping, worn in his buttonhole, though Pointer had rather a memory of an unstretched little slit in the dead man's coat. He was just passing a big shop and strolled in. He asked for artificial flowers, had they any made of glass? He was promptly shown some splendid tulips, nothing of spun glass about these. What about leaves for them? He was shown some tall upstanding or bent over leaves, astonishingly like nature, but brittle as only glass can be. "Spun glass these," the assistant told him, and a recollection came suddenly to Pointer of the window boxes in Westmacott's house in Palace Green, where a row of tulips, with their leaves, had stood in a handsome double row, quite easy to reach from inside the room or from the steps. A word about them, a suggestion to the guest to just rumple one of the leaves . . . it could have been done that way, supposing the leaves to have been, like these, made of glass. He remembered them as looking the same, but were they? But first of all, he asked the assistant in the shop whether smaller flowers, boutonnieres say, were ever made of glass. The young woman did not think so. She had never seen any. Pointer thanked her and hurried out to make for Palace Green at once. Yes, the window boxes did come close up to the front door steps. True, he had the long arms of a six-foot-four man, but even a smaller man, such as Tait was, would not have had the slightest difficulty in reaching them. Slipping quietly, but not suspiciously so, up to the front door, with one gloved hand, and in one swift motion he transferred the green tulip leaf nearest him into his pocket, went through the appearance of pressing the bell, and then walked away again. On the quiet little strip that joins Palace Green to Kensington Gardens he looked at the leaf. As his touch had told him, it was artificial and made of spun glass; he now found that it crumbled easily at the edge and was of a kind that, on running a careless hand up and down it, or even handling it thoughtlessly, would easily send fine splinters into the fingers. He was very careful not to do this. It was quite possible, knowing no one had any cause to touch that well-ordered double row of flowers, that some one had poured poison over all the leaves, trusting to the next rain to wash it away, and to the fact that Tait's death would be considered a natural one, or that even if poison were suspected, the means by which it was administered would never be discovered.

It would have been quite a simple matter for Lady Ida to find a dozen pretexts to get Tait to handle one of the leaves. If so, her attitude of alarm or wariness would be explained, supposing she thought herself safe from actual detection but had hoped Tait's death would pass as due to heart failure.

Yet there seemed no reason for Lady Ida to wish to remove John Tait, except the old idea that hell hath no fury like a woman scorned, with which Pointer did not in the least agree. Certain'y she struck him as the last woman to risk her neck for the sake of thwarted passion. Now, if it had been a question of money . . . some message from her rich brother-in-law that affected her income . . . those were the lines where Lady Ida's character would be at its weakest, he thought. However, obviously the first thing to do was to rush the leaf to the same Home Office analyst to whom the specks from the dead man's fingers had been sent. And here Pointer had a check. Mr Harrowby saw him at once, glanced at his precious leaf, and shook his head, pulling forward a color chart on which he had marked a pale green.

"That's the color of your spun glass specks, chief inspector. All exactly the same shade, so it looks as though the object had been uniform in dye. And they're finer spun than this, by far." He tweaked off a piece and examined it under one of his microscopes. But only for a second. "Not in the least like your specks. These are foreign dye and of a totally different color and composition—and not poisoned."

Pointer was looking at the color chart. The shade was exactly the color of a lily-of-the-valley leaf . . . a tiny little sprig like that would be finer spun . . . the man who wore a boutonniere that might have been made of glass, though it looked so natural, had let himself into a side door of the Westmacott house. . . . But what about Gillian Dundas' studio where china, and therefore, presumably, glass was mended? Was his stepmother right in believing that John Tait and she had met today at lunch? One thing was certain, Pointer thought, as he drove back to Great Cumberland place, motive would play an enormous part in deciding this case.

For Friday, June 29

According to the lunar and mutual aspects bearing rule on the affairs of this day there is much to be expected in the way of reaching high goals of achievement as well as in the fulfillment of cherished hopes and wishes on the personal side of existence. It is a time for seeking these with all the resources at command, albeit with a degree of precaution and calmness, lest heightened activities and overstimulated energies complicate matters through impetuous gestures. Purely personal relations are quite likely to develop surprising or spectacular angles.

Those whose birthday it is are safe in anticipating a year of great progress and prosperity, with all things stirring to the goal of cherished desires, hopes and wishes, in business and private affiliations. Friendship, courtship, travel and good company may be surprisingly happy.

A child born on this day should be keen, energetic, resourceful and ambitious, also popular and fond of society, where it may reach important position.

Hastings

The members of Hastings L.O.L. No. 558 and L.O.B.A. No. 458 will attend Divine worship in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening, July 1st, at seven o'clock. Rev. S. H. Hill, B.A., B.D., will be the speaker. A cordial invitation is extended to all visitors to attend this service.

The local lodges are making preparations for the big celebration to be held this year in Hastings on the 12th of July.

Mrs. Beavis of Peterborough has been visiting old friends in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Charleton Grigg, daughter Joan, and Miss Viola Stewart spent Sunday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Stewart.

Mrs. W. Montgomery returned from Toronto, after visiting her little grand-daughter, Ruth Ball, who is in the Sick Children's Hospital, suffering from injuries which she received from a fall.

A very enjoyable gathering was held at the home of Mrs. Grant Sine, Front Street, on Monday evening, June 25th, attended by sixteen young ladies when a novelty shower was presented to Miss Mary Spooner, whose marriage to Roy Johnston takes place in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Monday afternoon, July 2nd.

As the bride-elect was only invited for a game of bridge a surprise was afforded her when she was ushered into the prettily decorated room, in color scheme of pink and white, where the guests were assembled. A daintily trimmed wagon, containing the gifts wrapped in pink and white, was drawn in by Miss Betty Spooner, niece of the bride-elect, who was dressed in pink taffeta. When the gifts were unwrapped and a suitable acknowledgment made by Miss Spooner, a game of bridge was enjoyed, the prize being awarded to Miss D. Plant.

Hay and clover supplies left in farmers' hands at March 31, 1934, were sharply lower than at March 31, 1933, amounting to only 1,897,000 tons compared with 3,186,000 tons last year.

TWO HOUSE LEADERS DISAGREE ON EXCISE BILL AMENDMENTS

Concerns Seizure By Customs of Cars Used For Liquor.

TO HOLD CONFERENCE.

OTTAWA, June 28. (C.P.)—Premier R B Bennett, Conservative leader in the House of Commons, and Senator Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader in the Upper House were at loggerheads to-day over amendments to the Excise Bill. The Senate leader insisted on amendments to the bill, the House leader refused to accept them. They finally agreed to disagree! And decided on a conference of Senators and members to iron out the difficulties.

Seizure of Cars

The dispute arose over the provisions in the bill covering the seizure of motor cars for infraction of the excise or customs laws.

The contention of the Senate is that the owner of the car should be protected when he can prove he had no knowledge his car was to be used for illegal purposes. He should be permitted to go into a court of the province and have his rights declared. It would apply also to finance companies who had liens for mortgages on cars enabling them to protect their investments in case the car is seized.

Support Department

The Commons supported the claim of the Department of National Revenue that this would lead to collusion. Anyone planning smuggling would be tempted to protect himself by having a lien on his car in case he was caught, it was contended. The department wanted the power to use its discretion in the matter with appeal to the exchequer courts in certain circumstances.

The bill giving the department the power it asked went through the Commons and was amended in the Senate. The House of Commons to-day turned down the Senate's amendments and the Upper House refused to accept the decision.

The Senate was of a different state of mind on the Commons' rejection of its amendments to the excise cost than on the rejection of other amendments, such as the amendment to the Marketing Bill that would have excluded wheat. Senator Meighen stated in moving that the Upper House insist on its amendments.

Studied Law

There was considerable discussion between members of the Senate and House since the amendments had been proposed in the Senate Banking and Commerce committee, he stated. One Senator had studied the complete United States law was not nearly as extreme as the Dominion measure on the seizure of cars.

No justification for the penalizing of people who obeyed the law and were innocent of wrong-doing, could be found, Senator Meighen insisted. The law was fundamentally wrong and the Senate would insist on its amendments.

PLEASING PROGRAM AT MUSIC RECITAL

Pupils of Miss Marguerite Rome and Roy Rome Take Part in Concert.

A very interesting recital by piano pupils of Miss Marguerite Rome and violin pupils of Roy Rome, was given in All Saints' parish hall on Tuesday evening, with a large and interested attendance.

The pupils played splendidly in every instance, showing extremely careful tuition and co-operation on their own part in the art of piano and violin music.

Outstanding piano numbers were the "Romance," played by Keith Sproule, with a lovely touch and fine interpretation; the fine feeling and good tone in "Chant des Voyageurs," by Reta Sproule; the excellent rhythmic spirit of Grainger's "Country Garden," played by Lorraine Vass; also the violin playing of Ruth Fisher, who displayed splendid technical ability in conquering the difficult harmonics and double-stopping of Seitz' "Pupil's Concerto," while her rendition of "Molly on the Shore," with its hammered staccato and fast tempo, brought vociferous applause.

The various Sketches which made interludes in the musical program were interestingly portrayed.

Prizes were distributed to piano pupils for attendance and memory work. For perfect attendance, the first prize went to Keith Sproule; the second to Jean Leach; the third to Gwen Friendship. In memory work, Patricia Watson took first prize, and Edna Wilson second, with honorable mention accorded Muriel Lacey.

The Rev. J. L. Hughes gave a delightful talk on the benefits to be derived from the study of music.

The platform was attractively arranged with peonies and roses.

The program follows:

Piano solo numbers. — "O Dear, What Can the Matter Be?" by Frank Ottney; "Pussy Cat," by Fern Trenim; "Coquette," by Edna Wilson; "A Holiday," by Mary Alexander; "Jolly Boys," by Alex Lacey; "Dreaming," by Patricia Watson; "A Dainty Dance," by Muriel Lacey; "The Contented Bird," by Merle Sproule; "Leola Waltz," by Jean Leach; "The Fairy Gavotte," by Agnes Pogue; "The Dancing Bear," by Velma Staples; Kullak's "Waltz," by Gwen Locke; sketch, "Dance With You," by Norma Stenson; "Song of the Lark" (Tschaikowsky), by Gwen Friendship; Rubenstein's "Romance," by Keith Sproule; "On the Meadow" (Lichner), by Isabelle Pogue; Nocturne in B Flat (Slater), by Mary Sisson; "Country Gardens" (Percy Grainger), by Lorraine Vass; "Chant des Voyageurs" (Paderewski), by Reta Sproule; "Liebestraume" (Liszt), by Gwen Boorman.

Violin solos included: "The Merry Bobolink" by Garth Cowan; "The Little Prince," by Happy Staples; "Evening Song" (Krogmann), by Barbara Richardson; "Bolero," by Eileen Hughes; "Pupils' Concerto" (Seitz), and "Molly on the Shore," by Ruth Fisher.

The sketches were "The Tired Old Horse," presented by Jean Leach, Fern Trenim, Frank Ottney and Alex Lacey," with accompaniment played by Keith Sproule, and "My Raggedy Ann" (from Sunny Songs), presented by Velma Staples, Gwen Friendship, Edna Wilson, Patricia Watson and Jean Leach, with accompaniment played by Isabelle Pogue.

WORK REVIEWED OF C. W. LEAGUE

Many Activities in Child Welfare Work, Convention Told.

MOVIE SUPERVISION.

VICTORIA, June 28 (C.P.).—With a full budget of business ahead of them delegates attending the convention of the Catholic Women's League faced the third day of their annual meeting to-day. Reports submitted showed increased activity in all phases of the league's work.

Child welfare activities were discussed by Mrs. J. A. Chevrier Cornwall, convenor, who told of the close co-operation that had been maintained with Children's Aid Societies and the Victorian Order of Nurses. Mrs. Chevrier also spoke of the movement launched by the league to bring about closer supervision of the motion picture industry and urged every Diocesan convenor to continue the campaign for elimination of objectionable films.

Mrs. L. A. Greene, of Port Arthur, told of 16 new or re-organized subdivisions in Ontario, in which particular interest had been paid to Polish and Ukrainian centres.

Mrs. C. Lynch, Calgary, reported seven new sub-divisions in the western district, including two in the Peace River district.

Mrs. John Mochar, diocesan president of Vancouver, addressed the convention of the history of the Catholic Japanese Mission conducted by the Franciscan Sisters of Atonement.

SCOTIAN SOUGHT WILD LIFE LORE

Austin L. Lore, Graduate of Acadia, Returns After Year Hunting Specimens in in N. Guinea.

GENEVA, N. Y., June 28—(CP)—After a hazardous life on the edge of civilization for more than a year Austin L. Rand, Canadian-born field scientist for the American Museum of Natural History, and a graduate of Acadia University, Wolfeville, N.S., is back at his home here with a record of a successful collecting trip in British New Guinea. He headed the expedition.

Rand, whose parents live at Wolfeville, N.S., and Richard Archbold, another scientist, visited a portion of the globe that had seen but few white men and never before visited by scientists on a similar errand. They sailed from New York in January, 1933.

The chief object of the trip was to collect specimens of bird and mammal life and botanical specimens. The results of their expedition have been shipped to the New York Botanical Gardens and the American Museum of Natural History.

Rand was selected for the New Guinea expedition because of his field experience and willingness to undertake the hazardous journey, regarded as a severe test for a white man. The trip took him into a country where more rain falls than in any other part of the world. In New Guinea the rainfall in 25 hours often equals the figure for an entire year in Canada, records show.

Because of this handicap and the rugged nature of the country, their field work was accomplished with a minimum of equipment. Between 20 and 40 porters, each limited to a 30-pound pack, were used in transporting their supplies. The country provided but little of their food.

The party established a base at Port Moresby and from there started into the unknown mountainous region, cutting trails up and down jagged ranges. As their first effort they undertook a short trip along the coast and then started into the interior.

To obtain the rare specimens which they brought back, Rand and his companion climbed to the top of Mt. Albert Edward, a high mountain peak nine days in from the coast.

Here at an altitude of 10,000 feet the party camped for two months, collecting rare and little known specimens of animal and plant life. Cutting trails through the dense tropical vegetation was slow work. The party often made less than a mile a day.

The adventurers had to find their way through an uncharted wilderness and up the mountain top where the field work was carried out. Another camp was made in Murray Pass at 6,000 feet, and a third at Vanapa Valley in the Uruna.

Rand graduated from Acadia University in 1927 and received his doctor's degree from Cornell University in 1932. After his graduation from Acadia University, he collected material for the American Museum of Natural History along the east coast of Africa.

Crested wheat grass is a native of the Steppe or prairie plains of Russia and western Siberia. Growing on those cold, dry, wind-swept plains, it has developed a tolerance of drought and extremes of temperature that makes it well adapted to the climate conditions of western Canada.

SPECIAL SERVICE HELD AT MILLBROOK

400th Anniversary of Cartier's Discovery of Canada Observed on June 24th.

MILLBROOK, June 28 (Examiner Correspondence)—A special patriotic service, commemorative of the four hundredth anniversary of Cartier's discovery of Canada, was held in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday at 10.30 a.m., the Sunday School meeting with the regular congregation.

The superintendent, W. F. Fallis, led in the responsive scripture readings and prayers, and gave an address telling the story of Cartier's voyage from St. Malo, France, in 1534, and his landing on July 1 on the north end of Prince Edward Island, with other incidents, Marjorie McDowell following with the well-known poem, "Jacques Cartier." Orval Wainman sang, "Dear Lord, Forgive," and the retiring pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., preached his farewell sermon, visiting clergy to occupy the pulpit for the next two Sundays, as the new minister, Rev. A. L. Siscoe, will not be here until July 15. Mr. Jones read a letter from the president and secretary of the Montreal Conference welcoming him into the Dundas and Grenville Presbytery of that Conference, and adding prayers and good wishes for blessing in his new charge.

Gordon Jones recited "Canada, Great Land of Destiny," and the report was read by the secretary, Oliver Brock, following the benediction, showing 23 teachers and officers present; total attendance 280; offering $5.84; for the quarter the report read: attendance 2234; average 172; verses 608, average 60; collections $10.31, average $5.40.

St. Andrew's Church

Included in the congregational gift from the entire circuit to Rev. W. W. and Mrs. Jones at the largely-attended gathering on Friday evening, besides the walnut dinner-waggon and the cabinet of silver, was a handsome silver platter in the 'well and tree' pattern, and for Mrs. Jones a silver cold meat fork from the Boneka Bible Class of which she has been teacher since coming to Millbrook to reside six years since.

St. Thomas Anglican

The annual flower service was held in St. Thomas' Church on Sunday at 7.30 p.m., when the pupils and teachers of the Sunday School followed the choir, during the singing of the processional hymn, into the church auditorium and were seated in the front pews.

Rev. E. R. James, of Peterborough preached the sermon, in the absence of the rector who was away for the day, and at a given time George Gray and R. Stone took their places at the chancel steps holding large trays, the scholars then marching forward during the singing of an appropriate hymn and placed the beautiful bouquets, each carried on the containers. When all had been given the flowers were taken to the altar and dedicated by the clergyman in charge.

Mr. James spoke from the text, "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto Me," using a magnet to help the younger folk, for whom the address was primarily prepared, to understand better the drawing power of the love and nature of Christ.

Grace Presbyterian W.M.S.

The Women's Missionary meeting in the Centenary month of Grace Church birthday celebration was held in the church parlors on Friday at 3 p.m., with the president, Mrs. William Deyell, in the chair. Hymns appropriate to the church centennial anniversary were sung, and Mrs. J. R. Thompson contributed a solo, "Have Thine own way, Lord." the study period being devoted to Presbyterian mission hospitals in the West, particularly the Hugh Waddell Memorial Hospital in which the local society is interested.

Plans were made to hold a lawn social at the home of Mrs. Thompson on July 24, and the necessary committees appointed, the meeting being dismissed with prayer.

CHILDREN'S DAY SERVICE IS HELD

Rev. H. J. Bell Delivers Final Morning Sermon in Hastings Church.

HASTINGS, June 28.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Special children's day service was held in Trinity United Church on Sunday morning. Rev. H. J. Bell, who has for five years been pastor of the church, had charge of the service, preaching his final morning service before his departure to his new charge at Blackstock.

A very large attendance of children and parents were present. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with red and white peonies, roses and flowering plants.

Miss Carrie Doxsee presided at the organ for the special musical anthem and the following hymns: "Suffer Little Children to Come Unto Me," "Savior Like a Shepherd Lead Me" and "Jesus Loves Even Me."

An unusual feature of the children's day service was the baptismal service when six children were baptized by the pastor and dedicated to the service of God and His church. They were Dorothy Elizabeth Oliver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Oliver; Jean Audrey Fisher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fisher; Joseph Grant Seabrooks, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Seabrooks; Edgar Edmund Tripp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Tripp; Dorothy Alice Stinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stinson, and Edgar James Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Brown.

Seven young girls offered their lives to the service of God, adding to the list of church membership.

A pleasing part of the morning's service was the presentation of certificates and roses to the children of the cradle roll. As customary, a rose is presented to each child responding to his or her name. Twenty-six were called and seven of these received certificates, being new members since the last children's day service.

Rev. Mr. Bell preached his farewell sermon in the evening.

On Friday evening an induction service will be held for the new pastor Rev. F. W. Newell, of Blackstock.

FALL FROM VERANDAH PROVES FATAL

Cotton Wins British Open Golf Honors

TITLE RETURNS TO OWN HEATH AFTER 11 YEARS

British Pro Leads Field to Finish by Covering 72 Hole course in 288.

CRACKS UNDER STRAIN.

But Cards a 79 in Final Round to Win by Comfortable Margin, Five to Spare.

SANDWICH, Eng., June 29 — (CP-AP) —Henry Cotton brought the British Open golf title back into native hands today for the first time in 11 years by carding 288 for the 72-hole chase.

In a wild final round when his nerves cracked under the terrific strain the 27-year-old English professional blew up but was still good enough to card a 79 and win by a comfortable margin.

After setting a record-breaking pace for his first two rounds, with a 67 and a 65, Cotton stuck his third round this morning in par 72 and faltered on the final round, taking a shaky 79. He missed a three-foot putt on the final green.

Trailed by a gallery of 5,000 stampeding and cheering Britons, Cotton went into the final round with a 10 strokes lead over the field.

Almost Collapses

The pressure of the terrific pace of his previous rounds, coupled with shouting, bothersome crowd, combined to almost cause the Briton's collapse.

Par off the gait he maintained on Wednesday, Thursday and this morning, Cotton's nerves virtually went to pieces on the first 12 holes,

$3,000 ACTION BY F. O'CONNOR

Damages Claimed Against City for Son's Death Last Winter.

FATALLY INJURED.

Notice of a claim of $3,000 against the city has been given by J. A. O'Brien in behalf of F. O'Connor whose son Arlington O'Connor was fatally injured last February while sliding down the bank of the Ashburnham Bowl with several companions.

Announcement of this action was made at last night's meeting of the Legal Committee of which Alderman Fitzpatrick is chairman. It was stated that the fatality occurred near the steps that lead down off Hunter street, that branches of trees had been placed on this bank to protect it during the winter, and the place was not prepared by the city nor intended for use as a toboggan slide.

The committee was informed that the boy was thirteen years old. John R. Corkery, city solicitor, remarked that in view of the circumstances as reported to him he did not think the city could be held liable for this unfortunate happening.

Missing Millions of Eccentric To Be Object of Court Struggle

SEATTLE, June 29 (C.P.). — A move to untangle the mystery of the missing millions of the late Mrs. Sarah E. Smith-Scollard, wealthy eccentric, and gain possession of what remains of them, came to-day from counsel representing her elderly sister, Margaret C. Fitzpatrick, of Oakland, Calif.

A suit was filed in Federal Court charging that Sadie R. Brown, widow of Reese B. Brown, who was Mrs. Smith-Scollard's adviser and friend, and Fred Brown, theirson, had concealed knowledge of the woman's death. Mrs. Smith-Scollard died two years ago in Montreal, but word of her death was only revealed a week ago, when her ashes were found in the Brown home near Yakima, and brought to court.

The action also laid claim to more than $200,000 worth of property which it was alleged had belonged to the Smith-Scollard estate, but had been absorbed by Brown.

Brown was killed in an automobile accident in Yakima County last January. At one time Mrs. Smith-Scollard's wealth was estimated at $14,000,000.

BANDITS TAKE HUGE PAYROLL

Grab $30,000 as Being Unloaded From Train for Post Office.

CAREFULLY PLANNED.

OSWATOMIE, Kas., June 29. — (A.P.).—Two armed men obtained between $25,000 and $30,000 here today in a holdup, executing the robbery as the payroll of the Missouri Pacific Railroad was being transferred to the post office from the railroad station.

The money, which was addressed to a local bank to be used in payment of wages at the Missouri Pacific division shops, was in a mail sack.

A postal employee was met at the station by the two men, who forced him to accompany them four blocks away, where they had a motor car parked. At this point they took the money and drove off.

An official at the bank said the consignment amounted to between $25,000 and $30,000.

HOPE ABANDONED FOR RECOVERY OF MARIE DRESSLER—DEATH NEAR

Rallies Strongly Through Night But Major Crisis Reached in Her Illness.

MAY DIE TO-DAY.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., June 29 (C.P.). — Marie Dressler passed a major crisis in her illness early to-day after doctors at her bedside had abandoned hope she would live to see the dawn.

Five hours after Dr. F. R. Nuzum, head of the medical staff attending her, expresed belief she would not live through the night, the "grand old trouper" from Cobourg, Ont., 62 years old, rallied so strongly that physicians announced the threat of death had passed at least until noon to-day.

Her amazing vitality held out against a complication of heart and kidney ailments. At seven o'clock last night Dr. Nuzum said: "We don't expect her to live through the night."

Slowly Recovers.

At eight o'clock she sank so low that her features turned blue. Her heart faltered — almost stopped. Then slowly the blue palor drained from her face. By midnight heart action was normal. There was no fever. Respiration was 80 to 100.

Dr. Nuzum then left the sickroom to seek some rest confident that there would be no change in her condition until at least noon to-day.

How long she may linger on was questionable but the impression was left that death was near.

Through the day and night telegrams and messages of cheer poured in upon her from all sections of the country, attesting the popularity of Marie Dressler who became filmdom' greatest woman star at 60.

Guard At Inverlea Park Is Vigilant

Commendation of the vigilance of Charlie Willison, caretaker of Inverlea Beach, was expressed to The Examiner to-day by a citizen who observed him rescue a child in difficulty among a group of bathers yesterday evening.

"I noticed Mr. Willison keeping a sharp eye on the crowd in the water," The Examiner's informant said. "Suddenly he spotted a tiny tot beyond his depth up the beach. Mr. Willison made a fast run to the spot and grasped the child in the nick of time. The incident impressed me that Mr. Willison must be keeping a sharp eye on the water. Children who bring smaller ones to the beach should be warned at home not to let them out of sight for a moment. They are not much more than babies, are easily swept off their feet and are then helpless."

STORM TROOPS DEFY HITLER, PLAN ATTACKS

Refuse to Abide by His Order of Moderation and Vow Action.

WARN STEEL HELMETS.

Ill-feeling Between Two Organizations Runs High Once Again.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

BERLIN, June 29.—(AP)—In defiance of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's policy of moderation, the supreme commamnd of the militant Nazi storm troops issued a second statement today vowing political death to the Steel Helmet Veteran's association.

Ill-feeling between the storm troops and the Stahlhelm, or steel helmets broke into the open recently when a storm trooper was stabbed in Pomerania. Hitler firmly rejected a storm troop demand for dissolution of the veteran's organization.

The latest storm troop blast charged high Steel Helmet officials were responsible for the violence and concluded ominously: "neither those taking part in or those responsible for this political deed can shake off its political consequences."

Radical Section

It apparently was inspired by the radical section of the Nazi party, whose strength is indicated by its success in the Jewish and church issues.

The statement indicated there would be no peace until the Conservatives are eliminated. The Steel Helmet group is considered the most powerful instrument in the hands of the Conservatives.

A decisive struggle between the two camps appears inevitable.

Effort Fails

The Storm Troopers' statement definitely washed out, in the view of observers, efforts of Vice Chancellor Franz Von Papen and General Werner Von Blomberg, Minister of Defence, last night to convice the world that all is well within the Third Reich.

Von Papen praised Hitler, asserting, "The people's entire confidence belongs to him." It was Von Papen's severe attack on radical Nazi tendencies 11 days ago that revealed political dissention.

Emphasizing that general harmony exsisted, General Von Blobberg then said, "The military attitude has permeated the whole nation and its leadership. Pacificism has been vanquished. The military power of the state has become one."

He said the army was standing loyally behind President Paul Von Hindenbrg and Hitler, "who came from our ranks and will always remain one of us."

Miners Leave Union Due To Interference

FLIN FLON, Man., June 29 (CP). —The once solid ranks of the Mine Workers' Union of Canada, leaders in the three-weeks-old strike of mine and smelters workers at the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company here, were split to-day as 100 members, charging "outside interference," withdrew from the organization.

Following a meeting last night, the men to-day issued a statement saying the union is dominated by organizers from outside points. Such interference, they said, is not in the interests of the strikers or of the community. The 1,300 employees of the company have been on strike for three weeks, seeking higher wages and union recognition.

Wedding Bells Stopped by Law

MODESTO, Calif., June 29. (AP).—Because the bride-to-be was "too old" to marry, the law to-day halted the matrimonial plans of Mrs. Lydia A. Wright, 81, and Charles S. Patterson, 62.

Superior Judge J. C. Needham issued a restraining order against the marriage, at the request of Attorney R. V. Wilcox, guardian of Mrs. Wright, and C. H Ramont, county welfare officer, because they said she was too old to marry.

Indignation was expressed by Mrs. Wright and Patterson, who had fyled a notice of their intention to wed.

DOCTOR PROBES STRANGE DEATH

Jas. E. Farrance, 21, Succumbs to Muscular Stiffness Following Accident.

AUTOPSY BY DR. WAITE.

James Edward Farrance, who was admitted to Nicholls Hospital on Monday last, suffering from an unusual type of muscular stiffness, passed away early this morning in his 21st year. He was admitted to hospital on Tuesday.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. George Farrance of 210 Lake Street, the condition of the youth was at first thought to have resulted from an accidental blow on the neck which, it was said, he received recently while at the Ontario School for the Deaf at Belleville.

Dr. C. B. Waite, director of the Provincial Health Department Laboratory here, performed an autopsy this morning, and appears to disprove the theory that the death of the youth was attributable to a blow he is said to have received. While Dr. Waite said he had not yet reached any definite conclusions, he disclosed that examination of the brain had shown some inflammation to exist. He was not prepared, he said, to state

CHIEF GIMBLETT TO CONVENTION

Will be Accompanied to London by Ald. McIntyre—Some Objection.

COMMITTE MEETINGS.

Permission to attend the Dominion convention of Fire Chiefs at London in August was granted Chief Gimblett by the Fire, Water and Light committee last night.

Mayor Denne's motion, seconded by Alderman Cotton, authorized Alderman McIntyre to accompany Chief Gimblett, their expenses to be paid by the city.

Aldermen Tuggey and Macdonald voted against the majority of the committee, and Alderman Stocker opposed the trip.

When Ald. Stocker later moved a resolution /that A. G. Metheral, Plumbing Inspector, attend the International Plumber's convention in Toronto, Ald. McIntyre remarked, "you are not very consistent."

Mayor Denne seconded Alderman Stocker's motion.

In rezard to Chief Gimblett's attending the London convention, Ald. McIntyre said that as chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee he was in a position to observe

Select Party Attends Nudist Wedding At Chicago—Minister Wears Goat Skin

CHICAGO, July 29. — (A.P.)—Dressed in a smile and—the bride at least, a wedding ring—an Amarillo girl and a Milwaukee bridegroom were pronounced man and wife today in a strictly Nudist ceremony at the Worlds' Fair they call "a Century of Progress."

The birde was Jean May, 23, of Amarillo, Texas, and her husband Charles Mueller, 24, of Milwaukee.

Of the wedding party of nine, only the minister deigned to wear clothing. He was dressed in a goat skin, and walked about gingerly in bare feet, stubbing his toe now and then.

The Nudists had selected as a background for their ceremony the setting of dinosaurs, triceratops, brontosaurus and other denizens of the "world 1,000,000 years ago" at the World's Fair site.

Cameramen and reporters furnished the necessary blushes watching the bridal party step into a boat to glide down a "lost river," disrobe behind the scenes and then reappear properly dressd for the wedding.

Miss May had been an adherent of the Roselawn, Ind., Nudist colony and Mueller was a disciple of a colony at Mirror Lake, Wis.

Smith of Lakefield was notified of the fatality, and expressed the intention of proceeding at once to Lakehurst to investigate the circumstances under which Smith met his death. The accident occurred at 2 o'clock today.

CLOSED LIST IS OPPOSED

Strong Objection to Franchise Act Made in Commons by Motherwell.

STEAL AN ELECTION!

OTTAWA, June 29 (CP)—Strong objection to a closed voters' list was expressed by Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Liberal member for Melville, Sask., when the new Franchise Act came up for detailed consideration in the House of Commons to-day.

"It lends itself to all kinds of Monkeying," he said to the House in Committee. In 1912 a closed list had been tried out in Saskatchewan and it had proven a failure.

"After the experience of last year when the Government deliberately tried to steal a lot of seats through redistribution, we know it will not

Fatal Shot Comes From Model Gun

HINESBORO, Tenn., June 29 (CP).—A 10-year-old child and his 12-year-old brother sat whittling a wooden gun yesterday.

They tried to imagine just how a revolver should look. Then Carsey Lyner, Jr., the younger, remembered his father's .32 pistol. That would make a dandy model.

"I'll get it," he was reported as saying, "and make one like that."

Back came Carsey, and his older brother Edwin started playing with the real revolver. Suddenly it went off. To-day Edwin was dead, shot through the head.

IN FINE SPIRITS SMITH REACHES SOREL ON PADDLE

Loses Way in Harbour and Goes Up Richelieu by Mistake.

ENCOUNTERS WINDS.

Overcomes All Difficulties and Expects to Reach Three Rivers To-night.

SOREL, Que., June 29.—(C.P.) — John Smith, who is travelling in a 16-foot canoe from Peterborough, Ont., to Peterborough, England, lost his way in Sorel Harbor last night and paddled a considerable distance up the Richelieu river before realizing his mistake and landing.

The youth, who left Montreal yesterday after shooting the Lachine Rapids, travelled back to the city on foot on learning his way at a police station.

Smith said he had encountered heavy winds during his trip from Montreal but had had little difficulty making Sorel. He will leave this morning and hopes to make Three Rivers by nightfall. He said he expected his trip to England to take anywhere from three to five months.

LACOMBE, Alta., June 29 — Resolution favoring lowering the voting age of both sexes from 21 years to 18 was passed by the Wetaskiwin Dominion constituency of the United Farmer of Alberta in convention here yesterday.

The convention also went on record as opposed to the program of expenditure of $1,400,000 in Alberta by the Department of Defence.

DEATH OVERTAKES ZARO AGHA WHO CLAIMED TO BE IMMORTAL

Variety of Diseases Finally Strike Down 160 Year Old Turk.

HAD 11 WIVES.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, June 29.—(AP). — Death caught up to-day with Zara Agha, Turkey's Methuselah who had boasted he would live forever.

The picturesque old man who claimed 160 years and felt deeply hurt when anyone doubted it, died —by a quirk of fate—in the children's hospital.

For two months Zaro Agha, whose longevity brought him from obscurity to world fame and Broadway when he was "past 150", had been ill. He was suffering from a variety of ailments, including bright's disease and gland and bladder disorders. Physicians said a contributing cause to his death was worry over science's skepticism of his age.

Probably his proudest possession was a certificate purporting to show he was born in 1774—Before the American colonies declared war on Great Britain.

Zaro had buried 10 wives and had another desert him. Number 11 got angry six years ago when the aged husband decided he wanted a 12th wife—one young and pretty—and refused to come home after playing around in New York and London.

Scores of Children.

The number of children? Zaro boasted that at 96 his 56th offspring was born.

His death ended the possibility that scientific tests might be made to determine his age. Specialists had urged him to submit to examinations, but Zaro demurred. He was popularly credited with being the world's oldest man.

Turkey's old man had been lots of places and seen lots of things. At 103, he claimed, he entered the Bulgarian War, and "carried heavy guns on my shoulders up beyond where the horses could take them."

But the high spot of his life was a two-year jaunt through Europe and North America.

Was Teetotaller.

Zaro claimed to be a teetotaller and came to the United States, some said, on funds supplied by a temperance organization. He wore down far younger companions dashing around New York, often stopping to pose for a picture with his arms around a pretty girl.

Despite his agility, Zaro couldn't cope with Broadway traffic. A taxicab got him and seriously injured him.

When he finally set sail, he was $6,000 in debt, but had had a swell time. He then went to London and took up flying lessons.

The wife in Turkey didn't like all this globe-trotting and threatened to sue him unless he came home.

Dressed in the height of fashion, Zaro did so finally. He found his spouse so angry that at first she refused to admit him. Later they parted.

TORONTO, June 29 (C.P.). — Mitchell F. Hepburn to-day started a two-weeks' holiday with prospect he would take over the Premiership of Ontario from George S. Henry July 16, exactly 11 years after the Conservative Government went into office.

The Premier-elect paid a brief visit yesterday to Mr. Henry and subsequently held a three-hour conference with his chief lieutenants, those whom it is generally supposed will be members of his Cabinet. No announcement was forthcoming after the meeting, which was not attended by W. E. N. Sinclair or Dr. George McQuibban, former Liberal floor leaders in the Legislature, who bolted their way on its beer and wine policy.

Those who took part in the meeting were Duncan Marshall, member-elect for Peel, believed headed for the agriculture portfolio; Harry C. Nixon, former Progressive leader, who is said to have been chosen as Provincial Secretary; Arthur W. Roebuck of Toronto, whom prophets regard as the next Attorney-General; Hon. Peter Heenan, former Dominion Minister of Labor, who says he has accepted the post of Lands and Forests; T. B. McQuesten of Hamilton, said to be in line for the Minister of Highways.

Others Present.

Two others whose positions were believed less certain also attended. They were T. Stewart Lyon, director of the Toronto Globe and its former managing editor, believed chosen as chairman of the Toronto Hydro-Electric Power Commission, and Dr. L. J. Simpson of Simcoe Centre, said to be in line for the health portfolio.

It was reported E. G. Odette, motor manufacturer of Tilbury, Ont., would be chosen as chairman of the Liquor Control Board and that Dr. J. Albert Faulkner of Belle-

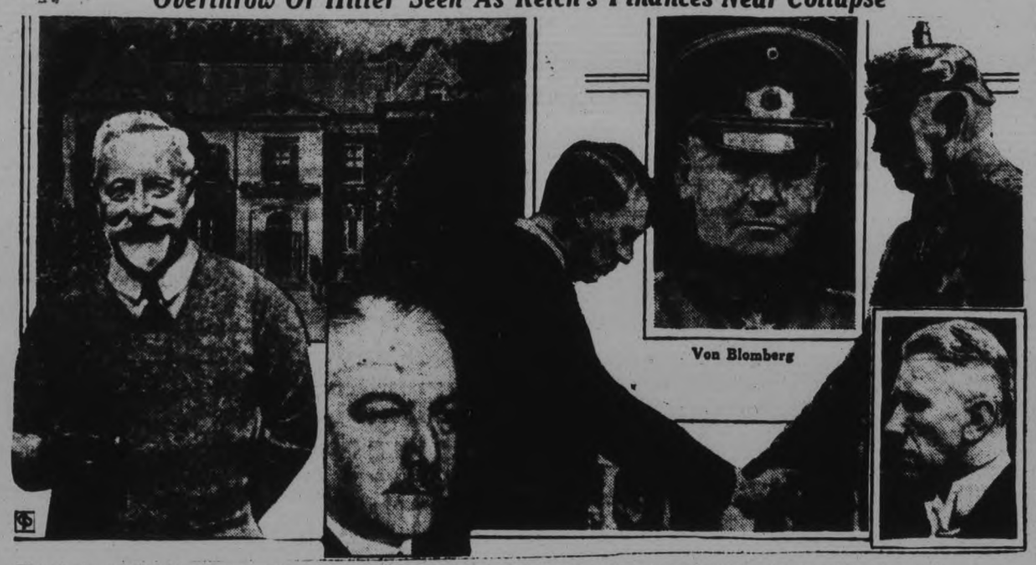
Overthrow Of Hitler Seen As Reich's Finances Near Collapse



Though the people of Germany are unaware of it, trouble is brewing in the Reich. Hitler's "yes-men" have apparently turned tables on Die Fueher by criticizing the Nazi regime, and it is freely rumored that the Hohenzollerns will return to the monarchy of Germany. The move has the support of Paul von Hindenburg, aged president, whose ambition it is to see the kaiser back on the throne. The whole thing started when ex-Chancellor Von Papen, now in Hitler's cabinet, made a speech warning the Nazi party to build confidence in the people. Hindenburg supported Von Papen. Meanwhile the Reich's finances are at a low ebb and she has sent ministers to England to negotiate and haggle over the moratorium declared on her debts. Things are ripe for a swing to the right, which, of course, will likely be met with a swing to the left, resulting in another clash. The layout shows (LEFT), the kaiser at his home in Doorn, Holland. CENTRE, Constantin von Neurath, German foreign minister. Hitler and von Hindenburg are shown in solemn handshake, while at RIGHT is Von Papen. Also shown is Werner von Blomberg, who may head the new military dictatorship after Hitler's overthrow. Blomberg would support the kaiser.

OVERTHROW OF HITLER SIGNAL FOR GENERAL MASSACRE OF JEWS

Declare Attempt at Uprising by Communists Would be Blamed on Jews.

NEWSPAPERS FAIL

By CORALIE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

BERLIN, June 29.—Since the enormous drop in newspaper circulation in the Reich, due to the fact that the papers have been compelled to give up every vestige of individuality and all of them publish exactly the same kind of doped news and canned propaganda issued by the Ministry of Enlightenment, the authorities have hit upon a new scheme to make people swallow their interpretation of home and foreign events just the same.

You go to a restaurant or to a cafe in Berlin and presently a bunch of brownshirts enter who command silence. All at once the music, if any, stops. Regulations prescribe no musical entertainment on such occasions. (Hence all soup-eaters drop their spoons.) Then one of the Nazis—they seem to pick the follow with the loudest voice—begins to orate and shout about Herr Adolf Hitler, how he has saved Europe from Bolshevism, how lovely everything is in the Reich since the Jews have been put in their place, and the Marxists in jail how every people in the world is already trembling at the name of the new Germany and how fine a time everybody will have in the Reich when "the hour strikes." You wonder what hour he means, but you don't ask questions because people in the restaurant would kill you.

While the Nazi holds forth, you may not as much as touch an olive on the table. The waiters are standing still deferentially and all the guests hang on the speaker's lips—waiting for the last word so they can get on with their meal. When the brownshirt finally stops howling after ten minutes that seem an eternity, everybody heaves a sigh of relief and says "Heil Hitler" in the way we would say "thank heaven," and takes a swallow of Pilsener to to wash away the taste of the discourse.

Papers Tell Nothing

There is no use buying a paper after that, for if you do you'll find that same speech in fat letters on the front page, yesterday's speech on the second page, the day before yesterday's on the third page and so on, with an outline of to-morrow's "important" speech outlined on the back. Here and there an item about some Jewish actor who was still performing in some provincial town's theatre but who at last has been found out and dismissed. Such items come under the heading of "victories on the home front." There is no department yet about victories on the foreign front, but that's coming, too. You can't have everything at once.

The Berliner Tageblatt has dropped from a million circulation to 37,000. The Vossische Zeitung has disappeared. The Allgemeine Zeitung has gone from 700,000 to 20,000. Only the Vielkische Beobachter owned by Adolf Hitler and the Angriff owned by Goebbels are flourishing. Since the canvassers of the two Nazi papes come in bunches of six to your door and serve ultimatums either buy a subscription or be denounced as an enemy of the Fuehrer and the national revolution, the circulation of Hitler's life-organ is constantly going up.

Urged to Buy Radios

For the time being the authorities are sponsoring a boom in radio-sets. Every German householder is urged to get one of the new sets. The merit of the new sets is that they pick up German broadcasting stations exclusively. This is a move directed particularly against news broadcasts from stations in countries where the German language is used alternately with other languages such as Luxemburg, Czecho-slovakia, Austria and Switzerland. And, of course, against the three stations in Moscow, who broadcast in all the languages of the universe, including German. It is a misdemeanor to listen in on Vienna, but it is high treason to listen to Moscow, even with earphones.

Charged With Treason

I had to get a Telefunken lamp for our set at home, which brings over Moscow beautifully by the way. We can't get those lamps in France. The dealer, a nearsighted gent near the Friedrichstrasse station, behaved as if I had asked him to sell me the state secret of making Frankfurter sausage. When I told him I was a foreigner he was much relieved and gave me two lamps for the price of one, and made out a false bill to cheat the French customs in the bargain. He expressed himself as greatly satisfied with the new deal in radio sets. He had sold nineteen, so far, he said. "Alles hat er fuer das Volk getan, alles." (He has done everything for the people) the man said, speaking of Hitler of course. "Only the people don't realize it yet," he added.

Such must have been the case of the woman who was brought up in court to-day on the charge of treason. One morning recently when sweeping the stairway, she had told a neighbor: "Things don't get any better. It is worse than before. I haven't been able to afford meat for three months. Butter is three times as dear as a year ago." Her neighbor had denounced these treasonable words to the authorities. The waitress was condemned by the court to appear every morning at the police station in her district for a whole year and repeat the following phrases: "Things are much better and they will get better every day!" Sounds like old man Coue's scheme, peace be on his ashes. With such procedure you certainly reduce the price of butter. No question about that.

One thing must be said: there are no beggars in Berlin. A couple of years ago when I was here last, there was a beggar in front of every house on such streets as the Kurfuerstendamm and the Friedrich strasse. I saw some of them topple over with inanition and undernourishment at that time. Respectable citizens would come up to you in the Tiergarten or in the Lustgarten and shyly offer you a pair of laces for sale, or a package of chewing gum. All that is gone now. The job has been taken over by the state. There are Nazis posted on every street-corner. They rattle collection-boxes and call out brazenly for charity, as no beggar would ever have dared to do it.

On my last evening in this city I went to call on some Jewish friends. They are actors, without jobs of course, but they haven't the money to emigrate. They told me that of the thirty-seven theatres in Berlin, only six remain open and that in these six attendance is quasi-compulsory. The rich must buy tickets to show their appreciation of German art.

Allows Jews to Live

To my surprise these Jews, several others dropped in during the evening, were not at least anxious to see the end of the Hitler regime, in spite of the fact that they had been rendered penniless and destitute. "It seems clear that Hitler will be succeeded by a revolution and thereafter a communist regime," one man said.

"But communists are not anti-Semites," I objected.

"No, but in the period of transition, in the chaos that will follow the overthrow of the present regime, we will be massacred," said an old man. "Before being defeated, the Hitlerites will take it out on the Jews."

"So what?"

"So we are praying that Hitler may stay a long time yet," he said. "I know we are treated abominably, but we won't be killed so long as there is no danger of an overthrow. When you hear of a redoubled persecution of the Jews in the Reich you may be sure that Hitler feels himself in danger and that his last hour approaches—but also our last hope."

STATES SCORCH IN INTENSE HEAT

More Than Score of Deaths Result—No Relief in Sight.

LIVESTOCK DIE.

CHICAGO, June 29. (AP).—More than a score of deaths were attributed to-day to sizzling temperatures that scorched much of the United States from the Rockies to the Atlantic seaboard. Generally speaking, no immediate relief was in sight.

Of the mid-Western states, Iowa apparently was the hardest hit, with six deaths, three due to prostrations and three to drownings, a maximum of 107 degrees was reached at Waterloo.

Many of the victims in other states died when they took to the water to escape the baking heat. Nebraska counted three dead; Illinois one; Maryland three, Michigan four; Ohio four; Western Pennsylvania three and Indiana two.

An all time heat record of 102 was registered at Mattoon, Ill., while in Chicago, where one person died from the heat and scores were prostated, the mercury hit 99—a new high for the date.

In the Pittsburgh district records of 40 years' standing went tumbling and Franklin, Pa., saw a reading of 101, the hottest in its history.

A heavy loss of livestock was reported from some of the drought stricken areas of the mid-west, and crops were withered and burned.

COOKE DEFENDS AIRD PAMPHLET POLICY OF HYDRO

Chairman Takes Full Responsibility For All Publicity.

OTTAWA CONVENTION.

Favoritism in Awarding Subcontracts Charged and Denied.

OTTAWA, June 29 (C.P.).—Taking full responsibility for all publicity sent out by the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission, Hon. J. R. Cooke, chairman of the Commission, yesterday entered a strong defence of his administration of the system before the semi-annual meeting of the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association. It was the duty of the Commission, he said, to reply to its critics and to uphold the principles on which it had successfully operated. He defied anyone to point to a single untruth in any of the recent literature issued by the Commission.

Mr. Cooke came to the platform just after several members had demanded information on the issuance of certain pamphlets dealing with the payment of $50,000 by the Commission to John Aird, Jr.; $125,000 by the Beauharnois Power Company to the same man and the purchase of the Dominion Power and Transmission Company. These matters, he said, had been investigated by a royal commission and the pamphlets were based on the report of the Commission.

The Hydro Commission, Mr. Cooke said, should take no dictation from

BROTHER FLIERS OVER ATLANTIC

Left Harbor Grace Early Today on Long Flight to Poland.

WEATHER FINE.

HARBOR GRACE, Nfld., June 29 (CP Cable).—Flying into the sunrise, two adventurous brothers and partners in business roared over the Atlantic to-day in a big tri-colored monoplane with Poland as their goal.

Clear weather and a light tailwind favored Benjamin and Joseph Adamowicz as they headed the "Warsaw" eastward toward their native land, and forecasts received shortly before they waved good-bye to a little group of friends and newspapermen promised fine flying conditions over most of the Great Circle route.

They lifted the red, white and blue machine off Harbor Grace airport at 3.56 E.S.T. this morning, circled easily, sped across Conception Bay, then disappeared over the ocean, confident of their ability to fly over Dublin and Berlin and bring the plane down on the new municipal airport at Warsaw, where a national welcome awaits them.

Hoiritis, who flew the same machine across to Copenhagen in 1931, piloted the Polish-American fliers over the first leg of their journey yesterday, completing the trip from Brooklyn, N.Y., to Harbor Grace in 9 hours and 35 minutes. At the airport this morning he gave them last-minute instructions, shook hands and wished them luck.

PREMIER DENIES GIRL'S EVIDENCE OF INTIMACIES

Mrs. Brownlee Describes Typist as "Bit of Sunshine" About the House.

WERE FRIENDS.

$1,400 Spent on Investigations Into Case Previous to Having Trial.

(By George Finlay, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

EDMONTON, June 29 (CP)—"A normal, healthy girl—a bit of sunshine," is the description Mrs. J. E. Brownlee, wife of the Premier of Alberta, applies to the young stenographer who is suing her husband for unstated damages on an allegation of seduction.

Mrs. Brownlee, who occupied the witness stand during the latter part of yesterday's session of the action hearing, told of her friendship with the plaintiff, Miss Vivian MacMillan), while voicing the opinion that her husband had not made improper advances towards the girl.

Occupying the stand earlier in the day, Premier Brownlee made a sweeping denial of all allegations made by the former Government stenographer. He had never given her "a kiss of passion," he said. He further denied having made any attempt to have improper relations with her.

In a counter suit the Premier is suing Miss MacMillan and John Coldwell, young medical student and earstwhile fiance of the typist, for $10,000 damages. He charges conspiracy.

Denied Any Settling

In the course of the hearing yesterday, the Premier denied having sent anyone to the MacMillans in an endeavor to settle the suit. Under examination by A. L. Smith, K.C., counsel for the defence, he said he had never kissed Vivian MacMillan except when he was saying good-bye to his family before going away on a trip.

Mr. Smith asked: "Did you ever give her what one might call 'a passion kiss'."

"No," replied the Premier.

"Did you ever, on solemn oath, at any time endeavor to have sexual relations with Vivian MacMillian."

"I did not."

Examined by plaintiff's counsel, Neil Maclean, the Prime Minister said he had paid more than $1,400 to reimburse the Government for investigations carried on in connection with the case. He reimbursed the Government, as he did not want any suspicion that public money was being expended on it, he said. He knew little of the details of the probe or what men were engaged in it, he asserted.

Toronto Livestock Review

TORONTO, June 29. — (CP) — Prices on all classes of livestock dropped during the past week on the Toronto Livestock market with lambs leading the way with a decline of $1.50 for the week. Veal calves dropped 50 cents while cattle and hogs followed with declines of 10 and 15 cents respectively.

Receipts of all classes with the exception of calves were heavier in volume compared with the previous week. A heavy opening cattle run brought a drop of 25 cents on all grades except bulls.

Tuesday's cattle trading continued draggy with a large hold-over on that day but buyers were in a better mood on Wednesday and the market was cleaned up with 15 cents of the early drop regained.

Weighty steers of good and choice quality sold at $5.50 to $5.65 with a top of $6.00 made on Monday. Butcher cattle sold mostly at $4.25 to $4.85 with tops at $5.00 to $5.25.

Good butcher cows closed at $3.40 to $3.65 for choice with canners unchanged at $1.25. Bulls held steady for the week at $2.50 to $3.25 with the top making $3.60. Fed calves of choice quality sold at $5.70 to $6.00 with plain kinds down to $4.50.

The stocker supply was too small to make a market but the inquiry was also light. Prices ranged from $3.00 to $3.50 for the few stores sold. Milkers and Springers continued draggy at $25 to $36 each for the majority.

Calf receipts were 500 head fewer than for last week. The market continued dull with prices down 50c from last week's close. Good and choice calves closed at $4.50 to $5.00 with the bulk of the supply selling between $3.50 and $4.50. A few thin grassers brought $2.50 to $2.75.

Hog receipts were 900 more than for last week. Buyers took 15c off the price on Monday but were unable to extend the drop for the balance of the week. Bacons sold at $8.40 f.o.b. in country points, $8.75 off truck and at $9.15 weighed off cars at Toronto. Selects brought the usual $1.00 per head premium.

Sheep and lamb receipts were up 2000 head at 6,800 for the week. The supply included a large proportion of buck lambs, rushed to the market to escape the $2.00 discount, effective commencing Monday, July 2. Lambs lost $1.00 on the Thursday morning market and lost another 50c before the close. Good lambs closed at $7.50 with a few making $8.00. Culls were mostly $5.00 and $5.50. Sheep were unchanged on a light supply at $1.00 to $2.50 cwt. according to quality.

POLICE WAGED FURIOUS FIGHT

VERNON, B.C., June 29 (C.P.).—Dominion Constable F. H. Gisbourne and Provincial Constable Percy Carr waged a furious battle before they met death on the Canford Indian reserve on the night of May 22, according to testimony of Crown witnesses in the trail of Richardson, Alex. and Eneas George, Indian brothers, charged with murder.

Crown witnesses testified that each of the George brothers received terrific blows across their wrists and arms on the night of September 21, presumably from the officers' batons. Evidence of Indian witnesses also showed Constable Carr was still living when his body was thrown into the Nicola River.

Gisbourne's body was recovered from the river, several miles below the reserve, on May 26, and the Indian brothers are charged with his murder. Carr's body has not been found.

Indian witnesses from the reserve stated the brothers were apparently under the impression Joseph George, their brother, now receiving medical treatment in Vancouver, had been killed at the time of the alleged fight.

They have testified Alex. George came to Chief Billy's house and declared, "Our brother is dead."

ACCUSED OF CONVERSION

COBOURG, June 29 (C.P.). — Harry Crews, Murray Township tax collector for 12 years, appeared in court yesterday to face Judge J. McGibbon on a charge of converting township funds to his own use. Evidence was produced purporting to show Crews was about $2,700 short in his accounts and that persons recorded in his books as delinquent in payment actually had paid their taxes. The case will continue.

ST. VINCENT'S ORPHANAGE SOCIAL IS MOST SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR

Event Was Held on Lower Grounds of Orphanage Property.

DRAW FOR PRIZES.

A lucky choice of a fine day and warm evening, and a new idea in the placing of the event on the lower grounds on McDonnel street, thus obviating the long climb up the steep hill, made the annual Lawn Social of St. Vincent's Orphanage a very successful affair of yesterday.

Usually, the patrons of the Orphanage social have to ascend the hill. Yesterday, they enjoyed a fine supper and the amusments of the evening on the lower slopes and entered from McDonnel street. There are century-old trees in the enclosure and the grass, untrodden by busy feet, grows green on the level space at the foot of the hill, so that the crowd that gathered last night had a very pleasant time, with music from the bandstand above punctuating the energetic cries of Joseph Jacque, who made his usual busy and generous contribution to a good cause by operating the wheel at the Country Store.

Arrangements were carried out in the best possible manner. For weeks, ladies of the three Catholic parishes of the city have been busily engaged in gathering things for the Social which helps to swell the funds of the Orphanage and assists little children who otherwise would have no home life or care.

The supper was a very fine repast, served at white-covered, flow-decked tables by a corps of willing assistants; women, young girls and boys helping in every way.

Large white tents topped by covers of black and red striped awning made a brilliant picture, and many flags and long lines of electric lights contributed to the decorative scheme. A generous gesture that was much appreciated by the Superior and Sisters at the Orphanage was the offer of gratis services by Bobby Clive's orchestra from Rye's Pavilion. Seated around a piano placed on the level ground, the musicians and their leader played lovely music of a semi-classical and popular type that chimed in beautifully with the surroundings and the occasion. Later in the evening, the band of the Salvation Army, thirty strong, contributed equally fine selections from the bandstand on the hill.

Many Helpers

Ladies from the three parishes who were in charge of the service of supper included Mesdames J. O'Donnell, W. O'Donnel, E. Hutchinson, and Miss Kate Perdue, from St. Peter's; Mesdames J. O'Grady, Powers and Quinlan, from the Sacred Heart parish; Mesdames J. Flynn and Murphy, from East City, assisted by numbers of willing helpers.

At the Country Store, where an interested throng gathered all evening to patronize the wheel, Mrs. W. O'Brien, Mrs. J. V. McIntyre and Mrs. Eugene Hurtubise, were busy. Soft drinks were sold at a booth in charge of Mrs. J. F. Overend, Mrs. F. Hickey, Mrs. G. Gordon and Mrs. T. McQuillan. Ice cream, oranges and cigars were sold by Mrs. F. Lynch, Mrs. F. LePlante, Miss Mary McGuire, Miss Adeline Doris and Miss Gertrude McFadden, and the Sodality of St. Peter's Cathedral sold home-made candy, in charge of the Misses Gladys Costello, Helen Archambault, Helen Ross, Rose Murphy, Veronica Scollard, Aileen McCoy and Madeline Henry. Decorations of the booths were carried out with colored paper trimmings, flags and flowers.

A fish pond much patronized by the younger fry was in charge of Miss Annie Simons, who, as usual, spent much time and effort in gathering toys and novelties for this popular place. Contributions to Miss Simons for the fish pond included the donation of thirty-five brilliant new motor-boat toys from J. H. Jamison, manager of the Canadian Department Stores, and a large box of candy novelties from Frank O'Connor's Laura Secord Shop. Assisting at the fish pond were Mrs. T. J. Lane and Miss Josie Lynch, with energetic small assistants in Betty Brady, Rita Condon and Ruth Bennett.

The game of "little horses," in charge of M. J. Wells, also amused the crowd.

Frank Fairen sol dtickets at the gate.

A number of the clergymen of the city and district patronized the supper table and booths, and Mayor and Mrs. Denne were welcome guests during the evening.

During the evening, the draw took lace for the handsome afghan and cushion for which tickets have been sold. The lucky winner was Miss Anna McMurray of Douro.

LOCAL MUSICIAN WRITES SONG HIT

"High in Harlem" to be Played at Rye's Pavilion To-night.

GEORGE FRANCIS WRITER.

"High in Harlem" is the title of the new tune, words written by George Francis, bugle instructor, Peterborough Rangers with music by Art Waters, composer-pianist of "Bobby" Clive's Orchestra playing at Rye's Pavilion. The song portrays the feelings of a Harlemite drinking his blues away. The music is in Cab Calloway style, with minor harmonies. The words will be sung by "Skid" Zaid.

George Francis, without any preparation, simply sat down one day and wrote out the words; and tonight he makes his debut as a writer of song lyrics. He is now engaged in writing the words for a new song which will later be set to music.

Art. Waters, composer of the melody of "High in Harlem" is an exceptionally fine pianist, arranger, and composer, having been trained at the Toronto Conservatory of Music. He has written several catchy melodies, numbered among which are "In Other Days", and "Good Night", the latter being the sign-off signature of "Bobby" Clive and his Orchestra.

Other highlights of tonight's program of entertainment at Rye's include the Friday night feature of "Skid" Zaid in his inimitable interpretation of the story of "The Sleeping Beauty", and several spontaneous skits by the versatile members of the Orchestra.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterboroughs Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Myrtle Eason,
R.R. No. 1, Keene, Ont.

Your handwriting indicates that you are progressive though somewhat obdurate as to your point of view. You are practical and thrifty, but not always methodical. You have a natural tendency to work too hard and too long, therefore, your brain becomes tired and you feel tired out mentally and physically You grumble sometimes over prevailing conditions. However, you are sympathetic and generous. Some of your letter formations show constructive ability. This gives you the right to organize for others, or should when you are older. You should love flowers and enjoy certain types of music, the music of an organ preferably. You are friendly to those with whom you come in contact but you do not crave society.

Grace Ward,
Lakefield, Ont.

Your handwriting portrays an ambitious nature. No matter how well you succeed, you strive for more success. You have the ability to impart knowledge. You are decidedly outspoken and oftimes strike the sensitiveness of another by this characteristic, but it is better to have people know what you think than to creep behind a wall of deceit. You have an understanding nature which gives you an insight into the thoughts, talents and failings of others. You are adaptable to logical reason, but will brook no interference into your private affairs. Some of your smaller letter formations indicate that you are reserved and can manager your own ingenuous abilities without the aid from interested parties. You are economical and conservative, but not strictly pertinacious on your code of thrift. You delight in pleasant surroundings. You are polite courteous and trustworthy, but not condescending. Your writing is very decided for one of your tender years and I sincerely hope that the genuine qualities which are portrayed in it now will remain with you throughout your life. However, I should very much like you to put forth your best effort and try to make yourself write on the full point of the pen instead of the side but keep your own shape and size of writing. This will give strength to your very excellent character when delineated later on. You are reliable, and sincere. You try honestly to do your best, and I am sure you will. I suggest that you study music, and later on household science or domestic economy, because your type as a rule enjoy homemaking in preference to a business career. Your number is 5. FOR SALE SIGNS ON CITY LOTS

Indicate Ownership and Attract Buyers—Resurface Crescent Curve.

TO THE CEMETERY.

Purchase by the city of lots to be sold for arrears of taxes was authorized by the Finance Committee of the council last night.

The adjourned sale takes place on July 10. Three lots were sold for taxes and costs at the first sale, and purchase of any of the remaining lots was left to the discretion of Alderman Holland and City Treasurer Adams.

Alderman Holland informed the Property Committee that "For Sale" signs had been purchased and stakes prepared for the purpose of designating the city's ownership of about fifty properties, and also of indicating to the public that these lots may be purchased by any citizens who may be attracted to buy them.

On Alderman Macdonald's motion, seconded by Alderman Tuggey, instructions were given for the placing of these signs, and the details of prices to prospective purchasers was left to Alderman Holland and City Treasurer Adams.

Resurface Crescent Street.

The Board of Works declined to change its policy of giving two days' wages to men from the relief list who perform work for the city. As a means of curtailing expenditure so as to bring the total cost of relief this year within the appropriations that would avoid an issue of debentures to cover any excess of relief outlay, the special relief committee has suggested as an economy to the ratepayers that the relief wages be taken into consideration in the issuing of vouchers during the summer months.

Members of the Board discussed the idea, but finally decided not to make any change from the present system, on Alderman Sloan's motion, seconded by Alderman Macdonald.

With the improvement of Park Hill Road and Sherbrooke virtually completed, Alderman Hamilton, chairman, informed the Board that there was no other work to be undertaken at once. Mayor Denne suggested that Crescent street be resurfaced from Lock street to the Little Lake Cemetery, and Alderman Sloan urged improvement of Romaine street immediately west of the Port Hope line of the C.N.R.

On Alderman McIntyre's motion, seconded by Ald. Fitzpatrick, the Board of Works was instructed to resurface Crescent street, grading it with fine broken stone and oil. Opinion of the members agreed that a storm drain on Romaine street should be put in before the road was further repaired, and this will be listed on the slate to follow the completion of Crescent street.

City Engineer Parsons informed the Board that a sewer on Monaghan Road from Romaine street to a point 575 feet north of Chamberlain street would cost $5,491, and would serve eleven houses on the east side, and eleven houses and two stores on the North Monaghan side. The report was received, and construction of this sewer will depend on overtures from North Monaghan.

Mayor Denne moved, seconded by Ald. Cotton, that a storm drain be laid on Park Hill Road from Downey street west to the creek.

SCHOOLS CLOSE FOR VACATION

Children Happy as They Leave School Room for Two Months.

EXAMINATIONS START.

School bells will ring no more this summer for Peterborough's public school population of almost three thousand boys and girls and other thousands in the rural schools throughout the County. The children were dismissed at noon today for summer vacation.

For about 300 of the pupils in the city and county, however, there is still work to be done before they gain their freedom. Although classes have ended, they are faced wit hthe Collegiate Entrance examinations which they begin next week, English composition, English spelling and history are to be written on July 3; English literature, English grammar, and writing on July 4. an darithmetic and geography will finish the schedule on July 5. As in other years, a large percentage of the Entrance candidates were recommended for promotion without being required to write.

A number of the public school teachers are also preparing to examinations during the next few weeks. They will take papers in the departmental series at the Collegiate and, in some cases, tests at the Normal School in efforts to improve their teacher standings.

A series of annual picnics on the varous pubic school grounds this week heralded the coming of the holidays in Peterborough.

Reports of commissioners to the General Assembly were given by Rev. J. C. Robinson and Rev. H. R. Williams. They gave a comprehensive account of the important matters which the Assembly considered and emphasized the fine spirit of harmony and unity that was manifested by all the commissioners. Reports of all the departments of church life and work were highly gratifying and a spirit of optimism prevailed. The Presbyterian Church throughout Canada is determined to go forward to greater work for Christ and the Kingdom of Heaven.

Rev. J. C. Robinson gave the budget report, and stated that there is a surplus of $270.00 over the corresponding period of last year, and hopes are entertained that the Presbytery will meet its allocation.

The commission appointed to consider the situation of the church at Bowmanville recommended and the Presbytery agreed that the Rev. W. G. Blake, of Hamilton, be appointed supply for six months, beginning July 1.

Rev. W. H. Walker was appointed interim moderator of the session.

Presbytery adjourned, to meet in Havelock on Tuesday, September 11.

The ladies of Centreville congregation served dinner in the Sunday School hall.

Railwaymen Pleased Bills Are Withdrawn

STRATFORD, June 29 (C.P.) — Railwaymen here to-day welcomed the announcement from Ottawa that the Government had withdrawn bills which had been under consideration for the merging of the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific Railway Companies' telegraph and express services.

When press despatches some days ago predicted that an amalgamation of the two departments seemed in sight, protests from railwaymen throughout the country were sent to Government officials.

William Essex, local chairman, Express Division, No. 70, C.B. of E., received the following telegram from Hon Dr. Manion: "In reply to your telegram, I am pleased to inform you that, after consideration of all aspects of this question, the Government has withdrawn these bills."

Recount Will Start Wednesday, July 18

Application was made before His Honor Judge Robert Ruddy in Chambers here yesterday afternoon for a recount of the ballots cast in Peterborough County by which T. P. Lancaster of Havelock was elected to the Legislature by a plurality of thirty-four votes over James Hawthorne and the Rev John Sutherland.

Wilfrid F. Huycke secretary of Peterborough Liberal Association, made the application, and His Honor set the date of the recount for July 18 at 10.30 o'clock a.m. With 183 spoiled or rejected ballots reported by Sheriff F. J. A. Hall, Returning Officer, it was agreed that they should be examined impartially by Judge Ruddy. In view of the small margin by which Mr Lancaster was elected it was felt that Mr Hawthorne was entitled to a recount.

FRANKNESS IS REQUIRED.

While The Examiner is of the opinion that there is a lot of sympathy being wasted upon the hardened criminals who are responsible for the disturbance in Kingston Penitentiary, we would respectfully suggest to the Ottawa Government the advisability of its dodging the pitfall that helped to wreck the Ontario Government.

The lack of frankness on the part of the Henry administration, its refusal to give the public information to which it was justly entitled, played no small part in the verdict of last week.

There is an obvious danger that the policy of the Department of Justice at Ottawa and of the Government in keeping the lid slammed down tight on penitentiary matters will shake public confidence not only in the administration of penitentiaries but in the Government as a whole.

The sensible way out of this situation is to authorize an investigation by a competent and non-partisan tribunal, given the power to probe every angle of prison administration, and particularly to hear evidence upon such matters as the firing of shots into the cell of Tim Buck, Communist leader.

This instance, above all others, requires a more adequate explanation than a few words from the Minister of Justice, and if it in particular and the whole field of prison conditions in general are not fully and publicly probed, it will be difficult to convince the people of this country that there is not something decidedly wrong in the way prisons in Canada are operated.

ONTARIO'S FARM REVENUES.

According to the annual report of the Statistics Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, the gross agricultural revenue of this province last year showed a substantial increase over the total for 1932, although still below the figure for the previous year.

The figures should be of general interest.

The value of Ontario field crops last year is estimated at $124,566,000 and of farm animals at $31,500,000.

Wool was valued at $553,000, an increase over both 1932 and 1931; diary products at $70,606,000, fruit and vegetables at $12,550,000 and poultry and eggs at $16,864,000.

Fur farming added $693,000 to the province's agricultural revenue; maple products were responsible for $720,000 more, and tobacco, a comparatively new crop, contributed $4,873,000.

Other items in the list of revenue were flax fibre, $159,000; clover and grass seed, $1,079,000, and honey, $595,000.

The total for the province last year was $264,762,000 as contrasted with $247,684,000 in 1932 and $293,224,000 in 1931.

In this connection it should be noted that the 1933 estimates are subject to revision, and the final figures will probably be even better than those given, inasmuch as prices were higher during the last half of the 1933 crop marketing season.

The items that showed gains over 1932 were field crops, farm animals, wool, dairy products, fur farming and clover and grass seed, and the improvement, it is gratifying to know, has continued into 1934.

SARNIA'S RELIEF PLAN.

Sarnia relief authorities have adopted a new policy in an effort to reduce the number of families in receipt of relief in that city.

At a meeting of the Sarnia Council the other night it was decided on a resolution, approved by all but one member of the Council, that all able-bodied men who are heads of relief families should be removed from the relief lists.

In the event that the family is in actual need of assistance the head of the family will be required to work a certain number of days a week, according to the amount of relief required.

The scale of relief work is outlined as follows:

For one day's work a week the relief department will provide medical attention, dental attention, groceries and milk; for two days' work a week, medical and detal care, groceries, milk and fuel; for three days' work a week, medical and dental attention, groceries, milk, fuel and clothing; and for four days' a week, medical and dental attention, groceries, milk, fuel, clothing and shelter.

The system will not apply in the case of widows and disabled men, but all able-bodied heads of families will come under the new policy, will have to work according to the above schedule for the assistance they receive from public funds.

It is the opinion of the relief authorities that many recipients of municipal aid could find work for the summer, and that the plan now to be put into force will have the effect of compelling some at least of these men to secure jobs for themselves.

DOING GOOD WORK.

In view of the fact that the Ontario Research Foundation is one of the services that have been marked for elimination in the new Government's economy program, the annual report of the Foundation, just to hand, is of unusual interest.

The report of the director of research indicates that from the middle of last year a slow but continued increase in the demand for the Foundation's services developed and has continued to the present time.

The fact that some 70 industrial companies made use of the organization during 1933 shows that the research work being carried on is regarded as of much value to the industries of the province.

"One can state unequivocally," says the director, "that in many instances problems of real importance have been solved, and that the returns far exceeded the expenditures. Another gratifying feature of this part of our work is that in several cases companies which made use of our facilities during the first two years are returning with more problems."

The dropping of this important service is a matter that, The Examiner submits, should receive a great deal of careful consideration.

Research work, effectively carried on, pays for itself many times over.

In addition, there is the fact that the Ontario Research Foundation is not financed by annual appropriations from the public treasury, but on the contrary operates on an income received from an invested trust fund created by the Provincial Government and private subscribers.

And last year the Foundation had an operating surplus of $1,995.94.

THE TOURIST BUSINESS IS EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS.

The Dominion Government has set aside $100,000 to be spent on tourist advertising.

That should be the cue for every citizen of Canada, to appoint himself a tourist agent.

Every year 125,000 B. C. cars visit United States. Each passenger in those cars is a potential if not an actual publicity worker, to bring tourists back in return. Friendly, personal contacts are invaluable, so that we need not be concerned with outgoing traffic in gauging the tourist business. It is incoming traffic on which we must concentrate.

You are apt to hear the man in the street say, "Tourists are no concern of mine. They don't spend any money with me."

But he's wrong. They do spend money with him. The average tourist spends from $7 to $10 a day. That $7 goes to gas stations, to hotels, to restaurants, to stores, to amusement places of all sorts, to farmers.

The downtown storekeeper takes his $7 and gives it to his wife to run the house. (Even a storekeeper's wife does 85 per cent. of the home buying.' She pays the district grocer, butcher, baker, milkman. They in turn buy needed things, the making of which provides jobs.

The tourist dollar runs the whole length of the business and industrial channel. It is new money which stimulates business and helps provide jobs. The gas station attendant, hotel waiter, the store clerk, the theatre usher, all of these are only the first recipients. They pass the money along to others.

The tourist business is everybody's business. It is YOUR business. Sit down right now and write a letter to that friend who has been talking about visiting British Columbia.—Vancouver Sun.

A BAD SITUATION.

There is no little concern among students of the political situation over the fact that the Conservative party failed to elect a single of its candidates in last week's general election in Saskatchewan, despite the fact that it polled some 90,000 votes against approximately 146,000 attracted by the Liberals.

* * * *

It is an amazing turn-over, of course, and actually embarrassing to the new Liberal Government which will succeed the Anderson administration. A few Farmer-Labor candidates were successful, but not a single Conservative, despite the fact that a Conservative ministry has ruled Saskatchewan for several years. The Premier and every one of his candidates met defeat. And even the leader of the Farmer-Labor group was beaten, too, with the result that no one knows at the moment just what is going to be done about an Opposition. The suggestion has been made that a seat will be found for the Farmer-Labor chief.

The cause of good government would have been much better served, obviously, had the Conservatives succeeded in electing even half a dozen members, including their leader, the retiring Prime Minister. Dr. Anderson, having headed the Government for several years, must have a broad grasp of public questions, and it is reasonable to suggest that his continued presence in the Legislature, or at least the presence of one, two or three of his ministers, would have been an excellent thing from all points of view.

It is the usual thing, of course, for the party that is defeated in a general election to provide the Opposition in the next Parliament or Legislature. It is familiar with current public business and in a position to provide a rigid scrutiny of all the acts of the new administration—the kind of a scrutiny that is desirable under our form of government. In Saskatchewan, unfortunately, this is not the case, for the reason already mentioned—the complete defeat of the Conservative party.

In Ontario, happily, there is a different situation. Although the Government lost heavily in the election a week ago to-day, Premier Henry and several of his Cabinet colleagues, as well as a number of former Conservative M.L.A.'s, were returned and will form the official Opposition. Even in the event of Mr. Henry's retirement from the Conservative leadership—something that is looked upon by many Conservatives as a practical necessity—the Opposition will still include a number of experienced men, vigorous and courageous and eminently capable of watching the new Government carefully and checking up on every item of policy or expenditure that seems to require attention.

It would have been a distinctly bad thing for this province had the Conservatives lost all the seats, as in Saskatchewan.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Good evening! Have you been mentioned as an Ontario Cabinet possibility yet?

Monday will be celebrated as Dominion Day in Canada, which mainly means that people will take a day off to go fishing.

It takes a lot of counting in an election campaign sometimes before all but one of the candidates takes the count.

"I was out at the ball game," will give Toronto husbands a substitute for the "Sitting up with a sick friend" gag, now that the game is being played under the flood lights.

Mr. Woodsworth complains that out in Saskatchewan the C.C.F. drew the crowds but the Liberals got the votes. That is a modern version of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's lament that he was always cheered in Toronto but the ballots were marked Conservative.

Premier George S. Henry says that he is not going to take a holiday, but will keep a close watch on Queen's Park developments. The hero of the "Straight Furrow" might be better off if he took his vacation.

"What's your hurry? Here's your hat," seems to be the attitude of Mr. Hepburn to highly paid officials in the Government and Hydro services.

"No more taxes" would be a winning plank in any political party platform.—Guelph Mercury.

BEER IN RESTAURANTS

To the Editor,

Dear Sir,—The Examiner is to be commended for the stand they have taken against beer in restaurants, for there is no doubt about it, that phase of the act which is waiting to be proclaimed, is fraught with possibilities for evil that are appalling in ther magnitude. We have only to turn to the experience of our sister province of British Columbia which has had nine years experience of beer by the glass to see what is in store for Ontario.

Beer by the glass was introduced in British Columbia in 1925, beer has flowed freely since, beer parlors have increased in Vancouver from 33 to 63. There are now in the province 306 beer saloons, 48 clubs, 30 veterans' clubs, 70 government liquor stores, 4 distilleries, and 12 breweries. Has these facilities for drinking stopped the illegal sale of liquor? No, on the contrary, the number of violations of the Liquor Act, increased in the first year after the beer saloons by 53 per cent. Arrests for drunkenness increased in the first year in Vancouver city by 28 per cent.

In 1933 an investigating committee of the Vancouver Police Commission reported that "Bootlegging is Rampant." After three years of beer by the glass the Vancouver Sun declared that, "Vancouver is the Bootlegger's Paradise." Crime increased so much that in five years (1925-1931) the inmates of provincial jails had increased from 1514 to 3741. That it was, and is, productive of vice is proved by the fact. That is a sworn report by three special investigators to the Vancouver Police Commission in 1933 they stated "All beer parlors contain women soliciting."

That the drinking of beer does not lessen the consumption of hard liquors is proven by the fact that from 1926 to 1930 the sale of spirituous liquors increased in British Columbia from $6,702,671.66 to $8,984,113.02.

These facts are damning enough in all conscience, and should be enough to make the people of this province sit up and take notice, the danger to our youth cannot be calculated and the pity of it is so few people seem to be awake to the danger.

To those of us who had experience of conditions of the open bars, and have worked to try and reduce the slaves ofdrink the situation is terrible, and the danger is the worse because our young people who have grown up in an environment more or less free from this temptation, and the sight of the effects of drink cannot realize their danger. What is to be done?

I do not think we have anything to hope for from the government, it was the declared intention of Mr. Hepburn, that if elected he would proclaim the act, and from his attitude to those members of his party who though following him avowed their temperance principles, I do not think we can expect a sympathetic attitude towards restraint in granting licenses.

Our only hope is in our own attitude, and we have one very potent weapon we can use, and that is for every one who is against the sale of beer in restaurants, to withdraw their patronage from the restaurant applying for a license immediately we know who it is, as any one who will deliberately flout the wishes of a community and endanger the moral, physical and spiritual welfare of our people for private gain is unworthy of consideration or support.

I thank you,

Yours faithfully,
George Leader.

Foreign Affairs

THE UNITED STATES AT THE WHITE HOUSE

When Congress adjourned President Roosevelt was the most bewildered man in the United States. Among world leaders there is none more bewildered than he.

Congress Adjourns

Pessimistic Mood

The beginning of his administration was marked by great expectations. The United States under his leadership has fallen far short of the anticipated. Prestige ought to win renown. Instead it has suffered eclipse. The transition has been so swift that hope has become uncertainty. When Congress adjourned this was the mood of both the legislative Houses and the nation.

The President's policies are now running the gauntlet of the sharpest criticism of both political parties. This has taken place in the face of the most expensive political propaganda ever organized at the White House. That there has been some improvement in business cannot be refuted. But ten million men unemployed, besides half as many women constitute a barrier in the way of greater advancement.

The appropriation by Congress of billions of dollars for public works to be initiated on a vast scale to cut down the numbers of unemployed men and women, and to relieve distress, and to help the farmer created a national optimistic spirit. But the numbers of the unemployed are so great that the people have become pessimistic as another winter is contemplated. The same ominous pessimism has penetrated the Administration ranks.

The dejection is easily accounted for. The President has demonstrated that at no time since his inauguration has he been able to present a clear and compact policy to Congress for consideration.

BULGARIA

To know the mother is to know the Dimitroff children. Mrs. Dynamo Dimitroff would not have been an unsuitable name. The whole family is chuck full of energy. To listen to Mrs. Dimitroff speak is to be impressed by her elemental faith. She is never in doubt. Her devotion to the cause of the Bulgarian workers is just as marked. Sacrifice could ask nothing more than she is willing and ready to give for Bulgaria and her people. The story of this family reads like the roster of the revolutionary army. The wounded and dead of this one family appal. Their courage an inspiration, and their triumphs an adornment to the pages of Bulgarian history.

The Dimitroff Family Story

First place, in the family has been given unanimously to the mother for untold suffering and privation. Paraskeva Dimitrova is her Bulgarian name. Her friends call her Baba Patsa. Think of her mother dedication of her children to the cause of a violent revolution. Then of her heartbreak as the news was carried from the battle field that three of her six sons had died terrible deaths. Tenderly she pronounces the names of her hero sons, Nikolai, Kostadin and Todor. But she is proud while she weeps. Two daughters are just as devoted as is the mother. Ellena is an exile. Young and handsome and brilliant and forceful she exalted the cause of the labor masses of Bulgaria.

Some comfort of heart is the mother's because Linna, Boris and Ljuben are still at home with her. Neither she nor they know how short may be the day of their stay. Every hour of both day and night a military guard stands watch over the home, on Opolchenska street in Sofia. Mother Dimitroff has taken all the blows that have fallen without a murmur, but with many a tear. Stout men have marvelled that a woman so frail and sweet and brimming with good nature could be so unwavering.

(By Marshall Maslin.)

'GIRLS ARE NO GOOD'

When I asked the small boy, who had two brothers, if he didn't want a sister, he made a terrible face.... And with his two hands he made a gesture of disgust and derision.... And he also said NO! as if he meant it!

No girls for him! No sisters in HIS family! Girls, you gathered, were a nuisance. They were a great trouble. Inferior, pestiferous, whining, silly, giggly, altogether worthless bits of creation. And not to be spoken of in the same breath with boys! Girls were no good.... That's where he stood on that question; so I said no more about it, asked no more questions. If I'd had time I might have argued, but I had only an hour or two to spare, and that wouldn't be enough.

But where do small boys get that attitude? Why are small boys and small girls such natural enemies? ...Because they are, and no amount of sentimentalizing can gloss over that fact....The little boys sneer at the little girls, the little girls complain about the boys. They "gang up" on each other. They tease each other and break each other's playthings, and sometimes they throw sticks and stones across the space that separates them.

And why is that? Sometimes it's the fault of some silly adult who speaks disparagingly of little boys or girls....But that isn't the end of it, because the great majority of grownups haven't that attitude in their maturity and are not interested in maintaining it in children.... And curiously enough, it doesn't exist in small boys when they are by themselves. A small boy will often when there are no other small boys around play happily with little girls and without a shadow of a quarrel. He may even take an interest in their dolls....But let other boys come around and that's the end of the friendly interlude. He joins the predatory gang that despises the other sex and begins to give orders. Nobody's going to call HIM a sissy!

Why is this? Don't ask me—I wouldn't know! And I don't think ANYBODY knows....The answer is in the fiber and tissue of the small fellow and he can't help it. It may not have been born in it, but it is a part of the iron code of his tribe and he must obey it....The little girls will have their sweeter triumph later on when they are bigger girls and the contemptuous imps have lengthened into gangling love-sick calves.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

HE FEARED BURIAL ALIVE

On this date, in 1810 Hon. Henry Caldwell, M.L.C., died at Belmont his mansion on Ste. Foyr Road, just outside of Quebec. He had come to Canada with Wolfe, had stayed, had become wealthy, a member of the legislative council and receiver general of Lower Canada, "a veritable nabob" to use the words of a local historian.

But despite his wealth he had a great fear that he might be buried alive and took precautions in his will to guard against such a contingency. One night, sitting alone in his library, he decided that there must be no doubt about the matter and despatched one of his men servants into the city to summon a notary public. It was a stormy night; the menial made the journey both ways but the notary declined to go out in such wicked weather. Thereupon Caldwell drew up his will himself (and it was accepted by the courts after his death).

After directing that his funeral should be simple, marked only by the rites of the Church of England "Without eulogy", he wrote:

"Should my death take place in the summer it is my will that my body should remain in my bed until such time as it begins to be offencive; if in the winter that it may remain in the bed five or six days with a fire in the room unless during that time it should become offencive. It is my will that it be committed to the earth in the burying place or vault made by me in the burying ground at Quebec.... but should it happen that I should die at a distance from Quebec, anywhere out the province, where the tree falls there let it lye."

Sad to relate the executors did not delay the funeral. Caldwell died on the evening of the 29th; he was buried on the afternoon of the 31st. Perhaps it was a hot summer and the corpse had already become "offencive"!

A Thought

THE WORLD'S WORK

"One of the things that I am thankful for every day that I live is for my share in the world's work," said a wise and busy woman. "I am thankful that my hands are full." The blessing of the full hands and the full days is one that we sometimes fail to appreciate until illness or some misfortune forces us to stand aside for a time while the eager, useful procession passes by without us. A vital part in the world we live in, a head and a hand for its work, a heart for its needs, its joys, its burden, and faith for its outlook—these are the best gifts that can be ours for healthful and happy days.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, June 29 (AP) — Stocks were somewhat heavy to-day in an extremely low volume of trading. Price movements were restricted, and transfers approximated a bare 450,000 shares. General Foods, Borden, McIntyre Porcupine and Union Pacific were among the few issues to show resistance to the moderately lower trend.

the cause of the inflammation, but he did not think it probable that it was the result of a blow.

The youth, who is said to have been a physical training instructor at the Ontario School for the Deaf, is stated to have slipped on the horizontal bars and to have struck the back of his neck, while he is subsequently reported to have been struck on the head by a baseball, during the course of a game at the institution.

Besides his parents, the deceased is survived by two sisters, the Misses Florence and Kathleen Farrance, at home, and three brothers: George William, Harry and Gordon, also at home.

The funeral is to be held on Monday from All Saints' Church, at 3 p.m., where services will be conducted by the Rev. J. D. Paterson, the rector. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

SAWMILL WORKERS STRIKE

NEWCASTLE, N.B.— Employees of three sawmills in this area were on strike to-day for higher wages. The mills, operated by Fraser Companies, Ltd., at Chatham Head; G. Percy Burchill, at South Nelson, and the Anderson Company, at Newcastle, were forced to close. Workers loading a lumber freighter at Nelson and engaged in repair work at Morrisy Bridge for Department of Public Workrs, walked out in sympathy with the strikers. Approximately 350 men were involved.

Demands of the army have caused a shortage of labor in Bolivia.

200 CHILDREN WILL BENEFIT

Medical Examinations Disclose Definite Need for Kiwanis Fresh Air Camp.

MANY UNDERWEIGHT.

Approximately 200 underprivileged children have been medically examined by Drs. C. B. Waite, Charles M. Scott and F. C. Neal, and have been recommended to the Kiwanis Jackson Park Health Camp which opens on Monday next.

Dr. Waite as chairman of the Underpriveleged Child Committee tendered a report to the club membership at today's luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club held at Empress Hotel under presidency of A. B. Gates, and spoke of the results of the medical examinations he had made in conjunction with the other two medical men.

One of the children the doctor declared, he had found to be 25 pounds underweight, while Dr. Scott had found another child to be 22 pounds underweight. Another child specially mentioned by Dr. Waite was a 12-year-old girl who is keeping house for her father and for four younger children, while her mother is away in an institution.

President Gates briefly outlined plans for the launching of a prize drawing ticket sale in which goods to the total value of $44 are to be given away at a big street fair and carnival in September.

He also gave a brief resume of the 18th Annual Kiwanis International Convention at Toronto, which he attended in company of Ivan T. Lilloco as official delegates of the local club.

"Bobby" Clive, Art Waters and Vern Kahonen all members on the entertainment program, the latter providing two well received saxophone solos.

HEAVY TRADING IN GOLD STOCKS

Silvers Also Active With Castle Higher on Toronto Mining Section.

BASE METALS STEADY.

TORONTO, June 29 (C.P.).—The approaching double holiday did not interrupt the accumulation of some of the gold stocks by traders to-day on the mining section of the Toronto Stock Exchange, a number of the group turning over in heavy volume at higher prices. Silvers were also active, with Castle higher and the base metal stocks were steady.

While quiet on the whole, the big gold issues maintained a steady tone and gains had a narrow margin over losses at the close. Teck Hughes and Bralorne turned in the best volume. Little Long Lac was the sensation of the new group, closing 60 cents higher at $6, while gains of 1 to 4 cents were recorded for Sylvanite, Buffalo-Ankerite and Gunnar Gold.

Sweltering Heat Strikes Province

TORONTO, June 29 (C.P.). — Southern Ontario sweltered in a heat wave to-day with prospects it would end by to-morrow. Moving into the lake region from the southwest yesterday the torrid weather sent temperatures bounding upward and headed eastward toward Montreal.

All-time records were equalled in Windsor yesterday when the mercury reached 104 degrees. The Border Cities sweltered again to-day, and Detroit recorded a temperature of 80 at eight o'clock this morning. London, whose top yesterday was 92, began with 76 at 8 a.m. to-day.

82 DEGREES HERE.

The thermometer stood at 82 degrees at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Although pedestrians were wiping their brows and keeping in the shade as much as possible, the temperature by no means represented a record for this month. The oppressiveness of the day was the result of high humidity.

For a period around 3 o'clock yesterday the reading was as high as 85 degrees. And it was a warm night, 64 degrees being the minimum registered.

DREDGE FRASER RIVER

VANCOUVER, B.C., June 29.— For years mining men have known that the gravels and bars of the Fraser River for a distance of more than four hundred miles contain placer gold. In the early days many of these bars were washed to a water level line and literally millions of dollars were recovered from purely surface workings.

Convinced that gold can be recovered on a large scale from the bed of the Fraser, the Fraser River Golds Co. Ltd. has decided to dredge the bed of the river and to that end are building a mighty dredge of the most modern design. The first unit is now nearing completion at the works of the B.C. Marine Engineering Works of this city at a cost of more than $100,000.00. The Dredge will be, when completed, 140 feet in length and 42 feet in width with a power plant that will develop 2,000 h.p. or an excess of what will be required for its operation.

JOHN MELADY & CO.

NEW YORK, June 29. — Price levels play a very important part in the decisions of speculators and traders. Right now there are a number of people who are long stocks and who would be willing to sell them on a rise of a few points. If these traders were given an opportunity to sell out 2 points higher maiy would buy back if the market were to move forward another 3 or 4 points.

The present market is in a position to score a very impressive advance. The turn nas been completed and a sound base has been laid. All that is needed is some logical reason or excuse to start the ball rolling. There are a large number of individuals who have made up their minds to convert their cash and bank deposits into securities.

Developments over the past year have convinced a great many investors that eternal vigilance, not mere possession of wealth, is the price of safety. They are beginning to realize that different diseases call for different remedies. Safe investments in one era may be unsafe in another. The action of the bond market shows how great is the desire for safety and also how shortsighted Mister Average Investor is. It won't be long before the movement away from bonds into equities will become more pronounced, but before that occurs second-grade bonds should work higher.

WILL FREE PAIR OF COMMUNISTS FROM KINGSTON

Two Friends of Tim Buck Have Earned Ticket of Leave.

OTHER FIVE STAY.

Freedom of Others Will be Considered on Usual Prison Status.

OTTAWA, June 29. (CP)—Two of the seven Communists remaining in Kingston Penitentiary will be allowed their freedom on ticket-of leave, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, announced to-day. They are Sam Carr and Matthew Popvich, both of whom have served half theier original sentence with behaviour meriting their release. They will be allowed to serve the remainder of their sentences outside the penitentiary, reporting to the authorities a regular intervals.

The remaining five will be considered for ticket-of leave on the basis of other prisoners of a similar status, the minister said. Rev. A. E. Smith, general secretary of the Canadian Labor Defence League, with a number of wives of the convicted Communists, waited upon the minister to-day and learned of his intention of releasing the two men.

Mr. Smith said he believed the two would accept their freedom as they were in bad health. Ordinarily, however, it would be the desire of the entire party to hold out for complete pardon.

Those remaining in the penitentiary are Tim Buck, John Boychuk, Tom Hill, Malcolm Bruce and Tom Ewing. They started their sentences in Feb., 1932 and will be eligible for parole in August after serving half their sentences.

There were eight in the party when the convictions were secured in Nov. 1931 of charges of belonging to an illegal assembly. Sam Behan died suddenly of a heart attack last May.

"I believe we have a good Fire Chief,' Ald. McIntyre said.

Ald. Stocker's criticism was to the effect that Chief Gimblett did not arrive at the fire hall until ten o'clock in the morning, and was absent from the hall at other intervals during the day.

"Some day there will be a fire when he's not there, and then you will want to know why," Ald. Stocker said.

Dorothy Cathcart read the following address—

Dear Miss Curtis:

The pleasant duty has been assigned me by my school mates of presenting you this token as an evidence of our lasting esteem, friendship and love. We could not consent to part with you without leaving in your hands some memorial, however trifling, of deep and abiding gratitude for your unceasing efforts to benefit us. When in future days you look upon this momento, let it be a pleasant token of the deepest love and reverence of our young hearts.

Alex Darling and Elmer Hogg made the presentation of a silver sandwich tray. Miss Curtis in a few words thanked her pupils for the lovely gift. Edith Cook, Velma Sweeting and Bernice Moore sang in a pleasing manner "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow".

During the afternoon the children enjoyed a treat of hot dogs, lemonade and candy.

on which segment he lost seven strokes to par.

After seeing his huge advantage slowly slipping, he pulled himself together and settled down to finish the last five holes in even par.

Cotton won the title with five strokes to spare, finishing that many shots ahead of Sid Brews, pro at the Durban golf club in Natal, South Africa, who finished in second place with two great rounds of 70 and 71 for an aggregate of 283.

The four invading professionals from the United States finished far down the list. Joe Kirkwood, the trick shot Australian who holds the Canadian open, and Macdonald Smith, the veteran Scot now playing from Nashville, Tenn., were tied with totals of 292. Kirkwood shot a smart third round 69 and a 78 on his last round. Smith had a handsome pair of par 72s.

Denny Shute, the American defender of the title, wound up 18 shots behind Cotton while Gene Sarazen trailed the new champion by 19 strokes. Shute had final rounds of 80 and 78 for 301 while Sarazen carded a 74 and an 80 for 302.

hesitate to steal an election through this bill," he said.

"Order," protested some of the Conservative members.

Drafted War Time Act

"Order, nothing," retorted Mr. Motherwell. He then declared that when one considered the "pedigree" of the draftsman of the act it made one hesitate. The draftsman, he said, was W. F. O'Connor, "author of the War Time Elections Act."

"Can this O'Connor draft an act like the War Time elections, and then a White Man's Bill?" questioned Mr. Motherwell.

It was evident that a general discussion might open up on single clauses of the bill, said Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, Opposition leader. He suggested that the committee pass non-contentious clauses, leaving those on which there was difference of opinion, to stand.

For the official opposition the burden was taken up by Major C. G. Power (Lib., Quebec South), who was a member of the special committee set up to review the measure. Many of the rules for the registration of voters were adopted, but strong objection was taken to others. The arguments employed against them when the bill was in special committee were resurrected to-day.

However, those contentious ones were allowed to stand, and the committee passed on to the non-controversal sections.

Any And Every Day Milady Needs Smart, Simple Frocks

Extreme left, frock of Swiss gingham; next, striped waffle pique; third and fourth, two flower-printed voile dresses; seated, washable silk crepe with contrasting scarf; next, in background, cross-barred seersucker; right, leaning against the tree, printed cotton voile.

Courtesy Good Housekeeping

Every day, in every way, women need simple, wearable, tubbable, and above all, smart, little frocks for the dog days.

Look over this group and you will see what is meant by the adjectives employed.

At the left is a youthful and flattering little frock of frilled tissue gingham with woven check and embroidered dot. Cool and chic. Next a frock of striped waffle pique with lacings of grosgrain ribbon. Navy or white is the most popular color combination this season.

Two printed voile frocks are next, the first has a big white organdie bow, which is as flattering as it is pictured, patch pockets and front pleats. The other has a lingerie and lace jabot and cuffs, making it suitable for office or traveling needs.

Seated is a washable silk crepe frock—white, preferably, with a red scarf, buttons and belt. A new shirtwaist frock of cross-barred seersucker is in the background. It has cap sleeves, and a little tailored bow and belt of grosgrain ribbon.

The last dress, on the damsel leaning against the tree, is a printed cotton voile in confetti design, with front and pleated revers of white cross-barred organdie. The neckline is especially becoming to all ages of women.

Il Duce and Hitler Trying to Mold Europe

A huge European bloc composed of Germany, Italy, Poland, Hungary and Austria, according to some observers, will be a result of the dramatic Hitler-Mussolini conversation at Venice. That was the construction place on agreements of the German and Italian dictators that troubled Austria lying between the two Fascist nations, should be recognized as an independent nation, but could, if she so chose, elect a Nazi chancellor. Austria's present chancellor, Engelbert Dolfuss, is pictured at RIGHT, ABOVE, with Hitler, LEFT, shaking hands with Mussolini, RIGHT. The map shows the possible union in central Europe.

Split In Nazi Leadership Widens

Adolph Hitler, chancellor, and Franz von Papen, vice-chancellor, are farther apart than the photo at top indicates as split in German leadership over Nazi policies widens. His blasts at Nazi doctrines and resignation of Count Rudolf Nadolny (left, below) as German ambassador to Russia mark another big break in the Nazi government ranks, in which cleavage first developed with resignation of Alfred Hugenberg (right) as minister of economics and agriculture.

Here Is What Happens To Those Baby Film Star Sensations Of a Few Years Back

Jackie Coogan earned $2,000,000 as a baby star, and he lasted longer than most juvenile film folk. Now, at 19, he is out of the picture as a luminary.

The charming Baby Peggy of a few years ago finds that she can't get a part at 17, and recently took an extra job as a page in a Hollywood stage presentation.

In the old days of silents, Jane and Katherine Lee wowed 'em out of their seats. Now they are in vaudeville, with an occasional night club appearance thrown in.

Madge Evans is an exception to the rule that baby stars' careers are brief. She was a star at five years old and is one of the better known leading lights today.

Not long ago Wesley Barry was well up in the Hollywood money as a juvenile star. Now the young man is leading an orchestra.

ville would become Minister of Education, unless Mr. Hepburn decides to give that post to W. L. Houck of Niagara Falls. It was said last night a definite selection has not been made for the Education Department.

Several ministries remained unfilled in the list. It was reported a seat might be opened for Colin A. Campbell, young minister engineer who was defeated in Addington and that he might get the Mines portfolio.

Heenan Seat Puzzles.

Paul Leduc of Ottawa was still slated for the post Mr. Hepburn promised would be given to a French-Canadian.

The problem of finding a seat for Mr. Heenan appeared unsolved, although it was said possibly Earl Hutchinson, Kenora member-elect, might resign in his favor.

It was indefinite whether Mayor David A. Croll of Windsor, would be taken into the cabinet, but some said he might get the ministry of Labor and Municipal Affairs.

Mr. Sinclair and Mr. McQuibban appeared out of the picture. Both said they had not been invited to the meeting and that they had received no offers of cabinet posts.

At the end of his meeting with Mr. Hepburn Mr. Henry issued a statement saying he had undertaken to carry on for two weeks to allow Mr. Hepburn a short holiday. The statement said the actual date of the new government's accession would be decided after Mr. Hepburn's return, but sources close to the party said they believed the date would be July 16.

Constable Knows All About Babies

SALT LAKE CITY, June 29.—(CP)—Patrolman H. A. Peterson knows what to do with a crying baby.

He responded to a call from neighbors who said a child was crying in a window, as it had almost nightly for months, while its mother attended dances.

"I put the baby to bed," was the patrolman's succinct report.

MILITANT ACTION BEEN ABANDONED

Robert Cox Will Seek Damages From Department of Highways.

FOUR COWS INJURED

Abandoning his militant threat to keep highway workers off his property by force until his land dispute with the Department of Highways has been settled, Robert Cox, Smith Township farmer, has given permission to workers to proceed with the new short-cut across his property on the Lakefield road. He is willing to accept the nominal $65 per acre offered to him for a two-acre right-of-way required but intends to seek additional damages of between $1,000 and $1,500.

His original intention was to demand only $500 in addition to the nominal compensation but, during the past two weeks, the Department has re-surveyed the section and adopted a new course for the road ten feet further south, he stated. With a greater space between the old road and the new, the cost of rehabilitating his property will be greater, thus he will ask for $1,000 or more, he reports. He will ask further that a cattle pass under the new road be constructed between the two sections of his land.

No representative of the Department has yet taken up the matter with him but he and his lawyer will insist on a fair settlement, Mr. Cox said. Beyond the matter of the land compensation, a total of four cows have now been injured by automobiles on the Lakefield road indirectly as a result of highway construction operations, he claimed, and compensation in that regard is to be sought.

Workmen are now engaged in cutting off the top of a small hill on the east side of the property in dispute.

GARDEN PARTY AT JANETVILLE

United Church's Entertainment is Largely Attended By Community.

PLAY PRESENTED.

JANETVILLE, June 29 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Janetville Community Park presented a gala scene on Wednesday evening, June 27, it being the occasion of the annual garden party sponsored by the United Church of the village. The beautiful white-clad tables with colorful floral decorations, and dainty edibles, were laid in proximity to the club rooms, where a corps of energetic ladies were at work.

Following supper a friendly game of baseball was played on the athletic grounds by Nestleton and Janetville teams. Although the high score of 24-22 was piled up in favor of the local team, both players and spectators thoroughly enjoyed the game.

The crowd then proceeded to the Foresters' Hall, where the Mount Horeb Young People's Society presented their popular play, "Here Comes Charlie." Each character in this humorous drama deserved credit for the fine manner in which it was presented in the living room of Larry Eliott's home in the suburbs of St. Louis, Mo. The cast of characters was as follows: Nora Malone, cook at the Elliott home, Grace Coulter; Officer Tom McGrill, Nora's sweetheart, Fred Coulter; Mrs. Fanny Farnham, Larry's aunt by marriage, Dorothy Deyell; Larry Elliott, a young business man, Wallace McAlpine; Ted Hartley, his old time college pal, Tommy Moore; Vivian Smythe Kersey, Larry's fiancee, Annie Ingram; Uncle Aleck Twiggs, in charge of Charlie, Henry Skuce; Charlie Hopps, Larry's Ward, Margaret Robinson; Mrs. Caroline Smythe Kersey, Vivian's mother, Mrs. Clem. Parks; Mortimer Smythe Kersey, Vivian's brother, Ross Parks.

Rev. W. C. Smith, pastor of the church, who leaves for Courtice next week, was chairman for the program and introduced the play. Rev. Jones of Millbrook, a former pastor at Janetville, was present and delighted his many old friends by his presence and a short appropriate address. Mrs. (Rev.) Smith, in her usual pleasing manner, contributed instrumental music.

On account of the particularly suitable weather the gate receipts were kept up to their usual high level, in spite of the fact that a similar function was being held at a neighboring centre, at Ballyduff Presbyterian Church.

CHURCH SOCIAL WELL ATTENDED

Ballyduff Presbyterian Church Holds Annual Garden Party.

SPORTS PROGRAM.

BALLYDUFF, June 29 (Examiner Correspondence).—An exceptionally large crowd from far and near motored to Ballyduff Presbyterian Church grounds on Wednesday evening, June 27th to enjoy the annual garden party, which is yearly looked forward to with pleasure.

The proceeds for the evening amounted to one hundred dollars, which will greatly assist in defraying general expenses in connection with church work.

Following supper a good sport program was provided by the committee in charge. The Bethany girls played a game with the Blackstock girls' softball team. A good exhibition was put on by both teams with Bethany getting the long end of the score.

The Manvers Station boys hardball team then clashed with the Ballyduff boys, with the latter team declared victors after a clean game. Melville Lathangue and Murray Clarke were umpires.

After the completion of this part of the evening's program, the gathering moved to the church shed, where the Blackstock Dramatic Club presented their extremely fine play entitled, "Mary Makes Marmalade."

The parts in this three-act drama were unusually well taken, and a splendid moral was found in the concluding scene.

The Blackstock entertainers also provided a delightful miscellaneous program consisting of songs, readings, and instrumentals between acts. Rev. V. Walker, pastor of the church, acted as chairman for the occasion and introduced the play in an interesting manner.

COOKE DEFENDS

any government in connection with its affairs. He felt this so strongly that when criticism was rife he handed his resignation to the Prime Minister with the statement that if the government wanted to dictate to the Commission it would have to get another chairman.

"So far it has not been accepted," said Mr. Cooke with a smile, "but I have hopes that within the next few days it will be."

Despite the depression in the last four years, power rates had been brought down, said Mr. Cooke, and the system had increased its reserves by $39,000,000. He doubted if many industries could show a similar record.

Legislation was now on the statute books to enable Hydro to do its own financing, he explained. Hitherto it has been financed by cash advances from the Provincial Government. He believed Hydro could now borrow money direct at between three and a half to four per cent. interest, thereby saving money, freeing itself in a measure from dependence on the government and leaving the province free to use its credit for other purposes.

The purchase of the Abitibi properties in Northern Ontario, although much criticized, would soon be recognized as the biggest forward step in the development of the north taken by any government, the chairman stated. Hydro properties in the north were owned by the government instead of by the municipalities as in a measure from dependence on the commitments were fulfilled the province would have an investment of some $29,000,000 in Northern Hydro, with an annual interest charge of $1,200,000. But the revenue for this year would be $1,600,000 and it was bound to increase.

The association passed a vote of thanks to Mr. Cooke for his 11 years' service on the Commission, particularly the latter years during which he has been chairman and then gave him a prolonged cheer.

Political Influence

Charges that political influence had been used to obtain sub-contracts for the construction of the $1,400,000 addition to the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission head offices in Toronto shared the spotlight earlier in the day with the resignation of C. A. Maguire, Toronto, as president of the association after 15 years in office.

Mayor John W. Beck of Brampton precipitated heated discussion when he accused the commisison of hurrying the letting of the contract for the new commission building before a change of government. The commission knew an election was coming on and would have been better advised to have postponed the project, until after the election.

Mr. Maguire, resenting Mr. Beck's insinuation of a political motive, came to the defence of the commission's action and he ran into the accusation by H. O. Hawke, of Galt, that political influence had been used to obtain sub-contracts. When Mr. Maguire was stating that "there was a contract list in Ontario which would bear such close scrutiny" as the general contract awarded the Anglin-Norcross, Limited, Montreal, and "we invite close investigation." He was asked by Mr. Hawke if the commisison had been approached by politicians.

Upon receiving a negative reply from Mr. Maguire, Mr. Hawke said that he had personal knowledge that political influence had been used. Being pressed to back up his charges he gave the specific information that Karl Homuth of Galt, former M.P.P., had been successful in getting a sub-contract for ventilators for the Sturtevant Company of Galt.

Mr. Maguire stated that he had no knowledge of sub-contracts but he did know that the general contract had been given to the lowest bidder; that the construction firms were required to name their sub-contractors and these could not be changed without permission of the commission because the commission did not wish to be party to any "chiseling" and that the low price had been a surprise to the contractors themselves.

"There was no favoritism, no delay for a purpose," Mr. Maguire declared. "The building will be a credit to the commission and will be built cheaper than any other similar building in Canada."

Protest Gaby's Dismissal

A resolution objecting to the proposed dismissal of F. A. Gaby, chief engineer of the commission, and to the establishment of a one-man Hydro board was contained in the report of the secretary and passed without discussion.

The resolution says that such a dismissal is a distinct violation of the prerogative of the provincial government, as it is only the banker for the municipalities. Objection is also made to political interference with the independence of the Hydro Commission. The government exceeded its right if it dictated to the commission the discharge of Mr. Gaby. Moreover, it was felt that it was inimical to the best interests of Hydro to dismiss Mr. Gaby and that his knowledge and experience of Hydro matters was absolutely indispensible at this time.

Controller James Simpson, Toronto, vice-president of the association, who drafted the resolution, stated that if one man only was appointed to he commission he would become either the representative of the government or the municipalities.

If he were a cabinet minister naturally he would be controlled by the government, and the municipalities insisted that they had a right to representation on the commission.

The Hydro undertaking was a co-operative effort of the municipalities having Hydro service and annually each of the members was supposed to pay off a certain amount, proportional to population of the Hydro's liabilities. To the extent to which they liquidated liabilities— and 77 out of about 400 had completely done so—they were entitled greater right to have a voice in operation. The provincial government had no right to take away completely their voice in Hydro affairs, Mr. Simpson said.

REV. R. C. TAIT IS GIVEN PURSE

Friends of St. John's Congregation Honor Departing Minister and Family.

LEAVE FOR CHESTERVILLE.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, June 29.— On Sunday evening last, after church had been concluded, a large number of friends of the congregation of St. John's United Church, Campbellford, gathered to bid farewell to the Rev. and Mrs. R. C. Tait, and son Bobby, prior to their leaving for their new home in Chesterville. The gathering, which was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Kingston, was featured by the presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Tait, of a purse of money, on behalf of the friends gathered, and many others who were unable to be present.

A short service was held, the program consisting of prayer, familiar hymns, and a vocal solo, 'Friend O Mine,' by George Lucy. E. C. Dolman was the pianist for the occasion. The presentation was made by A. J. Meyers, who with the Rev. F. G. MacTavish, who presided over the gathering, and G. A. Kingston, spoke words of appreciation of the work of Mr. and Mrs. Tait in Campbellford.

Taken entirely by surprise, Mr. Tait, on behalf of his family, spoke in a very feeling way, thanking the people for the many acts of kindness and tokens of sympathy during his pastorate and especially during his illness and convalesence. Mr. Tait also wished every progress and success for St. John's church, under the guidance of the Rev. Mr. Neal.

Appreciation of the work of Mr. MacTavish and the debt of gratitude the congregation of St. John's owed to him for the interest he had taken in the welfare of the church, was expressed by H. M. Donald, and heartily concurred to by those present. The proceedings closed with prayer and light refreshments.

St. John's Garden Party Successful

CAMPBELLFORD, June 29 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The annual garden party and summer festival of St. John's United Church, Campbellford, was held on Wednesday evening, attended by a very large crowd of people. Held on the church lawn, with gaily decorated booths and special outside lighting effects, a very profitable and enjoyable evening was spent. All varieties of booths were in place, popular among which were the fish pond, and ice cream and refreshments. During the evening Edge Dolman's Aristocrats entertained the gathering with delightful music. Refreshments and supper were provided by the ladies of the church, who organized the function, a short program being presented in the church hall during the evening. The financial returns were very gratifying.

THAT "LIKE THE DICKENS" FEELING IS LIVER

Wake Up Your Liver Bile. Feel Fit. You Needn't use Calomel To Do It.

It's your liver, failing to pour out the vital two pounds of bile, daily, into your bowels, that makes you feel so off-colour.

Lack of bile means poor digestion. Food stays too long in your bowels and decays. Your system is poisoned. You go through the misery of gas, bloating, pain, heartburn. You have a dark brown abominable taste in your mouth and bad breath. Your skin's unhealthy and often your head aches. Your whole system seems out of kilter.

How can you reasonably expect to clear up a condition like this by merely taking salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum, or roughage? These only move the bowels, and that's not enough. You must wake up your liver bile.

Avoid calomel (mercury). Take Carter's Little Liver Pills. They're purely vegetable, gentle, sure and safe. They'll make you feel a hundred per cent better in a very short time.

Don't waste your money on substitutes. Be definite. Ask for Carter's by name—and get them! Look for the name, Carter's, on the red label. 35a at all druggists.

MEDAL AWARDED FOR BRAVE ACT TEN YEARS AGO

Pembroke Policeman Among Those Receiving Recognition of R.C.H.A.

ONE POSTHUMOUS AWARD.

HAMILTON, June 29 (C.P.) — Four persons in the Ottawa district, with Gordon McDonald of Wolfe Island, Ont., and the late Austin Bourne of St. Lambert, Que., are among the 14 persons awarded bronze medals to-day for heroism in saving lives, the Royal Canadian Humane Association announced.

Richard Gavin, Roderick Milne and Samuel McLean all of Ottawa, with Constable Aime Jette of Pembroke, were given the awards for saving persons from drowning.

Constable Jette's award was based on a rescue 10 years ago, the case having been reopened. He found Margaret Irving under water in the Ottawa River, clinging to a companion. He managed to get them apart and brought Miss Irving to shore, where she was revived, her friend having been able to get ashore safely after being freed. Constable Jette has several other rescues to his credit.

Richard Gavin was awarded the medal for the rescue of a Mr. Vallin, from the floor of the Rideau Canal. Vallin was unconscious and Mr. Gavin had a difficult time bringing him to the bank, losing his grasp at one time and having to dive again. Vallin was revived.

Roderick Milne plunged into the cold waters of the Rideau Canal in May, 1933, and saved a little girl who had slipped in, May Sidey.

Samuel McLean also received the award for a rescue from the Rideau Canal. It was ice-covered on April 10 last when he brought out Leonard Arp after a difficult time locating the boy under the ice.

Gordon McDonald was on the ferry dock at Kingston in April of last year when he saw a boy fall in the water between a ferry boat, which was moving out, and the dock. Mr. McDonald rescued the youth from his perilous position, holding above water until aid arrived.

The late Mr. Bourne was posthusmously given the award for his heroic attempt to save the life of Martin Lagendyke at Knowlton, Quebec, last June. Both were in boats and Lagendyke's capsized, whereupon Bourne dived to his rescue. After a few moments however they both sank and were drowned.

Of the 16 parchment certificates also awarded, one went to Patricia Kelly of Richmond, Que. The Ontario recipients were Douglas Morrison of Welland, Bruce Campbell of Guelph, and John Leslie Coward, Charles Mason, James Henderson, Peter Burjoski, Cornelius Stapleton, Franklin Solomon and Clarence Bachorski, all of Toronto.

LOCAL APPEALS DRAW ATTENTION TO FAULTS IN ASSESSMENT ACT

Both Appeals Against Taxation on Incomes From Companies Are Dismissed.

NEEDS AMENDING.

TORONTO, June 29. (CP).—Attention of the Ontario government is directed by a judgment of the Ontario Court of Appeal to "the unsatisfactory condition" of the provisions of the Assessment Act dealing with taxation of incomes of companies. An amendment passed in 1934, says the judgment, does not really touch the difficulty that the court encountered in the appeals of William H. Bradburn and R. R. Hall, Peterborough, against a decision of Acting County Judge McGibbon that their dividends from two Peterborough companies were subject to municipal income taxation. Bradburn and Hall contended the income of their respective companies was liable to assessment and that the income of share holders from the companies therefore was exempt from taxation.

"It is far from clear that liability for income assessment of part of a company's income would give an exemption to the shareholders," says the judgment of the court of appeal. That judgment dismisses the appeals of Bradburn and Hall.

The case had to do with municipal taxation of $7,267 of income that William H. Bradburn received from Bradburns, Ltd., in 1932, and $5,400 that R. R. Hall received as a shareholder of The Peterborough Examiner, Ltd.

"COLD" COOKING SCHOOL COURSE

Miss M. L. White Conducts Cuisine Classes at Heintzman Hall.

CONCLUDES SATURDAY.

An interesting program of warm weather delicacies has been arranged for the sessions this evening and to-morrow afternoon and evening of the 'Cold' Cooking School course being presented during the last three days of this week at the Heintzman Company's establishment, by Miss Mary Louise White, Director of Home Economics for the Canadian Westinghouse Company at Hamilton and daughter of Mrs. P. S. White of Stewart street.

Butterscotch parfaits, a fruit salad mousse and refrigerator rolls constitute the menu for to-day, with a talk on placement of food in refrigerators, and refrigerator convenience and cooking.

To-morrow, Miss White will talk on refrigerator economy and the Westhouse refrigerator as a menu help, and will demonstrate Westinghouse baking and refrigerator fruit cake, as well as chop suey ice cream and a cheese and vegetable salad.

Half past seven o'clock is the time of the opening of the evening sessions to-night and to-morrow, with an afternoon school to-morrow at half past two o'clock.

Magistrate's Court

Joseph Jones, 28, of 33 Park street north, this morning appeared in magistrate court on an adjourned charge of "having liquor in his possession without a permit," and amended his former plea of "not guilty" to a plea of "guilty." He was fined the minimum of $100 and $4.50 costs.

While a further charge of driving a motor vehicle while in an intoxicated condition was withdrawn by the Crown, Jones is still awaiting trial on a charge of criminal negligence. The accused was represented by Hon. G. N. Gordon.

Charges against the accused resulted from a motor crash on the night of May 24, that occurred on Highway 28, when a car alleged to have been driven by Jones crashed into the ditch. In the accident Miss Thelma Hollingsworth of King street, received scalp injuries and loss of a portion of her right ear, and Bruce Spence of Lake street, sustained a broken nose and scalp wounds.

Potato plantings in New Brunswick, as at May 31, were two weeks earlier than last season.

During the year to date, exports of bacon and ham from Canada have been on a very heavy scale.

The adult grape leaf hopper is again becoming abundantly evident in the Niagara district, particularly in and in the vicinity of, vineyards which were poorly sprayed last year.

MAGUIRE RESIGNS AS HEAD OF O.M.E.

Not Sufficient Time to Devote to Business of Association.

OTTAWA, June 29 (CP)—C. A. Maguire, Toronto, member of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission, yesterday resigned as president of the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association.

The announcement was made by Fred Newman, Picton, honorary vice-president, at the opening of the association's midsummer convention, which is being held in conjunction with the association of municipal electrical utilities.

Mr. Maguire stated that he had not resigned on account of the recent elections, but simply because he had other things to do which took up his time.

In his address, Mr. Newman said the association would be just as strongly behind the newly-elected government as it has been behind the other, as long as they work in the interests of Hydro.

GARDEN PARTY IS BIG SUCCESS

Centennial Affair at Millbrook Draws Large Crowd.

GOOD PROGRAM

MILLBROOK, June 29.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The centennial garden party, under the auspices of the Women's Association of Grace Presbyterian Church, which was postponed from Tuesday until Wednesday evening, owing to the heavy rain on the date originally set, was carried through with unqualified success, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Thorndyke kindly extending the hospitality of their house and grounds for the occasion.

Japanese lanterns on the verandah and throughout the grounds, with the tables laid on the west lawn, centred with rose colored runners and vases of roses at intervals down the centre, with a substantial menu and prompt service, all added to the attractiveness of the event planned especially in connection with the church's one hundredth anniversary.

Rev. H. R. Williams was chairman for the program, the verandah being used for its presentation, the opening selection being a descriptive number with Mrs. W. H. Jordan singing "The Old Spinning Wheel," and participating in the pretty dance which was one feature of the presentation being Margaret Simpson, Mary Burnham, Mary Nattress, Joe Thorndyke, George Gray and Allen Winslow.

Four girls, trained by Miss Margaret Simpson, took part in the "Chocolate Soldier" dance, wearing appropriate costumes, the names including Gloria Dawson, Joan Deyell, Ada Peers and Mary Smith. Billy Kerr with violin and Gordon Jones at the piano were warmly encored for their duet, and Miss Helen Cascadden, of Lindsay, was likewise applauded for her selections, "The Qu' Appelle" and "The Delusion of Ghosts." Another pretty dance by Laureen Handley and Ruth Richards —nicely costumed—and a chorus, "The Flying Trapeze," by the young men of T. W. Belch's class, completed the program.

Accompanists of the evening included Bryar Edmunds, Margaret Simpson and Ruth Thorndyke. Previous to the National Anthem, Rev. Mr. Williams gratefully acknowledged the letters of congratulation received from the official boards of St. Thomas' Anglican and St. Andrew's United Churches, in connection with the centennial of the sister Presbyterian congregation, and expressed the gratitude of the Women's League, under whose auspices the lawn social was held, for the help given with the program and to the host and hostess for the use of their home and grounds.

A feature of the central tea table was the handsome birthday cake, three stories high, with its quota of candles, made by the members of the Women's League, each of whom contributed toward its toothsome ingredients, the honor of lighting the candles going to Mrs. J. D. Armstrong and of cutting the cake to Mrs. A. T. Armstrong, two of the senior members of Grace congregation.

Afterward the cake was passed, everyone attending the party having the opportunity of tasting the delicious confection, which was made at the home of Mrs. J. N. McGill.

Obituary

JOSEPH MERAW.

TWEED, June 29 (Examiner Correspondence). — A well-known resident of Tweed, Joseph Meraw, died June 26, following a month's illness. Mr. Meraw was seized with a stroke some weeks ago, and his condition gradually grew worse until all hope for recovery was abandoned. The late Joseph Meraw was born in Hungerford Township 69 years ago, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis Meraw. He had resided in this locality all his life. Recently he had been residing at Huyck's Hotel and was a familiar figure on the streets of this village. His death occurred at the home of his son Edward. The late Mr. Meraw was a devout member of the Roman Catholic faith, and took an interest in the welfare of St. Carthagh's Church.

The funeral took place Thursday to St. Carthagh's Church, where Rev. Dean O'Riordan conducted Requiem Mass. The latter was assisted in the sanctuary by Rev. Father Le Sage. Interment was in St. Carthagh's Cemetery.

The bearers were Mitchell Le Sage, M. McAvoy, M. J. Quinn, L. De Marsh, Fred La Barges and Andrew Doran.

The late Mr. Meraw is survived by two sons, Edward and John, both of Hungerford. Two daughters also remain, Sister Mary Ann and Sister Mary Ita, both of whom are attached to The Convent at Rock Island, Li.

LOYOLA FLYNN.

DOWNEYVILLE, June 29.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Loyola Flynn was held Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock from the residence of his mother to St. Luke's Church where requiem mass was said by Rev. Father McFadden, who preached the funeral sermon and said prayers at the grave. During the course of his sermon the reverend gentleman referred to the good life of the deceased young man, who was cut off in the prime of life, and he said it was an example to all for always to be ready.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Paul O'Neill, of Detroit; Burt Morrissey, Gus Videau, Fergus O'Neill, Patrick and Alphonse Fitzpatrick, all personal friends of deceased.

The death of this popular young man, who met such a tragic end, has cast a gloom over all the community. His popularity in the community was shown by the large crowds who came to the house to offer sympathy to the bereaved relatives, and also the very large crowd present at the funeral.

Deceased, who was only 29 years of age, was a model young man, highly esteemed and respected by old and young. He was the youngest son of Mr. Michael Flynn, who with one daughter, Mrs. Charles L. Lucas, of Downeyville, and four sons — Messrs. Joseph and Daniel, at home; Leo of Minden, and William of Toronto—survive. His father predeceased him 26 years ago.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved family.

LETTER FROM A MAN OF 90

About His Rheumatism

He asks us to excuse his writing. We do more than that—we congratulate him on being able to write at all at his age, especially as he has been suffering from rheumatism. This is what he says in his letter:

"Three years ago I was in bed for six weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. Since that time I have been taking Kruschen Salts, and have not had another attack. But my hands are still somewhat stiff. I take Kruschen every morning before breakfast, and shall continue to do so, because I am sure it has kept me in good shape for three years. Excuse this writing as I am ninety years old, and use both hands to write."—J.R.G.

Kruschen dissolves away those needle-pointed crystals of uric acid which are the cause of all rheumatic troubles. It will also flush these dissolved crytals clean out of the system. Then if you keep up "the little daily dose," excess uric acid will never form again.

SCOUTS PLAN TO HAVE BIG CAMP

To be at Young's Point Under Auspices of Local Association.

ENTRIES CLOSE SATURDAY

Camping has come into its own this year, as the special activity sponsored by Peterborough Boy Scout Association, and the decision has already been made to hold a district Scout camp at Young's Point during the week commencing July 21.

The camp at Young's Point is to be in charge of District Commissioner John T. Hornsby and Scoutmaster Ernest Wolfe of 6th Peterborough (St. Peter's) Troop. Both are fully experienced campers, the latter having taken his own troop into camp at Young's Point on many former occasions.

Spacious fields and good swimming facilities have been placed at the disposal of the Scouts and everything points towards a camp that will be long remembered as one of the most ambitious camps ever held by local Scouts. It is a real venture, and those who have pondered over its problems striving to make it a complete success, commend the camp to Scouts as a real opportunity to do further good Scouting.

Scouts intending to go to camp, must send in written applications to their scoutmaster and to the secretary of the local association c/o The Royal Bank, on or before June 30. Further information may be obtained by boys or their parents from any of the scoutmasters or A.S.M's.

COLD COOKING DEMONSTRATED AT HEINTZMAN'S

Miss Louise White is Able Demonstrator for Westinghouse.

TWO CLASSES DAILY

Cold tidbits for hot days are having their innings at the Heintzman Company's showrooms on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Miss Mary Louise White, daughter of Mrs. P. S. White of Stewart street and Director of Home Economics for the Canadian Westinghouse Company at Hamilton, is conducting a special class in 'Cold' cooking during these three days. Clad in spotless white and with an evident thorough grasp and knowledge of her subject, Miss White interested her auditors yesterday afternoon and evening with her explanations of ways and means of adding to hot-weather comfort by delicate eatables, and her demonstration of several dainty dishes.

Yesterday, Miss White spoke of hot-weather desserts; ice creams, water ices, sherberts, mousses and parfaits, describing various means of making them and giving ideas in the ordinary methods. Cereal desserts, blanc mange and gelatins of many types described, the demonstrator giving an insight into unusual modes of these stand-bys.

In all cases, the Westinghouse refrigerators are utilized, and preparation of the delicacies is expedited by the assistance of Miss Cavalier of King street.

Yesterday afternoon, the recipe included the three following: Chocolate Ice Cream: Place one-quarter cup of cocoa in a sauce pan and add one cup milk, gradually, to form a smooth paste. Then add fifteen to twenty marshmallows and steam over hot water until they are melted thoroughly. Add 1 teaspoonful of vanilla and one-quarter teaspoon of salt and cool. When quite cold and slightly stiffened, carefully combine with one-pint partially whipped cream. Pour into the freezing tray and freeze from two to three hours.

Banana Maple Mousse: Force three bananas through a sieve, and slowly mix one half cup of maple syrup into their pulp. Whip one cup cream to a "half whipped" stage and fold it into the banana-maple mixture. Pour into the lower tray, and freeze.

Fruit Refrigerator Cookies: Cream one cup butter and add two cups brown sugar and two beaten eggs. Sift part of the flour required (4 cups bread flour) over the cut nuts and fruit; 1 cup chopped nuts, and one-half cup each of green and red pineapple. Add to the butter and sugar mixture the following sifted dry ingredients; remainder of flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon soda and one-eighth teaspoon salt. Fold in the floured fruit and nuts together with flavoring; 1 teaspoon vanilla. Roll in wax paper and thoroughly chill in refrigerator. Slice as required for baking and bake for ten minutes at four hundred degrees. This recipe makes about one hundred cookies.

The classes continue to-night, at seven-thirty and to-morrow (Saturday) at half past two in the afternoon and half past seven o'clock in the evening.

Bible Study School To Be Held In City

A committee consisting of Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, Rev. Charles Daniel, Mrs. Carver, Miss Bronscomb and L. J. Pettit recently held a meeting to complete arrangements for the daily Bible Vacation School to be conducted by the Council for Christian Education in Peterborough.

The course will begin July 9th and continue five days a week for two weeks and will include periods for worship, instruction, expression and fellowship. Though all children under 13 years of age are eligible for enrolment, the committee is preparing for only 150 this first year.

Some time ago, Miss Semmens, Canadian Director of Children's Work for the United Church, presented to a representative gathering of Sunday School workers the essentials of a Bible Vacation School. Miss Semmens is returning to Peterborough on July 3rd and for one week will conduct a training school for the staff who will take charge of the classes on July 9th. This week of intensive training under a very able specialist in children's work should attract many volunteer workers and should be invaluable to anyone who is engaged in or contemplates taking up Sunday School work.

This is an interdenominational effort and classes will be held in St. Paul's, George Street and Murray Street Churches.

Springville

Anniversary services were observed at Springville United Church on Sunday. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe was the guest speaker for both services. Succial music for the occasion was rendered by the choir, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Hanbidge and Mr. H. McBain of Fairmount. Miss H. Hall, Prof. and Mrs. M. Westington and Mr. Batton.

The strawberry festival on the following evening, Monday, May 25, was well attended. Strawberries and cream were their usual good quality and pies and cakes were deliciously fresh and in abundance.

The entertainment of the evening consisted of a play from Lily Valley, entitled "The Eyes of Love" with between-act numbers by Mr. Finlay of Kansas City, Missouri, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Finlay; Miss Velma Staples, Mr. Batton, Mr. C. Morgan. Rev. Wm. McDonald of Knox Church, Peterborough, kindy accepted the chairmanship. Rev. Seymour, who was on Thursday evening inducted as minister for the charges of Springville and Fairmount churches, spoke a few pleasant words of greeting.

The play and all other numbers on the program met with hearty applause. A vote of thanks was extended to the Lily Valley young people for their splendid entertainment, by Mr. M. Johnston and seconded by Mr. S. Fairbairn.

BENSFORT.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Howson and Betty Joan motored to Toronto on Monday.

Owing to the rainy weather on Tuesday, the pupils of Lakeview School were unable to hold their picnic at the lake.

Today's Recipes

Vegetable Loaf.—Five good sized carrots or ten new carrots, two meddium sized onions, two tablespoons minced parsley, one cup chopped celery, one or two cups dried bread crumbs, two eggs, two tablespoons butter, one teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper. Scrape carrots, peel onions, and put through coarse food chopper. Parsley also can be ground. Put vegetables in saucepan with very little water and cook until tender. Water should cook away so there isn't more than two tablespoons over vegetables when done. Add eggs unbeaten, bread crumbs, dot with butter and bake on well-buttered baking sheet for twenty minutes. Serve with rich cream sauce. A casserole may also be used.

Strawberry Pie—Bake a pie crust, then fill it with fresh strawberries. Sweeten the berries and top with whipped and sweetened cream.

Chocolate

To melt chocolate use low temperature. The best method is to put squares of chocolate in top of double boiler and let them melt slowly over boiling water.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

One of the most difficult things to teach some children is responsibility while others have a natural sense of it. It is true that every normal person has to take to himself the responsibility for his or her actions in mature years, in fact in all years except young childhood when the responsibility for actions reverts to parents who are held accountable. When a person is irresponsible, he is not normal and must be treated as such. Parents who will pardon their children on flimsy excuses would resent being told told their offspring was irresponsible. It is for them to help their youngsters to realize their responsibilities and thus strengthen their characters.

* * * * * *

This is no plea for severe punishment of children. This does not always, by any means, help them to feel responsibility. But it is written with the hope that there may be an awakening of this sense for thereby law and order will be fostered. There is always a margin permissable for accidents which are not due to deliberate carelessness and foolhardiness. Recklessness is a form of irresponsibility either towards one's self or towards others, or both.

* * * * * *

Courage is a totally different thing for it is always used to aver calamity, while recklessness is taking a chance with the balance favorable to disaster. Courage is one of the traits of greatness, recklessness of little nature, chiefly, although it may permeate fine ones. It is sometimes the outstanding fault in what would be greatness without it.

* * * * * *

Lack of responsibility is found in children who take no precautions to prevent ball from smashing a window. Parents can stimulate responsibility by making a child earn the money to pay for the replacement of the glass. A first offense can be made easy to settle through letting the child be paid for running errands, etc., whereby he can earn the small sum needed. But repeated carelessness should not be allowed to pass so lightly.

* * * * * *

Crime in children would be distinctly lessened if parents would help their children from a very early age to feel responsibility, not by thrusting responsibility on them, but by seeing that they take what falls naturally to little ones. Caring for pets stimulates responsibility. The knowledge that their cats or dogs, birds or rabbits, are dependent upon them for food and water and shelter that without such care the pets would suffer, serves the double purpose of inculcating responsibilty and helping the children to love dumb animals.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

Away out east in Borneo, I'm told, wives who quarrel with their husbands are forced to go without perfumes, baths and shampoos for a whole month as a penalty. And to me, that is a pretty tough penalty. For it's mighty hot down in that part of the globe, you know. And it certainly must be punishment to have to do without the refreshing and revivifying effects of a good session in the luxuriant caress of a tub of cool water.

However, to we folks in this north temperate zone, the summer's heat seem to prove more staggering than it does to the inhabitants of Borneo. Usually, after an average working day, we feel as wilted as an overworn starched collar. And we'd certainly hate to be deprived of that refreshing shower or bath in the evening.

Oftentimes, however, gals who date a good deal find it hard to take a bath and dress between their home-coming and the time of their social engagement. They haven't sufficient time to take a really thorough bath. And as a result, they usually wind up feeling cross and dirty, and out of sorts with the world at large.

The best thing that I can advocate for the gal who dates a good deal, and who hasn't time for a thorough bath after her usual working day, is the French bath. For this bath is most effective in cleansing, cooling and refreshing the body. If you feel hot and worn after working all day, try one of these baths. First strip yourself of the clothes you've been wearing all day. Then take a large bath towel and a bottle of toilet water or eau-de-cologne. There are special toilet waters and eau-de-colognes now on the market made especially for this purpose. And you can even make your own, if you so desire.

An effective lotion of this sort cant be made of one pint of alcohol, one ounce of violet ammonia, half an ounce of spirits of camphor and half an ounce of rosewater. Saturate part of the towel with your chosen solution, and rub your entire body with it. This will not only cleanse your skin, but will immeasurably cool and refresh your body. Then slip on fresh undies, don a clean dress, apply your makeup, arrange your coiffure and zip!—in no time at all, you're fresh as a daisy and ready to step!

GENERAL ELECTRIC WINS PUBLIC FAVOR

Refrigerators Placed in One Out of Three Homes Using Modern Refrigeration.

For health's sake, milk, meat and vegetables should be kept at a temperature constantly below 50 degrees. Pasteur discovered the power for ill that lies in bacteria. Since then medical science has taken huge strides in the constant battle against disease. Health authorities agree that refrigeration is essential to proper food preservation. Food is preseved by cold because low temperatures inhibits the growth of bacteria of all sorts, including those which cause decay and disease. Every bottle of milk, every succulent steak, every crisp head of lettuce carries dormant bacteria which, if not kept at low temperature conditions, will make milk, meat, and vegetables as unhealthy for us as exposure to cold makes them for the bacteria. The danger has been found to commence when foods are kept at temperature of over 50 degrees. Details of one experiment follow:

The Proof by Test

A sample of milk containing 4,296 bacteria per cubic centimeter was secured, and when this had been kept at 40 degrees for 48 hours, the bacteria had scarcely increased at all. When such a sample was held at 60 degrees for the same length of time, there were 35,011,111 bacteria present. As Dr. Royal S. Copeland, noted health authority, remarks: "You don't have to be a doctor to realize how dangerous this mess would be if placed in the human stomach."

Milk is usually protected until it reaches the door-step, but—what happens to it then? Experts say: "Milk must be kept at a low temperature (50 degrees Fahrenheit or beow) from the time it is produced until it is consumed, if its quality is to be maintained."

"The only safe way" says Dr. Copeland, "is to have at your disposal some method of artificial refrigeration."

Every Day Gains

The question that housewives have to solve is what method. Every day, electrical refrigeration gains in popular favor. One million, three hundred thousand women have declared for the General Electric, sealed-in-steel, monitor top. In five short years the preference of the buying public for General Electric has been so marked that it has won its place in one out of three homes using modern refrigeration — outstanding evidence of public approval.

Placed on the market five years ago, after fifteen years of quiet and intensive research, it initially carried a full one-year guarantee against all service expense. Last year, the company increased the guarantee to three years. Now the guarantee has been made four years and the refrigerators are Canadian-made at Peterborough, Ontario, for the Canadian trade. Its first cost is not much above the lowest-priced electrical refrigerators, and its ultimate cost, including first cost, upkeep cost and depreciation, is lower than all others.

RETURN LEADS

Half the game played are won or lost on the opening lead, and what declarer does with it. If the opening lead is the best one possible, and if the declarer handles that as well as possible, the return lead made by the opponent winning the first lead, becomes the vital factor in a large percentage of cases. The hand today illustrates such a case.

Bidding went: East, 1-spade; West, 2-no trumps; East, 3-spades; West, 4-spades, ending the auction.

South had the opening lead to make. Either a heart lead or a club lead would have handed the declarer a trick which he never could make otherwise. An opening trump lead would have been without excuse, non-progressive and just what the declarer most desired. If the declarer could not go game with any opening lead except a diamond then he could not go game at all. South made the natural opening lead of the 10 of diamonds. A fourth-best lead from cards in sequence would have been foolish.

North won the lead with his ace, and had the great responsibility of making the return lead. A return lead of trump would be playing the declarer's game, while a return diamond would have been non-progressive. North had to choose between the hearts and clubs. The rule is to lead back to dummy's greatest weakness, but leading to a long suit like clubs might only be helping the declarer establish that suit, to obtain future discards. North chose leading to a weaker suit than clubs, he led back to the ace and 2 low cards. This proved to be the only return lead which could surely prevent East from going game. And North led his top-of-nothing 10, to outrank the second highest card shown by dummy. The declarer covered with his queen. Possibly, but very improbably, North might be leading from the king. South's king forced the ace from dummy. Had East let South hold the heart trick it would have done no good. Dummy could have been put in the lead with a diamond. The 10 of spades was led from dummy and won with South's king. He led back a trump. East pulled opposing trumps, leaving a high spade in dummy, to have that hand lead clubs, giving South the fourth and setting trick for his side, thanks to North's lead of a heart, and not a club.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Although certain foot troubles are inevitable, depending, as they do, on deformities or abnormalities with which the individual is born (such for instance, to make the point clear, as club-foot), it is nevertheless a fact that most of the miseries which come from our feet are acquired and can be prevented.

The hygiene of the foot should begin in infancy. The infant's foot is almost entirely cartilage with very little bone and, therefore, could not, even if the nervous system were developed, undertake the function of walking without injury. For this reason, too early attempts to teach the infant to walk or stand up on its feet for the edification and delight of dotiig parents and grandparents, are to be discouraged.

The infant's foot, however, grows quite rapidly, and provision should be made for this growth. The cartilages turn into bone, beginning soon after birth, and the infant usually will be able to make attempts at walking when the feet are strong enough to bear the weight of the body. Incidentally, many cases of bow-leg are due to too early attempts to force the infant to stand or walk.

Most important in the hygiene of the infant's foot is the question of stockings, and the principal damage that is done along this line is in having short stockings. Mothers do not seem to think that tight stockings are a disadvantage to an infant before it has learned to walk but, as has been said above, the feet are growing, and the use of woolen stockings which are too small, which shrink and become hard with washing, are liable to hamper comfortable development. Toes are frequently misshapen by undue pressure put on them by short stockings.

The hygiene of the adult foot is confined to a few very simple things: (1) Proper footgear, (2) bathing, (3) exercise, and (4) proper attention to the nails and pressure points.

The subject of proper footgear will be taken up tomorrow.

Bathing is of great importance to the foot because it is covered with shoes and stockings in the daytime and bedclothes at night, and almost never gets a chance to appreciate the benefits of fresh air and sunlight. Perspiration and skin detritus accumulate, and proper bathing and washing of the feet with soap and water are, therefore, especially necessary in this region. Frequently foot trouble can be relieved by using contrast baths, first of warm or hot water and then of cold water. After bathing, the feet should be dried with especial care, paying attention to the spaces between the toes and mopping these with cotton on an orangewood stick, if necessary.

Exercises for the feet are not always necessary except in people who have somewhat weak feet, and for that reason have pain due to stretching of the muscles. Suitable foot exercises were described in the first article this week.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

IT LOOKS like old times this week at Hamilton with Eddie Seagram winning two races on Tuesday and Harry Giddings accounting for a like number on Wednesday. As we pointed out last week these two stables are always very successful at the track under the mountain . . . Tommy Gorman closed up Connaught Park on Wednesday and departed immediately for Syracuse where he is general manager of the meeting that opens in July at the State Fair Grounds track. Tommy is a live wire and his first Syracuse venture is bound to be a success.

Today is the meeting of the C.R.A. which will deal with matter of granting a trainer's license to Lloyd Gentry . . . We heard the other day that one of the tracks across the border is trying to promote a race between Windsor Lad, the great English horse and recent winner of the Epsom Downs derby and Cavalcade, the American champion three year old. The idea is to stage it this fall at one of the Maryland tracks.

FRIEND CHARLEY turned in a dismal performance at Hamilton on Wednesday last when he was a top heavy favorite in the feature race. His owner and also Jockey Snider who rode him are to be called on the carpet to explain matters . . . Arthur Brent's Timon and Norman Charlton's Sweeptrap seem to be two unlucky horses. They invariably are in the money but cannot seem to win a race. Their luck will turn one of these days and then watch the fur fly.

They are getting Poet's Dream all primed up for a winning effort and no mistakes will be made. Dude Foden will be in the pilot house. Art Hulicoat expects to take down a purse shortly with Plain Ben. He did the trick about a month ago at Thorncliffe and the payoff was sweet. In talking to Hulicoat the other day he says the best horse he ever had was Miney Myerson who is now at Detroit. He would like awfully well to get her back and do not be surprised if he took a flying trip to the Border city and put in a claim for her.

THE SMALLMAN stable have been keeping their consistent sprinter Dunlin's Lad under cover for some time now. He has been training well but has not been entered in a race for some reason or another. We look for Khorasan to grab one of the big handicaps before the Hamilton meeting closes . . . Old Glee club has been brought back to the races and the boys in the know report that he is doing everything asked of him in his trials.

Canzoneri Earns Right to Meet Barney Ross Again

REFEREE HALEY STOPS THE BOUT IN NINTH ROUND

PAVES CHANCE AT TITLE.

NEW YORK, June 29 (C.P.). — One accurate left hook to-day had won for Tony Canzoneri another shot at Barney Ross, and chance to regain the lightweight championship.

That one hook raised a huge "mouse" about Frankie Klick's right eye in the fifth round at Ebbet's Field last night and eventually forced Referee Patsy Haley to halt the fight in the ninth and award Canzoneri the victory by technical knockout.

They had battled fairly evenly to the delight of 13,000 customers, through the first four rounds. Early in the fifth, Canzoneri lashed out with a left hook to his San Francisco rival's face. The flesh about Klick's eye puffed up instantly, and before the round was over it was completely shut, a black and blue mass. From then on, Klick, half blinded, was a mark for Tony's fists. In the eighth another left hook broke the swelling open, and after 1.42 minutes of fighting in the next round Haley decided to stop the bout rather than permit the far Westerner to chance permanent injury.

TIGERS OVERCOME FIVE RUN HANDICAP TO BEAT WHITE SOX

Timely Doubles Settle Issue in Tenth Inning—Yankees Win 4-0.

MACKS BEAT RED SOX.

(By Herbert W. Barker, A.P. Sports Writer.)

Mickey Cochrane's Detroit Tigers were back in the west to-day, no longer in first place, but, paradoxically enough, more feared than ever by the rest of the American League.

The significant development of Detroit's long road trip into the east was not that they were forced to surrender the lead to the New York Yankees, but that they played so well that to-day they were only a half game from the top.

Pennants are won on the road, and there was none to cavil at the Tiger record of 19 victories and five defeats in the east. The Yankees, despite a spurt that gave them 12 victories in 16 games on their home grounds, picked up only a game and a half on the Tigers while Cochrane's surprising club was on tour.

Tight Win for Tigers.

Playing a one-day stand at home before leaving for another road trip in the west, Detroit squeezed out an 8-7 victory over the Chicago White Sox yesterday, in 10 innings, and remained only a half-game away from the Yankees, who won a 4-0 shutout over the Washington Senators.

For six innings it was a pitching duel between Fred Marberry and Sad Sam Jones, with Detroit holding a 1-0 lead. But Marberry, who hadn't permitted a man to reach third base, suddenly blew up in the 104-degree heat and Chicago scored six runs in the seventh. After that it was strictly a batting duel, with the Tigers tying the score in the ninth and winning in the 10th on successive doubles by Charley Gehringer and Hank Greeberg.

Third Straight Shutout.

Red Ruffing scored his third successive shutout, his fourth victory in a row and stretched his scoreless innings to 29 as Yankees downed Washington. The big red-head allowed only three hits, and was in trouble only in the sixth. The Senators filled the bases with one out then, but Ruffing bore down, forced Cecil Travis to pop up and fanned Dave Harris to retire the side. Five singles off Monte Weaver gave the Yankees three runs and the ball game in the fifth. Since Ruffing's return to form, he has allowed only 18 hits in four games. Yesterday's triumph was his ninth against three reverses.

Bob Johnson's 23rd homer and Jimmie Foxx's 21st helped the Philadelphia Athletics whip Boston's Red Sox, 7-1, in the only other game played in the major leagues.

ALBANY WINS ON RALLY.

(By The Associated Press)

The dismissal of Andy High as manager of Syracuse Chiefs overshadowed all other International League developments to-day.

Announcement that High was through came last night from President John Corbett, who said no successor yet had been chosen. Although the reason for High's dismissal was not made known, he has been the victim of considerable "riding" from Syracuse fans lately. Filling in at third base in addition to managing the club, Andy suffered an ankle injury that kept him out of the game for three weeks early in the season. The injury slowed him up afield and his failure to cover as much ground as usual has resulted in much booing from the fans. The Chiefs, as a whole, likewise have been disappointing after a fast start. They were in seventh place to-day with no immediate prospects of rising much higher.

The Chiefs took an 8-6 beating from the Albany Senators in their last game under High's management yesterday. A seven run rally in the fifth, climaxed by Fred Sington's 16th home run with one on, turned the trick for the Senators although the wildness of Albany pitchers almost tossed the game away in the later innings.

Rochester returned to second place, six games behind Newark, by trimming Toronto in a night game, 8-2. Jim Winford stopped the Leafs, who dropped back into third place, with six hits; Boone's home run with one on in the sixth being the only damaging blow. Rochester raked Al Hollingsworth, Charley Lucas and Keith Frazier for 11 hits, Ival Goodman getting three.

Baltimore broke an eight-game losing streak by taking a night decision from Newark in a wild contest, 12-10. The Orioles scored seven runs in the first inning, but had to rally for three in the eighth to overcome a Newark advantage of 10-9.

Rain forced postponement of the Buffalo-Montreal game.

NATIONALS HERE FOR HOLIDAY GAME

Baseball Fans Will Likely Get Taste of an Old-Time July 1 Struggle.

Belleville Nationals play the Petes at Riverside here on July 1st (Monday). This holiday game has always proven popular with local fans and with the Petes putting up a grand battle for the league leadership now, this one should draw especially well. After the locals' fine tenth-inning win in Kingston Wednesday evening, sentiment of Peterborough fandom is strongly behind Knotty Lee's youngsters—and the fact that the Petes are once more beset by their old injury jinx has thrown considerable sympathy their way.

Jack (Chief) Williams may do the Nats' hurling, though this is not known definitely yet. Since the Petes are considered more or less setups for southpaw twirling, Belleville is likely to feed them a portsider, and Williams would be the man. However, the locals reached the Chief for several lusty clouts in his short appearance here before in a relief role, and they might again greet him with a barrage of hits. Casey and Smith are the other possible visiting pitchers. The local selection is an unknown one yet, Calladine, Heckman, or possibly Archie Deyell, being ready to step in for the big holiday number. It should be an old-time July 1st struggle.

Bill Dietrich, Athletics—Limited Red Sox to five hits.

Andy Greenberg, Tigers, drove in winning run against White Sox with tenth inning double.

SANDY SHOOTS 1ST ROUND 69 3 UNDER PAR

Ace Canadian Golfer Four Strokes Ahead of Quartet Tied for Second Place.

OUT IN 34, BACK IN 35.

Several Outstanding Canadian Players Left Outside Qualifying Score of 77.

WINDSOR, Ont., June 29 (CP)—Sandy Somerville changed his mind at the last minute about the Ontario amateur golf championship and hurried down here from London to start his qualifying round in mid-afternoon. To-day the tall, unsmiling ace of Canadian golfers was headed towards his fourth provincial title.

When Sandy set out in pursuit of a field that was doing some fine shooting over the Essex County Golf and Country Club course, the temperature was 104, and not even the golf had been that hot. Somerville corrected that detail by shooting a superlative 69, three under par.

First Play Since Spring

The former Canadian and United States amateur title-holder playing in his first competition since early Spring, when he paraded over Bobby Jones' new layout at Atlanta, Ga., with the band of famous figures Bobby gathered, found Essex particularly to his liking.

He went out in 34 and back in 35, and his total left him four strokes ahead of a quartette tied for second place. The veteran Fred Hoblitzel of Toronto, Joe Blalkowski of Windsor, Harry Olsen of Detroit and Ollie Galen of Toledo, O., made up the group, with young Phil Farley of Toronto, 1931 champion, another stroke back.

Canadians Left Out

It required an 18-hole score of 77 or better to qualify and several outstanding Canadian players were outside this limit, making way for seven Americans. The challenge of Uncle Sam has never been so serious in the Ontario event as this years.

Somerville, John Lewis of Brantford, Stanley Thompson, Hoblitzel, Farley, Nichot Thompson Jr., and Don Carrick, all of Toronto, face American opponents in the first match-play round to-day. Somerville's first opponent was Francis Ryan of Detroit, who scored 37, 38—75, yesterday to qualify.

The defending champion, seeking the title for the third time, Carrick, faced Howard Maguire of Detroit. Carrick qualified with 37, 38—75, while Maguire carded 39, 38—77.

About the best finish in a schedule game that we have witnessed for some time was the Glover-Downey affair. Glover was two down coming home, and George Taylor (who was skipping for R.M.) made a running shot with his last bowl—and when the smoke had cleared away, Taylor was lying two and tieing the game. "R.F." with his last bowl just missed by an inch.

Going into the extra end the game was all Downey's until Taylor played his last bowl. George was successful in getting a little wick that put his bowl directly in front of the kitty. Immediately "Fred Dearborn," "Bobby" Kerr and "The Professor" went into a huddle to see what could be done about it. So after due consideration was given, "R.F." decided to play a runner. He did, and played it well, but was wrecked on a green a long way out. It was one of those games—good to win and hard to lose.

Up at Lindsay yesterday our lady bowlers were successful all across the board. They not only won the three major prizes, but Mrs. R. Hendry's rink was fortunate to win the mystery prize. Sixteen rinks took part in this annual competition—eight rinks being from Peterborough.

The ladies report a good time and are expecting a big entry at their town tournament next Thursday.

1st Prize—Mrs. Deyman's rink.
2nd Prize—Mrs. Crichton's rink.
3rd Prize—Mrs. Greenslade's rink.
Special.—Mrs. Hendry's rink.

We expect that Port Hope will be our guests to-night at our week-end tourney—and then along with the fact that "Warne Brothers" are sponsoring this tournament should in itself demand a big crowd. Remember 7.30 p.m. is the time.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By C. J. P

We have been asked to put in a plug for the E.P.L. game tonight. "Some good baseball is being played in this loop," the guy says, "but they don't get enough fans along sometimes to pay for the umpires." We are sorry about that—not about the umps' shrinking pay envelope, 'cause they can always step right out and rob a bank—but because these teams are serving baseball (an expensive sport, that's why softball is replacing it here) to fans and getting no support. Now, C.G.E. and Fosters meet at six this eve and it ought to be a pretty fair exhibition of intermediate ball. And if the baseball lovers will just drop around and give a look, they might figure it's a pretty good buy for a dime. Anyway the lads at the Exhibition Grounds are reversing Mae West's invite and saying, "Wyncha come down and see muh sometime?"

• • • • • • •

Brintons opened the men's second-half softball schedule with a 16-4 tra la over Fashion-Crafts last night. The Clothiers couldn't get a fit in the pitching box, despite all the measuring done by opposing hitters and all the fancy tailoring nearly done by their own teammates. Lefty Sturgeon's lads found it tough sledding the first half the game but finally began clouting the ball and wouldn't quit for Messrs. Naish, Butcher, Simmons and again Butcher. Meantime, Mister Currie was having a whale of a time on the Brinton slab. We hear Jake Beckerman is taking over the managerial job for Fashion-Crafts. Jim Hall played last night, and Doug Moore is reported signed by them. With Jake, Harrison and Scates all back in harness, the loop is beginning to look very familiar again. And wont there be plenty or battles!

• • • • • • •

Incidentally, "Orphans" is the name of the fourth men's team in this loop. They dropped the name "C.G.E." and will be Orphans henceforth, backed by the league and handled by Fred Scates and Percy Harrison. They have Ashmore and Walsh for catching, with some or all of these pitchers: Shine, Gallagher, Hefferman, Martin and Parsons. Board plays first, Willshaw second, Fleming short and Weese third. Miller, Jones, O'Toole, Cowan and Vitarelli make up the outfield. Licking this team should be tougher than cracking a cocoanut with an empty pint beer bottle, but we'll see what we'll see. They play Johnston's Tires tonight.

• • • • • • •

A bird named Alden Calkins in N'Yawk persists in sending us dope about harness-hoss racing at some circuit in the States. Now, we have nothing against watching the ponies prancing around the track with a gig on their heels and a driver halfway up their backs—in fact, we get something of a kick out of seeing these races. Except that every once in a while, they remind us of running hoss races and then we get very red in the face indeed, thinking of all the shekels we dropped before we learned that the best way to make dough is to work for it. But not much dough is laid, at least around these parts, on harness-hoss racing. If there was more betting, maybe the sport would be more popular, who knows?

• • • • • • •

Anyway, Alden informs us that the '34 Grand Circuit opened with a bang or two at Cleveland recently and that one of the outstanding pacers was His Majesty, "a swift wiggler recently bought for $10,000." Now, ten grand is important potatoes in any language, and most especially when it's for a hoss that just runs. It does not even pull a milk-cart on its off-days, nor is it hitched to a plough. Yeah, they don't fool some places in these races, and we'd sort of like to see a few similar meets—even on a necessarily smaller scale—right here.

• • • • • • •

Knotty Lee's Petes journey to Oshawa for a ball game tomorrow afternoon, while they entertain Belleville here Monday (the holiday) afternoon at three o'clock. Then, the lads must go to Belleville next Thursday. Yeah, no rest for the leg-weary and the pitcher-shy. The way the Petes are going, though, they should come out of this tough grind at least splitting fifty-fifty, and they ought to pack in a huge holiday crowd Monday. Jack Williams is very likely to hurl for the Nats and we wouldn't be too surprised if Al Heckman saw duty Monday. Meantime, the luckless Spook Scriver is gradually getting over an appendicitis operation in St. Joseph's Hospital and Archie Deyell is slowly recovering from a twisted ankle.

• • • • • • •

A good ball game has been lined up for Riverside tomorrow (Saturday) at three bells, Bowmanville Intermediates meeting Herb Ralph's juvenile Terriers in a contest ala exhibish. Takes a mighty good juvenile (under eighteen years) squad to beat an intermediate "A" O.B.A.A. crew, but we sort of half expect the locals to do that little thing right here. Ralph has a real good bunch lined up, including a coupleof boys that are about ripe for senior company, and they should get a good following of fans. Bowmanville is running along about even now in the Lakeshore Baseball League. Terriers' lineup appears elsewhere in to-day's paper. There'll be no lacrosse game Saturday.

• • • • • • •

No gals' softball games last p.m. Tonight, Sixth Line plays at Keene while Maple Leafs and Westclox tangle at 6.15 in Armour Field. July 3rd—that's next Tuesday—Keene is scheduled to play C.G.E. in Armour Field, but once again we must say we can't see why this game can't be staged at the Bowl. The ground is hard there now and the grass covers the diamond well. The gals' loop was assured they could have it before the end of June—then why not by July 3rd? Girls in running shoes aren't going to hurt the ground a bit and the huge crowds of fans have certainly shown their preference for the Bowl so far this season.

Presbyterians Pull Out 5-3 Victory Over Mark St. in Final Game.

WINNERS OUTHIT.

Easterners Held Runless After First Frame Through Fine Fielding of Champs.

St. Paul's won the Church Softball League bantam championship for the year last night when they pulled out a 5-3 decision over Mark Street in a fine game at the Oval. Although out-hitting the winners in the close struggle, the Easterners were up against a fine fielding squad that held them runless after the first frame. Twelve Mark Street runners were left stranded, and they were also the victims of two double-plays.

Williamson, with such support, coasted through to fan four and walk five. Craig pitched great ball to give but six hits, fan four and issue three walks. None of the runs against him were earned, some sloppy fielding figuring in the counters. Clark got three singles while V. Ferguson and King had two each. Sedgewick's catching and Morrow's fielding features.

Captain Don Sedgewick was handed the shield by Len Agnew, Church League chairman, after the game. Jack Kirkwood coached the winners who won nine and lost three all season. The teams:

BELATED RUNS SETTLE ISSUE

Brintons Score Dozen Runs in Last Three Frames to Defeat Fashion-Craft 16-4.

CURRIE GOOD ON MOUND

Breaking through to tally a dozen runs in the last three frames, Brintons copped the first men's softball game of the second-half over Fashion-Crafts, 16 to 4, in Central last night. It was a good game till the sixth with the Clothiers getting an early four-run lead, only to have it wiped out when Brintons tied them in the third. The latter counted four more each in the sixth, seventh and eighth stanzas.

Ross Currie hurled good ball for the winners, scattering eight hits and fanning eight as he walked four. His support for the most part was excellent. Fashion-Crafts used three pitchers. Naish went good till he hit a wild streak in the third and was yanked. He had allowed three hits and three walks, while fanning one, till then. Chuck Butcher went in and got by till the sixth. He gave two safe hits and walked three till that time, besides striking two out. Bill Simmons took over the job but fared worse, allowing seven hits and a walk till the derrick got to him in the seventh, with Butcher coming back to fan two but give three hits and a free base in the last canto. None of the F.-C. pitchers received the best of support.

Playford led the Brintons at bat with a triple and two singles in four. Sturgeon conked out two doubles in three and Smith hit a double and two singles in five. Weir got a two-bagger and a single in four trips. Gillespie, Gainey and Clarke tied for clouting honors for the losers, all getting a double and single in four times up. Gillespie and Playford starred in the field with fine running catches.

The teams:

Take Surprise 13-9 Victory Over Star Menie Outfit on Wednesday Night.

REGULARS ABSENT.

BURNBRAE, June 29.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— Petherick's gained first place in the Seymour League standing by a surprising 13 to 9 win over the star Menie outfit on Wednesday evening. Jeffs was absent but Holmes caught for Menie and with Milne and Don Craighead on the line-up the southern gang looked invincible.

The winners were without D. Kerr and Barnum but the rest of the boys played a nice game in the field and at bat were stronger than usual.

Both pitchers were in good form though not registering many strikeouts. Milne starred in the outfield with some nice catches, while M. Craighead looked best in the infield, and at bat responded with four safe hits and four runs in as many trips including two homers.

Outstanding Defensively.

Art Petherick was again outstanding defensively and with four safe hits and three runs, led the winners' attack. Watson brothers counted two each, while the others each figured in the game with a run.

The fifth inning provided the feature of the game when Eagleson retired Pethericks on three pitched balls.

Menie—Eagleson, p; Holmes, c; W. Craighead, 1b; D. Craighead, 2b; R. Oddie, 3b; K. Oddie, ss; Rannie, lf; Milne, cf; Hutcheon, rf.

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

CHAPTER 36

At Great Cumberland place Pointer was met by Naylor That young man had a dinner engagement that he did not wish to break Pointer assured him that every one in the house was free to go and come as they pleased By the way could Mr Naylor suggest what his cousin had written in his engagement book and then erased?

Pointer and he were alone in a morning room, and the chief inspector took the little book in question out of his pocket. Naylor stretched out his hand for it with almost overdone slowness as though he wanted to be quite sure not to grab it. Reading the entry he shook his head as though in complete mystification "Not an earthly idea of who this could be—and the odd caution about the whole entry ——" He stood with bent head as though musing "You know," he said finally, "there was something rather odd once before about an engagement of my cousin's. It, too, was in the morning" he added with a note of vivacity "A dog of his was run over outside his house in Chelsea Gardens; my cousin was devoted to the beast, but he caught sight of the clock and said he must rush off His car was outside but he walked away either to take a taxi or to go on foot. He was away nearly half an hour and when he got back the dog was dead. Something about him on his return suggested that he wished to hear no mention of his being unable to be there. Nor did he ever refer to it, let alone explain it, as far as I know. One thing I feel sure of. It wasn't a love affair, or if so, it was an old, irksome one. He went because he felt that he must—not because he wanted to."

"What date was this?"

"Last Lord Mayor's Show"

That was the first week in November. In the latter part of November Tait had gone on a sort of official-unofficial mission to Rome Then on to Vienna. He had only returned to town shortly before Lady Tait's accident in Vichy, somewhere around the middle of March.

"And another thing about that errand of his, or that engagement of his," Naylor went on, "when I went out to meet him in the front hall to tell him the dog was dead, it struck me that he was wrapped in some tragedy of his own, or had just had a very painful experience. He looked a bit shaken Even the dog's death seemed—for the moment—to be something trivial."

The talk went back to the erasure in the engagement book

"Could it by any chance stand for Westmacott?" Pointer asked, as though grateful for a little light

Naylor seemed to consider that suggestion.

"Apparently he does know a man of that name," Pointer added

Naylor nodded. "Oh, very much so. Great friend of his. Now off in China running a relief camp of his own. Millionaire bloke But there obviously can't be any reason why my cousin, or any one else, should have deleted the name, if it's Westmacott," and he seemed to ponder again.

Pointer left him to it—supposing him to be frank on the matter. He wanted to go over the house, and took Rainer, Lady Tait's maid, with him. Pointer hoped that she would chat about the latest addition to the household, Miss Dundas, but she was silent about her and her arrival. He found Lady Tait's rooms comfortable and quiet, and on her shelves the kind of books he would have expected to find. Mrs Burnham's rooms could obviously not be much help as to character, except that her toilet table, like her luggage showed her taste to be for the best and simplest-looking articles Her own books were of the Barrie type, with some translations of Selma Lagerlof, much marked at the side and here and there a marginal note of "How true" "Beautifully said," and so on Naylor's belongings were very up-to-date, with the most recent of scurrilous novels on his bed table, and some rather stiff law books well hidden behind a piece of Persian weaving. But there were hints of a complex personality on his shelves too. The books of a man of no fixed ideas, Pointer would have said but great activity of mind

Miss Dundas was asked to go down to the library for a word with one of Pointer's men. Her room was really a maid's room. Her belongings overflowed it in shocking disorder Rainer's lips tightened as they stood among a sea of filmiest underwear, dainty shoes and expensive boxes of bath salts and face lotions Miss Dundas, when she rushed from Mrs. de Souza's flat, appeared to have first waited to pack all her belongings though Rainer now mentioned that Miss Dundas had explained that Mrs de Souza's maid had packed and sent on her clothes Mrs. de Souza had told Pointer as much already. Certainly nothing seemed to have been forgotten and certainly Miss Dundas was a young woman of expensive tastes and the means with which to gratify them The other rooms were of no interest The only photographs were in Lady Tait's room Pointer had Rainer tell him who they were There was the late Sir John Tait, some members of her own family, all dead, and a handsome boy with the eyes of Sir John but a self-willed mouth entirely his own.

"That's Mr. Hudson Tait, sir. Sir John and her Ladyship's only son Mr John, as you know, was the son of a first marriage of Sir John's."

"Dead?" Pointer asked, looking at the unusually "alive" young face of Hudson.

"Died about 20 years ago now, or nearer 25 it soon will be Hit by a falling chimney-pot and never the same afterwards. Oh, it was a dreadful grief to her Ladyship."

"Were you with her at the time?"

As her tone had suggested the maid had been.

"How old was Mr. Hudson Tait when he died?"

"Twenty-three. Only 23."

"Married?"

"To an Italian." The maid's tone suggested doubt as to whether a union could be called a marriage

But Pointer looked interested.

"She was the daughter of an Italian grocer in Soho. Mr. Hudson was knocked down just in front of the shop. They carried him in, and she—this daughter—nursed him. And then he married her, our Mr Hudson did. Just married her in a registry office and telephoned it to his mother and father afterwards. Nearly broke their hearts."

"What happened then? I want to get the history of the family clearly in my head."

"Well, they couldn't find at first where they'd gone to for the honeymoon Then they came back, Mr. Hudson and that Italian girl—we saw very little of them. Sir John died a few years later—and you couldn't expect her Ladyship to be a mother to that piece. Insolent thing! And then Mr Hudson died of pneumonia, and that's all there is to it. Her Ladyship never refers to him now. It broke her heart. But she always keeps this photo in her room."

"Any children?"

"Mr Hudson had no children, sir," the maid said promptly, and as though answering Pointer's question frankly

"And what became of Mrs. Hudson Tait?"

"She married again, sir. Only waited a couple of months. She married her cousin, an Italian waiter. We never hear or see anything of her nowadays which is a blessing."

For Saturday, June 30

A very lively and eventful day is the presage made from the predominant planetary directions, this despite certain tenacious obstacles setbacks or congestions to be disposed of. This may be accomplished under the highly stimulated Martian energies, leading to bold strokes in launching new projects, and possibly in connection with mergers, combines or secret bodies. Change is imminent, possible travel, and some complication in employment as well as in finances. Personal correspondence should prove felicious and beneficial.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a very lively and constructive year, despite obstacles, delays and difficult situations to be combatted. Employment as well as finances may cause concern, but largely the trend is favorable if latent resources and good judgment be exercised.

A child born on this day should be talented, of fine initiative, of studious mind and an original thinker.

PROVINCE OF ONTARIO

The Five Nation Indians, whose hunting grounds lay along the southern shore of Lake Ontario, between Lake Champlain and the Genesee River, were responsible for naming both the lake and the province. The word "Ontario" means "beautiful water". The Five Nation Indians numbered among their tribes Cayuga, Mowhawk, Oneida, Onondaga and Senecas.

By the treaty of Paris in 1763 Canada was ceded by France to England, and by the Union Bill of 1841 Upper Canada and Lower Canada were united under the Province of Canada. In 1867 Confederation of the Canadian provinces took place, whereupon Lower Canada took the name of the Province of Quebec, and Upper Canada that of Ontario, after the great lake upon its southern border.

Bull baiting was a barbarous sport, once popular in England among all classes of society, but declared illegal in 1835.

Autotropism is the internal tendency of a plant organ to straighten after it has curved from whatever cause, as from geotropism, heliotropism, etc.

MISS ETHEL ROBSON GIVES BRIGHT TALK

Presbyterian Presbytery of Peterborough District Meets in Centreville.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WESTWOOD, June 29. — The Westwood branch of the Women's Institute met on Monday afternoon, June 25, in the town hall, to hear the guest speaker, Miss Ethel Robson, of Denfield, Ont., summer series' lecturer, from the Department of Agriculture. Guests were present from Lakefield, Warsaw and Norwood branches, and a very pleasant afternoon was spent.

Miss Robson based her remarks on "The Institute—a Liberal Education." She spoke of its value to the community in promoting a friendly spirit and kindly feelings to everyone; and to the individual in bringing out hidden talents. She paid a tribute to Mr. Putnam, its head, when she said he had given the greatest gift he could give to the Institute, when he had put his faith in the organization.

Miss Robson also spoke of music in the schools of to-day, as a wonderful advantage; 'music trains the feelings, as other branches of education focus on the brain.' There were many points of interest in her address on "The Challenge of Age." In speaking of child training she said that in learning with children we get a fresh aspect of life. If we want our children well founded in culture and religion the proper place to lay that foundation is the home.

Her address was interspersed with poems, some of her own composition, as well as appropriate selections from Tennyson and Browning.

The meeting was further honored by a few remarks from Mrs. Davis, of Lakefield, the District President, and Federated Representative. Although called unexpectedly to the platform, Mrs. Davis aquitted herself very creditably. She asked for the co-operation of every member to make a successful year for the Institute.

Community singing from the Institute song sheets varied the program, and a delightful solo by Mrs. McIlivena of Warsaw, was well received. Instrumental selections from Mrs. Wilkinson of Warsaw, and the Dickson sisters of Westwood, were

ART THOMPSON TRAINS WINNER

Grandson of "Peter the Great" May be Sold by Local Business Man.

FAST MILE AT LINDSAY.

At the very first asking, Art Thompson's colt, "Senator Range," knocked off a purse on Lindsay's fast track Wednesday afternoon, hanging up a mark of 2.14½ for the mile that won a special prize for the best time of the afternoon program.

Thompson decided to start this colt in its maiden effort in the 2.30 class, and it won two of the three heats against four Lindsay horses. In the first heat, "Senator Range" got away in a tangle, and was so hampered in the early stages that the best it could do was to get up into second place. The Thompson colt won the second heat easily in the fast time of 2.14½, and just to show that this mark was no fluke it came back and took the third mile in 2.15½.

Mr. Thompson bought "Senator Range" a year ago. It was sired by "Peter Range" and is a grandson of "Peter the Great," blue blood lines on the paternal side. Mr. Thompson, always a sportsman and one of the stars of the Peterboro baseball team of a generation ago, is a busy fuel dealer, and he is not letting horses interfere with his business. But, horses are his hobby. After buying "Senator Range," he trained the colt himself in his spare time, and had him ready for his first race at Lindsay. The result more than justified his own training and the assistance of Stan McMillan who has been driving the horse.

It is understood that Mr. Thompson has no intention of racing "Senator Range" for the main reason that he hasn't time. He expects, however, that some of the harness horse men will be interested in the Lindsay performance, and that he may receive a price offer at which he will part with the colt.

Soccer Notes

Linnsay Industrial soccer team have notified the local secretary of the P. and D. F. A. that they cannot field a team for Saturday against the Canada Packers, owing to a number of their players being on the injured list.

The Canada Packers cannot play on Tuesday night, owing to business compelling them to work after the holiday. At any rate, the local board are awaiting instructions from Deloro to the effect that they will come to the city and play the Caledonians.

No Game To-morrow.

The loca lexecutive endeavoured to arrange a game between the Canada Packers and Canadian General on Saturday afternoon, but the former team could not make the early arrangements; while the Electric boys wanted to leave on holiady after the afternoon game. C.G.E. wanted afternoon game while Packers wanted evening at six, so the executive has decided that there will be no game to-morrow afternoon.

On the holiday, the Trenton Flying Corp soccer eleven will be here as the guests of the Caledonians in an exhibition tussle. Kick-off arranged for three o'clock (standard time). Albert Frick will handle the whistle. Game is scheduled for King Edward Park.

The sweater that was lost by the Lindsay team is in the possession of the caretaker of the field, who found it in the pavilion. Lindsay member may claim it as soon as possible.

Outlaws' 14-7 Win Upset At Hastings

HASTINGS, June 29 (Examiner Correspondence). — "Dit" Clapper's Outlaws pulled one of the major surprises of the softball season before a large crowd on the local diamond last night when they defeated the Tanners 14 to 7 to tighten up the race in the Big Five Hastings and District Softball League.

Andy McKee went the route for the winners, turning in a beautiful effort, which, backed by splendid support, cut short all but two small rallies by the highly fancied Tanners. McKee had five strike-outs to his credit and only issued one free ticket.

Earl Hahn threw them over for the Tanners, and with any kind of support from his teammates would have made the game very close, no less than ten errors being chalked up against the Taners. Hahn and Stickles were the big noises with the willow, each getting a circuit drive.

Knox Juveniles Tie League Semi-Finals

Knox Juveniles tied up their Church Softball League semi-final series last night by beating St. John's, 14-8. Knox were superior in this tilt, most of the other side's runs being due to Graham's wildness. Whatman finished for Knox and hurled a fine brand of ball to keep the Saints down to a lone run the last three frames.

Chivras was hit hard, seven scoring for the winners in the first stanza. Hughes, Lucas, McIlmoyle, Clark and Chivras led the clouters. The teams:

St. John's—Chivras, p; Thirnbeck, c; Kent, 1b; Bowler, 2b; Lomax, ss; Coleman, 3b; Vollans, lf; Copperthwaite, cf; Clark, rf.

Knox—Williams, ss; Whatman, p, 3b; Lucas, 2b; Hughes, c; Graham, p, 2b; LeClair, 1b; Penrose, rf; McIlmoyle, cf; Andrews, lf; Laing, cf.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Golf tips and advice from well-meaning friends usually only hurt your game.

It's like getting health tips from laymen instead of going to a regular doctor. If you insist upon guessing about the origin of the faults in your swing and the means of correcting them, why not follow your own hunches?

It's a great deal more fun and you've just as much chance of guessing right as the next fellow.

When you can't get back on your game go to a well-recognized professional instructor.

Some specialist of this kind will give you the right answer and put you on the road to lasting improvement.

Miss Lois Folk, a rather strong-minded pupil of mine, thought she could overcome a bit of tension in her swing by making a number of swings.

I finally stopped her long enough to explain that, like most golfers, she was, simply, kidding, herself about getting rid of the tension. She didn't feel the tightness in her right side until the downswing was made.

Obviously, this is too late. The tightening of any muscles and joints that should be free must be discovered and properly treated before the swing is damaged.

In the case of Miss Folk the tension existed in her right side as she addressed the ball.

Loosening up this side before the swing started cured the fault immediately.

In spite of the efforts to avoid giving anyone a single lesson I find myself occasionally persuaded to deal in "temporary cures."

A player lacked distance with his wood clubs. I watched him swing simply to confirm my suspicion concerning his faulty hip action.

In order to touch up his swing a bit I had him take a rather open stance with his hips tilted over toward the left.. This was as small a change as I could make and yet bring about some improvement in his swing. The moral effect was so disastrous that the fellow. didn't talk to me for days.

However, he thinks nothing. of borrowing clubs, playing over strange courses and exposing himself to a thousand. other. things which are strange to him.. Sticking to familiar things is all right if the things are correct.

Bowmanville Here In Juvenile Tangle

Bowmanville's intermediate baseball team, an entry in the Lakeshore League, will be here tomorrow (Saturday) for an exhibition ball game at three o'clock in Riverside Park with Terriers, local juvenile squad.

Herb Ralph's team has beaten junior and intermediate teams around here and is confident it can take the classy Rubbertown crew into camp.

Since there is no other baseball game here that day, and no lacrosse billed, this contest should draw a big crowd, and it ought to rate a large turnout. Fifteen and five cents are the admission prices.

The local juveniles, waiting for O.B.A.A. playdowns, are Peterorough's hope for an Ontario juvenile (under 18 years of age) championship this year. The pitchers are: Tip Anderson, Jack McIlmoyle and Lefty Field; Eddie Starr catches, while the infield includes Thorburn, 1b; Kingdon, 2b; Dunkley, 3; Al Clark, ss; G. Clark, O'Leary and Connelly in the outfield; and Vitarelli and Caccavelli, utility men. Several of these players will be in senior ranks within the next two years, and they expect to-morrow to give Bowmanville Intermediates a real battle.

LIVESTOCK BREEDERS MATCH ABILITY IN JUDGING CONTEST

Wm. Murphy of Victoria Wins Field Day Competition at "Ex" Park.

WALTER BOWLES SECOND

The field day of the Peterborough Livestock Breeders' Association at Exhibition Park yesterday afternoon resolved itself into a livestock judging competition that in keeness has seldom been equalled here.

Approximately 125 farmers knocked off work for the afternoon, and fifty of them entered the judging contest in which William Murphy of Victoria county emerged with the highest score and a margin of two points over Walter Bowles.

Quite a number of the best known breeders of both beef and dairy cattle in the country accepted score cards. Many junior farmers entered the contest, and on the whole made a good showing in the distribution of the prizes.

The program included judging of Holstein, Ayrshire, Jersey, Shorthorn and dual purpose cattle with a class of steers, and a weight estimating feature.

The Holsteins were from the herd of Joseph Tully, Otonabee; the Ayrshires from Clarence Mann's herd, Smith; the Jerseys were obtained from E. L. Bell, Otonabee, and Norman McConkey, Peterborough; the Shorthorns from Betram Bennett, Otonabee, and Frank Scollard, Douro; and the steers from Canada Packers, Limited.

Prof. G. E. Raithby of the Animal Husbandry department of the Ontario College of Agriculture took charge of the Holstein and Ayrshire classes; Ed. A. Summers, Port Hope, Durham county representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, had charge of Shorthorn class, including Frank Scollard's dual purpose specimens; Walter Smith of Brighton, Northumberland representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture conducted the Jersey class, and Prof. Raithby also had charge of the judging of the steers.

Judging Contest Winners

With the total possible score 700 points, the winners in the judging of seven classes of livestock were as follows:

1—Wm. Murphy, Lindsay, 681 points, receiving an eight gallon milk can donated by the DeLaval Company.

2—Walter Bowles, Peterborough R.R. 5, 679 points; prize, 100 pounds of sugared Schumacher feed, donated by the Quaker Oats Company.

8—Henry Shaw, 653.

9—G A. Brethen, Norwood, 650.

10—Harold Donaldson, Peterborough R.R. 8, 647.

Youngest Competitors

Harold Coons, Lakefield R.R. 1, age 14; score, 616.

Roy Dremmie, Peterborough, R.R. 6, age 14; score, 555.

Weight Guessing

In the weight guessing contest H. D. Coons of Smith township turned in the closest estimate of the weight of four steers. He was only 120 pounds off the correct weight of the animals. The prize was one gallon of Williams' fly spray donated by Hall and Andrew, Simcoe street.

The livestock breeders were thoroughly satisfied with the field day which is likely to become an annual feature. The executive of the Breeders' Association appreciate the assistance of farmers from whom animals were selected for the occasion and of the donors of the prizes. They also acknowedge the permission to use Exhibition Park.

W. A. Anderson of Otonabee is president of the county association, and the members of the committee are the president, Col. F. E. Birdsall; V. S Milburn, Frank Scollard, W C. Mann and A. D. Runions, representative of the Department of Agriculture.

Big buying was not evident and export business was estimated at a maximum of 500,000 bushels, but offerings were light. No wheat was shipped this week from Russia

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO June 29. — In buying rushes that accompanied the worst heat wave this season, corn jumped 4 cents yesterday the maximum limit allowed. Corn belt temperatures above 100 with official announcement that no immediate relief was in sight, gave strong emphasis to trade reports that irreparable damage to the nation's 1934 corn crop throughout wide areas was threatened by combined heat and drought and by chinch bugs. Highest prices of the day in all grains were reached at the last minute.

GERMAN MUTINY FAILS LEADER SUICIDES

COMMANDER OF STORM TROOPS TAKES OWN LIFE

Captain Roehm Charged With Conspiring Against Government.

LIMITED CLIQUE.

Tried for Months to Create Trouble Amongst Storm Troops.

BERLIN, June 30 (C.P.).—Orgies of an indescribible nature by Nazi storm troop leaders and an alleged plot between Captain Ernst Roehm, national commander of the storm troops, and "a foreign Power" were announced by the Nazi Party to-day as responsible for Roehm's arrest and removal from office. Roehm committed suicide while in custody.

The Party Press Department said Roehm furthermore had conspired with Foreign Chancellor Kurt Von Schleicher against the Government. Von Schleicher was killed today as he resisted arrest.

The Press Department communique read as follows:

"For many months, certain elements have been trying to drive wedges and create friction between the Storm Troops and the (National Socialist) Party and between the Storm Troops and the State.

"The suspicion that these attempts emanated from a limited clique with certain leanings was more and more confirmed.

"Chief of Staff Roehm, in whom Der Fuehrer had placed unusual confidence not only did not oppose these tendencies but doubtlessly advanced them.

"His well known unfortunate homosexual disposition in course of time led to such unbearable embarrassment that the leader of the movement and the supreme head of the Storm Troops himself was brought into the severest conflict of conscience."

Hitler Stamps Out Revolution

President von Hindenburg — Chancellor Hitler — Vice Chancellor von Papen

For the first time since he became Chancellor of Germany Adolph Hitler was called upon today to take drastic action to stamp out mutiny and revolution. Former Chancellor Von Schleicher who was alleged to have conspired with revolutionaries against the present regime was killed while resisting arrest and vice-chancellor Von Papen who just recently came to the fore in Germany by a speech which echoed around the world on which he criticized the Hitler regime on their stand against the return of the German monarchy was placed under arrest along with many other storm troop leaders. President Von Hindenburg is reported very ill at his summer castle.

H. W. MORPHET IS RETIRING FROM LOCAL COMPANY

Secretary of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company

SINCE ITS INCEPTION.

Quits Executive Position With Splendid Record of Success.

Herbert W. Morphet, secretary of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, terminates his long service with the company to-day.

The announcement of his retirement, which is effective on July 1st, bears the further information that he will be succeeded as secretary by G. H. Thompson, and also that B. V. Moore has been promoted to Mr. Thompson's position as accountant.

Mr. Morphet has been associated with the Toronto Savings and Loan Company from its inception in the days when the late Honorable George A. Cox was laying the foundation of the career which carried him to a high place among the great Canadians of the past generation. In a sense, Mr. Morphet received the approving seal of Senator Cox, and throughout his long connection with the company he has abundantly fulfilled that early confidence. As the company expanded its business and enterprise, Mr. Morphet was entrusted with increasing responsibility for which he proved himself qualified in every respect. It has been related by friends of his that he remained in Peterborough at his own wish although his early association with Senator Cox offered attractive openings elsewhere. His success as an executive of such an institution as the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, with its strong financial position and many investments, is

Drunken Bees Are Evidence in Case

SALT LAKE CITY, June 30 (CP)—Harlan Henderson and R. L. Burns were being given a hearing on a charge of operating an unlicensed still.

In an effort to prove that mash dumped when the still was confiscated was alcoholic, the Government called Frank A. Olsen, who keeps bees.

"Those bees have been so drunk for two weeks," Olsen testified, "that they haven't been able to do any work."

The defendants were held for trial.

HEPBURN TO GET FAIR DEAL FROM ELECTRIC BODY

Ontario Municipal Electrical Association Decides to Withhold Criticism.

STORMY SESSION.

Maguire to Remain President Until Winter—Withdraws Resignation.

OTTAWA, June 30.—(CP)—Delegates to the semi-annual convention of the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association are seeing the sights and inspecting a power plant near here today after a somewhat stormy meeting in which political feeling at times were high.

One of the chief decisions reached was to give premier-elect Hepburn a fair deal and not to embarrass him by criticism of any announced policy with respect to Hydro. Shortly after the new government takes office a deputation from the association will call on Mr. Hepburn to discuss Hydro matters.

This suggestion was advanced by C. Alfred Maguire, president of the Association and a member of the Hydro Commission who at first handed in his resignation but later agreed to remain in office until the next meeting in the winter.

Resolutions came before the meeting asking that F. A. Gaby, chief Hydro engineer be not dismissed, that two members of the commission be appointed by the municipalities and that an immediate interview be sought with Mr. Hepburn but were laid aside. G. A. Maguire, member of the Ontario Hydro Commission, announced he would head the delegation, although he had stated definitely yesterday he would not be a member of any committee which would wait on Mr. Hepburn. After 15 years in office Mr. Maguire had resigned as president of the Association, but yesterday decided to remain in office until the winter convention.

Not To Embarrass

A plea that nothing be done to embarrass the government just as it was taking office by trying to dictate what it should do in regard to Hydro affairs was made by Mr Maguire.

"It is only fair to Mr. Hepburn that we should wait until after he has taken office before taking a definite stand on Hydro questions. When the government is sworn in, through the secretary we should make an appointment with Mr Hepburn so that the people of On-

Von Schleicher Is Killed By Police; Arrest Von Papen

Chancellor Adolph Hitler Rides Roughshod Over Foes Attempting To Overthrow His Regime—Second German Revolution Fails.

MANY GROUP LEADERS OF STORM TROOPS SEIZED—DRASTIC ORDERS ARE ISSUED.

Streets of Berlin Are Patrolled By Steel-Helmetted Police Armed With Rifles—State And Party Will Be Purged, Premier Goering Declares.

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER
(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press)

BERLIN, June 30—Chancellor Adolf Hitler today rode roughshod over foes attempting to overthrow his regime.

Former Chancellor Kurt Von Schleicher, reactionary and monarchist, was killed by police when he resisted arrest as a conspirator.

Vice-chancellor Franz Von Papen was taken into "protective custody" together with three members of his staff and removed to secret police headquarters.

Capt. Ernst Roehm, national commander of the Nazi Storm Troops and one of the most advanced radicals, was deposed from power and ejected from the Nazi party.

Premier Hermann Wilhelm Goering of Prussia announced that he was carrying out drastic police action on Hitler's personal orders against Nazi Storm Troops leaders attempting to force a second German revolution.

His measures, he said, were extended in two directions —against absolute reactionaries and absolute radicals.

Communications Stopped

"In order that no false news might get out," Goering told a meeting of foreign press correspondents, "I have ordered all communications with foreign countries stopped for the present until you hear my statement which gives you the undiluted truth, but I warn you seriously not to let your imagination run wild.

"For weeks, we have known that a certain clique of Storm Troop leaders have been attempting to mislead the brave and decent storm troop men on to a path leading to revolution.

"That would necessarily have led to the over-throwing of the state.

The chief of the secret police and my police organs have watched these men minutely and know what they had in mind, namely, a second revolution.

"Der Fuehrer (the leader, i.e., Hitler) is determined to make an example and to let the whole world know that whoever raises his hand against the third Reich (the present government of Germany loses his head.

"Roehm and co-workers thought they could bring pressure to bear upon Der Fuehrer but he got ahead of them. Der Fuehrer had had Roehm arrested and put into jail where he will await judgment.

"Many group and upper group leaders (of the storm troopers) also have been seized and will await their day of judgment.

"Der Fuehrer ordered me to represent him in this action, which I shall carry out without giving quarter."

Even as Goering made his announcement, the streets of Berlin were being patrolled by steel-helmeted policemen armed with rifles.

Hitler's crack special guard, the black-shirted Schultz Staffel, were to be seen on duty at the various headquarters of the brown-shirted Nazi Storm Troops.

"All of Prussia is firm in my hands," said the Prussian Premier. "The Schutz Staffel and my police have everywhere taken charge of party headquarters.

Storm Troops Misled

"The Storm Troops have not offered any resistance. They were merely misled.

"I have naturally also taken measure against those circles that in any way endanger the existence of the state, and have turned out the reactionaries, whether Left or Right.

"The Storm Troop army is brave and we must show to it in what way it has been misued.

"There is no cause of any uneasiness. Some Storm Troops leaders, overwhelmed and despondent upon realizing what they have done, have committed suicide.

"Some have had to be shot when they offered resistance.

"They however, constituted only a small part.

"Karl Ernst (Commander of the Nazi Storm Troops in Berlin and Brandenburg) was arrested in Bremen and is being brought here for

FUEL SHORTAGE FORCES DOWN TWO BROTHERS

Brooklyn Fliers Cross Atlantic and Land in France.

WARSAW AS GOAL.

Land Safely After Long Flight and Plan to Proceed.

PARIS, June 30 (A.P.). — The monoplane "City of Warsaw," bearing two Brooklyn fliers, landed safely to-day south-west of Caen, France.

Although their goal was Warsaw, Poland, they were forced to land because of a shortage of gasoline.

The silent flying pair whose hopes for a successful flight to Warsaw were dashed last year when they cracked up in Newfoundland, set their big plane down safely at Saint Andre de Messei, three miles west of Fiers, at 3.20 G.M.T. (10.20 a.m., E.S.T.).

They immediately announced their intention of flying to Lebourget Field, near Paris, to-morrow.

Saint Andre de Messei is a village of 234 inhabitants, 48 miles south-west of Caen, and 150 miles north-west of Paris.

GREAT ACTRESS CLINGS TO LIFE BY HER VITALITY

Amazing Physicians by Gaining Strength After Major Crisis.

IN STATE OF COMA.

Thousands of Telegrams Sent to her—Long Been Fighting Illness.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., June 30 (AP)—Marie Dressler clung to life to-day, resisting the ravages of uremic poisoning with a vitality that amazed her physicians.

The 62-year-old actress from Cobourg, Ont., appeared to have gained strength since Thursday night, when she rallied from a major crisis after hope had been abandoned and attending physicians gave her a day—perhaps three days—more to live.

Telegrams by the score arrived at the C. K. G. Billings' estate at Montecito, society colony of Santa Barabara.

But the actress, who was hailed as the most popular in Hollywood at an age when other famous stage figures are almost forgotten, knew nothing of the words of her well-wishers. For three days, she has been in a coma.

Miss Dressler went to the Billings estate about two weeks ago when the illness, from which she has suffered two years, became acute. During those two years she was often able to work in pictures for only a few hours a day. It was the same vitality, doctors said, which permitted her to go on working when others would have taken to bed, that is now prolonging her life.

HEPBURN WILL NOT ACCEPT CITY'S GIFT OF EXPENSES

ST. THOMAS, Ont., June 30 (C. P.) — Premier-elect Mitchell F. Hepburn from his farm home in Yarmouth, where he arrived Friday evening, informed the Canadian Press this morning that he is leaving Sunday "for parts unknown" to gain a much needed rest and expects to be gone four o five days. He admits being tired after a strenuous week in Ottawa and Toronto but feels fine otherwise.

After his arrival Mr. Hepburn lost no time in announcing that the Liberal organization in Elgin would not accept the $500 voted by the St. Thomas City Council to help defray costs of the big celebration planned here for the new premier and his cabinet after they are sworn in.

SUPER-SALESMEN ARE NOW USING NEW METHODS TO GET PROSPECTS

Dozens of Long Distance Telephone Calls Put Through to City Daily.

HAD TO PUT OFF.

Alas! The day of the slick-haired, checker-vested mining stock salesman who breezes into town and makes his clean-up on a door-to-door canvas is passing. But a new brand of "paper hanger," even more obnoxious, has come to the fore to take his place during the past year.

Dozens of long distance 'phone calls from Toronto and Montreal are being put through to prospective Peterborough "suckers" each day from this new species of salesman in the stock promotion racket. And anyone who refuses to believe that this newcomer isn't twice as smooth a high-pressurer as his predecessor has an education awaiting him. He could talk Floyd Gibbons into a corner at any time and would find no difficulty in selling even the canniest of Scots a half interest in the City Post Office. He's got to be good or his prey will hang up on him.

Reply To Advertisements.

This type of salesman gets his line on a prospect generally through the prospect's reply to an advertised offer for advice on stock he either holds or intends to buy. Or he may get his name and address through the purchase of one of the many "sucker lists" which are retailed about the Province. However he manages it, he almost always has the name of at least one lot of stock his victim possesses before he lifts the phone receiver.

Most of the salesmen of this brand who operate in Toronto take pains to try the business address of the victim first in order that they will not run a-foul of the Ontario laws which forbid the solicitation of stock orders at private residences. The men who operate from Montreal have no fear in this matter. They know they are beyond the reach of Ontario authorities. All are extremely persistent, leaving orders with the telephone opera-

LORD WARDEN OF CINQUE PORTS

Many Famous Statesmen Have Held Distinguished Position.

FOUNDED TIME OF ROMANS.

By Thomas T. Champion, C. P. Staff Writer

DOVER, Eng., June 30.—(C. P. Cable)—Rufus Daniel Isaacs, Marquess of Reading, who has worn the uniform of Viceroy of India, the Robes of Lord Chief Justice of England and the livery of Ambassador from the Court of St. James, today assumed habiliments every whit as historic when in grey old Dover Castle he was installed Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports and constable of Dover Castle.

In this latest of the many August offices filled by Lord Reading he wears the sword of an admiral and cocked hat, has his own flag and a silver oar carried before him by his sergeant. The retinue for the installation today included a seneschal—steward or major-domo of medieval great house—who duly summoned the barons within His Lordship's territory.

Dover Gaily Decorated

Dover was gaily bedecked for the ceremonies. There were ten military guards of honor with an additional naval guard from the warships off the port. The arrival of Lord Reading was acclaimed by a salute of 19 guns from the battery of the castle. Part of the ceremony was a religious service conducted by the Archbishop of Canterbury.

This is the fifteenth annual display of the Royal Air Force here and to-day was the first accident of its kind in the records of the display. The show went on after the tragedy.

The Prince of Wales, who was present, sent a message of condolence to Lord Mayor Collett.

Energetic Carpenters Brave Great Heat But Must Repeat Task Because Of Error

Sure, it's hot, but circumstances may make it hotter or, to one fellow at least, cooler. To wit:

WOODSTOCK, Ont.—Carpenters sweltered in a broiling sun to shingle a roof in one day. Then they discovered they had shingled the wrong building. The owner heard them working, thought they were next door—and was too hot to be curious.

SHEBOYGAN, Wis. — There is something to this psychology of environment, says Leo F. Nemetz. He finds the heat more bearable when he sits in his parlor and looks at a Christmas tree standing there since Dec. 24, 1933.

BROOKLYN, N.Y.—Fifteen thousand persons spent a night on the beach at Coney Island, hoping a shift in the wind would bring a breeze from the ocean. Transportation lines anticipate a holiday week-end exodus of 750,000 from New York.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—Two snow plows caught fire and the firemen had to sweat to save them on the hottest day of the year. A lighted cigarette in rubbish was held responsible.

CONDEMNED MAN TRIES TO SAVE WOMAN'S LIFE

As Death Hour Strikes He Informs Warden of Her Innocence.

EXECUTION POSTPONED.

Woman Convicted of Hiring Pair to Kill Husband For Insurance.

OSSINING, N.Y., June 30 (A.P.) —A story that came tumbling from the lips of a condemned man even as the hour set for his death was striking, has saved Anna Antonio—for at least a day—from the electric chair.

"She's absolutely innocent of the murder of her husband," said Vincent Saetta.

Warden Lawes, into whose ear as they sat together last night in the death house Saetta whispered his story, telephoned Governor Herbert Lehman at Albany. For more than half an hour they talked. Mid-night had passed when the Governor issued a brief statement:

"I have directed the warden of Sing Sing prison to postpone the execution of Mrs. Anna Antonio, Vincent Saetta and Samuel Feraci in order that I may have time to study and consider a long statement made by Saetta."

Thus he postponed—though only for a day—the execution of the woman and two men she was convicted of hiring to kill her husband, Salvatore, for his $5,000 insurance money.

Whether Saetta's death house statement was just a gallant gesture to save a woman's life or whether it was the solemn truth, spoken by a man about to die, Governor Lehman is to decide to-day. If he finds it false, the three die to-night.

HOUSE STRIVES TO END SESSION BY EXTRA WORK

Public Works Program of $40,000,000 Still Requires Attention.

COMPROMISE REACHED.

New Franchise and Election Receive Finishing Touches es and Pass.

OTTAWA, June 30 (CP)—In a final drive to bring to a close the most fruitful session, from the point of view of new legislation, in many years Parliament holds its first Saturday sitting to-day. The Public Works Bill, authorizing the expenditure of some $40,000,000 upon a building program designed to stimulate employment, is the chief item of business yet to be disposed of.

Yesterday the House of Commons all but put the finishing touches to the new franchise and election laws and a compromise was arranged between the Senate and the House over the vexed clauses of the new Excise Bill. The Senate made a few amendments to the Bank of Canada Bill which comes before the Commons to-day, but it is not expected they will delay the close of the session.

Almost the entire day Friday was occupied with a discussion of voters, voting and elections in the Lower House. The new Franchise Bill passed through the committee stage and except for a long amendment to permit absentee voters to cast ballots in their home constituencies the new Elections Act also moved through the committee.

Amendment Purposes

The amendment is to take care of workers like miners, fishermen and lumbermen who cannot conveniently vote at home. Provided they are not more than 25 miles away they may vote at the nearest polling station and the result of their ballot may be telegraphed to their home riding.

Proportional representation and the alternate vote came up for discussion and owing to the short time available it was decided not to attempt to give full consideration. William Irvine (U.F.A., Wetaskiwin) proposed an amendment along the lines of the alternative vote, with electors indicating second and third choice in constituencies where there were more than one condidate.

The idea met with the approval

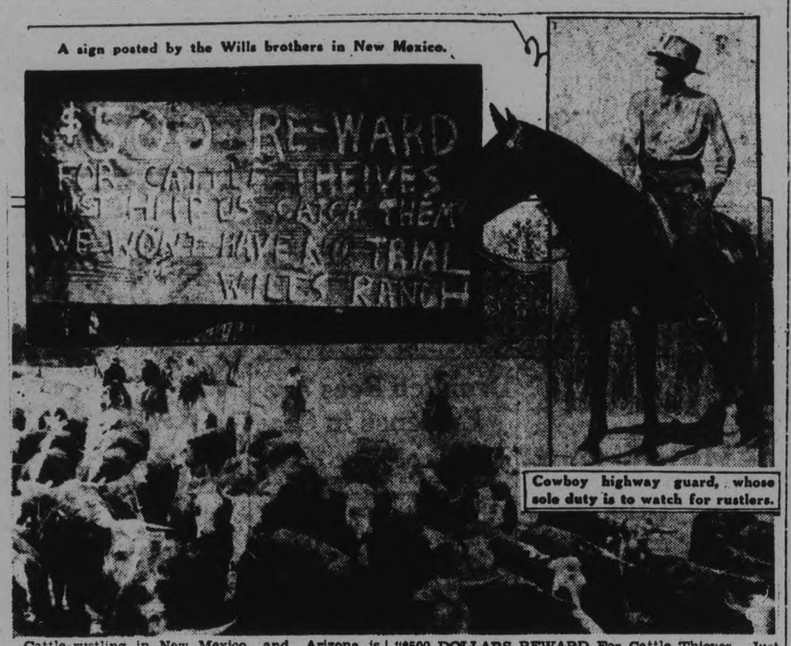
Cattle Rustling Rampant; Southern Ranchers Take Action

A sign posted by the Wills brothers in New Mexico.



Cowboy highway guard, whose sole duty is to watch for rustlers.

Cattle-rustling in New Mexico and Arizona is reaching proportions greater than ever before, according to Governor Moeur, of Arizona, one-time rancher, who is taking official action to curb the rustlers. In New Mexico, no official action having been taken, the ranchers themselves are taking the law in their own hands and signs such as the one seen at TOP, LEFT, are dotting the countryside. The sign reads: "$500 DOLLARS REWARD For Cattle Thieves. Just Help Us Catch Them. We won't Have No Trial, Wills Ranch." Cattle-rustling is now a fine art. The rustlers use trucks and cut out only a few from herd, instead of the old method of running a whole herd. Ranchers are growling defiance and the days of notched guns and "two-gun hip-shooting" men may return.

LIBERALS GIVEN 717,055 VOTES

Conservatives Polled Higher Vote Than in 1929 Election.

C.C.F. GETS 98,489.

TORONTO, June 30.—Although the Conservative party was defeated in the Ontario elections 10 days ago the popular vote for Conservative candidates was greater than in the 1929 elections, an unofficial Canadian Press survey shows. Final returns completed last night indicated, however, the popular vote of the victorious Liberal party more than doubled the 1929 Liberal poll.

Out of a record total of 1,493,007 votes, the Liberals were accorded nearly half, or 717,055. The Conservatives, who won only 17 out of 90 seats, actually polled 595,133 votes compared to 586,246 in 1929. The increase of almost half a million votes in the total was largely to the benefit of the Liberals, an analysis of the returns showed.

The Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, however, running in Ontario for the first time, also took a good proportion of the increased vote, getting a popular total of 98,489, although only one of their candidates was elected.

The popular vote in the last three elections follows:

	1926	1929	1934
C'servative	647,577	586,246	593,133
Liberal ..	224,951	323,509	717,055
Progressive	88,969	37,903	—
C.C.C.	—	—	98,489
Others ...	185,024	64,222	83,030
Total ...	1,146,521	1,011,880	1,493,007

Aggregate Majority.

Analysis of the returns disclosed that in the 65 seats they won out of 90, the Liberals had an aggregate majority of 167,523 votes. This approached the aggregate majority of 168,387 for the Conservatives, in the 84 seats they successfully contested four years previously. The total number of seats was reduced from 112 to 90 by redistribution.

The Liberals had an average majority of 2,577 votes in their 65 seats. Interesting in view of this fact is that 262 candidates ran for 90 seats, compared with 229 in 105 contested seats in 1929.

The vote was much larger, compared with 1929, in the Toronto district than over the rest of the province, and the victorious margins were considerably closer in the Conservative stronghold.

In the 17 Toronto and York divisions, a total of 341,797 votes were cast, compared with 189,658 votes in 19 seats in 1929. The average margin of victory dropped from 3,697 a seat to only 1,536 in 1934. Seven of the Toronto district seats showed majorities of less than 1,000 votes.

Child is Saved When Student Finds Body While Enjoying Dive

LONDON, Ont., June 30.—The life of six-year-old Shirley Hayes, daughter of James A. Hayes, a war veteran, 292 Hill Street, hung by a slender thread today but the thread held and Shirley lives, largely because of Bernard Goldberg.

Shirley had gone with her mother to Gibbons Memorial Park, where there is a public playground and swimming hole, just being prepared for the holiday season. While her mother was a few feet away, and without any outcry heard by anyone nearby, lost consciousness and floated down to the river bed unseen.

Goldberg, a University of Western Ontario medical student, whose home is at 902 Waterloo Street, walked along a pontoon footbridge searching for a deep spot for a dive, and, plunging in, touched something that aroused his curiosity. He thought it was a piece of hose, but dived again and to his astonishment brought out the little girl, who he said seemed so light he could not believe it was a child.

LIQUOR CASE HELD.

TWEED, June 30. — (Examiner Correspondence.)—Three cases came before Magistrate R. R. Casement on Friday afternoon in police court held in Tweed.

In the first case, Michael Cassidy of Sulphide, was charged with obstructing Chief Constable Hayes in the execution of his duty. The Crown was represented by B. C. Donnan, Belleville Crown Attorney. The accused, who was represented by I. D. Concoran, barrister, of Tweed, pleaded guilty to the charge. He was given six months' suspended sentence and ordered to pay the costs of the court. Magistrate Casement issued a severe reprimand to the accused.

The second case concerned a charge against Francis Cassibo, of Tweed, for a breach of the L.C.A. Upon the request of Crown Attorney Donnan, prosecuting officer, the case was enlarged for one week. Bail was renewed by Cassibo's bondsmen.

Michael Meraw, of the township of Hungerford, appeared in court to answer the charge of an infraction of the Transient Traders' By-law of the municipality of Tweed. He was represented by M.A. Grange, of the firm of Herrington, Warner and Grange of Napanee. I. D. Corcoran was prosecuting lawyer. Magistrate Casement reserved decision.

EARLY DECISION BROWNLEE CASE NOT EXPECTED

Defence Still Has Several Witnesses to Testify in Premier's Suit.

COURT VISITS ROADS.

Civil Service Official Denies Girl Was Given Any Special Consideration.

EDMONTON, June 30 (C.P.). — Prospects of an early decision in the civil court action against Hon. J. E. Brownlee, accused with seduction, faded to-day. The defence in the action brought by Vivian MacMillan, former government stenographer, still has several witnesses to call, and it was expected adjournment would be taken over Dominion Day.

Included among the witnesses to be called by A. L. Smith, K.C., chief defence counsel, was Carl Snell, former Edson school teacher. Snell, who came here from Halifax, was reported to be the "key" witness in the stiit which alleged Premier Brownlee had misconducted himself with the former Edson High School girl.

No evidence was taken on the afternoon of the fourth sitting. Mr. Justice W. C. Ives, together with the jury, counsel and witnesses, were taken on an inspection of the Brownlee residence. Later they traversed country highways and side roads where Mr. Brownlee was alleged to have driven with Miss MacMillan, to secluded parking places late at night. The Premier denied the allegation from the witness's stand.

Happy, Bright Girl.

Vivian MacMillan was pictured as a happy, bright vivacious girl by defence witnesses, including Mrs. Florence Brownlee, wife of the Premier, at the morning session. All who knew her declared they had never heard her speak ill of the Brownlees.

Fred Smailes, Civil Services Commission for Alberta, denied special consideration had been shown the girl while she was employed as a junior stenographer in the Attorney-General's Department. He could not recollect Mrs. Brownlee telephoning to make appointment for Vivian, when she was seeking employment. Smailes denied the Premier sought a position for her. Mr. Brownlee, he declared, never asked special favors for the girl.

The commissioner also denied, when he met Miss MacMillan at a dance, that he suggested she "come and see me." She was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Brownlee at the dance.

A parade of janitors from the Legislative Building marched to the witness stand to testify in defence of Alberta's Premier.

One, Walter Hancock, a 15-year veteran of the janitors' staff, took exception to the suggestion by Neil D. MacLean, K.C., chief counsel for Miss MacMillan. The janitors would not testify against the Premier.

"I wouldn't tell lies for the Premier. Even janitors have got some kind of honor," he replied.

The janitors all denied having seen the plaintiff or any other woman enter the office of Mr. Brownlee on Saturday afternoons.

Dr. Vining Describes Indian Conditions

NORWOOD, June 30 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Ladies' Mission Circle of the Norwood Baptist Church held a special meeting on Wednesday evening. Rev. Mr. Downing acted as chairman. The speaker was Dr. Vining of Toronto, who gave a splendid address on India. In his opening remarks Dr. Vining said his object in giving this address was to deepen the interests of the Kingdom of God both at home and abroad. In visiting India he said he tried to study the people politically, socially, and religiously. He accomplished this as he travelled over the greater part of the country. Dr. Vining said superstition haunts the Indian people from childhood. It is these superstitions that has much to do in influencing their lives. In Canada we know nothing about hunger. Millions of people in India have only one meal a day and are hungry all their lives. Two solos were given by Mrs Jean Porter. A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Porter for her solos and to Dr. Vining for his splendid address. The meeting closed with the benediction.

ENGLAND DEFINITELY OVERCOMES MANY OF POST WAR PROBLEMS

Unemployment Figures Are Improving, Manufacturers Out for World Trade.

"ADVERTISING CONSCIOUS"

MONTREAL, Que., June 30. — "England is definitely overcoming many of her post war problems. In certain industries factories are running three shifts a day, unemployment figures are improving and United Kingdom manufacturers are once again out for World trade," stated W. T. Brace, newly appointed director of A. McKim Limited, Advertising Agency, on his return to the Montreal offices of the company after spending eight years as manager of the London, England office.

Since his return, Mr. Brace, who has been with A. McKim Limited for upwards of 20 years, has visited the Halifax and Toronto offices of the company and will shortly visit the Winnipeg and Vancouver offices.

In expressing his admiration for the manner in which England has successfully fought her way out of her many almost insurmountable difficulties, Mr. Brace pointed out that this year is the first time in many years that there has been a reduction in her overload of taxation. The effect has been an immediate up-swing in all lines of business with the engineering and machinery trades probably leading the parade. Shipbuilding and agriculture have not yet been affected to the same extent but they, too, have shown signs of betterment.

Advertising, he declared, is playing an important part in the general trend of recovery. British manufacturers are more "advertising conscious" than they once were and have come to regard large display space as an essential rather than a luxury. Coupled with their enthusiasm for advertising is the fact that they are paying more attention than ever to market requirements and are making their products to the specifications and peculiarities of the various markets. The upturn in business has resulted in the scrapping of obsolete machinery and this has been accompanied by a movement of many manufacturing plants from the crowded centres of London to newly formed industrial centres on the outskirts.

More Englishmen than ever are visiting Canada and other parts of the Empire to develop outlets for their products. Britain exports and imports more than any other country in the world and there is a very wide market in England for Canadian products, he concluded.

Religious and Social Questions Answered

"A WORD IN SEASON."

By REV. L. BENTON, Havelock.

Isaiah 50:4—"The Lord God hath given me the tongue of the learned, that I should know how to speak a word in season to him that is weary."

INTRODUCTION: The Lord Jesus is brought before us in this prophecy in several ways agreeable to the history of His life.

(a) He comes before us clothed with Divine power for the purpose of redemption.

(b) He comes before us as the suffering servant of Jehovah.

(c) He comes before us as the diligent scholar.

(d) In this verse which we will deal with particularly, He comes before us as the Divine Comforter ever ready to speak a word in season to him that is weary.

1. The condition of the one described in this verse, "him that is weary." There have always been "the weary" among God's people. We find a great many consoling promises in the Bible suitable for people of this type. The Lord has given precious and encouraging promises in order to strengthen them in the journey.

People in such a condition have much need of a word of cheer and comfort. They should not be forgotten. Sometimes we are inclined to think that Christians get so strong in faith that they have no need of a word of comfort. This, however, is not the experience of many in their earthly pilgrimage. The weary should be the objects of particular care and tender dealing. In the home we find that the one who is physically weak receives the greater attention, so it should be with those who are spiritually weary.

2. What are some of the reasons for the condition mentioned in this verse?

(a) Sometimes God's people become weary in waiting. We all know how wearisome it is to be waiting for anything. We have an example of this in the story of the Virgins who became weary in waiting because of the delay in the bridegroom's coming. "They all slumbered and slept." There are many who become weary in waiting for an answer to their prayers.

(b) Sometimes people become weary because of the burdens they bear. Their very bodies become a burden to them. One burden after another comes upon them so that they even groan in spirit and desire to be free.

(c) Sometimes people become weary because of the length of the journey. Again and again they think that they are on the border of the Jordan, but they are spared, and like Israel, made to return to live yet many a weary year in the wilderness.

(d) Sometimes people become weary by the little progress that they seem to make in the Christian life. Often they feel that instead of gaining they are losing. One Christian in giving testimony said, "I think that I was a better Christian twenty years ago than I am to-day." Evidently he, like many others, was dissatisfied with his Christian progress.

(e) Again many become weary because they are not properly nourished spiritually. The word of God and the Gospel of Jesus Christ is the proper nourishment for young and old, and when this is denied or neglected it brings weariness to the soul.

3. Christ's qualification to speak a word in season to all who are weary or in any other condition.

(a) He knows the present condition of those to whom He speaks. A doctor, in treating a patient, must first ascertain the nature of the ailment, then prescribe the remedy for that specific ailment. Ministers and others fail for want of knowledge of the specific trouble of those whom they would help.

(b) He knows the exact word which is needed. It will be truly a word in season. Much depends upon what is spoken. There is a great deal in a mere word when spoken in season, comfort to the sorrowing, encouragement to the discouraged. How a word stimulates the weary and enables him to pursue his journey!

(c) He knows when to speak. There is such a thing as an opportune time to speak. The word spoken must be a suitable word for the existing condition. It is because the remedy is suitable that it is precious.

(d) He knows how to speak. A great deal depends on the tone of the speaker. Christ speaks tenderly and sympathetically. A bruised reed he shall not break and the smoking flax shall he not quench.

4. The steps which Christ had to take in order to qualify Him to speak to His people.

(a) He had to partake of their nature. An angel might speak the word, but an angel could not enter into the experiences of God's people as Christ can. In Christ we have a High Priest who can be touched with a feeling of our infirmities.

(b) He had not only to share their nature, but to share their troubles. He became a Man of Sorrows and acquainted with grief. Consequently He can speak to the weary and heavy laden.

(c) Christ had also to discharge their legal obligation. What the law could not do He had done. He became the end of the law to His people.

5. Let us then hear this Man speak.

(a) Hear Him speak to those who have various burdens to bear. "Come unto me all ye who are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest."

(b) Hear Him speak to those who are weary in waiting for an answer to their prayers. "My time is not yet come, but your time is always ready."

(c) Hear Him speak to those who are bereaved. "Thy brother shall rise again in the resurrection."

CONCLUSION: Are you weary? Remember that others of the household of God have also been weary and have found rest. There is a friend, yes, a brother, who is qualified to speak. Let us turn to Him, for He knows when to speak, what to speak and how to speak.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

IT is rather a striking fact that all the teachers of humanity clothed their most profound sayings in very simple words.

It is recorded in the "Sayings of Jesus" that when He was asked when the Kingdom of Heaven would come, He said: "When the outer is as the inner, and the inner is as the outer, then is the Kingdom of Heaven at hand." Perhaps the meaning of this is not obvious to the uninitiated, yet it is very simple in reality. For when the outer man is attuned to the indwelling spiritual man, and the two become one, then for that man the Kingdom of Heaven IS here and now. The mystical marriage has taken place; the water is changed into wine and all things are accomplished. This is the true meaning of spiritual unfoldment. From God we come, for we are His children, created in His spiritual likeness and image, and to God we must return, the circle must be completed.

We do not realize this as we should. Absorbed in our petty ephemeral earthly lives we are not cognizant of our real lives. We add care to care, fear to fear, burden to burden. We pray with our lips and not our hearts, and generally for selfish reasons, and then dully wonder why our desires are not granted. If we awakened, and lived in God here and now, we would transform our lives. All fear would be banished, all the cares, the worries, hatreds, injustices and jealousies would simply disappear. Our lives would be one joyous prayer of adoration and love, and the world would be a better and a sweeter place to live in. For the Kingdom would be here for all and not for just a few.—Frater IX., Rosicrucian Order, San Jose, Calif.

Of all the beautiful things, the most beautiful is a complete human life.

Sabbath Message For The Shut-Ins

Written for The Examiner by the Ministers of the City.

What should be done about the temperance question? Should the church leave it alone as far as legislation is concerned and devote herself to teaching the reasons why we should be a sober people?—A. R.

The temperance question is much with us these days. It is in politics and out of politics. It is in the church and out of the church. If it could be left at that it would be fine. If it were only a plaything for party politics and a disputed thing for the churches we might let it go. The reason it is a problem is because it is in our homes. The liquor men are asking for drinkers, men and women who can drink much. These drinkers are in our homes. The drunks and the half-drunks are in our homes. It is our men and women, our boys and girls who are drinking and are going to drink, that is our trouble.

Dr. Wylie Clark

The church and the school should teach—even teach the ruin which comes through yielding to the influence of that which in every way destroys body and mind.

The church cannot let the liquor people make the laws.

Someone has said: "If we are ever going to have the Kingdom of God upon the earth we must learn to understand one another." Is that not an impossible thing to expect?—P. F. E.

At first sight it seems impossible. There are so many races and nations and individuals that to have a working understanding would appear as altogether too visionary to become a reality.

While that is all true, yet we are humans having the same needs and facing the same kind of difficulties. We have learned that we never gain much by fighting each other. In co-operation lies the safe road to the things which will endure. Surely it is not too much to expect that the day is coming when all will have sense enough to choose the right way.

We are seeing these days what leadership can do for a country in getting all to follow the one policy. If we could only present Christ as a practical leader to the whole world, the day of the kingdom woud be drawing near.

Is it possible that every man might be converted or are there some who are utterly impossible?—C. G.

I have seen all kinds of men converted—and remain converted. Not just an emotional flurry and then falling back into old ways and habits, but living entirely new lives and being re-created men.

I have seen men who were down and out, men who were vile and degraded, men who were hard as steel and cruel as death, men who had broken hearts and smashed homes, men who were as cold as icicles and as bitter as gall—all these and others have had their hearts, minds and lives changed until they were new men fit to live and possess an honored place in the communities where formerly they were neither desired nor sought.

I have also to say that I have known men live and die without any sign of conversion. They were described by the scripture which says, "He that is unjust he will be unjust still and he which is filthy will be filthy still."

Where in the Bible are the words, "pearl" and "peril" to be found?—H. W.

"Pearl," Matthew 13:46; Revelation 21:21. The plural "pearls," Job 28:18; Matthew 7:6; Matthew 13:45; 1 Timothy 2:9; Revelation 17:4; Revelation 18:12 and 16; Revelation 21:21.

"Peril," Lamentations 5:9; Romans 8:35.

The plural "perils," 2 Corinthians 11:26.

War's Wine

FIRST there was the spell of it,
Then there was the hell of it,
Afterward—the knell of it,
Now man weeps to tell of it!

"First"—
Earth's mad millions sensed the urge,
Drank the flagon—felt the surge . . .
Music, marching, merriment
Filled their hearts with wild intent!

"Then"—
Roaring, rattling, wrecking guns,
Belching death from suns to suns—
Cataclysms of wild death
Menaced men at every breath!

"Afterward"—
Row on row their crosses stand,
Guarding graves on every hand—
Everywhere brave hearts still weep,
Ceaseless, silent vigil keep!

"Now"—
God of Nations! blast each plan
Man designs for war with man;
In each heart good-will increase,
Grant unending, World-wide Peace!

The Divided Kingdom — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—I Kings 11:26-14:31

King Solomon reigned forty years over all Israel and built a wonderful temple for Jehovah's worship. But in his later life he followed his heathen wives into the worship of idols. He gave all of his time to building a kingdom for his son instead of raising a proper son for his kingdom.

God foretold the dissolution of Solomon's kingdom through a prophet named Ahijah, who took his new robe and cut it into twelve pieces, giving ten of the pieces to Jeroboam, one of the king's servants. This meant that Jeroboam was to rule — over ten of the twelve tribes of Israel.

At Solomon's death his subjects came to Rehoboam, his son and successor, and pleaded for relief from their tax burdens. The old men counseled him to heed the appeal. But he chose to listen to the advice of young men brought up with him, and his subjects rebelled.

To keep his subjects from returning to Jerusalem to worship Jehovah in the temple, Jeroboam erected calf-shaped idols and ordered the people to worship them. So he is known as "Jeroboam who caused Israel to sin".

SATURDAY, JUNE 30, 1934

A SPLENDID INCREASE.

The fact that 42,738 more Canadians found work in May than were engaged in gainful employment at the end of April is one of the best bits of news this country has had since the great depression began.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics, in reporting this remarkable increase, the largest gain during May recorded in any year since 1920, states that the payrolls of employers reporting to the Board increased from 856,548 on May 1 to 899,286 on June 1, truly a development to encourage the whole country.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, reports that improvement was indicated in all the economic areas of Canada, with Ontario firms employing the largest number of extra works.

More than this, the improvement was not confined to a few classes of industry, but on the contrary extended to nearly all types of industry, while at the same time the non-manufacturing industries all showed a decided betterment. The additions to manufacturing staffs, it is said, exceeded those noted on the same date in all but four years, and the whole picture as revealed by these figures is such as to warrant optimism on the part of the Canadian people, particularly as the increased buying power represented by nearly 43,000 more workers returning to gainful employment in a month should cause additional demands for manufactured and other goods and result in other unemployed Canadians getting back to work.

IT IS LOW ENOUGH NOW.

The suggestion of the Wetaskiwin branch of the United Farmers of Alberta that the voting age of both sexes should be reduced from 21 years to 18 is not likely to elicit any great measure of popular support.

On the other contrary, it is probable that the majority of Canadians would prefer to have voting power, withheld until the age of twenty-five was reached than to have the limit lowered in accordance with the Wetaskiwin resolution.

While it is true that a large number of young people's political clubs have been organized in recent years and some at least of these have done something to arouse among Canadian youth an interest in politics, it is to be feared that most of these organizations have placed more stress upon social activities than on political education.

At any rate the average young person in this country pays very little attention to political affairs, and many of them cast their first vote with only a very faint idea of what it is all about.

Until news of political issues and movements are read by our boys and girls with the same aridity as are sporting pages and movie magazines, it would be decidedly unwise to lower the voting age to eighteen years.

Thousands of Ontario young people polled their first vote on June 19th, and it would be interesting to know just what percentage of the new crop of voters could discuss with any degree of authority or familiarity the records and policies of the various parties appealing for their support.

BROCKVILLE OPPOSED, TOO.

The Brockville Recorder and Times, Hon. George P. Graham's newspaper, has joined in the crusade against restaurant sale of beer, and its position in that regard will be gratifying to the very large proportion of the population of Ontario opposed to the introduction of this form of sale.

Says the Brockville paper:

"The Peterborough Examiner is out with a campaign against the sale of beer in restaurants in that city, believing that such sale would constitute an evil influence and create undesirable conditions, and also that it would fail to meet with the approval of the vast majority of the residents of the municipality.

"If this is true of Peterborough, we believe that it is equally true of Brockville. The defeated Conservative candidate in the riding of Leeds made a point of stressing the fact during the campaign that, in the event of the Henry administration being returned to power, no licenses for the sale of beer and wine in restaurants would be granted within this area. Moreover, the principle that the wishes of any section should be respected in the matter of beer and wine sales is incorporated in the amendments to the act adopted by the Legislature.

"The new Government would do well to adhere to this principle in the regulations which will accompany the sale of beer and wine in public places. A number of hotel outlets should prove sufficient for the town of Brockville and sale of beer and wine under such circumstances would not be accompanied by the abuses which might creep into its distribution through restaurants.

"As in Peterborough, we believe that a large majority of the people in this section of the province are against the sale of beer and wine in restaurants, and the decision of the Government in this regard will be awaited with considerable interest."

This protest, coming from a newspaper directed by and controlled by the one of the most esteemed Liberals in the country, should, The Examiner feels sure, make a deep impression upon Premier-elect Hepburn and the members of the Government-that-is-to-be.

We are convinced that in the smaller cities of Ontario there is strong opposition against restaurant sale, and that any attempt to foist the distribution of beer through the medium of eating places will be resented by the communities affected.

The Examiner would like to see other Ontario newspapers lined up with the Brockville Recorder and ourselves to prevent any such a retrograde policy as restaurant beer sale.

DANGEROUS PRACTICES.

Referring to a recent drowning accident in which two Toronto youths lost their lives, the Ontario Safety League calls general attention to the circumstances of this distressing case.

The facts are that neither of these boys could swim, and that despite the warnings of companions, they tried to change positions in the canoe, with the result that the boat capsized and both were drowned.

Here was a tragedy that should never have happened.

In the first place, persons who cannot swim should keep out of canoes; and in the second, the absolute folly of changing places in a small boat should be a matter of general knowledge because the newspapers and safety organizations have for many years emphasized the danger of the practice.

As was pointed out in these columns a day or two ago, drowning accidents in Ontario have taken a toll of 650 lives in the last two years, and are responsible for more deaths during the summer months than traffic mishaps, large as is the casualty list in automobile accidents.

The vast majority of these fatalities were unnecessary, caused by people taking foolish chances.

Swimming in dangerous places, fooling in boats, small children left unguarded near deep water, these and similar exhibitions of carelessness have been responsible for the appalling death list claimed by Ontario's lakes and rivers in recent summers.

The co-operation of parents is earnestly solicited in an effort to stop this useless loss of life.

SOME ABSURD LAWS.

"No thief e'er left the halter draw with good opinion of the law." This quotation is not infrequently used when some law-breaker finds himself up against it.

There are instances, however, where a technical law-breaker is much more to be sympathized with than to be condemned. With all the wisdom of legislation, there are a very few fool laws. These are usually passed at the instance of the officials who in desiring to make it impossible for a guilty person to escape, wish to set a legal net that cannot but catch many innocent persons.

For example, if you take a friend who is visiting you for a drive in your automobile and he or she be injured through even an almost indiscernible piece of bad driving by yourself, you can be soaked for damages, and visitors have sued many friends during the last few years under the circumstances indicated. If you should even presume to drive a friend to church you are liable to be sued by that individual for damages, if he or she be in any way injured in the transportation.

One can understand that where a fee is being charged for conveying a person from one place to another place, the owner or driver of the vehicle should be liable in an action for damages against the passenger's injuries, but it is little less than insanity to put the power in the hands of a person who is accepting a free ride to sue the kindly disposed person who gives him that ride for damages under any circumstances.

There are also in the Excise Act some very peculiar laws, and the department at Ottawa has been endeavoring to get a bill through to make it still easier to convict an innocent person than it has been under the old law. As an example of what is possible under this law, consider this example:

Suppose the owner of an automobile or any other carriage in Brockville were driving to Prescott and he gave a friend a lift in his vehicle, if that friend had by any means in his pocket a drink of illicit whiskey the Royal Canadian Mounted Police could come along and seize your car, although you knew nothing about your friend having whiskey in his pocket, and there is no means by which your car could be recovered.

In other words, the law is so stringent that an innocent person could have his property taken in the name of the Crown and there would be no remedy. This interpretation of the law has been disputed in some cases, but up to date it appears have been held valid. This law if it be properly interpreted is nothing less than larceny by the Government—what would be called theft for a private individual. The Senate is attempting to amend this legislation to make it clear that there will be a means of applying for return of one's property, if the owner is proven innocent of all knowledge of the violation of the law by the use of his car.

If such acts are kept on the statute book, it will soon be that a man will not be able to take his warmest friend for a drive around the block without having him searched.

Another bit of legalized bunk has been the law providing that any recipient of cash for a sweepstake ticket can be sued by an informer for the amount of his winnings and the money goes to the latter. As might have been imagined, a law so fantastic can be easily broken, and the result has been that a friend of the lottery ticket hero would enter action immediately the money was received, and as an informer, the cash was his to the public, but it really was a way to protect the violator of the foolish law.

The Government is now proposing to change that law and make the proceeds from the sweepstake ticket forfeitable to the Crown. This will leave the responsibility, it appears, to the Attorney-General of every province to prosecute those who profit by such things.

If the innocent public knew all the laws that were on the statute book of Canada, and the provinces, yes, and the by-laws of the municipalities, they would be afraid to go out on a rainy day alone or speak to the neighbors without a permit.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

For the next two weeks the new Government is going to let George do it.

It has been moved by the Border Cities Star that Col. W. H. Price be made the new leader of the Conservative party in Ontario. No doubt Premier Hepburn will be glad to second the motion.

There are those who point out that the name of the proposed head of the Government liquor business in Ontario rhymes with "wet."

By this time Mr. Hepburn has doubtless found out that it is easier to win an election than to shake off the job-hunters who bob up afterward.

Judging by the amount of remuneration he drew while Federal Minister of Labor, Hon. Peter Heenan is not being counted upon to service in Mr. Hepburn's debt-pegging crew.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

CHURCHILL, MANITOBA

This town, in the far northern reaches of the province, has occupied the limelight considerably during the last half dozen years, by reason of the fact that it is the only port on the prairie belt.

The name Churchill was given to the little settlement which required more than 300 years to reach the status of a town, by the Hudson's Bay company, for whom Capt. John Abraham established a post from York factory in 1686, naming post and river after Lord Churchill, afterwards Duke of Marlborough, who had been elected a governor of the company the previous year.

Foreign Affairs

(By H. W. L. MAHOOD)

THE UNITED STATES

To kep peace with the story of world events is to experience a profound and disturbing concern. To read of the preparations for war, and of the industrial unrest in all the major nations, as recorded on the front newspaper pages is for many a leader and statesman to lie awake at night and to wonder by day. But the concern heightens as reports appear in print that individual freedom has been curtailed, and constitutional government has been menaced. Higher still mounts the concern as proof is given that monopolists are increasing their dominance over the consumers. Threats of violence are heard as greed refuses to consider the welfare of the community and the nation and the whole world.

When the discordant note, belief in Mammon exceeds the faith of the distressed in God for recovery, the nation wanders without a compass.

Is there a meaning in the prevalence of droughts and riots and threats to the standards of life on the American and European continents? To close one's eyes to the realities of these days and to be silent is the utmost of disloyalty and cowardice. These are days of confusion. These are days of governmental action without vision. These are days of fear without faith. These are days of subsidized market places with deserted altars. These are days of subsidized market places with deserted altars. These are days of longings without a conquering faith. Yet there is a way out and up. It is suggested in these words: Such things as ye long for in your hearts.

As Congress neared its close alarm took the place of concern. Even Democrats who had given the President their unstinted support came to the place where they viewed the submission of one branch of the government to another with alarm. Such expressions as these fell from prominent Democrats: The Constitution is ignored, the President seeks to be a dictator, and Regulation and regimentation of life is displacing individual initiative and freedom which Americans have always cherished.

As Congress neared its close the members were in an ugly mood. Camaraderie has always been manifested as the hour of adjournment drew near. Opponents forgot their opposition. We are Americans took the place of, we are Democrats and we are Republicans. But, this time a different spirit prevailed. Hard words were hurled from one side of the House to the other. In both Houses of Congress this was the temper. The Republicans showed lots of fight and were obstructive. Moves were made by them to delay some of the pet legislation the President had in view. Promptly the Democrats passed a gag measure which empowered the majority leader to supress all speeches and activities of the minority on the floor of the House.

Then, the real fireworks began to explode. The Republicans challenged the constitutionality of such procedure. But the Democrats laughed and carried out the gag rule. The Republicans complained that never before had a minority party been so oppressed. In their hearts they were rather jubliant that the whole Democratic party had taken on the dictatorial policy of the President. In enforcing to the limit the gag rule passed the Democrats erred. The American masses will resent the procedure. The rule was passed just before a bill was introduced giving the President authority to spend at his discretion betwen 2,500,000,000 dollars and 6,000,000,000 dollars. Startling to the whole country it was to listen to the bold denunciations of the Roosevelt Administration by prominent Democrats. The most telling speech delivered in the House against the present tendency to federalize all life, came from Congressman George B. Terrill of Texas. He has been member of Congress for so many years that he is dubbed a veteran. He is a blue blood Democratic politician. He hammered the administration for not keeping its promise to reduce federal expenses, by increasing the department, bureau and administratin personnel. One of his thrusts was: I would rather return to Texas and live under the Lone-Star flag as an independent republic than to become the step-child of a Soviet union, which we are fast approaching.

Desperation among the people has taken the place of concern. Concern is a mild term. For these days it is rather non-commital. Desperation is a word that calls for instant action. The occasion has been presented to the President to do something without delay. Fifteen congressmen and state governors have been called to a conference in Washington to consider measures of relief in drouth-stricken states. So serious is the condition that the conference concluded not to let the country at large know the distress and high price of food stufs which may result. Thousands of farm families must be moved from the affected area, and over a million head of cattle must be killed or bought by the government and destroyed.

Signal social and industrial unrest is feared in the eastern states the coming winter due to the high prices for foods resulting from the scarity of the very articles the government has been destroying the past year at the taxpayers expense. The United States during the fat years destroyed six million hogs. What God sends for food no nation nor individual can destroy or waste without having to meet the consequences.

THE BROWSER

Everybody said, "Browser, be sure to read Celine's 'Journey' to the End of the Night'."....Everybody told the Browser he must not miss THAT book....Even the publishers told him that it wasn't so much a book as an explosion and that no book since "Ulysses" has been so praised and so d——d, and that its author has been compared to everybody from Rabelais and Montaigne to Zola and Anatole France and Hemingway and Dos Passos.... So the Browser, unable to stand the pressure and a very magpie for curiosity, HAS read Celine's "Journey to the End of the Night".....And finishing it, he wonders how anybody can compare Celine with Rabelais. That hearty genius rolled in dirtiness and roared with laughter over the obscenities of his own imagine. But not Celine. Celine is filled with pity and disgust and a great longing to see his way through the darkness and come out on the other side of life into something grand and sublime....You can't compare him with any writer. In fact, he writes as if he had never read a book in his life. Never read anything but people, and even those through dark glasses....His most active sense resides in his nose; he smells more than he sees and smells more dirt than flowers. Is painfully conscious of stinks, slime, mud, all nauseating components of creeping, crawling, walking, stumbling existence....The Browser thinks of two men who would have understood this book. Both are dead. One was the bitter Mark Twain, who wrote "The Mysterious Stranger" as his last savage slash at the world. The other was the D. H. Lawrence of "Lady Chatterly's Lover".....But what's the book about?....It's just about a man named Ferdinand Bardamu, who wandered hopeless, mournfully, disgustedly around the world—into the war and out again, down to Africa, over to Detroit, back to Paris, into a working quarter and to an insane asylum, as a doctor, and gets nowhere and finds nowhere any lasting job or security.... Does the Browser recommend it?.... No, but he wouldn't have missed reading it any more than he, now, looking back, would have missed the misery and boredom and filth of the war....It's a lot better book than that "Anthony Adverse"....The French Figaro called it "a book that no sensible man will recommend to his wife, much less to his daughter". That may be the French point of view. Over here it is a book that no sensible wife or daughter should recommend to father.

Edith Wharton says in her "Backward Glance"—that she is haunted by the names of characters until she thinks of a story for them. She says she was haunted by the Princess Estradina long before she walked into "The Custom of the Country" "in high-colored flesh and blood, cool, dominant and thoroughly at home"....Now she is troubled by a character named Laura Testvalley, and she knows that woman will get into a Wharton book sooner or later...."First and Last Ring Lardner" is out this month. Lardner fans, gather 'round, to laugh, and to weep over that most untimely death....Captain Bob Bartlett, Arctic explorer, has turned in the manuscript of "Sails Over Ice" for publication in the fall. Cap'n Bob is one of the Browser's favorite characters....Sidney Franklin has finished reading page proofs of "Shadows in the Sun," the Spanish bull-fighting classic he translated. Says he's rather face ten Miura bulls one-handed than do it again. ....Marguerite Steen's novel, "Matador" will be published this month. It's about Don Jose Diaz Marquez, a retired matador, to whom three things were necessary—"the deference of his equals, the respect of his superiors and the obsequiousness of his inferiors'...Henrik Van Loon writes from Tahiti to publishers that "The Pacific ocean is very large. I am working hard. New York is very large, too. So, I might as well have stayed in New York." ....Harold Lamb's "Omar Khayyam" will be out in the fall....Next week in this space: All about Stribling's "Unfinished Cathedral and how it affects

AUTO CURIOS AT THE CENTENNIAL

General Motors Exhibit Greater Degree of Evolution Than All Other Relics.

Spanning more than a quarter-century of transportation progress, the showing of automotive curiosities being staged by General Motors of Canada, Limited, as part of the Centennial Relics Exhibition in the Transportation Building, July 2, 3, and 4, represents a greater degree of evolution than all the other relics depicting the other 75 years of Toronto's history.

From a tiny one-seater, which recalls the explosive debut of gas buggies at the opening of the present century, the collection goes on up through the massive roadsters of 1910 to the present-day aero-dynamic luxury cars.

Memories are recalled of the days when Toronto's speed limit was eight miles an hour—when Dad and Mother wore duster and goggles and veil. The mingling of oil lamps, brass horns, and balloon-like carriage tops, along with cars progressively fitted with more modern accoutrements gives a true museum touch to the General Motors group which, incidentally, is likely to be preserved permanently and increased from time to time.

Horse Drawn Vehicles

In the pre-motor part of the collection are to be seen several horse-drawn vehicles, including the famous "democrat" built by Robert McLaughlin, founder of the carriage business which bore his name, and said to have been used for a triumphal entry into Toronto of the famed Sir John A. MacDonald. There are also a McLaughlin cutter and a McLaughlin buggy made at Oshawa about 1908.

Looking Backward

First of the automobiles, and one of the most interesting, is an Oldsmobile touring car dated 1902. So close was it to the horse and buggy days that it has a curved dashboard and buggy step. Safety-first equipment included clips on the front springs where shafts might be attached in case friend horse had to be called in. This little car has a tiller for steering; has the engine under the seat and the starting crank on the side where it could be turned without dismounting.

A younger brother of this car stands beside it — an Oldsmobile touring of about 1907. A one-cylinder job, it is resplendent in brass fittings complete with bulb horn and oil lamps. A tiny plate on the front end bears the legend that passed in those days for a license: "Reg'd Auto Number 262 Quebec."

Next in line is a Cadillac of 1906. It, too, has a buggy step but no running board. In front are gas tank and radiator but no engine. The engine is under the seat.

Great progress is noted in the next car—a McLaughlin-Buick Model F. There are actually two cylinders. Entrance to the "tonneau" is, for the first time, from the side instead of the rear. It has chain drive and a steering wheel on a column which tilted forward and back. Gas headlights and horn were standard equipment.

The Gray Ghost

From Halifax comes the next item in the group. It is a big McLaughlin-Buick touring, finished in gray, reminiscent of the days when this particular car was known throughout the maritime provinces as "The Gray Ghost." It is a 6-cylinder car and was the first big automobile known to Eastern Canada.

Somewhat startling in the matter of height is the next car in line—A McLaughlin-Buick 7-passenger sedan of 1918 date. A passenger sitting in the rear seat has nearly two feet of clearance between his head and the roof.

Chevrolet has two interesting entrees. There is a Chevrolet Six—one of the earliest built, distinguished by a platform, rear spring and a number of other mechanical oddities. The other Chevrolet is a "490," made according to its plate, by "Chevrolet Motor Car Company, Toronto. The plate was out of date even before the car was on the road. The very first Chevrolet 490's were built at Oshawa.

McLaughlin-Buick cars of 1923 and 1929 serve very well to fill in the gap between the more primitive cars and the present-day vehicles. As a climax to the Show, there is a 1934 LaSalle, dashing in its modern contours, luxurous in its fittings, and powered with an eight-cylinder engine, contrasting dramatically with the tiny "one-lunger" on the other end of the line.

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

A DEFEAT, NOT A VICTORY

One advantage of a column such as this it gives opportunity for correcting the mistakes of history as well as developing its more intimate details. One of the things we were taught in school was that the engagement between the Canadian militia and the Fenians at Ridgeway on the Niagara today in 1866 was that it was a smashing defeat for the Fenians. But the exact opposite is the case. Prof. C. P. Stacey of Toronto proves conclusively that the affair at Ridgeway must certainly be regarded as a Fenian success, for it ended with the Canadian militiamen in full retreat.

The Canadians' reverse was mainly the result of an absurd order to "Form square" given at a time when the Queen's Own Rifles and the 13th (Hamilton) Regiment were extended on a wide front and skirmishing successfully with the raiders. The order was the result of a cry of "Cavalry" which emanated from someone who saw either some Fenian officers mounted on stolen horses or a group of farmers who had ridden up on horseback to see the fight and were watching from a flank.

As the mystified Canadian companies retired to execute the command they suffered considerable loss from the Fenian fire; the square was hardly formed before men began to drift rearward and soon the whole force was in retreat. Professor Stacey is confirmed by Col. G. T. Denison, who in his "Soldiering In Canada", tells of news having come of "the defeat of the Queen's Own and 13th Battalion in the morning under Lieut.-Col. Booker at 'Ridgeway."

But the defeat at Ridgeway is no reproach to the Canadian militia sent to the field with inadequate equipment, insufficient ammunition, and little food by incompetent headquarters and pitted against men who had been trained in the American civil war. The final result, the clearing of the frontier and the expulsion of the raiders is something to be proud of. Few campaigns but have at least one defeat.

That Fenian raid was after all, a blessing in disguise. It solidified Canadians in favor of confederation ....just as the two revolts in the West in 1869 and 1885 had their harvest in the knowledge which they brought of the greater Canada just then being born.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, June 30. — (AP) — The stock market passed out of the self-governing picture and into federal control today without any noticeable fanfare or cheering. While prices held fairly even throughout the brief session, the trading pace was around the slowest rate in the past 10 years, transfers approximated 235,000 shares. The close was steady.

Two Men Hold Up Gas Station Owner

KITCHENER, Ont., June 30 (CP) Police to-day are combing roads to the north of here in search of a stolen car in which two men escaped late last night after holding up John Meyers, Elmira service station owned. The men, according to Provincial Police Inspector Clem Jordan, are thought to be the two remaining members of a gang which escaped from Mimico yesterday. Their car was stolen from Galt yesterday, police say.

During the holdup, in which a revolver was brandished, the bandits relieved Meyer of $8 in cash, a tankful of gasoline and a number of packets of cigarettes. They disappeared to the north at a high speed.

Mass Buying Report Is Adopted By House

OTTAWA, June 30 (C.P.).—The House of Commons to-day adopted the report of the Stevens Mass Buying Committee, the chief feature of which was a recommendation that the committee be continued during recess and that it operate as a Royal Commission to make further inquiry into mass buying and price spreads.

"My one desire," said Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, in moving adoption of the report, "is to express my appreciation, as chairman of the committee, of the manner in which all the members attended the sessions and lent their co-operation to the work of the committee."

LORD WARDEN OF CINQUE POSTS

ings, Romney and Hythe—gravely answered the roll call.

After the proclamation that the court was duly formed the Lord Warden received from Mayor of Hastings a request that he take upon himself the high office and maintain the liberties of the cinque ports. This Lord Reading promised to do. Sir Frederick Pollock, as judge official and commissary of the Court of Admiralty then offered an address of congratulations and the court dissolved.

The foundation of the cinque ports has existed since the times of the Roman occupation of England. For several centuries thereafter these ports and their fortifications were bulwarks of the nation against invasion from the sea.

Many famous men have held the office of Lord Warden. The great statesman William Pitt, as Lord Warden, received Lord Nelson at Dover four years before the Battle of Trafalgar. The Duke of Wellington, in similar capacity, received Queen Victoria. Lord Palmerston, the Marquess of Salisbury and Earl Curzon at times held the office.

Attended Ceremonies

Prime Minister Ramsay Macdonald and Sir John Simon, Secreary of State for Foreign Affairs attended the ceremonies to-day.

At one time the office of Lord Warden of the cinque ports was worth $20,000 a year. Nowadays the remuneration attached to the post is "the flotsam and jetsam washed up" and anything like chains and anchors lying on the bed of the ocean or on the coast within the jurisdiction of the ports. It is remarked the only flotsam washed up recently was a dead whale which brought the Lord Warden a bill for its decent burial.

While Lord Reading was installed in office to-day he was actually appointed last January.

VON SCHLEICHER IS KILLED BY POLICE

trial. That means that the last of the mutiny leaders is behind the bars.

"Der Fuehrer will address the German people and the Storm Troops to-night or possibly to-morrow.

"To-day's events make no differences in the leave of absence for the Storm Troops during July. The brave Storm Troop men will go on leave as planned.

"We warned these gentlemen again and again against a second revolution. Now it was we who made it, and not they.

"The second revolution now is ended.

"The state and the party will be purged and cleansed. The position of Der Fuehrer is purer than ever.

"While he shows patience for a long time, yet when he strikes, he strikes hard and decisively. As for myself, you know me well enough to realize that I, too, do not wear silk gloves or that I hesitate.

"I attach the greatest importance to having you tell the world that the state and the people are unreservedly behind their leader.

"The Storm Troop organization is a part of our movement, but it was never to be an end in itself.

"To attempt to make it such must needs lead to failure.

"The Storm Troops will receive new leadership, and whoever opposes that leadership will be arrested."

The Prussian Premier then read two communiques from Chancellor Hitler. The first of them read:

"I have to-day removed Chief of Staff Roehm from his position and thrown him out of the party and the Storm Troops.

"I name as Chief of Staff and Supreme Group Leader Lutze.

"Storm Troop leaders and Storm Troop men who do not obey his orders or who act contrary to them will be removed from the Storm Troops and the party or arrested and judged.

(Signed) "Herr Hitler, Supreme Party and Storm Troop Leader."

The National Socialist Party at once issued an explanatory statement which said:

"Incidents of a provoking nature led to Der Fuehrer immediately removing and arresting two of the most compromised leaders at 2 a.m. today when he returned by airplane to Munich from an inspection of a labor camp at Westphalia.

"Der Fuehrer personally went to Wiesse, accompanied by several of his men, in order to nip any attempt at opposition in the bud.

"Der Fuehrer gave Prussian Premier Goering an order to carry out similar actions in Berlin and there, especially, to seize reactionary associates in this political conspiracy.

"At 12 noon, Der Fuehrer delivered a speech before the higher storm troop leaders who had come together at Munich, in which he laid emphasis on his unshakeable adhesion to the storm troops, but at the same time announced his determination henceforth to mercilessly stamp out and destroy creatures who were without discipline and obedience as well as elements that are anti-social or abnormal.

"He pointed out that service in the storm troops was an honor for which tens of thousands of fine storm troop men had made the heaviest sacrifices.

"He stated that he expected the leader of every storm troop unit to show himself worthy of these sacrifices and a model within his unit.

"He further pointed out that for years he had protected Captain Roehm against an attack of the severest kind, that at last developments had forced him, however, to place the welfare of the movement and of the State ahead of all personal considerations.

"Above all, he said, he would nip in the bud and stamp out every attempt in the ludicrous circles of ambitious creatures to propagate the idea of a new revolution."

HEAT WAVE TO STAY

CANADIAN COMPANIES NEAR RECORD FIGURES IN DIVIDEND PAYMENTS

Stockholders Receive Over $41,000,000 from June Disbursements—Amount Exceeded Only in December, 1930—Many Corporations Resume Payments.

By Central Press Canadian

TORONTO, June 30. — Dividend payments in June by Canadian corporations to their stockholders established a new high record for this month, and the total of over $41,000,000 was the second highest on record in the Dominion, being exceeded only by December, 1930, when the total was above $50,000,000.

Total disbursements for June, 1934, are estimated by Bongard and Company, members of the Toronto Stock Exchange, at $41,298,349, contrasted with $17,993,417 in June, 1933, and $20,891,877 in June, 1932. The cumulative total of dividend payments for the first six months of the current year reached almost $100,000,000 at $97,744,038 paid in similar months of the preceding year, and $87,446,352 in the corresponding months of 1932.

General Conditions Improve

Many factors contributed to the record disbursements for the month of June. Improvement in general conditions has enabled many companies to resume payments of dividends, others to increase the rate of disbursements, and others to make initial or interim disbursements to their stockholders. The increased price of gold, and the announced policy of the leading mining companies of the Dominion to distribute practically all their earnings to the stockholder has resulted in a substantial increase in dividends to the shareholders of these companies, the total for mining companies for the month being in excess of $7,500,000, and the total for Canadian gold mines in the first six months of 1934 of $15,987,566, showing an increase of over 72 per cent. as contrasted with $9,272,062 for the corresponding period of 1933.

An important factor in the heavy dividend payments at this time is the policy of the Imperial Oil Ltd. and subsidiary, International Petroleum, of paying semi-annually as against quarterly previously, and bonuses in addition to regular dividends by these two companies. Total payments by the two run close to $25,000,000.

Many Resume Payments

Indicative of improvement in general conditions are the numerous resumptions of payments after a lapse of years, and distributions being made on account of preferred dividends. Barcelona Traction, Light and Power Company is paying 50 cents a share, the first since March, 1931; New Method Laundry Company, $1.62½ on preferred, the first since June, 1932; Acme Glove Company is paying 81¼ cents on preferred, the first since December, 1930, and Marcus Loew's Theatres Ltd., $1.75 on preferred, the first since July, 1931. Canadian Celanese and Acadia Sugar are corporations able to make payments on account of arrears in additon to regular disbursements. McColl-Frontenac Oil Company has increased the rate of dividend, and Loblaw Groceterias is paying a bonus and regular dividend.

Bonus payments by mines include extras by Siscoe Gold, Lake Shore, and McIntyre Porcupine, and Noranda is making distribution of $1 a share against no payment in similar month of 1933.

SUPER-SALESMEN ARE NOW USING NEW METHODS TO GET PROSPECTS

tors to ring every half-hour if they fail to make their contact immediately.

Naturally Interested.

When the average man in Peterborough hears that a Mr. Smith or a Mr. Brown in Toronto or Montreal wishes to speak to him, he is naturally interested. Even when he discovers that Mr. Smith or Mr. Brown is a stock salesman, he cannot help feeling a bit flattered at the idea that he is considered worth the expense of a long distance telephone call. So he decides to give his caller at least a preliminary hearing. Then, once the caller gets his high-powered line rolling over the wire, it would be indeed a hard-boiled fellow who would cut him off.

Line Runs Smoothly.

The line runs something like this: "Good morning Mr. Blank. How are you this morning? This is Mr. Smith of the Statistical Department of Cheatem and Gypum in Montreal. We received your request for advice on your five hundred shares of Pure Gold Mines yesterday, and I have some information for you that is so urgent that I decided to phone you immediately instead of writing. Just between you and me, I have dependable information that the crowd behind Pure Gold is going to pull the plug out in a day or two.

"Now we always see that our clients are taken care of," the salesman continues with rapid-fire speed. "And we're going to take care of you, Mr. Blank. I want you to let me sell that 500 Pure Gold you have right away. And to show you that we're interested in you, I'm going to let you in on some information on a real bargain that we're only passing out to our best customers, so you'll know where to put the money you had in Pure Gold. Soap Bubble Mines stock is due for a twenty-point rise in the next week."

"But I've heard that Pure Gold is a good reliable stock and——" the investor says, trying to get a word in.

"But listen, my good fellow," the salesman continues blithely, "I want to take care of you, so here's what I'm going to do. I'm going to sell your 500 Pure Gold at the market price for you and at the same time I'm going to get you in on 1,000 shares of Soap Bubble while we've still got the chance. Of course, there'll be a difference of about $300, but I know that a man of your position won't hesitate at that. I'm willing to make you a little wager of the best suit you can buy against a pack of cigarettes that we can double your investment in Soap Bubble Mines in a month."

Tries to Interrupt

The would-be "sucker" tries to interrupt again. "But I'll have to have time to think it over," he demurs.

"Mr. Blank," the sales declares with a note of tragic desperation in his voice. 'I'm offering to make you $500 in a month and you don't realize that it's the chance of a life-time. I'm disappointed in you. But I'm not going to let you miss this chance so I'll have those certificates up for you in a day or two. Now what bank did you say you do your business with?——"

And so on.

How many Peterborough people are being taken in by these shickles? A surprising number. Of course, not more than one call in every four or five proves a success for the over-the-telephone salesman, but there are a large number of calls being put through each week. Women investors and amateurs who dabble in the market with little technical knowledge of its operation are his prey generally. The experienced traders and investors naturally stick to established and reputable stock brokers in carrying out their transactions.

When the salesman picks by mistake a victim who is wise to him and his kind, it sometimes costs him a heavy telephone toll before he discovers his mistake. In the office of a local business man one of the calls came through one day last week. The business man was talking with a friend in his office at the time so he did not let the stock salesman on the wire interrupt him. As soon as the salesman got his spiel under way, he laid the telephone receiver on the top of his desk and continued his business chat. Then, after a space of some minutes, he picked up the instrument, interrupted the broker with a cheerful, "Not interested," and hung up.

And one "phony" salesman had the bad taste to choose an employee in one of the local brokerage offices the other day. The call was from Montreal and, with toll charges mounting rapidly every minute, the intended victim led his caller on for more than a quarter hour with naive questions before cutting off the conversation.

However, there is a fool born every minute—and two stock salesmen to take care of him.

Cogs-Fosters Meet In Tuesday's E.P.L.

Cogs play Fosters in Tuesday night's East Peterborough Baseball League game at six in the Exhibition Grounds. Monday being a holiday no paper will be published, so the announcement is being made at this time for followers of these two teams. Both have supporters, the winning Clubmen being especially popular, while the hardluck Foster crew has its rooters out every game cheering them on. They have tied a game once and come within an ace of winning several times, but seem jinxed. They are overdue to win and may do so Tuesday.

Kitchen, Billingsley, Vannest and Masterson are all ready to pitch for Cogs, with Lefty or Casey the likely ones for this game. Fosters may shove Lefty Dunkerley back against Cogs as he was the twirler who stood them on their collective ears two weeks ago and sewed the game up. Clark and Smith are also available for pitching duties. The Foster crew last night trotted out a strong defensive team, playing errorless ball, and but for wild pitching would have won their game. Tuesday's struggle deserves a good turnout of fans as anything may happen in this ball game.

H. W. MORPHET IS RETIRING FROM LOCAL COMPANY

as much surmised, no doubt, by the general public as it has been appreciated by the management, directorate and shareholders of the company. Their announcement of his retirement is briefly but significantly worded as follows: "Mr. Morphet has faithfully served this company from its inception, and we feel sure that our many customers who have had occasion to do business with him from time to time will miss him, and regret that he is severing his connection with the Company."

That sentiment will be cordially endorsed by the host of people in the city and district who have had business relations with the company through contact with Mr. Morphet. His fine characteristic of courtesy has been a valuable asset to the company year in and year out, and hundreds of "customers" will always bear for Mr. Morphet the kindliest wishes for his future in retirement.

To George Street, symbol of Peterborough's continuous flow of life and hope and endeavor, Herb. W. Morphet represents the figure of youth come to eve...ual success, tested by the wholesome ideals of his community through a long period of years. He quits his office with an excellent record behind him, a record of ability and integrity, combined with an unassuming manner, that have won the deep respect and esteem of a legion of his fellow citizens, of both the present and the past. The "Street" will miss him in the sense that his active duties are at an end, but the hope will remain that his personal interest in its affairs, the affairs of the community will not diminish.

The Examiner extends to Mr. Morphet its congratulations upon the lifetime success which his retirement signifies, and also to Mr. Thompson and Mr. Moore its congratulations in their well-deserved promotion and opportunity.

WESTCLOX GIRLS BEAT LEAFS 20-12

Clockmakers Stage Sixth Inning Rally to Overcome Losers' Early Lead.

Westclox Girls continued their winning streak in the first half of the Ladies' City and District League last night at Armour Field when they took the Maple Leafs, by a count of 20 to 12.

At the end of the fifth the Leafs were leading 11 to 6 but the Clock-Makers, staged one of their usual hitting bees in the sixth and added eight runs to their total, four of these crossing the plate when Grace Hawkes clouted a homer with the bases loaded.

Mary Hall pitched the winner to victory, twirling steady ball, with a deceptive change of pace that baffled the Leafs, Agnes Sturgeon started on the rubber for the losers and went along fine until the bad sixth frame, when Genevieve Mann went in. The latter finished the game strong but her support was wobbly, several glaring outfield errors being made.

PADDLES ACROSS CHANNEL ALONE IN 8-FOOT CANOE

Frenchman Uses No Compass in Victory Over Currents

ATE ONLY SUGAR

Dover.—A bronzed young man in a bathing costume paddled an eight-foot canvas canoe ashore here, took the little craft under his arm, and strolled to the promenade. Rene Lacelle had crossed the channel.

Not one person among the crowds on the beach realize that Lacelle had dared and achieved a feat that had baffled twenty-four other Frenchmen. He had braved twenty-two miles of treacherous currents and cross-winds without a compass or a map, and with no previous experience of the channel's perils.

Earlier in the day the immigration officials here received notice that twenty-five members of a French canoeist club would arrive from Boulogne at 2 p.m.

At 3 p.m. there was no sign of the fleet of canoes, and it was not until 4.30 p.m. that young Lacelle's canoe slid silently to the beach.

He said that he left Boulogne with his twenty-four companions at eight in the morning.

"The others paddled around and did not like it," he explained. "They said it was rough, too much wind, but I said, 'Well, do what you like, I go to England.' I went alone."

Craft "Stood on End"

"Compass? No, I steered by the sun. At midday I was alone in the middle of the channel. So rough that the canoe stood on end and twisted round and round. The sun was overhead so I lost my direction. I did not know where I was."

For two hours his canoe bobbed up and down with the sea running against it. Lacelle was completely lost, driving, for all he knew, down channel.

"I had a meal then," said young Rene, "three lumps of concentrated sugar. That was all I had to get me across."

Then, as the sun lowered, he found his direction and paddled on.

At three o'clock he was off St. Margaret's bay. He could have landed there, but no! "I wanted Dover. I put out to sea again and found it."

A customs official and an immigration officer tapped him on the shoulder.

Rene Lacelle produced a large wad of official documents.

"Where's this canoeist?" asked the customs official. "Moi," said Rene.

"Where's the canoe?" said the official slightly incredulous. "Ici," said Rene, tapping the neat bundle of canvas.

"Sign here," said the official, "and thank your stars you are alive to do it."

BELIEVE DOG SCARE KILLED GIRL, AGE 7

Met Animal When Entering Shop for Ice Cream

Burnham-on-Sea.—A deep horror of dogs is believed to have caused a little girl's death at West Huntspill, near here.

Winifred Ruth Holley, the seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Holley of Smeari House, Huntspill, was entering a shop when she noticed a dog lying on the floor.

The child immediately rushed away shrieking and fell to the ground. She died before the arrival of a doctor.

Clasped in her hand was the penny with which she went to the shop to buy ice cream.

When the parents were informed of the tragedy, Mr. Holley said, "It must have been a dog."

TELEPHONE CALL STARTS ROMANCE

Wedding Bells to Ring as Result of Urgent "Buzz"

London.—A romance that began with a midnight telephone call to a hospital will have its climax shortly in a wedding at Melbourne.

"Could you please send a doctor at once, if possible an Australian? My mother is very ill," said the caller.

A young Australian doctor was sent, and that was how Miss Margaret Pitman, a Melbourne soprano, and Dr. R. T. Kennedy of Sydney met. Both were studying in London for their professions.

BOY HUMBLES DIVINERS

Fifteen "Experts" Couldn't Find Tommy in Hedge

Lindfield.—Tommy Chowns, a small boy, has humbled the pride of the British Society of Dowsers.

Delegates to the congress of dowsers, or water diviners, visited the home of Col. Bell, their president, to undergo a test in which Tommy was the principal figure.

A shirt which he had been wearing was cut into small pieces and divided among fifteen diviners. Then Tommy ran away and hid himself, only half a mile from the house.

The diviners' task was to find him. For three hours they did their best, but Tommy was too clever for them.

"Tommy hid in a hedge," said Col. Bell, "and the diviners could not find him."

He added that a hundred people visited Lindfield, and he ascribed the non-success of the diviners to the fact that there were too many people about.

"A piece of lead and a piece of silver were buried in nearby fields, but the diviners did not find them," he said.

THAMES LANDMARK SOLD

London. — A famous Thames-side landmark has been sold by auction.

For over a century the 200-foot tower on Shot Tower Wharf has dominated the southern end of Waterloo Bridge, but the wharf and the tower were sold by direction of the council of the duchy of Cornwall.

The wharf has a frontage of 150 feet to the river bank and the same distance landward in Commercial Rd.

For 100 years barge-loads of lead have been unloaded at the wharf. The lead was melted at the top of the tower and, as shot, fell into a well at the bottom.

MISTAKEN FOR RABBIT PRETTY GIRL KILLED

Was to Have Been Bridesmaid at Sister's Wedding

Harwich.—A man was out shooting in a field at Great Oakley, near here. Through a gap in a hedge he saw what he thought was a rabbit and fired.

Ethel Harvey, a pretty, twenty-two-year-old girl who was sitting with her sweetheart, fell dead, shot through the head.

In a few days she was to have been bridesmaid at her sister's wedding.

SLEEPERS ENDANGERED AS AEROPLANE FALLS

Crew, Returning From Funeral Killed When Machine Hits Mast

Croydon.—When a French air mail machine crashed in mist after striking a wireless mast, the pilot and mechanic, both of Paris, were killed.

Occupants asleep in a house adjoining the aerodrome had remarkable escapes, for the aeroplane finished up with its nose buried in the garden and its tail resting on the roof.

The dead pilot had just come from Paris after attending the funeral of the French mechanic of the mail 'plane lost in the channel recently.

The 'plane left the aerodrome shortly after 5 a.m. with mail and freight, including the morning papers. It apparently failed to rise, and the wings caught the top of the mast on the Wallington side of the aerodrome. The aeroplane then side-slipped, nose-dived and turned completely over. The roofs of two houses were partially stripped of slates and the chimney pots were thrown down.

J. Loder, occupant of one of the houses, said that his wife was suffering from shock.

"Only the front part of the roof is damaged," said Mr. Loder. "We were sleeping in a front bedroom and came to no harm whatever except for the shock of the crash.

"Fortunately nothing heavy fell into the room, but there were showers of plaster."

GIRLS WRITE HERO SOME GO "THE LIMIT"

Handsome Policeman Receives Letters in Hospital

Worthing.—Police Constable Jex, who narrowly escaped death at the hands of Leonard Hill, Sussex gunman, is being bombarded with letters from all over the country. Most of his correspondents are young women.

Attracted by his handsome features in the published photographs and by the accounts of his encounter with Hill, they have written to the 22-year-old policeman wishing him a quick recovery and hoping for the pleasure of his further acquaintance.

Jex smiles and takes it all in good part. He confessed that some of his letters are unusual and one or two "the limit." But he intends to answer them all in his own handwriting.

DENIED "MAN'S BEST FRIEND"

SEARCH BOY AND GIRL SUSPECTED OF SPYING

Forced to Undress When Detained by German Officials

Southampton.—A young English student and his sister, suspected of spying in Germany, have reached home after being searched at Cuxhaven by police in a German liner.

They are Reginald Bates-Jones, aged 19, of Hessary, Leigh Rd., and his sister, Barbara, aged 17.

"I had been in Germany for a year studying the language and was joined a month ago by my sister," said Mr. Jones. "When we reached Cuxhaven to return to England in the liner Albert Ballin, two men who said they were police officers, took us to a room where our luggage was, and told us we would be searched. My sister was handed to a woman, and we both had to undress. The linings and seams of my clothes were examined, and my sister told me that the woman who searched her made her take her hair down. In my camera they found some exposed films, which they took away for development and returned. The snaps were of the harmless sort one takes as souvenirs."

The search ended suddenly when the captain of the liner sent a message to say that he had already detained his ship half an hour and could wait no longer.

OLD RAZOR BLADES KILL WEEDS, CLAIM

Destroy River Growth When Dragged Through Water

Hythe.—There is one man at least who has solved the question that torments hundreds of families—what to do with used razor blades.

Moreover, he is prepared to take other people's old razor blades and use them for the general good! He is Mr. M. J. Harvey, borough surveyor here.

Mr. Harvey has hit on the ingenious idea of using safety razor blades to keep down the weeds in the Royal Military canal.

An official of Mr. Harvey's department said that scores of them are strung on end to a long wire, which is weighted with lead.

A workman on each side of the canal then drags the contraption through the water and—good-by, weeds! The device has been found so effective that there is hardly a weed in the canal and the old method of cutting them from a barge has been dispensed with.

SON'S DEATH KILLS FATHER

Slaying of Magistrate in India Breaks Parent's Heart

London.—The assassination of a British magistrate in India last September is recalled by the announcement of the death of Mr. John Edward Burge, aged 83, of Griffiths Rd., Wimbledon, S.W.

Mr. Burge died recently and his death is the tragedy of a broken heart. He never recovered from the shock of the assassination of his youngest son, B. E. J. Burge, the Midnapore magistrate, who was shot dead by terrorists on the football ground at Midnapore.

Until that time he had enjoyed excellent health and, despite his 82 years, travelled to business in London every day.

TOWN SELLS ICE CREAM

Does Not Compete With Regular Dealers, Is Claim

Folkestone.—Folkestone is believed to be the first municipal corporation to supply ice creams to summer visitors.

Two men on tricycles, labelled "Borough of Folkestone," have been selling "real dairy cream ices" in the pleasure gardens at East Cliff.

"We are not entering into competition with regular suppliers on the public highway," said Mr. Roden, parks superintendent.

OVER THE DITCH AND AWAY FOR THE FINISH

Britain's military men forgot their training and duties for a day to enjoy a few aerial stunts in the form of a steeplechase. In order to "shoot" the picture ABOVE, the photographer braved flying hoofs, crept up close and timed his "aim" to the split second. Results of his enterprise show some of the field taking the ditch in the Household Brigade Hunters' challenge race at Hawthorne Head.

OFFERED CASH TO MOVE CONTENTED TENANT REFUSES

Lives in Lower Rooms Though Windows Above Taken Out

MAY STAY 4 YEARS

London.—So pleased is a tenant on Norwood Rd., one of the main roads of southeast London, that he refuses to move though he has been requested, and offered cash, to do so by the owner.

The ground floor windows of the house are neatly curtained, and the windows are kept clean, giving the impression of a well-kept home, as it is.

It is the home of Mr. Baker. It has been his home for 21 years. He is a public servant, with a record of 51 years' service.

Mr. Baker does not want to move, and he is entitled to remain in occupation of his rooms under the rent restrictions act for another four years.

It is the upper part of the house that has excited the curiosity of passers-by. The windows have been taken out of their frames and the open spaces covered with pieces of wainscoting and odd bits of linoleum. Many people have wondered whether a fire or an explosion has wrecked the upper part of the house. Nothing of the sort has occurred.

Required for Shop

Some little time ago the house, together with its neighbor, was acquired by a syndicate. The companion house was partially demolished, as it is proposed to build shops with flats above.

Mr. Baker was asked to find another place. He declined because he said the place suited him and was convenient for his work.

A few weeks ago two men arrived at the house, entered the vacant rooms of the house, took out the fireplaces, removed the wooden surround of the bath, cut off the water supply to the bathroom, tore up the wainscotings, knocked out the balustrade of the top landing.

"Law Protects Me"

The part of the house where this has been done is not in the occupation of Mr. Baker. He therefore cannot complain of this.

"Why should I go, when the law protects me as a pre-war tenant?" he said.

The head of the syndicate which has bought the house where Mr. Baker lives was frank in discussing the affair.

"I am entitled to do what I like with my own property," he said, "and I have not done anything which I am not legally allowed to do.

"Mr. Baker is legally entitled to remain in occupation of his part of the house for another four years if he likes to live in such conditions.

"It is a pity the affair could not have been settled on an amicable footing, but that is no fault of mine.

"I offered $250 to Mr. Baker to give up possession of his rooms, and I shall renew that offer in writing again.

"Furthermore, I have offered Mr. Baker similar accommodation in a house on the opposite corner, which is identical with the one he is now occupying. I will pay all his removal expenses and decorate the place. I think my offer is a fair one, but he does not seem disposed to accept it. That is how the matter stands, and presumably must remain so while the rent act is in force."

The alternative accommodation does not give Mr. Baker the security of tenure for four years which he now enjoys, it is said.

TWINS BORN IN TAXI

Scunthorpe.—Twin girls were born in a taxicab as the mother was being taken to a maternity home. The woman, Mrs. Vera Smith, and her babies are progressing favorably.

DISMISSAL TO FOLLOW BIRTH CONTROL HELP

Female Housing Inspector Says Help Given When Asked

Middlesborough.—Because she is alleged to have advocated birth control among tenants, Mrs. Stewart Matthews, housing inspector, is to be asked by the corporation housing committee to resign. Mrs. Matthews, who was appointed only two months ago, declared that she had given advice only when asked for it. She admitted that she had had leaflets printed, but only distributed three or four.

TICKLED BEE STINGS RHEUMATISM VICTIM

Peddler of Pain Claims Cures and Many Customers

Durham.—Britain's queerest salesman is George Aloysius Storey. He peddles pain.

All spring and summer he wanders through the small villages and hamlets, carrying on his back a large black box which emits a loud buzzing.

The box contains bees, whose main duty is to sting his rheumatic clients. Sixpence a sting is the price charged, and he finds plenty of people willing to offer an arm or leg to a bad-tempered bee.

A reporter found Mr. Storey walking along a road between Swinford and Catthorpe, in Leicestershire. His box hummed rhythmically to his stride.

"The faith in bee-stings as a remedy for rheumatism and neuritis is unshaken among most of Britain's villagers," he said. "I have only to arrive in the smallest hamlet to find plenty of customers. I prepare a small place on the victim's arm or leg with antiseptic, and place the bee in a tiny wire cage on the spot. Then I tickle the bee with a straw till it becomes really angry, and stings in self-defence. Naturally, I have to keep renewing my stock of bees, and I get these from my brother-in-law, who has hives near Durham."

LINE UP FOR BOOKS

Blackburn.—Great Harwood, the cotton town near here, claims the distinction of being the best read town in the country.

Of its 12,787 inhabitants, more than 6,000 are registered readers of the local branch of the county library.

Membership has increased weekly since the library was opened about three years ago, and so great is the demand on its service that the question has arisen whether to increase the premises.

It is common to see a queue of borrowers waiting outside the library doors.

It is only a small wooden building and people have to take their turns in selecting the books they want.

During the last twelve months 100,000 books were issued.

CLERIC CARRIES GOSPEL AND FOOD TO LONELY SEAMEN

Risks Life in Visits to Light-Houses and Ships Along 100 Miles

FOGHORN COMPETES

Ramsgate.—Rev. H. Latimer, a Kentish priest of the Church of England, has a unique parish. His congregation consists of lighthouse and lightship keepers and their crews and families doing duty on the 100 miles of England's perilous south-eastern coast. As the members of this congregation cannot assemble, the minister has to visit them.

This he does with a Bible and a Book of Common Prayer in his pockets and a basket of provisions on his arm. He is said to have created the "living" for himself, and what finally convinced Lambeth Palace that he could fill the job were two qualifications: his ability to go up a rope hand over hand and his immunity from seasickness.

His visits are eagerly expected, for he is more than a curate. He is a friend, and the only link with the mainland, apart from the isolated calls of the relief ship, in the two monotonous months which precede each month ashore.

Pockets Well Filled

He carries with him his Bible and Book of Common Prayer. But on the same journey he carries mutton and sausages, tooth paste and tobacco, bloaters and medicines.

Each trip is preceded by a call to the ships through the medium of the coast guard wireless. The needs of the crews are ascertained, from books to vegetables, clothes to messages. Stores and provisions are obtained and loaded into a motor lifeboat, and Mr. Latimer sets out. His troubles have then begun.

"The first difficulty is ever to find the ship I am to visit" he said. 'There are times, in foggy weather, when you can hear the foghorn sounding all the time within a few yards, and yet circle round and round without finding your destination for hours on end. The next task is to get aboard. In rough weather this is frequently impossible until oil has been poured on the water. Then there is an even chance of falling in during the process. I then have to conduct the service. This I contrive to do by clutching my book in one hand and the nearest support in the other, while the congregation remains seated. Nine times out of ten I have to preach in competition with the foghorn.

CAMBRIDGE'S COACH SWITCHES TO OXFORD

Haig Thomas Handled Crew Winning 11 Races

Oxford.—It has been announced that Peter Haig Thomas, who has coached the Cambridge university crew for the boat race for several years, has not been invited by Cambridge to act in this capacity next season, and that he has agreed to superintend the training of the Oxford crew.

The fact that Cambridge has won the boat race for eleven years in succession may be attributed largely to the coaching of Mr. Thomas, who has few equals in bringing a racing crew up to fighting pitch. He has been coaching Cambridge on and off since the war. Oxford oarsmen are hoping that he will now do the same for them.

CAR DRIVES BOAT

Putney.—A strange craft was seen undergoing trials on the Thames recently. It consisted of a large, flat-bottomed punt containing a four-seater motor car with a 12 h.p. engine, from which the punt derives its motive power.

Paddles are fixed to the rear wheels of the car, which are jacked up off the bottom of the punt, and these wheels, set revolving with the running of the car engine, cause the paddles to cleave the water. The motorist has only to drive his car on to the punt and couple up.

CONDEMN INVITATION TO UNITARIAN CLERICS

"Character of Church of England at Stake"

Liverpool.—By the votes of twelve bishops to none, the upper house of the convocation of York—the Church of England's parliament in the north—passed a resolution condemning the bishop of Liverpool's action in inviting Unitarian preachers to Liverpool cathedral.

"The credit, nay the very character of the Church of England, are at stake," said Dr. Hensley Henson, bishop of Durham, who proposed the resolution.

The bishop of Liverpool (Dr. David), who did not vote, said he would submit himself to the resolution, even at the cost of denying the Christian name to Unitarians.

NEW WEDDING HOURS DISPLEASE MINISTERS

Claim They Will Not Wed Couples Between 3 p.m. and 6 p.m.

London — The clergy of Great Britain are refusing to recognise the new marriage act.

That act makes it lawful for a marriage to be solemnized up till 6 p.m., instead of 3 p.m. But the clergy say that it is at variance with the canons of the church, by which they are bound.

Canon 62 of 1603 fixed the hours of marriage at 8 a.m. till noon. Then the marriage act of 1886 made the hours eight till three.

The clergy, however, refused them—as they are refusing now—to depart from the hours of the canon. But in 1888 the canon was brought into conformity with the law.

Clergymen now say that unless and until the canon is so varied they will not marry anybody between 3 p.m. and 6 p.m. This notwithstanding the statement of the Archbishop of Canterbury that, since steps were to be taken to vary the canon, clergymen might "safely" perform the ceremony during the extended hours.

In the archbishop's words, to get the canon varied is "a long, tedious, and cumbrous business." It involves an address to the King, and other formalities.

FIND ESCAPED LUNATIC ON ROOF OF VESTRY

Jumped 20 Feet From Hospital —Captured Hour Later

Manchester. — After leaping to liberty through the glass of an upper window of the mental section of Crumpsall Institution a male patient had one crowded hour of freedom, during which he narrowly escaped death by electrocution.

He was captured a mile from the institution, barefoot and clad only in a shirt and flannel dressing gown, on the vestry roof at St. Mary's church.

The man was being conducted by an attendant along a corridor on the first floor of the institution when he suddenly dived through the panes of a window, falling 20 feet to earth amid the broken glass. Pursuing attendants soon lost sight of him.

Later he was seen running toward the electric railway line. The driver of a train shouted to him and the man paused in the act of putting his foot upon the live rail, charged with 3,000 volts. Then he jumped over the rail.

Scrambling over a wall into a goods yard, the fugitive climbed a fence, ran along a path and disappeared. A few minutes later he was found on the vestry roof and allowed himself to be recaptured.

TOWN WON'T RETIRE ITS WOMAN "CRIER"

Sixty Years Old, She Carries Fifty-Pound Mace

Chertsey.—Britain's only woman town crier, Mrs. Mary Anne Blaker, has reached retiring age. But Chertsey won't let her retire.

So, pointing out that the mace she has to carry on ceremonial occasions weighs nearly half a hundredweight, she says: "Well, they might buy me a car."

Mrs. Blaker took over the duties of town crier for Chertsey from her husband when he went to the war. On his return the village asked her to continue, and her husband consented.

Her official uniform is of blue and scarlet, and she has to carry a bell and mace when on duty. Her job is to advertise fairs and important functions, and also to collect market tolls.

"I have just turned sixty," Mrs. Blaker told me. "I feel it is time I took a rest. I have walked hundreds of miles 'crying' in all weathers. But if Chertsey wants me to carry on, I suppose I must."

HONOR "PEARLY KING"

Unveil Monument to Henry Croft, Worker for Charity

London.—One of the most unusual monuments ever placed over a grave was unveiled in St. Pancras cemetery.

It was a statue of Henry Croft, the original Pearly King, who died four years ago, after collecting more than $20,000 for charity, and it was an exact replica of him in his Pearly King attire.

Hundreds of people watched the procession of Pearly kings and queens, princes and princesses who had come from all parts of the country for the ceremony.

A crippled Pearly king, who arrived late, accompanied by a nurse, hobbled up the long drive with the aid of a pearl button-studded stick.

'NANA' FILM LAWSUIT GOES ON, COURT RULES

Zola Children, Claiming Settlement, Desired to Drop Action

Paris.—An attempt by the children of Emile Zola, famous French author, to have their suit against Samuel Goldwyn, producer of the film Nana, based on the novel of the same name, dropped, was successfully opposed by the United Artists Co. in the Paris civil tribunal and further hearings ordered.

Through their counsel, Alexandre Zevaes, the novelist's heirs, Dr. J. Emile Zola and Mme. Denise Leblond-Zola, requested that the case be closed because a settlement had been reached out of court on their charges that the film version did not respect the original work and was "idiotic and naive." M. Zevaes declared the heirs were satisfied because the film had been withdrawn in France.

The United Artists Co., representing Goldwyn as his distributor, refused to accept M. Zevaes' version of the dispute, asserting that Nana had been removed from Paris screens only to make way for other pictures. Mme. Suzanne Blum, counsel for the film company, said she had sent the heirs a summons several days ago, in which she informed them that they had sold the film rights "with authorization to make any necessary modifications" to Goldwyn for 200,000 francs, and that if they wished to halt the showing of Nana they would have to return the money.

Mme. Blum stated that the novelist's heirs had not replied to the summons.

The United Artists Co. insisted that it wished to maintain the case in court and requested an opportunity to plead its cause. The judge ordered the case postponed.

USED ARM AS GIBBET TO HANG OWN TWINS

Mother Condemned to Die for Crime

Rennes. — Murder of her twin daughters, three years old, by hanging them from her apronstring, Mme. Marie Hongrel Cournee was condemned to death here after her conviction.

Her crime horrified the audience that crowded the courtroom and a vengeful murmur arose when in replying to Judge Le Marchand's question, "Why didn't you kill your third child?" she replied, "I forgot her."

May Day last year, traditional festival of children, she killed the children as they were playing in the kitchen. She took first Germaine on her knees, made a slip knot out of her apron-strings and passed it round the child's neck. Then, for ten minutes, she held her arm out as a gibbet from which hung her child. A few minutes later Marie Therese, who had played around and watched her mother, died in the same fashion.

ROOMS OF HOUSE IN TWO COUNTRIES

Pity Customs Men Chasing From Parlor to Kitchen

Katowice. — Patrolling the Poland-Czechoslavakia border in Silesia is no sinecure, take it from the guards and customs officials stationed there.

Here the smuggler can, in many places, walk into the front room of a house and be in one country; as soon as he walks into the kitchen, he finds himself in another country.

Along the 210 miles of one of the most complicated frontiers in the world, there are no fewer than 353 items of real estate divided in two by the border. In Ruda Slaska, a town of Polish Silesia, the frontier passes at the edge of the town, a few feet from the last row of houses.

LOVER STEALS GIRL ON WAY TO ALTAR

Bride-To-Be Admires "Bold" Methods and Will Marry Him

Saagene, Norway—A young man waited patiently outside a house here. His eyes were fixed on the front door...Suddenly it opened—and a radiant bride appeared on the threshold. Behind her was the bridegroom.

They were about to enter a waiting motor car to drive to the town hall for the wedding ceremony when the watcher stepped forward.

The bride got into the car, but before the bridegroom could follow her the young man pushed him violently aside, jumped in, and ordered the driver to start.

Before anyone could stop them the car had driven off. The police were informed, and that evening they ran the pair to earth at Horten, some miles from Saagene.

When the bridegroom reached the scene the girl refused to return with him. She told him that the young man was a former suitor, and she so admired his bold methods that she was going to marry him.

BLAME PEAT FOR FIRES

Believe Heath Damage Due to Smouldering Deposits

Godsiming.—An underground peat fire, which has been smouldering for weeks, and is endangering a great area, is believed to be the cause of another Surrey heath fire.

"These fires have been smouldering for weeks," Lady Leigh, wife of Sir John Leigh, said, "and they are untraceable until they break through."

UNDERTAKER KEPT MONEY IN "TOPPER"

Charwoman Jailed for Stealing Cash From "Silk Hat" Bank

Brussels.—"A woman with a long tongue, piercing eyes and light fingers," was how the prosecuting counsel described a charwoman charged at the Antwerp correctional court with several thefts of money.

Marie was her name and she was 28 years old.

During an interview with an undertaker's wife, the prosecutor stated, Marie noticed that the cash was kept under the undertaker's silk hat, placed in a hat-box standing on the top of a wardrobe. She accepted a post as domestic servant and at the first opportunity disappeared with the money.

Postmen in Belgium have commercial bills to collect as part of their day's work, and when a postman's wife wanted a charwoman Marie was on the spot. She found out where the man placed his morning's collection while he proceeded with his afternoon duties and she absconded with about $1,150, most of which she is said to have spent on drink.

She was given 18 months' imprisonment and fined $20.

COUNTESS APPEALS SENTENCE

Paris.—Countess von Ledebur, nee Gladys Olcott, an American by birth and now the wife of an Austrian nobleman, appeared before the 15th Paris correctional court to appeal against a sentence of a month's imprisonment for preventing her first husband, Capt. Waddington (grandson of a former French ambassador in Washington) from seeing their three children. Judgment was postponed.

PARACHUTE-JUMPING 'THE RAGE' IN RUSSIA

Girl, Champion Jumper, Recruits Youth for Clubs

London.—Russia is making a bid to become "the world champion parachute country."

An official statement issued in Moscow says that already thousands of young men and women have become qualified parachutists and it is expected that by the end of the year "1,000,000 young people will have been trained for the parachute jump."

A young woman named Silvina has been proclaimed the champion jumper and she is now employed as a "recruiting" officer, giving exhibitions of parachute-jumping all over the country. It is stated that 360 clubs of parachutists are already active.

FINE TRIBE FOR MURDERS

Young Warriors Slew to Obtain Blood for Ritual

Nairobi.—The government of Ken. has imposed a fine of $4,500 on five clans of the Samburu tribe in connection with a series of "ritual" murders of other natives.

For two years young warriors, anxious to shine in the eyes of the girls of the tribe, and to obey the ritual which commands them to dip their spears in blood, have speared members of other tribes.

Twenty such killings occurred last year. The Kikuyu tribe has been the chief sufferer.

A young European, Theodore Powys, whose headless body was found two years ago, and whose skull is supposed to have been given to the Samburu witch doctors, is believed to have been an early victim.

The fine, which amounts to 36 cents per head of the tribe, is likely to be collected in the form of cattle and used to compensate the relatives of the murdered men.

MAN WEDS ANOTHER AS NOTE UNDELIVERED

Girl Loses Breach of Promise Case When Lover Exonerated

Marseilles.—Losing her action for breach of promise, Mlle. Adrienne Roche has been told by the court that her only chance of recovering is to sue the minister for posts and telegraphs!

It seems that her lover, Marcel Lesueur, wrote her a letter making an appointment for the following night, and when this was not kept he took it as a slight, and left the town without seeking an explanation.

That was four years ago, and Adrienne was without news of his whereabouts until she learned of his marriage a little while ago to another girl.

She immediately started proceedings for breach, but while the suit was in its preliminary stages the postman delivered the letter of four years ago—that "Ghost of the Post" that had been responsible for the break between the couple.

The explanation given was that the letter had become wedged in faulty wire inside a wall-box in which it had been posted.

The post-office disclaimed all responsibility for any unpleasantness, while expressing regret, alleging that there had been remissness on the part of the sender in not seeing that the letter dropped straight into the box.

The courts have just ruled that there was no contributory negligence on the part of the lover, and that in the absence of a reply to his letter he was quite entitled to conclude that his sweetheart was not sufficiently serious to justify him going on with his promise to wed.

REV. H. B. NEAL INDUCTED INTO UNITED CHARGE

Large Attendance at Impressive Service in St. John's Church, Campbellford.

VISITING CLERGY.

Rev. Dr. J. Semple Preaches While Rev. W. G. Woodgear Gives Charge.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 30 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Before a large congregation that gathered in St. John's United Church, Campbellford, last evenig, the Rev Harold B. Neal, of Belleville, was formally inducted into the pastorate of the church, the service being conducted by the Rev. F. G. MacTavish, minister of the Seymour United Church circuit, who put to the minister and congregation the necessary questions, the congregation signifying their choice of minister by standing. The Rev. Mr Neal pronounced the benediction, the congregation meeting their pastor and his wife at the close of the service.

The service was very impressive, and attended by many members of other congregations, including the three resident ministers of the town. The choir, under Albert Hazel, organist and choir leader, led in the musical portion of the service, an anthem being included in the program.

Rev. Dr. Semple Speaks.

The sermon for the occasion was preached by the Rev Dr. James Semple, of Belleville, who prior to giving his text, congratulated the congregation on their choice of minister, saying that he was one of the brightest of the younger ministers of the Conference and a personal friend of his. Mr. Neal, he stated, had been a member of the Belleville Board of Education, and had taken a keen interest in the life of that community, and he prayed that his coming to Campbellford would be a great spiritual uplift to the congregation and community.

The Church was the theme of the Rev. Dr. Semple, what it should be in the twentieth century. The first was that it should be a worshipping church, he pointed out, deploring the fact that church architecture to-day did not tend to make churches beautiful either inside or out, saying that the appeal to beauty was one of the most important appeals to man, and that no place should appeal to man's beauty more than the church.

The church must be a teaching church also, he said, taking into consideration every phase of teaching; it must be a church which exemplifies what a church really is, and it must be made up of those who are seeking righteousness instead of safety, and he concluded, the church of to-day must have a deep concern to help all.

The charge to the minister and congregation was given by the Rev. W. G. Woodger, of Cobourg, who spoke very highly of the new minister and his wife. He felt some diffidence, he stated, in speaking to the congregation, for the relationship between the minister and his people was very intimate. He felt, however, that the primary need of any body of Christians who form a congregation, was that they should remember what they are, and not let the machinery of the organization of the church stand in their way. They were banded together in the common love of Jesus Christ, and they should feel their minister was a fellow Christian with them. "I want you to accept your minister on that basis," he said. He wanted the congregation to trust their minister, and then co-operate with him; to accept his leadership in a spirit of co-operation; just to be patient with hs foibles; and to encourage him.

And to the new minister, Mr. Woodger said he hesitated to speak, for her knew him and his work too well. Two terms were applied to the calling, he stated: Minister and Pastor. Pastor, meaning shepherd, was a good word, and the minister had to remember that he was the shepherd of all kinds of people; he had to go after wandering sheep, be patient with them, and bring them back to the fold.

And speaking of the term, Minister, which means servile, he declared that there was no finer compliment paid to a minister, than was paid to Christ, when it was said that "He went about doing good." He should be the friend of his people, for all times. His preaching should be of God, and his sermons applicable for every area of life, his messages practically facing the realities of life.

Following the service, the brethren of the cloth partook of a delightful supper at the Clifton Tea Rooms.

Bank Bandit May Be Prison Fugitive

WINNIPEG, June 30. — (CP) — Echoes of a three-year-old escape from a Florida chain gang were in the air here today as police delved into the past of John Ercheeson the self-styled road surveyor and resident of Halifax, N.S., was linked by fingerprints with a jail-break at Raiford, G., where, as Judy Gordon he was serving a life term for murder.

Ercheeson was taken from a westbound train here last Tuesday on suspicion of being the bandit who robbed the Portage Avenue Branch of the Royal Bank of Canada here a week ago and escaped with $3,200. Detective Frank Cafferty, who made the arrest, noticed a strong resemblance to the "messenger boy" Zandit who raided the bank after gaining admission with a fake telegram.

Meanwhile telegramms to United States police authorities at Washington and fingerprint specimens brought replies indicating he was wanted for questioning by the prison commission in Tallahassee, Fla. for breaking loose from the Raiford chain gang on Jan. 30, 1933.

Losses of fertility from farm manures may be prevented by the use of litter, watertight floors, covered manure pits, and by getting the manure into the land as quickly as possible.

REV. C. LORD VISITS APSLEY MISSION

Farewell Sermon Preached by Rev. W. F. Riding.

APSLEY, June 30 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Rev. Christopher Lord, who was for nearly twenty years in charge of the Apsley Anglican Mission, leaving there in 1914, spent the week-end in the village, accompanied by Mrs. Lord. On Sunday he went with Rev. C. A. G. Spence to the four churches of the mission, speaking at each, and renewing acquaintance with the older members, by whom he is well remembered with great affection and esteem.

The Rev. W. F. Riding preached his farewell sermon at the United Church on Sunday evening to a large congregation. Mr. Riding left for Pontypool this week, where he will be stationed after a stay of two years in Apsley. The Rev. Mr. Porter of Lakefield has been appointed in his place and will begin his ministry on Sunday next.

Efforts are being made to resuscitate the local brass band, and with several new members joining from the camps, promises to be a success. Mr. E. A. Blackwell is bandmaster; Rev. C. A. G. Spence was elected president at the reorganization meeting, and Mr. R. G. Hazlewood secretary-treasurer. The first practice was held at the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening.

The first presentation of "talkies" in Apsley wac given in the Parish Hall on Thursday evening, under the auspices of St. George's Church and attracted a full house. The majority of those attending had their first experience of talking pictures, and enjoyed the entertainment immensely.

MORE PHEASANTS SEEN THIS SEASON

Good Hatch is Reported in County of Northumberland.

COBOURG, June 30.—The pheasants in Northumberland County are said to be greatly increased in number this year, due to the favorable dry season for hatching. In many cases flocks of a dozen or more young birds have been seen following their parents through the fields. The farmers state they are not in favor of the slaughtering of these beautiful game birds in the fall of the year, as has been permitted by the game laws the past few years.

The welcome showers of late have been a great boon to the stimulating of the hay crop, which looked very poor before the rains arrived, but now a fair yield is assured. All grain has been benefitted and farmers are happy with prospects of good crops.

The apple men in this district advise the early crop will be only about 50 per cent. yield. The outlook for late apples is said to be poorest for some years.

HEPBURN TO GET FAIR DEAL

tario may present the facts to him and appeal to him to protect us," he said.

"I'm a Tory but I don't think we should dictate to Mr. Hepburn what he should do," declared H. D. Cleminson of Wellington. "Why say he is wrong before he does anything? Let him do what he wants to do. I believe he will hang himself quicker if we give him a show."

Do As He Wants

"I would believe the people at the polls gave Mr. Hepburn the right to do as he wanted," said P. J. Daniel of Tilbury to general "oh's," with many inflections, from the audience.

"We should have a heart to heart talk with Mr. Hepburn," put in J. C. Elliott of Ingersoll. "From what I know of him he is an informal sort of man, and we should have an informal sort of talk with him, impressing upon him the importance of the matter he is dealing with. When this severe attack of inflamed electionitis has subsided, we should be able to put our cards on the table and receive sympathetic consideration."

Con. James Simpson of Toronto urged that the fullest delegation possible from the organization should wait on Mr. Hepburn and incorporate his ideas in an amendment to a resolution by Harry Kirwin of Scarborough that a committeee of seven interview the government. The amendment, which was passed with Mr. Kirwin dissenting, empowered the executive to make an appointment with the government when the time was deemed suitable.

Oshawa to Withdraw

The passing of the amendment closed two stormy business sessions, which were, in the words of J. J. Gibbons of Toronto, "charged with electricity." A protest against the manner in which the association conducted business was voiced by F. L. Mason of Oshawa, who said that he would recommend that his municipality retire from the association.

Fred Newman, Picton, honorary vice-president, occupied the chair at the sessions of the O.M.E.A. while W. R. Catzon of Brantford, the president, supervised the A.M.E.U. meetings.

BEHIND the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, JUNE 30—

The Hollywood chorine is the wise-cracking match of her Broadway sister. Several nights ago, Bill Rankin took one out and the name of a conceited actor came up.

"Yeah," snapped the girl. "He's the kind of a guy that would expect to join the navy and let the world see him."

needed any more evidence that Alice Joyce and Clarence Brown are a devoted married pair, the director has furnished it.

A licensed transport pilot and one of the film colony's most inveterate aviation enthusiasts, Clarence is giving up flying because his bride of a year doesn't share his pleasure in the sport.

"Alice has been up with me hundreds of times and although she has never made a word of protest I could tell she was terribly frightened every time," explained the director.

So Clarence is selling his new plane, which was the apple of his eye, and will buy a yacht as a present for his wife.

of the new yacht harbor and with Nick Stuart's beach and tennis club due for an early opening, the trend of movie play-spots turns increasingly beachward. Newest project is the town's swankest night club which Roland West will open in the next two months. It is on the coast highway between Santa Monica and Malibu and will represent the last word in luxury. The one-time director and United Artists' producer already has opened a sidewalk cafe on the ground floor of the building.

WHIMSICAL BILL FIELDS

exhorts all actors not to pay any attention to favorable notices. Years ago in London, a reviewer wrote: "It is unfortunate that William Hazlitt is not alive to give his critical comment on Mr. Fields, as he once did on Indian jugglers.

Fields rushed out to get Hazlitt's book.

"I read the darned thing over a couple of times," he says, "and suddenly realized I was a genius. Here I had been going out and doing things by instinct and all the time they were beyond ordinary mortals. The more I read it, the prouder I got of myself — and the worse I juggled. I got to thinking about co-ordination and none of my tricks would work. I got fired. Finally, I threw the book and clippings away, decided I wasn't a gift from the gods after all and went back to work."

REV. J. R. TRUMPOUR IS INDUCTED AT IMPRESSIVE CAVAN SERVICE

Stress is Laid on Work of Service in Ministering to Charge.

SEVERAL SPEAKERS.

CAVAN, June 30 (Examiner Correspondence).—The induction of the Rev. J. R. Trumpour as pastor of Cavan Circuit took place on Thursday evening in Cavan United Church.

The Rev. Mr. Kemp of Havelock conducted the service.

The Rev. Mr. Wilkinson of Warsaw and the Rev. Mr. Ferguson of Keene delivered inspiring addresses to the people and minister.

Mr. Wilkinson spoke from the text, Pslam 37: 4-5, "Delight thyself also in the Lord, and He shall give thee the desires of thine heart. Commit thy way unto the Lord, trust also in Him and He shall bring it to pass."

Mr. Ferguson, in his opening remarks, defined the great work of preaching, as "service." "Christ came not to be ministered unto but to serve."

Both stressed the great need of co-operation between pastor and people, in the work, as well as dependance on God's guidance.

HOUSE STRIVES TO END SESSION

of Hon. Ernest LaPointe, former Minister of Justice, and Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, admitted it had merit although he did not believe there was a general demand for the change throughout Canada.

Doukhobors Considered

The Doukhobors, their habits and their merit, as citizens, came in for review when a section disfranchising them in British Columbia and several western members strongly objected on the ground it was a bad principle to make a provincial statue the basis of a federal enactment, that the Doukhobors were fine people and good citizens, except for a small faction; and it was wrong to disfranchise any group because of religious convictions.

Hon. Ian Mackenzie (Lib., Vancouver Centre), J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg, North Centre), Hon. W. F. Motherwell (Lib., Melville) and George McPhee (Lib. Yorkton), were strongest in objecting to the ban on Doukhobor votes.

W. K. Esling (Cons., Kootenay West) and Grote Stirling (Cons., Kootenay East) who represent districts in which nude parades and Doukhobor demonstrations were common occurrences, recently took a different view and strongly supported the ban. They pictured the Doukhobors as an undesirable group, defiant of the law and not the least interested in assuming the duties of citizenship and the franchise.

Royal Commission

After a holiday of several weeks the House of Commons committee on price spreads and mass buying will emerge as a royal commission to continue its probe into Canadian business and industry if the committee's report is adopted. The report was presented yesterday by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce and chairman of the committee.

It is expected one of the first things the commission will do when and if constituted is visit the Maritime Provinces to study the fishing industry.

Limitations of the interest-charging powers of small personal loan charging powers of small personal loan corporations will be imposed under a bill approved in the House on motion of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett. It would limit total charges to two and a half percent a month and in introducing it Mr. Bennett suggested Parliament might well deal with the whole question of small loans in a systematic way at an early session before the business of money-lending got too well established in Canada.

No immediate change in the law governing radio broadcasting was proposed in the report of the Radio Committee adopted by the House yesterday. The present radio law will continue and the present commission will remain. The committee, however, decided a general manager might be able to handle broadcasting better than the three-man commission. The government is urged to study the question of radio during the recess with a view to making any necessary changes next year.

A COMPLETE Printing Service LOW PRICES

WAGES KEPT DOWN FOR MOVIE BABES

Even at That Five-Year-Old Shirley Cooper Gets $150 and Baby Leroy $100.

HOLLYWOOD, June 29 (C.P.)—Contrary to popular belief, salaries of movie babies are not so enormous—as Hollywood wages go.

Primarily this is so because the studios put them and other young hopefuls under contract and then see them fail to register. Hence the small starting salary and the option contract system.

True, Jackie Coogan earned a huge fortune, but he is the outstanding exception. Coogan's astute parents arranged "tie-ups" and endorsements for Jackie which are said to have netted him a cool $500,000 in addition to the $2,000,000 the movies paid him. They even sold his life story to a syndicate for $18,000.

Five-year-old Shirley Temple, one of the three current child stars, now gets but $150 a week and it costs her parents well over two-thirds of that wage to keep her in pictures. If she lasts another year or two, her salary will be automatically increased several times.

Baby Leroy is getting $100 a week, twice as much as he was paid a year ago when he made a hit as Monsieur Baby in Chevalier's "Bedtime Story."

Jackie Cooper, who is growing rapidly out of the "cuteness" that made him a star three years ago in "Skippy"—presaging the end of his career before so very long—is now getting $1,200 a week. Salaries of the children in the Gang Comedies, from which Jackie was graduated, average about $100 a week.

Strawberry Social Is Decided Success

Social Event Held Under Auspices of Ladies' Guild of St. George's Church.

The strawberry social held on St. George's Church grounds yesterday afternoon and evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Guild was a decided success. The perfectly ideal weather drew out a large crowd in the evening, and the lighted grounds presented a gay scene. A booth where ice cream with strawberries and cake, soft drinks, candy and home cooking could be purchased kept the ladies in the tent busy for the greater part of the evening. Mrs. Warren, president, as general convenor was assisted in the tent by Mrs. Farthing, Mrs. C. Cole, Mrs. J. McWilliams, Mrs. J. Houston. A table of plain and fancy sewing was in charge of Mrs. H. Wood, Mrs. P. Malsch and Mrs. A. Thomas. Mrs. J. Huxley was in charge of tickets at the entrance, the ten cent admission charge entitling the holder to a free ice cream cone.

The Peterborough Rangers Band, under the direction of Sergeant Patterson provided a delightful program of music, every item being well received and loudly applauded.

The numbers included were as follows: "Silent Heroes," "Welsh Airs," "Old Spinning Wheel," "Fairy Dream Valse," "Something about a Soldier," "Let's all sing like the birdies sing."

Bandsman W. Greaves contributed the vocal solo, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," and responded to an encore with "A Perfect Day."

Rev. J. L. Hughes expressed appreciation and thanks to the Rangers' Band for their kindness in being present and providing such an [illegible] of vice is proved by the enjoyable program.

HENRY SMITH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, June 30. — The funeral service of the late Henry Smith was held in St. Johns church on Wednesday afternoon, at 2.30 p.m., with a large attendance present.

Rev. W. J. Creighton, M.A., officiated, and spoke of the lesson of the resurrection, which we have annually in the death of the flowers in the autumn and their coming up in the spring. We are assured by our Lord of the resurrection of the body. He paid a tribute to the staunch loyalty and kindliness of the late Mr. Smith, who had so long lived in Lakefield, and who when living near Warsaw, was church warden in St. Mark's for a number of years, always loyal in his relations with his church and his friends.

Two hymns were sung and the Nunc Dimittis, as the cortege passed down the aisle at the close of the service.

The pall bearers were Messrs. F. C. Crawford, F. G. Erskine, J. Lemay, F. H. Richardson, J. W. Ridpath and G. H. Spence. Interment was made in the Lakefield cemetery.

The late Thomas Henry Smith was born in Dummer Township in 1850, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith, and resided there all his life until he retired from his farm and removed to Lakefield in 1906. He married Annie Deen, of Dummer, who with two daughters, Mrs. W. J. Abbott, and Mrs. S. E. White, survives, him. He was a devout and faithful churchman, regular in attendance, until the infirmities of age made it no longer possible. While a member of the parish of St. Marks, Warsaw, he occupied the position of church warden for years. He was a kindly man, upright in character and highly esteemed.

Among those from out of town who attended the funeral were:—Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Larmer, of Millbrook, Mrs. John Deen, Sr., Mr. John Deen, Jr., and son Earl, of Indian River, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. W. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Edwards, Mrs. T. Miller, Mr. Stewart Miller, and Misses Margaret and Sarah Miller, Mr. John Rose and Mr. Alex. Canada moved up from seventh to fourth place among Great Britain's sources of imported bacon in 1933, and, excepting the Irish Free State, represented the only appreciable source of Empire supply.

Fascism Started in Italy Spreading Throughout Europe

DAY IS COMING WHEN BE FORCE IN CANADA ALSO

Exclusive Series Reveals Status of Fascism in Italy.

HOW IT OPERATES

Shirted Policies Are Spreading Rapidly Throughout Europe.

The danger or hope (whichever your political or economic persuasion) of Fascism in Canada is as real as in any other nation. Observers have stated many times the United States is showng a definite trend toward this system of economics; England has its powerful Lord Rothermere and his chain of papers campaigning for Fascism, and its strong Fascist organization headed by Sir Oswald Mosley. Canada can, therefore, scarcely escape.

Italy is the home of Fascism. There it has had the longest time to develop and show results. Because of this, Fascism, what it means, how it affects the people and industry, its successes and failures, is best studied in Mussolini-land.

The editors of Fortune magazine, alive to this economic trend, have made a thorough analysis of Italy—a more complete and understandable account of which has never before been published to the best of our knowledge. Through Central Press Canadian, largest Canadian newspaper feature organization, The Examiner presents exclusively a summary of Fortune's analysis in a series of articles of which this is the first.

By following these unbiased articles daily in The Examiner, readers will gain a clear understanding of a system which, in opinions of the keenest political students, will eventually either be practised or felt in Canada.

Phalanx upon phalanx of police block off a whole section of Rome, surround the Royal Opera. The police have no need for officers. All have withdrawn. There is but one order of the day and it cannot be changed. The leader of the party and the head of the government is in session with his grand councilmen and other cardinal Fascists. They are not to be disturbed.

The date is historic: March 18, 1934. To the rostrum bedecked with golden fasces, strides Il Duce. The mighty torrent of oratory he looses on that memorable occasion comes to a climax with a stirring pronuciamento:

"Since 1929....Fascism has become universal....One need only look about him to see that the principles of the past century are dead. We admit unreservedly that they had ther period of fecundity and grandeur! But it is over.

"Those who would check the course of history, those who would arrest its movement or stem its tide have been overwhelmed. The political forces of the last century—Democracy, Socialism, Liberalism, Freemasonry — are spent....The trend is toward new forms of civilization, both in politics and in economics. The state is resuming its right and its prestige as the sole and supreme interpreter of the needs of society."

The Italy of 1934, feels vastly proud because so many powers, great and small, have paid Fascism the compliment of imitation, continues Fortune.

Everything For State

Count the Fascist shirt tails flying triumphant over Europe. They fly over Germany. They flaunt from the arctic to the Black Sea across Finland, the Baltic states, Poland, and Hungary. The Turks have a dictator-president, consciously Fascist and on cordial terms with Benito Mussolini. Bulgaria, in which Il Duce planted considerably more than an Italian queen, has just threatened to run up the black shirt. Albania is a Fascist pocket piece. Austria has gone the whole hog, adopting not merely Fascist state proper, but Il Duce's pet corporative state. And the far east too is trying states called Fascist. Imitative Japanese, tired of playing parliament, now play at Fascism, even unto the buying of some thousands of black shirts. Slant-eyed centurions dream of making their son of heaven not less than emperor of the east—a Roman title presaging Tokio as the new byzantium.

"Everything within the state." Mussolini has shouted from a thousand rostrums. "Nothing without the state. Everything for the state."

Must Support State

It is particularly difficult for Canadians and Americans to grasp this Fascist concept, this idea of totality in the state.

We know that the Italian people have no choice but to support the state and we thereupon think that by this fact, the Italian people are enjoined from the full expression of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, and that they ought to resent it even if they don't. This is a confusion, and we can only get over it if we anesthetize for the moment our ingrained idea that democracy is the only right and just conception of government.

Founded on Hegelian Theory

The concept of the state upon which Fascism is founded is nothing new in political theory. It reached its highest philosophic expression in the neo-idealistic school of German philosophers led by H[illegible]. In the Hegelian doctrine the state is not merely everything—it enjoys Godhood. The individual, separate from the state, possesses no more function or reason or validity or life outside the state that one cell of the body divorced from the body. The individual asserting himself against the state, is, in this totalitarian theory, as ridiculous as a body cell asserting itself against the body—when it does, the result is a cancer to be extirpated.

Mussolini's state is Hegel's state. Even his corporative state is a modern adaptation of the Hegelian conviction that the political representation of individuals is nonsensical—that representation belongs instead to the functional units or civil society and not to mere geographical groups. The fierce uncompromising Hegelian state is the show that Mussolini is running. Mussolini's state is the total state.

The King

That a discussion of the total state should begin with the king is a good demonstration of the state's totality. Not that the king is so imporant but that it is philosophically desirable that there should be one. The one there is, is Victor Emmanuel III. Italians will never forget that his House of Savoy united Italy after more than a millennium of strife and division. The king is small. About five-foot three. It is characteristic of his majesty, a keen, hard king, that he judged correctly Fascism's chances of coming power and privately received Mussolini four times in the year before the march on Rome.

The Dictator

Mussolini has no desire to get along without Victor Emmanuel because the throne is one of the forms of government that the dictator has no desire to destroy. Let it be understood that Mussolini is a dictator in the fullest sense of being the man who runs the show. In this he is not unique. What is unique about Mussolini is the fact that he appears to be solving the problem of how to creat a succession without creating a dynasty. Mussolini will some day have a successor—but that successor will not need to be another Mussolini to retain what Mussolini has accomplished.

The Grand Council

First of Mussolini's new agents of government is the grand Fascist council. Remember that besides being Il Capo del Governo, Mussolini is also Il Duce del Fascismo—the all too utterly obeyed leader of Italy's only party. Mussolini consults the grand council on matters of state as well as on matetrs of the party. In the first case their "advice" (which is really a decision and which is usually Mussolini's decision) goes to the Italian cabinet, and in the second case it goes to the national directorate of the Fascist party. In either case, it gets instant results.

But suppose somebody shoots Mussolini? That, after all, is the big question, particularly if the shot should be fired before the total state has had the chance to crystalize itself. And to help answer it is the grand council's highest function.

Upon the death, resignation, or disappearance of Benito Mussolini, the grand council is empowered to submit to his majesty a panel of three names from which to choose his successor. This panel has already been chosen. Needless to say, President Benito Mussolin of the grand council presided when the choice was made.

The Party

Since the party and the state tend to merge, as indicate above, the structure of the party must now be considered along with the structure of the state. The reader knows Mussolini. Let him meet the No. 2 Fascist, steel-muscled Achille Starace, secretary of the party and of the grand council.

Secretary Starace nominates and Il Duce appoints the secretaries of the provincial federations of the party. These secretaries meet as the national council or party forum and report on the atttiude of the masses and other matters of moment throughout the real to the national directorate or party cabinet. From the secretaries who form the national council depend lesser provincial secretaries; from them in turn depend the local secretaries who head the local Fascist centres throughout all Italy.

Some 3,500,000 children and young folk of both sexes belong to the Fascist youth organizations considered by Il Duce the supreme factor making for permanence of the Fascist state. As they grow up the keenest youths are admitted to the "M.V.S.N." or volunteer militia for national security. This Fascist militia is in fact the party's army.

Two Million In Party

Adult members of the party, including the 398,000 militiamen who are its armed core, number about 2,500,000. The ranks are now closed to adults (except by dispensation of Il Duce) and Fascists, therefore, have in Italy somewhat of a monopoly. They are frankly chosen ahead of non-Fascists by the state's labor exchang es, which have almost a monopoly of jobs. They are preferred by the state in picking pedagogues, and only Fascist are elected to the chamber.

The party oath, solemnly sworn before a membership card is obtaunde, binds every Fascist "to obey the orders of Il Duce without discussion."

Was Once a Socialist

But, above all, Italians are never allowed to forget (and readers should not) that their modern state is a revolution. Mussolini was for years the hottest Socialist revolutionary in all Italy. His expulsion by the Socialist party for urging that Italy enter the war was denounced by both Lenin and Trotsky as the greatest mistake Italian Socialism ever made.

"Mussolini—a great pity he is lost to us!" exclaimed Lenin speaking to a delegation of Italian Socialists. "He is a strong man. In Italy he would have led our party to victory."

Revolution is still the breath of life to Mussolini. He declared not long ago that most revolutionists start as 100 percenters and grow less revolutionary, but that the Fascists had started as 50 per centers and are growing more revolutionary.

The Senate

There are 347 senators of whom eight are royal princes—automatically senators when they come of age. Other people can only get in by royal appointment, which is for life. It is bestowed to honor men like Marconi and Agnelli. In a sense senatorship now approximates peerage, for Il Duce and Il Re are agreed on a policy of making almost no more nobles—the world being notoriously too full of Italian counts.

The Chammber

Every now and then Il Duce says: "The chamber has never been to my taste." In law, parliament has far more power than the Fascist grand council. In fact the grand council decides, in a manner to be specified later, who shall be nominated, and, therefore, who shall be elected to the chamber of deputies.

The totalitarian state appears at this point to be an ingrowing circle of dictatorship, decidedly compact. It is broadened and extended by a concept and a apparatus which Mussolini has invented and called the corporative state.

This concept and apparatus fit into the structure of the state at precisely the point we have now reached because it is the corporative state that supplies a panel of 800 names (of a total of 1,000) from which the grand council chooses the 400 candidates presented to the Italian people for election to the chamber of deputies.

Soon to Remove Chamber

Forthcoming articles will discuss the economic aspect of the corporative state mechanism of covering Italy with a network of workers' syndicates and employers' associations. Here we must emphasize the political point of the corporative state. That point is that it supplies political candidates not from geographic constituencies, but from constituencies of production. Silk, for example. Or pig iron.

The present chamber of deputies is, in fact, full of gentlemen from lemons and wine and pig iron. That is why Mussolini calls it in his more indulgent moments "the corporative chamber." But he tells the deputies that soon he will ask them to vote the chamber out of existence, conferring its power on the national council of corporations, the highest organ of the corporative state, where assemble, under aegis of the ministry of corporations, the tops of the hierarchies of labor and capital which the Fascist state has built up.

The form of government in Italy under Fascism has been shown in the above article.

In the second article of this series appearing Tuesday, there will be analyzed the law of the land, the internal policy of the government and the answer to the question, "Do Italians like Fascism?"

Be sure to continue this series on Tuesday.

Various Products of the Land of Fascism

The Bay of Naples with Vesuvius in the background.

The annual parade of young facists in Rome.

The leaning tower of Pisa.

The map of Italy shows the various products of the land of Fascism and its position and relative size in Europe. Other showplaces and scenes from Italy are also shown. Naples, a scene from which is shown at TOP, LEFT, is a city within which Mussolini has had quite a struggle, there being an undercurrent of passivity and unwillingness to work for the state in that city.

Fascism and Italy

"Fascism is a religion," says Musscolini. And he also says, "The twentieth century will be known in history as the Century of Fascism." To lock at these two statements and then to realize tha Fascism has all but conquered half of Europe and part of Asia is to wonder whether Fascism is achieving in a few years or decades such a conquest of the spirit of man as Christianity achieved only in ten centuries.

But for all its spread (in sharp contrast to Communism which has so far failed to spread), Fascism remains, like the tariff, essentially a local issue. The locality where the study most naturally begins is Italy—land of its name, land of its most complete development, land of its incomparably greatest orator and master. Therefore this series is devoted to a presentation of contemporary, Fascist-molded, Fascist-fated Italy.

The articles on The State and on The Corporative State are essential to an understanding of the Fascist State. The first of these presents facts and notions concerning its theory, structure, methods, purposes. The second covers a subject which is probably less well known in this country than the geography of Tibet.

Other articles will deal with Social Life, Religion and the Roman Catholic church, and the man who holds the nation in the palm of his hand, Benito Amilcare Andrea Mussolini, ex-Marxist.

Italy's Dictator and Monarch

KING VICTOR EMMANUEL III BENITO MUSSOLINI

Though Mussolini is the dictator of Italy in every sense of the word, he allows the monarchy to exist. Here is one of the rare occasions when the camera has caught the nominal and real heads of Italy together—and smiling at that. They were reviewing a gigantic military demonstration when the photo was taken.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, June 30 (CP) — Eggs continued to advance on the Montreal Produce Market yesterday while butter was slightly easier and potatoes and cheese were steady.

Eggs were generally ½ cents a dozen better, graded shipments being quoted at 22 to 23 cents for A-large, 21 to 21½ cents for A-medium 20½ cents for B, and 19 to 19½ cents for C. Receipts totalled 959 boxes.

The butter market was easier, fresh No. 1 bringing 19¼ to 19½ cents against 19½ cents Thursday. Small lots to the retail trade were 21 cents for solids and 22 cents for prints. Arrivals were 5,128 boxes.

Cheese prices were unchanged. Ontario colored being 10½ to 10⅝ cents, and Quebec cheese, 10 to 10¼ cents. Receipts were 4,773 boxes.

The potato market maintained its steadiness N.B. Mountains selling for 80 to 85 cents per 80-pound bag, Quebec Whites, 70 to 75 cents per 80-pound bag, and Prince Edward Mountains $1 to $1.05 per 90-pound bag.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, June 30. — Keeping in step with Chicago trends again, wheat futures prices turned lower on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday, ending a dull session ⅛ to ¾ cent off. Values reacted from fractional opening gains.

Export demand was again restricted and sales to foreign buyers had little effect on the market. An increase of almost 1,000,000 bushels over the previous week was reported in the wheat exports from Argentina and Australia for the week, these countries clearing a total of 6,750,000 bushels of wheat. It was reported a cargo of Argentine wheat went to Russia and 50,000 bushels to Japan.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 30 — Right-about-face action characterized grain markets yesterday, with price losses common. Cooler temperatures and some moisture relief for the corn belt did much to restrain buying ardor, and to bring about more of a disposition to sell. Much notice was also taken of talk that the government survey showing 15,000,000 fewer pigs this year implied 150,000,000 bushels less corn would be necessary for feeding.

LOST TURTLE.
Has anyone lost a pet turtle? Stray pets in the way of dogs and cats do not attract interest, but a turtle on the loose amblig along Bolivar Street yesterday proved quite an attraction.

The turtle was apparently in flight from human custody for it had a hole in its shell for the fastening of a leash. It was what is commonly known as a "flag" turtle, measuring about six inches across its shell. Needless to say, children in the vicinity were responsible for most of the excitement.

FOUR PRISONERS HID IN GARBAGE WRECKED 2 CARS

William Tracey of Peterborough One of Five Youths to Escape.

FOUR STILL AT LARGE.

Trusty Drove Load of Garbage Through the Picket Lines.

William Tracey of this city, is one of five escaped prisoners for whom a wide search has been instituted, who yesterday afternoon fled from Mimico Reformatory in what is described as "one of the most daring escapes in the history of the institution."

With three other prisoners Tracey hid under a pile of garbage and other refuse and was driven through the picket lines at the institution by Lawrence Burns, a trusty.

The quintet gave Guelph police a wild chase last night, which ended when one of the men, Lawrence Burns was arrested at Galt. The four others escaped after wrecking a car owned by Ernest Robson of Guelph. They smashed another car in which they had been riding between Toronto and Guelph and then stole Robson's car. He saw them pushing it down the road and ran to a neighbor's to notify police. They were seen passing through the city and local officers gave chase, but failed to catch the men. Galt police were notified and met the men on the highway, four made a successful break for liberty but Burns was arrested.

Superintendent J. R. Elliott of the Reformatory stated last night that Burns, whose home is in Windsor, was looked upon as a trusty and was to have come before the Parole Board in July. No faith was placed by officials in the other four escaped men, whose names are given as follows: Alfred Ertell, Brantford; William Taras, Thorold; Frank Sedzura, Windsor, and William Tracey of Peterborough.

City police here were without any information concerning William Tracey said to belong to this city, and provincial police were also uninformed as to the charge upon which Tracey was committed to Mimico.

It was pointed out by police, however, that while Tracey may be a former resident of Peterborough, it is possible that he was convicted in some other place and not in this city.

Magistrate's Court

Pleading guilty to a charge of obtaining a lady's dress valued at $13.68 under false pretences, a Marmora man was this morning given one year suspended sentence. It was stated to be his first offence.

Securing the dress from a George street merchant on Saturday, June 9, the defendant tendered a cheque drawn on the Dominion Bank at Marmora, without having necessary funds to meet the cheque.

Defendant, who was represented by A. L. Elliott, promised to make restitution.

The debris from a busted romance was hidden back of the scene that presented itself to the curious little group of spectators in court, when a local young man answered to a charge of assault occasioning actual bodily harm.

Complainant was the youthful-looking mother of the defendant's former girl friend. Defendant, who was represented by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C, declined to elect or plead. He was given bail in the sum of $500, to appear on Friday next.

SPLENDID PROGRAM IS GIVEN BY PUPILS

Large Audience Hears Students of Miss Eleanor Grisdale in Piano Recital.

Piano pupils of Miss Eleanor Grisdale, L.D.C.M., presented a charming program of music in a Studio Recital held last evening at her home on Cross street.

The affair was interesting in every way and a large audience of parents and friends of the pupils expressed their great appreciation of the skilful playing which evidenced a high degree of careful tuition and technical ability. The majority of the pupils played from memory, displaying a sweet tone and soft, smooth touch.

The rooms were decorated with a profusion of flowers and the little stage was banked with roses and peonies.

Assistance in the program was given by vocal numbers very sweetly sung by Mrs. R. Russell of Cobourg and Miss Phyllis Cowie of Peterborough, with accompaniments played by Miss Grisdale, Miss Josie Veneranda and Miss Anne Shaer.

Mrs. Russell sang, "Little Boy of Mine' 'and "Diane," and Miss Cowie sang, "Play, Fiddle, Play" and "Moonlight Madonna." Much applause greeted the pretty song numbers.

At the close of the program, the pupils presented their popular teacher with gifts of silk lingerie and also served coffee and sandwiches from a table prettily arranged with a lace cloth, rose candles and a bouquet of roses.

The program was as follows: Duett for piano and violin, "Home Coming March," played by Philip Whitnall and Cyril Fontaine; "Liebestraume" (Liszt), by Evelyn Lawless; "Doll Dance" and "Sparklets," by Philip Whitnall; duett, Toreador Song from "Carmen," by Josie Veneranda and Cecilia de Carlonis; "Fairy Wedding," by Helen Eano; "Dorothy" (English Folk Dance), by Peggy Lawless; "Flower Song" and "Valse Blue," by Anne Shaer; "Swaying Ferns" and "Irish Melodies," by Cecelia de Carlonis; a duett, "A Winter Ride" and "Rendezvous," by Helen and Margaret Eano; duett, Japanese Fan Dance and "Dance of the Rosebuds," by Evelyn and Peggy Lawless; 'Bohemian Girl' and "Merry Widow," by Josie Veneranda; "Blue Danube Deltz" and "Soldiers' Chorus" from Gounod's "Faust," by Verda Wilson; duett, "Moon Rocket," by Anne Shaer and Miss Grisdale; "Meditation" and "Dance of the Elves," by Bernie Lynch; duett, "Fairy Dance," by Verda Wilson and Miss Grisdale; Paderewski's Minuet in G, by Margaret Eano; duett, "Broadway March," by Bernie Lynch and Miss Grisdale.

An interesting conclusion to the program was the reading of a brief life of Chopin by Cecelia de Carlonis.

COMMONS BUSY FIVE MONTHS ON MANY NEW ACTS

Session Has Produced More Advanced Legislation Than Any Other.

TAXES LIGHTENED.

New Laws Will Reach Deep Into Life of Every Citizen.

OTTAWA, June 30 (CP)—Members of Canada's 17th Parliament since Confederation relaxed to-day in contemplation of relief from five months of toil that has produced perhaps the heaviest program of advanced legislation of any session.

New laws and regulations, when proclaimed, will reach deeply into the lives of every citizen of Canada affecting their mode of conducting business affairs, their franchise and their financial status, and if the hopes of the Government are fulfilled, will bring a measure of prosperity and stability.

The session brought some lightening of taxes for the masses, and some increase for those considered able to bear it, resulting in an estimated surplus of ordinary revenue over ordinary expenditures of $8,000,000. But this does not take into account extraordinary expenditures such as unemployment relief and railway deficits which contributed largely to the deficit last year of over $100,000,000.

Marketing Bill

As a result of legislation passed at the session now ending Canada will possess machinery for the setting up of a central bank, privately owned but largely government controlled; elaborate regulations designed to facilitate the marketing of natural products; farm mortgage debt adjustment legislation based on a common recognition of all concerned that the agricultural producer must be kept on the land in efficient production free from the constant pressure of debts he cannot pay; a $40,000,000 public works program for relief purposes; a new and simplified system of compiling voters' lists; a new Companies Act to harmonize the corporation laws of the provinces and the Dominion; important amendments to the Criminal Code, Excise and Customs Act, and a long list of less important statutory changes and consolidations.

The flood of oratory and argument in the Senate and House of Commons ran to over 4,000,000 words, filling more than 5,000 pages of Hansard, while there was over 2,000,000 words of recorded evidence in one committee and at least half that volume in another.

Senate Was Busy

The Senate had its usual crop of divorce bills, nearly 40 for the session, but in addition initiated several important and complicated pieces of legislation including the consolidation of the Canada Shipping laws, a monumental task involving the bringing up to date of hundreds of ancient statues and combining them in one volume. The Upper Chamber also initiated insurance legislation of a highly technical kind and carried out several inquiries in committee. Commons committee work was featured by two outstanding inquiries. One conducted under the chairmanship of Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, laid bare the intimate details of big business, while the banking and commerce committee, under the chairmanship of R.B. Hanson, (Cons. York-Sunbury), dealt with the banking legislation.

In the course of its work the banking committee conducted an exhausive inquiry into the affairs of banks and trust companies, heard several noted exponents of financial reform including Major C. H. Douglas, author of the Douglas credit scheme, and G. McGeer, of Vancouver, and investigated the relationship between the banks and the pulp and paper industry.

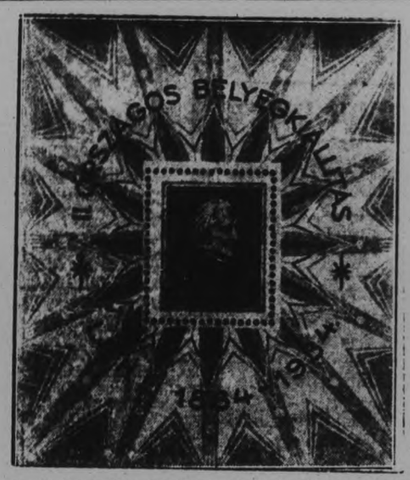
STAMP CORNER

By M. A. BESSEY



On May 4 the jubilee commemorative stamp of the National Philatelic Society of Hungary was issued, as illustrated.

This commemorative consists of the current 20f stamp especially printed in a smal frame, on which appears an inscription describing the event for which this special printed in a small frame, on which printed in photogravure, while the frame is ordinary letter-press printing.

We understand that this stamp was sold only to those attending the exhibition for which there was an admission fee of 70f, thus the actual face value of the stamp may be considered as 20 plus 70f.

From April 20 to 27, Japan held an exhibition in Tokio in honor of the postal aniversary of Nippon. In connection with this event, miniature sheets of four airmail stamps of the current design were made up along similar lines to the stamps of Hungary illustrated above.

The stamps were sold only between the dates previously noted, and not more than three sheets were allowed to each applicant. The total printing was sold completely out by the last day of the exhibition.

Collectors Exploited

Undoubtedly both of these souvenir stamp sheets will turn out to be rather good; but we do not believe governments should be encouraged in going so far from the regular outline, in that they start to print postage stamps in decorative frames for the sole purpose of exploiting stamp collectors.

It is significant that the governments of countries in every corner of the world have long realized that a rich harvest may be reaped through catering to the millions of stamp collectors. We encourage the issuing of beautiful stamps, and all commemorative issues which are justified, but when it comes to making special issues and putting them up in frames, we disapprove. If we are not careful, the next thing we know new issues may be coming through beautifully mounted on album sheets of standard sizes, so that all we have to do is to place the sheet in the proper place in our album. If this ever happens it will be just too bad for stamp collecting. It's hard enough now for the average collector to try to keep up with the best of the new issues, let alone all of them.

Many New Issues

In the April issue of Scott's Monthly Stamp Journal there appears an interesting and informative article by Kent B. Stiles, in which the author outlines the output of new issues during several of the past few years.

Here are the figures for 1933, under their respective headings:

Overprints, 322; air mail, 276; commemorative, 440; inverted, 1; official, 120; parcel post, 1; postage due, 68; semi-postal, 117; special delivery, 4. A grand total of 1,574 different stamps, and this is not complete, there being several late comers which were not on hand at the time of compiling the above figures. Further, records indicate that 1933 was far from being a peak year, most of the previous few years having a much larger total.

Becoming a Racket

From present indications 1934 appears as if it may outdo last year by a good margin, especially among the commemoratives, of which there are quite a number due in the next few months.

It must be admitted that without many of the beautiful new commemorative issues which have appeared of late years stamp collecting would certainly lose much of its present appeal. At the same time, we do not want to encourage these issues to the point where they become nothing more or less than a racket to extract every last penny that can be squeezed out. For instance, in the case of this Hungarian, also the Japanese stamps in these specially printed sheets, the stamps themselves are identical to the regular issues, and if it were not for the frame would have no new appeal. If one wanted to use them to prepay postage, it would require a whitewash brush to moisten the entire outfit, while if the stamps are removed from the sheets they at once become normal, and the frame may as well be thrown away.

In other words, it is nearly time that stamp collectors started to ignore such issues that are so far-fetched, and which are practically worthless when it comes to using them for their original purpose, that of prepaying postage, without ruining their philtelic value as used stamps.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Contrary to most practice and probably to most opinion, founded on observation, it is not necessary to have ugly shoes in order to have healthful shoes. Nor can it be said that any particular type of shoe is a proper shoe for everyone, because feet differ.

The importance of properly fitting shoes to health, happiness and comfort, can be overemphasized. Essentially a good shoe has a few simple requirements. First, as to material—ordinary leather is still the best material. It allows more ventilation, and removes heat from the feet better than any other material such as suede, patent leather, alligator, snake and lizard leathers. Suede is pliable, but non-porous and heating, and the repitilian leathers are very unyielding and harsh.

So far as construction of the shoe is concerned, there are three necessary factors for a good shoe. One is that the sole will be strong and yet sufficiently yielding to allow exercise of the foot and its controlling muscles; second, that there shall be room across the toe line without pressure and without rubbing, and third, that the heel shall be grasped firmly.

The best type of shoe is undoubtedly the high-laced shoe, although women especially have gotten away from this type of shoe with their sandal, slipper and strap shoes. For those who suffer from painful and aching feet, it undoubtedly is advisable to discard the dictates of fashion and return to the laced shoe.

The acquisition of a proper sole is best met by the use of what is known as the 'reinforced shank." There is some discussion as to whether the foot is weakened by snug-fitting support in the shank and waist of the shoe, but the best experience seems to be that for city dwellers at least, pounding continuously on unyielding surface, a shoe which is fairly unyielding in the sole and heel, with a reasonably high heel, is most satisfactory.

The reinforced shank is a specially fashioned leather fiber with a tempered steel reinforcement in the layers of the outer sole. This metal is flexible and, therefore, allows the foot to exercise itself and become strong. This is also gained by the use of a proper filler which softens the surface between the feet and the sole, and allows movement of the muscles and tendons of the foot. A foot that is too strongly supported is likely to become weak rather than strong.

So far as other footwear is concerned, stockings, in spite of all temptation for me to say otherwise, are best made of cotton or wool. Wool is not necessarily heating to the foot. It has absorbent qualities and gives good ventilation. The only disadvantage of cotton is that it soon becomes saturated and soggy with foot moisture. Silk cotton and silk hosiery are not absorbent, and are also rather harsh and irritating to the skin surface. No person who suffers from chilblians should wear cotton, lisle or silk hose.

Garters frequently cause foot troubles, especially for people who have varicose veins, and rolled stockings are among the most villainous devices for interfering with circulation in the legs and feet.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

According to a late cable from Paris, slit skirts are the highlight of the newest summer fashions. And one Broadway wag claims that that's his idea of knee action! Personally, however, I think that those new slit skirts are going to mean more than just knee action. They're going to mean leg exposure, from toe to knee. And that means that the gal who has a hankering for going bare-legged during the summer has got to give her legs just as much make-up attention as she does her face.

In several recent columns, I've expounded the methods of pedicuring and of keeping the legs smooth and lovely. But as yet I haven't touched on leg make-up. And leg make-up really is important in these days of bare-legged shebas.

As I've mentioned briefly before, however, I've just found a new cosmetic for leg beautification. It's a cream that you massage into the legs, and that makes the legs look as though they were fully garbed in the sheerest hose. It leaves a dull finish, and you can even take a swim in the briny without disturbing its smoothness. It comes in two shades, light and dark, to oblige the female who likes her tan, and the gal who doesn't.

This new preparation is very innocuous, and can also be used on the arms and face. To remove it, all you need is soap and water. It comes off that easily. If you go swimming, though, don't rub your skin while drying yourself. Just pat it dry, else you will disturb the make-up.

If you have very sensitive feet, and still wish to go barelegged and use this new leg make-up, there are tiny silk things like the feet of stockings that you can use. If you use 'em, you can be sure that the linings of your shoes will not irritate your pedal extremities. Also, if you find a girdle necessary, and dislike to wear one in the summertime because you like bare legs and fear that the girdle will slip up on you, there are new girdles now made strictly for that purpose. They are like tiny elastic panties and, being light, do not add at all to the summer's discomfort. So if you want bare legs this season, you shouldn't find it at all hard to strut around that way and still retain your usual appeal.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

The question of clothes for the week-end trip is a very important one. If one has the attire suitable for the occasion it will make the holiday just that much more enjoyable.

* * * * * *

To travel nothing could be more appropriate than a printed silk suit. A dress of some very pretty printed material and topped with a little jacket of the same material or a plain jacket of a matching shade.

* * * * * *

A charming little dress of shantung, with three-quarter length sleeves and a little tie and belt is almost indispensable on a week-end trip.

* * * * * *

Don't forget you must be prepared for the dance at the country club —an evening frock of organdie or chiffon is just the thing for the summer dance. One very lovely model for this could be made of organdie with a coin dot, and over the dress could be worn a little crepe that would be so comfortable if the breezes were blowing a little chilly on your return from the pavilion.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterboroughs Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Clarence M. Johnston, R.R. 5, Peterborough, Ont.

Strong Points: Persistence and a genuine desire for knowledge.

Weak Points: Rather given to being pessimistic.

Emotions: Perhaps too emotional for your own good.

Health: Not of the best, nerves seem to be at a tension.

Disposition: Changeable on the slightest provocation.

Temperament: Apt to fly off the handle when distressed.

How to Succeed: Rest as much as possible and learn to eat the correct body building foods, and nerve strengtheners.

Kenneth Arthur Simmington, South Monaghan, Ont.

The writing on your sample for analysis reveals interesting characteristics. It shows that you have business ability and intuition. You should always act upon your own initiative if possible. You are energetic and intelligent. You are sensible and seem to conduct yourself with the utmost integrity at all times. You appear to be a snappy dresser and to have a certain amount of advertising ability. Travel interests you. But, you do not care to be forever 'on the go' do you? You should be most successful in all your undertakings. I would suggest that you enter the scientific field of stock breeding as in farming. Your writing is a peculiar combination of the positive and the uncertain; the reserved and the openhearted, the secretive and the frank. It is almost what one might term "quality." Your mind is keen, and you are too sensitive at times and quite unimpressionable at others. The loopings of some letters suggest music either vocal or instrumental.

Marie Seaborn, R.R. No. 1, Birdsalls, Ont.

Your handwriting distinguishes you as a person with a genuine taste for the unusual. You are most discriminating and desire perfection in all details. Above all else, you demand self expression. Your capital letters denote a passion for constructing works of an intricate nature both with your mind and your hands, and an ambition to make a success of your life. This, you can do, especially if you make a specialty of one line. Your disposition is mild and you are undemonstrative in your affections. Your brain is keen and susceptible to outward influences and occurrences. Your power of mental observation penetrates much deeper and more logically than the ordinary. You are unobstrusvie and carry yourself with the utmost propriety and well bred poise. You dress with care and elegance but modesty is your keynote.

Dorothy M. Bearne, 91 Princess St., Peterborough.

Your handwriting shows that you have a gentle and kind disposition. You are ever ready to undertake leadership, but never by thought, words of deed do you push yourself forward in preference to somebody whom you think could undertake the work of 'the leader' as well as yourself. You are clever and can 'turn your hand' to a number of worthwhile enterprises, chiefly in an artistic sphere. Because of your happy, loving nature and alert mind you always seem to know just what to say in order to cheer another. You are neat and careful in your mode of dress, and do not endeavour to ape the extreme in fashion. You prefer to cater to your own good taste and be individual. In the business world you would do well where attention to detail was necessary, because of your noteworthy characteristic of accuracy. You are honest and trustworthy. Your birthsign is Libra the Balance. You are ruled by Venus. Your most fortunate months are August and December. Your lucky day is Friday.

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

FATE SEEMED UNKIND

South had been losing steadily. Either opponents held overwhelming hands, or every finesse seemed to go wrong when he held good hands. This is a sample of what had been happening to South.

	♠ A 10 6 3 ♥ Q 5 ♦ K 9 3 ♣ 10 5 3 2
♠ K 7 ♥ K J 10 8 2 ♦ Q J 7 ♣ K J 9	W. E. N. S.	♠ 8 4 ♥ 7 6 4 ♦ A 10 6 5 4 2 ♣ 6 4
	♠ Q J 9 5 2 ♥ A 9 3 ♦ 8 ♣ A Q 8 7

Neither side was vulnerable. Bidding went: South, 1-spade; West, 2-hearts; North, 2-spades; East, 3-diamonds; South, 4-spades; West doubled.

The opening lead was the queen of diamonds. Dummy's king covered, and East's ace won the only trick he was destined to make. East led back a heart, and the king won on a finesse. The declarer ruffed the jack of diamonds. South led his queen of spades. West covered with the king. Dummy's ace won the trick. Declarer's nine won the return lead of trumps, picking up all missing spades.

Dummy's queen of hearts won a trick, and the ten of clubs was led and lost to West's jack on a finesse. The declarer ruffed the return lead of a diamond, with his highest spade. He led his ace of hearts. Dummy let go a club.

To gain entry to dummy to lead another club, to finesse his queen, the declarer had to lead his last trump, overtaking it with dummy's ten. The five of clubs was led. The queen was finessed by the declarer, and West's king won the trick.

West led a heart, forcing dummy to ruff with his last trump, but the last trick of the hand was won with declarer's ace of clubs, giving his side the ninth trick, and going down a single trick doubled.

The way things went was merely a sample of what had happened to South the entire session. He had to lose a single diamond trick. He lost a heart trick and both his club finesses went wrong. It was hard luck. The moment South was doubled he knew that he would be down at least one trick. If East had held the missing king of trumps, South would have been down two tricks.

Worse than all was the way North rode his partner about daring to bid game, after both opponents had bid red suits in which South held losers. Did he expect to go game on only five spades to a queen-jack?

Before Monday look over the bidding and play. Perhaps North and South could have done better. Perhaps South should have stopped at three-spades, allowing his partner to decide whether or not game should be bid.

Jobbing Gardeners Appeal To Citizens

Citizens in the west end of the city who have been engaging "jobbing gardeners" to cut their lawns and do other work around their homes possibly have not appreciated the fact that they are assisting a small group of men in earning a living and "keeping off relief."

One of these gardeners told The Examiner to-day that recently some of the householders have cut off the gardeners' work, and are having their lawns cut by boys, in some instances by members of their own families. The Examiner's informant said this work may not mean much to the individual house owner, but it represents the only income of the group of "jobbing gardeners" who feel that at this time they should be encouraged to earn a weekly wage instead of being reduced to the necessity of appealing for relief.

Y.W. Camp At Clear Lake Opens To-Day

The Y.W.C.A. Camp opens for campers to-day and everything is in readiness. The caretaker moved up to camp a week ago. Boats have been painted and varnished and are ready for trips around the lake and quiet exploring around little bays. The house has been thoroughly cleaned and Mrs. Peace has a supply of cooking on hand for hungry campers as they arrive. Miss E. Thomlinson, who will be camp hostess and supervisor, Miss Jane Coventry who has been the popular sports officer the past two years, and Miss Florrie Lugadin, who will act this year as councillor, comprise the camp staff, and will see that every camper has a very happy holiday.

Campers the first week are registered from Peterborough, Toronto, Bowmanville and Rochester.

The second week at camp will be C.G.I.T. week when the program is arranged by the Girls' Work Board of Peterborough—Miss Rhea Clarke, Girls' Work Secretary of the National Girls' Work Committee will be leader. This week provides a real opportunity for constructive training in Bible Study, Leadership, World Interest, Nature Study and Handcraft. Already over thirty have registered for this week.

The Y.W.C.A. Camp with its lovely location, comfortable accommodation, interesting program of sports, swimming and boating, offers a holiday in the great out-of-doors to every girl. The first two weeks are planned specially for juniors but seniors are welcome. The following six weeks are senior camp when business girls plan outings and picnics or enjoy a quiet rest.

Three Runs in 5th Frame Wins For C.G.E. 5-3

INABILITY TO KEEP RUNNERS FROM STEALING AND PITCHING WILDNESS COSTLY TO FOSTERS

Ken Hetherington Twirls Nice Game on Electrics' Slab, Allows 6 Hits.

C.G.E. FIELDING SHAKY.

Harvey Smith and Busby Top Respective Camps in Work With the Willow.

C.G.E. moved to within a game of the league-leading Cogs in an E.P.L. fixture at the Exhibition Grounds last night when they nosed out a 5-3 verdict over Fosters. A three-run splash in the fifth put the tilt on ice for the Electrics after they had been trailing Fosters from the start. Wildness on the part of Dunkerley and inability to keep runners from stealing cost Fosters the game. They were spotted three runs in the first frame but C.G.E. gradually overcame that lead.

Lefty Dunkerley pitched good ball except for streaks of wildness. He allowed six hits in five frames and fanned six, but he also issued six free tickets to first, and allowed base-stealers too big a lead. Ralph Clark replaced him in the last inning and kept C.G.E. from further score. Ken Hetherington on C.G.E.'s slab twirled a fine game to blank Fosters the last six innings, fanning four, walking one and being touched for six hits. His support was shaky while Fosters played errorless ball.

Harvey Smith topped the losers with the willow, the veteran—who caught last night—hitting two doubles in three times up. J. Bailey got two singles in four, while Dinesen and C. Smith hit safely once each, the latter smacking out a three-baser. Busby, with two singles in three trips, was the only C.G.E clouter to get more than one safe blow. Hillier starred at short with eleven perfect chances, with Young and Hetherington also taking care of some nice chances. None of the Foster infielders had much to do.

The losers got all three runs in the opening stanza. H. Smith drew a walk to start it and went to second on Bailey's single. Houlihan's roller caught Bailey at second and he was nipped at first in a neat double-play. Smith taking third. Maudsley reached first on an error with Smith scoring. Scotty stole and went to third on Dinesen's scratch hit. On a peg to second as Dinesen stole, Maudsley raced home, and Dinesen promptly pilfered third, scoring later on another error. Despite hits by H. Smith and Bailey in the second, C. Smith's triple in the sixth and H. Smith's double in the seventh, they could do do more tallying.

Dunkerley was wild from the start but C.G.E. did not break through for a run till hits by McGillen and Mowry with a steal and an out sent one in in the third. Busby got another in the fourth, singling, stealing second and third, and scoring on an out. They tucked it in the bag the next time to bat, nailing up three counters on two walks, an out, fielder's choice, three stolen bases and hits by Saunders and Busby.

Sheep help to suppress the wild carrot in pasture lands. This weed is best kept in check by the regular rotation of crops with thorough cultivation. It is spreading in the clover seed producing districts of Ontario, and is a nuisance along roadsides, waste places, and old meadows.

While oats form the principal and most important cereal crop for live stock feeding, oat hulls are very poor feeding and indigestible, containing only about 3 per cent protein and over 30 per cent fibre.

Canadian Hope For Empire Games

RUSSELL HUNT

Canadian bicycle racing celebrity, Russell Hunt of Toronto, member of the Canadian Olympic team to Los Angeles in 1932, is in line for the British Empire games for the bike meet at Manchester, England, August 10. Hunt recently made a Dominion record for the mile when he covered the distance in 2.17 4-5 in competition at Toronto. He will undoubtedly add to his laurels at the Ontario championship meet at Brantford and at the Dominion championships against all-comers at the Exhibition track, Toronto, on July 7.

GIANTMEN WIN EASILY 7 TO 2 FROM BROOKLYN

Terry's World Champions Make Every Blow Count in New York Struggle.

PIRATES-CUBS TIE.

Keen Mound Duel With White Sox is Won by Indians in American League.

By HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Still the same collection of opportunists who shocked the baseball world with their pennant and world series victories last year, the New York Giants swing along atop the National League Standing still the team to beat for the 1934 flag.

They gave a perfect demonstration of how to win ball games with a minimum of hitting and a maximum of alertness yesterday when they made seven hits good for as many runs and a 7-2 triumph over the Brooklyn Dodgers. Van Mungo, pitching the first seven innings for the Dodgers, allowed only four hits and fanned six to bring his season's strikeouts to an even one hundred yet went out with the score 4-2 against him. A scratch single by Bill Terry, a walk to Mel Ott and Travis Jackson's 11th homer scored three of these runs in the first inning and the other came on a pass, a sacrifice and two wild pitches in the sixth. The Giants' final three runs came in the eighth off Owen Carroll on three hits and a pair of walks. Brooklyn collected 13 hits off Fred Fitzsimmons and Joe Bowman yet could make only two runs.

The victory was a valuable one for the Giants for it enabled them to pick up a half game on the second place Chicago Cubs who fought an 8-8 draw with Pittsburgh, and a full game on the third-place St. Louis Cardinals who bowed to Cincinnati, 7-1.

The Cubs had Pittsburgh trounced, 8-3 after 4½ innings but the Corsairs pecked away at Pat Malone, Charley Root and Lon Warneke until Tom Padden's single drove in the tying run in the eighth. Red Lucas was at bat and Padden was on second with only one out when a downpour of rain forced calling of the game.

Paul Derringer held the Cardinals to seven hits as the Reds batted around for six runs in the fourth and won a 7-1 decision. Bucky Walters' home run in the 10th gave the Phillies a 5-4 victory over the Boston Braves.

Indians Win 5-2

Les Tietje and Mel Harder battled through 10 scoreless innings as the Chicago White Sox and Cleveland Indians battled in the only American League game but the Indians drove Tietje from the box in the 11th, scoring five runs, two of them on Odell Hale's home run, and won out, 5-2. The Sox came back to send Harder to the showers but Lloyd Brown halted the rally after two runs had scored. The victory sent the Indians into third place, with the Boston Red Sox dropping to fourth and Washington to fifth.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Stanley and Nicol Thompson and Farley of Toronto Gain Semi-finals.

Galen Eliminates Somerville in 2nd Round, 4 and 2—One Former Winner Survives.

WINDSOR, June 30 (CP)—Ollie Galen of Toledo, O., yesterday eliminated C. Ross ("Sandy") Somerville, former United States amateur champion, from the Ontario golf championships being played over the course of the Essex County Golf and Country Club. Galen won 4 to 3 to enter the semi-final.

The upset defeat of Somerville, generally considered strongest contender for the title dropped by Don Carrick of Toronto when he lost to Howard Maguire of Detroit, left three Canadians and one United States representatives in the tournaments which will end to-day.

The former Canadian and United States titlist went down before the stubborn uphill fight waked by the Ohio youngster who had to overcome the sting of an eagle and a birdie tossed at him by the dour-faced Somerville at the fourth and fifth holes.

Galen Takes Lead

So successfully did Galen weather the shock of his setback that he was one up going to the tenth tee. Somerville squared the match with a birdie four at the tenth, but Galen came back to regain the lead at the eleventh, and from then home he was never headed.

He went two up at the thirteenth with a birdie four and finished with a spectacular splurge in which he caught birdie threes at the fifteenth and sixteenth to end the match, 4 and 2.

It was Galens' first appearance in competition on a Canadian course. He is a member of the semi primate club—Valleyfield—fourteen miles out of Toledo.

Somerville wrecked his own game with a pair of sixes on the first nine.

Galen, as the lone United States representative, will oppose the veteran Stan Thompson of Mississauga in the semi-final round of the championship flight. Thompson was carried to the twentieth green before eliminating oJe Bialkowski, 19-year-old Windsor Polish boy, one up. The youngster put on one of the greatest battles of the tournament.

Nicol Thompson Jr. of Lakeview defeated Howard Maquire of the Detroit Golf Club one up at the 19th in the second extra-hole match of the title flight. The 25-year-old Toronto golfer reached the 19th green with a drive and an iron. He laid his second dead to the pin and sank an easy two-foot putt for a birdie three.

Thompson will oppose Phil Farley of Cedarbrook, the only survivor of six former champions, who started in the tournament.

Farley defeated Fred Hoblitzel of Lambton, one up, to reach the semi-finals.

OLD TIME TILT ON THE HOLIDAY

Petes and Nationals Will Give Fans Plenty to Talk About in Dominion Day Game.

GAME STARTS AT 3 P.M.

The holiday ball game here Monday, between Belleville and the Petes, starts at three o'clock in the afternoon at Riverside. With the locals battling hard for the league leadership and the Nats coming to life behind some good pitching, this promises to be another nifty baseball battle. And the fact that it is also a holiday game should mean a large turnout of fans, there being no other sports event around town that day.

Knotty Lee was uncertain last night as to what pitcher would get the call Monday. "That depends," he said, "on who we use and how we make out in Oshawa Saturday. I've got to juggle them around these days." He has Bill Calladine, Al Heckman, Abbie Rose and the youngsters who have been working out with the Petes lately, McIlwaine and Barry. He also expects to have Deyell back soon, but probably not by Monday. Jack Williams, being a lefthander, is the logical choice for the Nats' starting hurler here, though Smith and Casey are also available. Regardless of the twirlers used, it promises to be an oldtime Belleville-Peterborough July 1st — though played on the 2nd—fight.

SENATORS IN FOURTH PLACE

Albany Defeats Syracuse 8-1 While Royals Drop 8-5 Decision to Bisons.

BEARS WIN SLUGFEST.

(By the Associated Press)

For the first time since the opening 10 days of the International League season, the Albany Senators held a first division berth today.

Walloping the Syracuse Chiefs yesterday, 8-1, the Senators moved in fourth place, displacing the Montreal Royals who dropped an 8 to 5 decision to the Buffalo Bisons.

Sweeney took charge of the Syracuse club for the time being, pending selection of a permanent successor to Andy High who was deposed Thursday.

Buffalo hammered Warren Ogden out of the box with a three-run drive in the first inning against Montreal and then hammered Orlin Collier and John Pomorski lustily the rest of the way.

The only other game on the program, a night game at Baltimore, developed into the wildest batting orgy of the season as Newark Bears beat Baltimore Orioles 21-15 and increased their lead over second place Rochester to 6½ games. Newark collected 23 hits against 18 for Baltimore.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, our senior ball club, after dropping a game here Saturday to Oshawa because the lads couldn't hit the size of their collars against the old campaigner, Mister Lefty Wills, went down to Kingston Wed. and smacked the Ponies down to the tune of 8 to 5, right on their home lot, so all is forgiven. Sat. the Petes was helpless against Mister Wills' portside benders, and when a hit woulda meant runs, they couldn't move a wheel. Mister Calladine pitched a good game for the home talent, but with no hitting behind him, he never had a chance, and the Motor City outfit win 4 to nil, with the big bat of Mister Matthews playing a very prominent part in the doings. It was just 1 of them games with the Petes looking terrible, like all clubs do when they ain't hitting.

Wednesday's win in Kingston was especially sweet after Mister Lee's lads dropped a coupla games last week. Of course, it's always turkey and dressing to take a fall outa the Ponies, and when the trick is done on the Kingston home lot in front of them hard-boiled Penitentiary City fans, why it's a whole banquet.

The Petes has been having more than their share of tough luck with injuries and what not, and under the circumstances they been doing fine to stay right up there in the race. Monday they celebrate Dominion Day here at home with the Belleville Nats as their opposition, the game being played in the afternoon, and they oughta be a real crowd of fans out to give the lads a hand for battling along the way they been doing in the face of tough breaks. This oughta be a honey of a ball game with Mister Jack Williams, the Indian southpaw ace, doing the flinging for the visitors. Williams just beat the Petes at Belleville, winning 4 to 3, after a 9th inning rally in which he didn't subdue the Lee lads until they had the tieing run on third. The boys are hopeful of taking him here on the holiday, and the battle should be worth going miles to see.

Well, old-timer, that seems to be all that's on the shelves for the present, so let's knock off now?

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

Speedy St. Louis on Kingston Mound Holds Nationals to Six Safeties.

WILLIAMS YIELDS 7.

BELLEVILLE, June 30.—Six-hit pitching by Speedy St. Louis and timely hitting gave the Kingston Ponies their second successive victory over the Belleville Nationals here this year, 2-0. Jack 'Chief' Williams yielded only seven hits and whiffed 11, but the Ponies scored in the second on singles by Smith and Foxton, and Stone's sacrifice. Again in the eighth Smith scored after singling, when Stone doubled. Not one local player reached third. Score:

Twenty rinks from the local club turned out to play for the prizes so generously donated by S. Warne, manager of Warne Bros. jewellery store.

This is the second year that this popular firm has donated prizes of this kind and their act is highly appreciated by all members of the club.

The members are asked to keep in mind that the "Tip Top Tailors' Trophy," to be played for on Monday, commences at 1.00 p.m. Standard time.

It will be played under the 2-1-0 system and each rink will play three 14-end games.

Norm. Henry pulled this one on us out on the greens last night:

He said: "I see the Peterborough Ladies held their annual excursion to Lindsay, yesterday."

Not bad. Norman; not bad.

The secretary-treasurer of our club has asked if we would, through this column, just remind all members—bowling and tennis—that their fees to the club are long past due, and that he would appreciate it if they would attend to this matter at once. We feel that in many cases it is just an oversight, and we also believe that a word to the wise is sufficient.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

By C. J. P.

There's a July 1st ball game here Monday, even if Monday does happen to be July 2nd. Makes not the slightest difference, as it's the annual holiday game between Belleville and the Petes here. Even if they switched the calendar to make thirteen months and ran the new month in in place of July, you wouldn't fool the oldtime fans a bit, nossuh. They'd still say, 'This Hepburnember 6th game between the Nats and Petes is really the old July 1st tussle!" And to make it perfect for the faithful fans of yesteryear, the teams ought to pitch Williams and Heckman! Oy, oy, wouldn't that be the nerts? We don't know who will pitch, but the fact that it's the old holiday game should be enough to pack in the fans in goodly numbers. Starts at three in the afternoon.

Today the boys left around noon to play in Oshawa this afternoon. Since the Dukes high-hatted 'em here a week ago, the world hasn't been the same, and even that lovely win down in Kingston in midweek didn't altogether remove the sting, nor put Knotty Lee's underlip back in place. If the Petes knock the Dukes off the top of the stand today, all will again be serene and chuck full of bliss.

C.G.E. added insult to injury to Fosters in their E.P.L. fracas last gloaming by spotting 'em three markers in the first frame and then putting the clutch on five themselves before the shades of e'en were drawn. If it were raining moonshine, Fosters would find themselves with nothing but a dipper with holes in it! Their luck is like that. Dude Dunkerley, their ace southpaw, was in a very generous mood and dished out a flock of free tickets to first. They weren't supposed to be round-trip tickets, but the Dude promptly forgot to keep his eye on the base-runners so they stole everything but his pants. Fifteen pilfered sacks, by actual count, and if that isn't grand larceny then we're going in for high finance.

• • • • • • •

There's another E.P.L. game listed for Tuesday down there between Cogs and Fosters and this may draw a little better. We've often had a hankering to go see the "wide open spaces", but that wish was fulfilled last night every time we glanced at the grandstand! Honestly, you could have fired a shotgun of buckshot at a hundred yards into the stand and it's seven to two you wouldn't hit moren't three people. Naturally, no one thought of firing a round of buckshot into the stand to try it out—it's bad enough having a crowd no bigger than a hundred fans or so without shooting those few up!

• • • • • • •

Those bantam baseballers are having a whale of a time all by themselves. Well, practically all by themselves, as thir crowds must be elsewhere the nights of games, too. But the kids playing good ball and having mighty close contests, so what do they care about crowds? Last eve, King Edward and Hawks battled to a 9-9 draw, and you've got to give the latter lads credit in particular as they're just a nondescript crew without manager or backer. But good ball players, like bad oyster, just can't be kept down, regardless of what the trimmings are or are not. Incidentally, one kid was tossed out of the game last night for swearing and we hope the umps does the same thing every time. There is no place for profanity in kids' baseball.

The Orphans opened their second-half of the men's softball loop last p.m. with a 6-5 win over Johnston's Tires in a swell game. In line with what we've been saying, those Orphans are going to kick the supposedly-stronger teams around plenty before the schedule is over or we're crazy—well, crasier. Price and Elliott hurled for Deck's lads and must have been good to keep the score that close. Heffernan and Shine tossed 'em across for the Waifs and we're told—we didn't see the struggle—that Shine whistled his pitches across so fast the batters were shivering in the breeze! He fanned a flock and looks like bad medicine to opponents.

Ho, hum. Westclox grab another. Yeah, the Alarm Lasses took a 20-12 nod from Maple Leafs before a flimsy gathering in Armour Field last night, a sixth-inning rally sending Agnes Sturgeon to the shower-baths and bringing Genevieve Mann on the scene. Outfield errors by the Leafs proved expensive while Mary Hall was gunning them in like nobody's business for the Baby Bens. Grace Hawks hit a homer once with three aboard and that didn't hurt the Westclox cause any. Don't tell anybody but chances are even, and maybe five to four, that the Bowl will be okayed for the gals' game Tuesday eve.

Belleville dropped a heart-breaker at home last p.m. to Kingston, the Ponies bunching a few hits to cop a 2-0 verdict. It was a pitching duel between Williams and Speedy St. Louis, the former having the edge. He allowed seven hits and fanned eleven while the Kingston righthander gave but six hits and struck out half a dozen. The Nats are not exactly rolling in four-leafed clover, nor finding many hoss-shoes these days, but you have to mitt Kingston for the way they go on foreign soil, too.

KNOX SENIORS IN LOOP FINAL

Rubidge Street Outfit Takes 7-6 Decision From Trinity Church Team.

A HECTIC STRUGGLE.

Knox Seniors nosed out Trinity, 7-6, in a hectic Church Softball League semi-final game at the Oval last night, the winners now being ready to meet Mark Street in the finals. It was a great battle and is the first time in three years that Knox has been able to break the Trinity jinx. Ward of Trinity had tough luck to lose, only allowing five hits while fanning seven. However, he was wilder than usual, with five walks and several costly wild pitches.

Ferguson started for Knox and held Trinity hitless till the fourth, when two hits and three miscues gave them three runs. After giving three hits and one walk in the next frame, he was pulled for A. Wedlock who immediately wild-pitched two runs in, but held them off the rest of the way, fanning four. Ferguson had issued five walks, while striking out three. B. Masters' scratch hit to the infield scored the winning run in the seventh. The fielding on both sides was only fair. R. Charlton was the only player to get two hits. The teams:

Trinity—McFadden lf, Nicholls ss, Ward p, Ridyard 3b, Mattice c, Clark cf, Davern rf, McBain 1b, Gadd 2b.

Knox—Gatfield 2b, R. Charlton lf, Smythe lf, Archibald ss, McDonald cf, B. Masters c, Ferguson p, G. Masters 3b, Allen 3b, A. Wedlock 3b, p, B. Wedlock 1b, Morrison rf.

King Edward Ties Hawks Bantams 8-8

Hawks and King Edward battled to a 9-all draw in a bantam baseball game last night at King Edward School, darkness stopping the contest in the seventh. A smart struggle was dished up by the scrappy and evenly-matched outfits and it was anybody's game till the umpire decided it was too dark for further play.

Todd started for King Edward and was nicked for eleven safe hits, but outside of the first—when three scored—and the fifth (when five tallied) his hits were spread around. Foster started for Hawks but gave way later to Pammett. They gave the K. E. boys only four hits, but were rather wild and the southenders kept whittling away to sneak a run across at a time and to rally for three and tie it up in the sixth.

Hardy homered but was out for missing first base. Platt, King Edward shortstop, had an unassisted double-play, and Jay's pegging to the bases to nip runners was smooth. Ridley was thrown out of the game for rough language in the third inning. The late start of the contest was the reason for only six innings being turned in before darkness interfered. The teams:

Hawks: McDougall, 2b; Galley, 3b; Collins, c; Foster, c; Cleary, cf; Pammett, lf, p; Baxter, 1b; Weir, rf; Hardy, rf; Robson, ss; Peel, lf.

King Edward: Platt, ss; Todd, p; Ridley, 1b; Lucas, rf; Hopcroft, lf; Lawson, 3b; Berwick, 2b, 1b; Williams, cf; Jay, c; Mackness, 2b.

ORPHANS WIN BY SINGLE RUN

Scates-Harrison Crew Stage Late Rally to Defeat Tiremen 6-5.

WINNING RUN IN 9TH.

Coming from behind in the eighth and ninth innings of last night's game at Central, the Orphans defeated Johnston Tires, winners of the first half, 6-5. The Scates-Harrison crew trailed till the eighth and then they broke loose with a vengeance to score 4 runs and tie the count at 5 all and then pushed over the deciding tally in the last of the ninth.

Jimmie Price on the mound for Johnstons pitched air-tight ball for 7 frames but blew up in the eighth and had to be relieved by Elliott in the ninth. Heffernan who started for the Orphans failed to last two innings and was derricked in the second in favor of Frank Shine a new comer from Omemee who promptly proceeded to set the Deck men down in order for the remainder of the contest. He fanned 8 in 7 innings and walked only 2. He displayed a nice fast ball which had the opposing batters tied in knots.

Allen, centre fielder for the Tiremen was their big hitter with 3 hits out of four times at bat, one being a home run, while Jim Ellis had 2 hits for 4 times at the plate, one also being a circuit clout.

For the winners Cliff Cadd newly acquired catcher was the only one to have 2 hits, the remainder of his teammates being confined to one apiece or no safe blows, although they showed a nice concentrated hitting attack in the last frame when successive singles by Jones, Wilshaw and Weese produced the winning counter.

At the Theatres

AT THE CAPITOL

"MURDER AT THE VANITIES"

This feature illustrates beautifully the old axiom of the theatre: "The show goes on." While two murders occur, one high up in the flies, the other right on the stage, the show keeps going on. Nothing, apparently, is powerful enough to stop the progress of the "Vanities."

It is like coming out of some kind of brilliant, spectacular fantasy to emerge at last from the showing of this feature. It is packed full of action, even to a greater degree than most of these pictures that go in for "a show within a show." And the mystery element continues until the final minute.

Time was when enough excitement could be packed into the unfolding of a musical comedy. Now, it takes a murder or two to tickle the jaded palate of the moviegoer. And the result is certainly exciting and thrilling.

The recipe for the menu of "Murder in the Vanities" is as follows: Take dozens of beautiful girls,—blondes preferred—and put them through their paces in the swirling scenes of a modern,high-powered musical comedy suitable for production on a New York stage. Garnish with plenty of gorgeous and glittering apparel—ostrich plumes, sequin gowns and novelty outfits. Give them a setting of picturesque scenes, and flavor with the music of a glorious man's voice, singing peppy numbers of romantic type. Then spice with two murders, one a private woman detective; the second, a minor star in the show. Kill the showgirl while she is singing her number to the rat-tat-tat of a mock machine gun. And the result is exciting thrills, plus, and then some.

Victor McLaglen (who would ever suspect him of a clerical ancestry?) has the part of the hard-boiled, soft-headed inspector of police. Jack Oakie is as good as usual in the role of the stage manager who takes over the show when the producer falls ill—and has a large time on his first night. Carl Brisson is the star with the superb voice. And Kitty Carlisle has the stellar feminine role. Duke Ellington and his famous orchestra appear in the "Rape of the Rhapsody" episode.

The comedy element in the program is supplied by "Managed Money," and one of Walt Disney's musical Silly Symphonies in color, entitled "Funny Little Bunnies," make a halarious bit of nonsense, picturing the fantastic manufacture of Easter eggs.—Jeanette.

BARNEY ROSS JUST "MAMMA'S BOY"!

Writer Finds Triple World Champion's Mother Still Rates as His Very Best Girl—and He is Proud of Her

By MARIE-LOUISE VAN SLYKE
(Central Press Canadian Correspondent).

NEW YORK, June 30.—Barney Ross is a "mamma's boy."

Yes, sir, the champion of all the welterweights, junior welters and the lightweights of the world is just a "softy" when it comes to his family.

In New York for a few weeks of relaxation after a month of strenuous training for the fight in which he defeated Jimmy McLarnin, Barney is seeing the night clubs and theatres and all that New York has to offer, but he's still holding on to the maternal apron strings. Wherever Barney goes, "Mamma Rasofsky" is at his side, and—she's his very best girl.

"Barney never forgets his home, wherever he is" Mrs. Rasofsky says proudly. "When he come east to train for the fight he called us in Chicago every night. 'I'm homesick, Mamma,' he'd say. My, what a baby," his silver-haired mother opines.

Stays With Mother

When Barney firs, started coming to the top in the prize ring and money began pouring in, Barney wanted his mother to move from their modest six-room apartment on Chicago's west side. Mrs. Rasofsky demurred. She explained to her son that she would be lost without her friends and neighborhood clubs and church societies.

"You take a nice apartment for yourself, Barney," Mrs. Rasofsky told him. "You're doing well and you should live in a better neighborhood to entertain all the fine friends you're meeting.

"And do you know what he told me?" Mrs. Rasofsky asks proudly. "He said, 'I'll never leave you until I marry. I'm not ashamed of where I live. I just thought you might like a nicer place. If you stay here, so do I'."

BARNEY ROSS

The Breadwinner

A devoutly religious woman, Mrs. Rasofsky has brought up her five sons and one daughter, to adhere strictly to the teachings of the orthodox Hebrew church.

"Every Friday night, Barney is home with my other children for the weekly services preceding the Sabbath," his mother declared. "He lives up to the dietary laws and I know it is because he wants to please me."

Since the time Barney's father was killed 10 years ago, when gangsters held up his grocery store and shot him after taking the receipts in the cash register, it has been a continual struggle for Mrs. Rasofsky to keep her children and home together. For a time, until Barney started making money with his fists, she had to place the three youngest in a home.

Wants Lot of Kids

Barney has never forgotten that, and does everything to help his younger brothers and sisters forget that they were once inmates of an institution.

"I'm going to be an uncle for the third time, in a week or so," he says, "and that little fella, (I hope it's a boy) is going to have some money plunked right in the bank as soon as he's born, so that he'll never be in danger of an orphanage if anything happened to his parents."

And when Barney marries, after he quits the ring, for he doesn't believe that marriage and fighting mix, he's going to see to it that his own want for nothing.

"I want a lot of kids, I'm crazy about children," Barney smiles. "But I'm going to be able to afford them. And they'll have the best grandmother in the whole world," he adds, looking affectionately at his mother.

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

CHAPTER 37

The remaining swift glance over the house showed nothing of interest. On hearing of the cause of death, Pointer had at once telephoned in code to his men to hunt very carefully, though unobtrusively, for anything made of green spun glass, or for any fragment however small, of that brittle stuff, warning them to handle it only with gloves if found.

He was coming out of Miss Dundas' room where he had gone back alone, coming empty-handed, when he heard below in the hall what, in that quiet house, could well be described as hubbub. Against the background of the butler's subdued tones something strident and brassy could be heard shouting:

"I willa see her! I willa see her! She shalla see me, al fino!" As Pointer bent over the staircase railing, he saw the butler's plump figure, a still plumper woman's figure, and a youth who apparently did not belong to either, but who, with an air of complete detachment, was petting the house cat. He might have been a customer waiting to be served in a shop.

"Did you ever!" Miss Rainer appeared on the landing above Pointer. "Not that I should have recognized her if I'd met her in a cup of tea!" A door below must have opened noiselessly, for Lady Tait's quiet, clear-cut tones came:

"What is the matter?"

"It's Mrs. Ricci, my lady." The butler's tone implied that by giving that name, a full and complete explanation of any disturbance had been furnished.

What Lady Tait would have said, if indeed she would have said anything, will never be known, for, with a rush, the woman was up the stairs and on to the first floor landing, facing the elder woman. For a second they stood like that. To Pointer, the finest piece of sculpture in the world is Nike, and something of the amazing rush and triumph of that immortal masterpiece was in the stout woman's figure now. Pointer saw that she might be around 45 or a little less. If not handsome, she had a look of tremendous vitality and energy. Stout though she was, she carried her head beautifully, like a stag's. Her bold, dark eyes surveyed the woman before her contemptuously. Lady Tait did not turn away. Eye to eye the two stood, the elder woman's face was faintly paler than usual: her expression was absolutely unreadable. Not so the other's.

"Aha! My fine lady! What do you think of my words now? Eh? Do you now regretta that you turn away like a stone? It was a mistake, eh?" There was something so malignant in tone, and in the face that she thrust forward, close against the other woman's, that the butler below took a step forward. So did the maid above. Pointer was poised on his toes, but otherwise he did not move. The woman fell back a pace and suddenly extended her arms full length, drooping as though something heavy lay across them, something inert, that all but dragged them down. For a second, Pointer had a most vivid impression that across her outstretched arms hung something long and heavy, like a dead body. She stiffened her arms, and by what looked like sheer will-power lifted them higher, and then an inch higher yet, coming another step forward towards the silent woman facing her, and such a sudden tremor passed across the face, so riveted were Lady Tait's eyes on the Italian's outstretched arms, that Pointer felt his breath come quicker. He was certain that Lady Tait, too, saw her stepson's body held out and up to her in that dreadful dragging yet exultant gesture. Then the Italian dropped her arms, and it was as though she flung what they had supported with such difficulty down at the other woman's feet, she stretched her elbows for a second as though to ease some terrific strain and then took another step forward, right up against Lady Tait.

"You thought I was justa talking?" Her English was fluent enough, but she separated two consonants as a rule by a vowel, like all her half-educated type. "Justa talking when I told you that John Tait should nota have thata money, while my son and your son's son goes without one penny of what shoulda be his. I told you you woulda regretta not listening to me. I—I—" she struck her breast savagely—"was turned from thisa door"—she pointed down the stairs—"the door of my husband's mother. I told you to beware. That you woulda suffer! Have I nota kept my word? Have I nota made you suffer by taking John Taita from you? The man you put in the place of your own son. The man you loved as you never loved your son. The man to whom you give the money you refuse to your own son. Ah, now do you thinka I was talking nonsense?" She flung back her head with its short curls and smiled, a cruel smile that showed magnificent teeth clenched tight together, her eyes mere slits of glitter. She was now like a statue of gloating evil, and yet, true evil, like good, is impersonal. This woman was quite the opposite. Suddenly she snapped her fingers. "Aha!" she cried again in a voice that rang like a brass trumpet through that house of death, "who is righta now? Who is the winner, eh? Hudson!" She called into the hall.

"Oh, don't!" It was Mrs. Burnham who now spoke in a pained, horrified voice. She had appeared from close beside Lady Tait, and stood with one hand pressed to her heart. "I don't understand what you are saying, but you sound dreadfully cruel. Not in this house. Not now. Not here!"

The Italian woman turned and stared at her. Something of the fury then died out of her dark face as she looked into the gentle, fair one.

"Who are you eh?"

"I was to have married Mr. Tait next month."

For a moment it looked as though the Italian would burst out afresh at that, but meeting Lucy Burnham's eyes, she said more gently:

"I am sorry you had to suffer. Buta she had to be taughta her lesson. What I say, I mean. What I threaten, I do. I tolda her if she would give all that money to John Taita and none to her own son's son, John Taita would never live to have it. Did I not, eh?" She whirled on Lady Tait who was staring at her with a look of horrible apprehension on her features. At last, even her mask was beaten down. "And I tolda him the same—that I woulda preventa his ever getting it."

"How did you prevent Mr. Tait getting the money?" Pointer asked. "I am a detective officer in charge of the inquiry into his murder."

She turned to him, exultant fury still in her face, her eyes like a madwoman's. "How? Finda that out! If you can. But you never will be able to! Never! Again I tell you the truth. You can find out what a killed him—possibly—but never, no never, how I killed him!"

"Mama!" came a voice from the floor below. The young man had detached himself from the cat and was now coming up the stairs in his turn. The butler hurried after him. Pointer could have told him not to worry. No young man in so tight-fitting a coat, with so high a collar, could be dangerous until he shed or burst his bonds. The young man, moreover, had an effeminate face and smelled heavily of scent.

"But, mama, why are you so?" he asked in weary exasperation. "Why are you always so?" The tone was plaintive.

"Mouse!" his mother hurled at him. "Sparrow! Chicken! I have avenged us both. As I told my mother-in-law my dear mother-in-law, that I surely would. Aha!" Apparently Mrs. Ricci used that exclamation as a war whoop for she turned again to Lady Tait.

(To be continued.)

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, July 1

Sunday's horoscope holds testimony of great prospects of advancing the interests with employers, superiors and those in power and authority. These may be approached with confidence, as they will be disposed to confer favors, benefits, promotion or other signs of confidence. But in other affairs be on guard against fraud, treachery or subtlety. Secrecy and an element of chance seem to pervade the private affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which there there may be many signs of favoritism from employers, superiors or those in high places. There may be promotions, honors or other marks of confidence, but in private affiliations it might be wise to be alert to duplicity or intrigue. Secrecy may add confusion to existing conditions.

A child born on this day may be of a sunny disposition, popular in society and with those in places of power, but perhaps leaning to subtlety or intrigue in its dealings. It may be sentimental and emotiona..

For Monday, July 2

Monday's astrological forecast is for a lively and eventful day, with particular activity in all pertaining to writings, publishings and publicity, although labor, industry and increased possessions are under benign sway. These excellent prospects should not be imperiled by a tendency to rash, impetuous, quarrelsome and passionate conduct. Self-restraint in all affairs or provocations is enjoined.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very lively and promising year, with a particularly active state of affairs in all pertaining to writings, publishings, promotions. A sign of increased possessions or gain through such, but a tendency to rash, impulsive and quarrelsome conduct should be subdued.

A child born on this day should be talented, steady and industrious but should have early training and discipline in self-control.

For Tuesday, July 3

A fairly fortunate and happy day is the augury based on the prevailing lunar configurations. There may be a minor change, travel or removal, but this seems to be concerned with personal interests. However, employment has an aspect that suggests diplomacy in dealing with superiors or those in authority, as well as fellow workers. The day's accent may be found on domestic, social or romantic activities.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a fairly auspicious year, excepting that there may be some friction or hazard in employment. There may be a removal, change or journey, but all purely personal relationships seem to be in line for pleasant and active times. New friends may contribute to these.

A child born on this day should be very popular and much in demand in social, domestic, romantic or artistic engagements. In employment it may not be so happy.

Fliers Forced to Land in France

Playing Politics

By H. G. M.

War scare after war scare has come to us out of Europe during the last few years, but none of them, luckily, have been anything more than scares. Some have been successfully handled by the League of Nations; some have just fizzled out, being, perhaps, nothing more than good "copy" on the part of some newspaper; others, and perhaps these have been the great majority, have slowly died away, or at least faded out, for they were never anything else but propaganda on the part of a European government that desired to raise the nationalistic feelings of its people or distract their attention from internal affairs. Each of these scares has been a potential world war. Outside of Europe there has been one threat; though there was never really any thought that the world would go to war over it—there was little prospect of spoil to be won, and too much prospect that it would not pan out very favorably for the European nations. Japan's action in Manchuria was, of course, the treat; but there was no one who thought themselves strong enough, even thought the League severely admonished her, to attempt to prevent her from annexing territory from an unbelligerent and disorganized neighbor. The only power near the scene, Russia, was ready to do almost anything rather than fight.

Getting Its Affairs in Order.

So Japan took Manchuria and set up a new state under her direct influence; and though the new state is only recognized by Japan, it is doing business and getting its affairs in order. So although Japan took over this tremendous slice of territory and set up a puppet state against the protests of all the Great Powers, and the Lesser ones, too, violated her treaties, resigned from the League of Nations, and in general thumbed her Oriental nose at the rest of the world, no great conflagration took place, or was ever likely to at that time. And yet it is from the Far East, and owing to Japan's foothold in Manchuria, that we shall probably see the beginning of another terrible war into which there is no knowing what countries may be drawn.

But it will not be primarily Japan's sixty million people with their tremendous military power, nor China's four hundred odd million, nor Russia's Red army with its backing of a hundred and sixty million people that will be the means of starting the war; though they will all, doubtless, be the means of carrying it through. Instead, it will be the domestic affairs of a mere handful of five million Mongols about whom we Western people know practically nothing, and, at the moment, care less. In fact, we care so little that in the whole of the vast territory that comprises Mongolia there is not one single newspaper correspondent.

On most of our maps Mongolia is shown as a part of China, and we are apt to think of the people there as being the same as the Chinese; but they are not. The Mongols are a different people, having a different culture, a different language (not a dialect of Chinese, but a separate written and spoken language), and a very different history. They are racially different. Unlike the Chinese, they are a war-like people who have always been used to settling their differences by fighting; after the fight the looser taking his orders and way of government from the winner and appearing to like it.

At the present Mongolia is split up, though the Mongols still regard themselves, and are, a homogeneous race, who are only trying to decide under what sort of government they will get together again.

Conservative Element.

In the south, or inner Mongolia, there is a conservative element that is at present within the sphere of influence of China proper; but owing to the fact the Chinese immigration into their territory has deprived them of their lands the Mongols do not bear any great love towards China, nor do they relish being ruled from a distant alien capital. In the Western end of Mongolia the people come under the influence of Japan in that they are in direct connection with Manchuria in that territory. Both these sections of the Mongols are conservative and are desirous of setting up a separate state of Mongolia under their own government; but the government they would set up is a monarchy under the princes who are still living among them; for Mongolia was at one time ruled by the princes.

Outer Mongolia, the largest section, is not only desirous of setting up an autonomous state, but has done so. Only the government is not monarchical, it is communistic and fashioned after that of the U.S.S.R. In 1921, with help of the Russian Red Army, a 'People's Revolutionary Government' was set up; which was tantamount to a declaration of Mongolia's independence. In 1924 Russia, by treaty, recognized Outer Mongolia as a part of the Republic of China and withdrew her Red Army, but left a Mongolian Red Army in its place. So that since that date the reality has been that Outer Mongolia has acted as a separate state under Russian influence, although nominally it has been part of the Chinese Republic. A small portion did retain its independence, and is now a part of the U.S.S.R. under the name of the Tanu Tuva Republic.

Wish to be United.

Now comes the part that is of vital interest and moment to the rest of the world. The Mongols are not content to stay divided, but wish to be once more united under one government as an autonomous state. The only thing that they cannot decide among themselves is what sort of government it is to be. And as the choice rests between communistic and monarchic there is little chance of compromise. They are a war-like people who have always settled their differences by fighting, in fact they prefer that way to any other. So there is little doubt that Mongol will fight Mongol in the time honoured way to settle the question of government.

In Manchuria the only weak part for defense purposes is the Eastern boundary which borders Mongolia. There are no railways there for the speedy moving of troops, and it is a long way from the sea. It is from this Eastern side that Japan is finding her trouble coming in Manchuria, and with an unfriendly power on that frontier, Japan would not feel very settled on the mainland; but with a friendly power there, especially one susceptible to Japanese influence, things would be much happier, for Japan. But an extension of the Japanese sphere of influence spreading further into the interior is not compatible with Russia's ideas of what should be; nor is it to be expected that she would stand by and see a state already for all practicable purposes set up as a communistic state, being turned back into a monarchy under Japanese influence.

Mongols Will Likely Fight.

It is almost certain that the Mongols will fight to decide their government, but whether they will fight this year, or some time during the next five years is uncertain. It is almost as certain that neither Japan nor Russia will stand by without giving the party they favor some assistance; but where will, or where can that assistance stop? As Russia gets Siberia colonized, the more influence she has in the Far East the better for her. If Japan intends stopping in Manchuria, and there is no reason to suppose that she does not, she will want to feel that it is defensible, and she will not look with a friendly eye on a communistic state under Russian influence bordering on the weakest part of her state when there is a chance that there might be a monarchial one under her own influence there.

What China will do is problematical. Whatever the outcome Mongolia is likely to be set up as an autonomous state. China might support Russia in order to get back at Japan for the slights she has received during the last few years; though she might decide that she prefers an Eastern race as a neighbor, and so support Japan.

With Russia drawn in in the East what is going to happen on her Western frontier.

And so, because a handful of Mongols follow their instincts instead of their intelligence, and because they still play politics with guns, the East may be the spark for the next war. And unless the disarmament conference at Geneva does not beat them to it the Mongols will probably have the honour of firing the first shots in the next big war. The stage is set, and all we wait for is the Mongols to say when the play will begin.

SMITH RECEIVES PARCEL AT SOREL

John Smith, Ocean-going Canoeist Given Welcome by Boating Club.

SOREL, Que., June 30 — John Smith, who is paddling from Peterborough, Ont., to the city of the same name in England in an ordinary Peterborough canoe, arrived in Sorel Thursday night. It was some time before anyone knew of his arrival, however, as he lost his way in the harbor and went up the Richelieu river as far as the new bridge before going ashore.

He then travelled to the city on foot and went to the police station where he was told to go to the Club Nautique. There he identified himself and was given a hearty welcome by the members.

Hyacinthe Guevremont informed him that a parcel had come by Canadian National Express from Peterborough for him and went with him to the office of the express company to fetch it. Later Smith took his canoe to the wharf of the Club Nautique and made arrangements to sleep on board a yacht moored there.

Smith said that he had encountered heavy winds during his trip from Montreal but had little difficulty in making Sorel which he reachtd at 9.30 o'clock. He will left Friday morning at 8 o'clock and hoped to make Three Rivers by last night. He said that his trip to England might take anywhere from 90 days to four or five months. He explained that he would carry about 300 pounds of food and instruments to make the overseas part of the journey. He does not seem to be worried by the possibility or losing his life enroute.—From Montreal Gazette.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet
Or dims the radiant light
No unkind word our lips shall pass
No envy sow the mind;
But each shall seek the common weal—
The good of all mankind

MILLBROOK

"How to eat our way to health may be a hackneyed subject," declared a speaker before a group of women, most of whom were Institute members, last Thursday evening, "but we need to remember that our bodies are the workshops of life, complex creations, filled with the most delicate apparatus through which the work of our spirits is done. Unless these workshops are sound, with their machinery in good working order, our output mentally and spiritually, as well as physically, is poorer than it ought to be."

"First I want to emphasize the fact, which I see illustated in front of me in this gathering to-day, that overweight in middle life is dangerous, and habits of correction should be formed—I suggest that you find out what you should have weighed at thirty, and then keep within a few pounds to carry round, but we have also the faulty habits which caused the conditions. We cannot afford to handicap ourselves so."

"Once we thought medicines would keep our particular workshop in order, and grandmother tried to take health by the spoonful out of a bottle, or by the pellet from a box, and really it is only within this generation we have discovered that health does not come by the dose or the pill, any more than does honesty, or a good complexion, of the ability to make or manage an airplane. Health results from a right habit of choice of air, food, work and play—I suppose I might include clothing. The food plays the largest part and therefore because right eating is essential to right living, cooking takes on a new importance, and our job as homemakers becomes of front rank importance."

"We do not now think of cooking being the casual occupation of untrained and unskilled girls, but a special scientific activity; and while we cannot all take an expensive course in dietitics, we can study and practice until we do it well, just as we would study music, or any other art. The fact that for years families, generally speaking, seemed to worry along on somehow with what they were fed, is no excuse now for the homemakers of Canada to refuse a careful knowledge of their big task—keeping the family and themselves in health, so the handicap of unwise eating, of which the bad effects follow almost at once, may be a thing of the past.

"What shall we have for dinner?" becomes then an important question; entire reliance must not be placed on 'taste,' on what is convenient in the larder, or the ice-box to be quite upto-date, but it must be taste plus knowledge, and this is part of homemaking which is a woman-sized job, not easy, and therefore worth doing. Briefl, summarizing the points with which each mother must make herself familiar we might list these: 1. The personal digestive pecularities of the folk whom you have to feed: 2. How much food each actually needs for his age, weight, and the work he does; 3. What the food groups are so you may offer a balanced diet each day; 4. The importance of the mysterious 'growth elements' or vitamines, and of water; 5. The influence of the mind in helping digestion by way of dainty table service pleasing alteration of flavors and foods, and in particular the habit of regular, cheerful, and serene meal times; 6. The effect which cooking has on different food materials, and how it is possible to spoil them by wrong cooking until they become indigestible.

As human beings what we all wish to know is what to eat, when and how much; we also ask for a warning bell to caution us when we are liable to go wrong. The really sick must have a special treatment but the normal individual is concerned with the food that keeps one well, strong and happy—do not overlook that last word, for eating has much to do with that attitude of spirit. To know what to eat, in what amount, and why, is to have the key to right digestion.

Some of you have been asking for a diet to reduce weight—the first and most important rule is to eat less, and make the reduction steady and gradual. Cutting down on one meal and filling up on the next will never do it. A comfortable way is to eat light meals three times a day, and if you are actually hungry to allow a cracker with a cup of bouillon in mid-morning or mid-afternoon.

I am aware that reducing the amount of food taken in an almost heroic business, and it takes real grit to keep it up. At first we are hungry all the time, but remember that hunger does not mean that the body needs more food, but is caused by the muscular contractions of an empty stomach. Never try to reduce weight by any system that means the use of drugs; weight is flesh, flesh is food, and the only way to reduce is by cutting down the supply, and do not attempt any severe change without medical advice.

A diet to gain weight means that the first general rule is to eat more, especially milk, fruit, and vegetables. Also take all the outdoor exercise you can but do not make it too strenuous. Golf, is good, but walking is better, and get a lot of sleep, laugh and avoid worry. One who needs to gain weight is not getting the most out of her food, and for this remember the part the mouth plays in digestion, hence careful chewing is important. Make it a rule to allow plenty of time for leisurely eating, and the table a jolly, serene, gathering-place for the family."

LIFFORD LINE

Growing Pullets

Since so large a percentage of every poultryman's profit depends upon whether or not the pullets are properly cared for during the summer and early fall seasons, it behooves us to heed what some keen observers in this connection have learned during their travels. They convince us that conditions such as the following will make the securing of profits almost impossible.

Dirty, poorly-ventilated brooder houses with no roosts in many instances, and the brooder stove left in it long after it has ceased to be used.

The brooder house is often left standing in its original location right through the summer, the house which the chicks have outgrown and the ground surrounding it filthy and polluted.

The scratch grain is fed on this filthy ground; feed hoppers and drinking fountains, which were provided for the birds when they were baby chicks, are still doing service. They are empty most of the time and one would think that an expensive experiment were being conducted, with a view to ascertaining just how long young birds can survive under the worst possible conditions. Few chicks can long survive under such conditions and any that do are useless as winter egg producers.

Such conditions as these are largely responsible for external and internal parasites and most of the other diseases from which poultry are suffering to-day. No matter how good the chicks were originally they cannot thrive under such conditions.

Another exceedingly bad practice as we have seen it so often is failure to separate the young cockerels from the pullets just as soon as their sex can be distinguished. The males worry and harass the females, preventing proper development even when other conditions are better than described above. Unless we are quite indifferent to the question of profits such conditions must not prevail.

The proper foundation of health and development depends upon a plentiful supply of feed and water, comfortable roosting quarters, separate range for pullets and cockerels, shade during hot summer weather, prevention of insect pests and fresh clean range.

Often in cases where there is no deliberate intention to cut down feed the birds go short of feed simply because the hoppers are too small; they are not filled regularly. We get busy with other activites, hoppers may remain empty for long periods, the same conditions applying to water fountains. The result is that the growth of the bird is checked, they become stunted—they never recover from this. The chicks are ruined just as s a flowering plant that is allowed to go dry for a prolonged period. Application of water may bring about an apparent revival but the damage cannot be répaired.

The chicks should be roosting during the summer in clean comfortable well-ventilated quarters and their is nothing better than an inexpensive summer shelter for this purpose. If natural shade is not available, artificial shade should be provided. Four light posts driven into the ground and laths to construct frames with sacking or burlap, stretched on these frames will provide satisfactory shade.

No matter how clean the houses or shelters may have been at the commencement of the season, they should be regularly inspected, and kept in a perfectly sanitary condition throughout the summer season.

Coops, shelters, feed hoppers and drinking fountains should be moved to new locations frequently in order that there should be no contamination of the ground immediately surrounding them. Inspection of the range should be made daily, in order to make sure that any bird that may have been accidentally killed, or that has died from any cause is not left to decay and be picked at by the chicks. This is often the cause of serious disease outbreak.

The summer is a busy season and many feel that they have little time to devote to their chicks, the result being that profit from other activities is seriously discounted by serious loss as far as their poultry activities are concerned.

HASTINGS PAIR 55 YEARS WED

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Wilson Celebrate Wedding Anniversary To-day.

LONG VILLAGE RESIDENTS

HASTINGS, June 30 (Examiner Correspondence). — Lifelong residents of this district, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Wilson celebrate their 55th wedding anniversary at their home here to-day, June 30. Both are members of old pioneer families and are numbered among Hastings most respected citizens.

Alexander Wilson, the groom of 55 years is a native of Hastings, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson. He was born in Hastings on December 4, 1855, in a little log cabin that stood where Oliver's Garage and dwelling are are now situated. Mr. Wilson has the honor of being the second male white child born in Hastings; the late John Coughlan, who died a short time ago, was the first. Mr. Wilson commenced his education in the good old days, when the teacher depended on a birch stick to keep discipline in their room. Public school at that time was held in the basement of the Methodist Church, with the late James Brown who afterwards became public school inspector for Peterborough County, as teacher. At that early age Mr. Wilson possessed ability to pick up learning very quickly, and in the space of three short years that he was able to attend public school, he picked up more eduation than the majority of youngsters would acquire in twice the period.

Busy as his life was in his early years, Mr. Wilson took time off for athletics. Many a trophy won in running races are valued possessions of this veteran athlete now. The last few years he has turned to bowling as a form of recreation. He is present of the local lawn bowling club at the present time.

Mrs. Wilson, who before her marriage 55 years ago, was Miss Jane Merrils, was born in the Township of Percy on November 23, 1856, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Merrills.

The happy event which this grand old Hastings couple are celebrating took place in Colborne on June 30, 1879. The Rev. Mr. Duncan, Presbyterian minister of that place, performed the ceremony; the witnesses were the late John Merrills, brother of the bride, and Mrs. Annie Fleming, a resident of Hastings at the present, a sister of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson are members of the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and have always taken a keen interest in church activities.

There are two sons, Harold B. Wilson, who has been associated in the hardware business with his father the past forty years, and John C. Wilson of Hastings.

To-day Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will be the recipients of congratulatins from a large host of friends in Hastings and elsewhere.

EULER REFUSES HYDRO POSITION

Reported to Have Decided to Retain Seat in Federal House.

LYON IS SUGGESTED.

OTTAWA, June 30 (C.P.).—Hon. W. D. Euler has turned down the Hydro-Electric commissionership of Ontario, it was reported yesterday in the Liberal lobbies, although the former Minister of National Revenue would not discuss the rumors. The result would be he would remain in the Federal field.

When Premier-elect Mitchell F. Hepburn was in Ottawa earlier in the week, he offered the North Waterloo member the one-man Hydro job. There were conflicting rumors at the time, one claiming Mr. Euler would enter the Hepburn government as Minister without portfolio, the other, he would consider it if the post were divorced from politics. Both rumors probably had their foundations in the uncertainty of cabinet-making.

The refusal of the former Federal Minister was believed to pave the way for Stewart Lyon of Toronto, a director of the Toronto Globe, to take over the Hydro post although this could not be settled here. Mr. Euler himself declined to discuss the matter.

BROWNLEE ANNOUNCES HE WILL RESIGN

Great Slaughter Rumored In Germany

People Are Urged To Put An End To Regime Of Blood

Reichswehr Is Supreme In Germany — Whole Brown Shirt Army Is Disbanded With 63 Of Its Chiefs Executed And Others Prisoners.

CAPTAIN ERNEST ROEHM NOT A SUICIDE CHANCELLOR HITLER HAD HIM EXECUTED.

Hitler Has Openly Swung To The Conservatives, The Junkers And "Big Business" Interests As Against The Mass Of His Middle Class Supporters.

(Copyright by Pierre Van Paassen)

PARIS, July 3.—The Reichswer is supreme in Germany, as the whole brown army is disbanded, with 63 of its chiefs executed and the others prisoners. This means that Chancellor Adolf Hitler has openly swung to the Conservatives, the Junkers and the "big business" interests, as against the mass of his middle class supporters. The latter had looked for far reaching "reforms", which he had promised them, but which the Conservatives opposed.

Hitler has decapitated his own movement, intense excitement reigns in France, and virtually all Europe. It is rumored here that great slaughter is going on in the German "concentration camps" on Hitlers orders, as the guards everywhere are reported becoming "contaminated" with the spirit of revolt.

Italian Press Shocked

Even the Italian Fascist press is shocked over Hitler's turning against his own lieutenants, who had done "terror" work for him in the past, and who expected "reforms", it is not unlikely, however, that the "purging" was done on the adviceof Premier Mussolini of Italy, at his recent meeting with Hitler in Venice. All trains leaving Germany are empty, no German citizen is allowed to leave the Reich. Foreigners declare that all Swastika emblems have been removed, from frontier stations. French, Dutch, Swiss and Scandinavian observers are agreed that this is only the beginning of new difficulties, and that a terrible revolution is in the offing.

The German Social Democratic party has launched an appeal to the German people to "rise and end the regime of blood," and to restore

YOUNG CLIMBER SLIPS TO DEATH

Three Survivors Arrive With Details After Week in B. C. Bush.

BURY VICTIM IN SNOW.

VANCOUVER, July 3 (C.P.) — Three survivors of the jagged peaks of unconquered Mount Waddington returned to Vancouver to-day to tell how their comrade fell to his death while attempting to scale the monarch of the coast range of British Columbia

Alec H. Dalgleish, 27, lies where they buried him in the snow, and for almost a week they have been descending mountain heights, cutting their way through bush and travelling by gas-boat to relate to the family of the young climber the story of his lost life in the scenes he chose for adventure.

The three are: Dr. Neal M. Carter, Prince Rupert, B.C., and Eric Brooks, Vancouver. Both members of the Alpine Club of Canada of which Dalgleish, a Vancouver resident, was also a member, and Alan Lambert, New Westminister, B.C., a member of the British Columbia Mountaineering Club.

Dalgleish fell while they were retracing their steps to find another route at 10,500 feet. Waddington towers 13,260 feet. Dalgleish had relieved Lambert of the lead, and after proceeding a short distance declared there was no possibility of ascent by the route taken.

Fatal Step

He started down, thus taking the last position on the descent. Brooks was next to him, the rope anchored between them over a projection of rock. Suddenly Brooks saw Dalgleish slip out of sight over a bulge. An impact was felt, the rope broke and Dalgleish fell 100 feet to the snow below and was carried down for another five or six hundred feet. He was killed instantly.

The survivors were three and one-half hours in descending to the body which was removed to a location free from all avalanches and buried. The spot was marked and photographed. It was the afternoon of Tuesday, June 24. The base camp was reached at 2.30 a. m. Wednesday, 28 hours after the four had set out.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday were occupied in getting back to Knight Inlet at sea level and through dense bush which last spring's British ski party said was the hardest part of their trip across the Coast Range travelling by launch they reached Vancouber to-day.

Nazi Chief Orders Halt to Special Measures—Regular Trial for Prisoners.

(By Louis P. Lochner. Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press)

BERLIN, July 3 (AP)—Chancellor Hitler boarded an aeroplane for Neudeck, home of President Paul Von Hindenburg, to-night at the conclusion of an important Cabinet session, leaving the disposition of the Vice Chancellor unsettled.

Hitherto the resignation or dismissal of Vice Chancellor Franz Von Papen had been regarded as an assured fact. Herman Wilhelm Goering, Prussion Premier, was slated to succeed him.

May Never Resign

A spokesman for the Propaganda Ministry, asked about the expected Von Papen resignation, said:

"It may, in fact, never become a fact."

"One of our leaders," he said, "has gone outside of Berlin by aeroplane and that may change things. That is all I can say now."

The reference proved to be to the departure of Chancellor Hitler. Almost all day the Cabinet had been in session, presumably considering, among other pressing problems, the matter of the Vice Chancellory.

Meanwhile the Nazi Press Department through its chiefs, issued an official estimate of the number killed during the "second revolution" at "below 60."

The official list, it was stated, will be made public as soon as a few remaining cases still to be judged are disposed of.

127 CANDIDATES TRY ENTRANCE

208 Other Children in the City Did Not Have to Write Examinations.

MEMORIES BAD.

While 127 candidates are writing High School Entrance examinations at the Collegiate this week, 208 Public School and Separate School children have been passed on recommendation, according to Inspector A. Mowat.

In addition to the Entrance candidates writing examinations this week, there are approximately 50 Lower School, 225 Middle School, and 100 Upper School candidates. Not all of the 225 Middle School candidates are required to write.

According to the Inspector a lapse of memory this morning disqualified three young men from writing. Although in possession of the annual departmental examinations time table, the three disqualified students failed to turn up at the appointed time. When they did eventually arrive they offered the excuse that they had forgotten that examinations were to be resumed to-day.

Examinations will be through on Friday of this week for all but the Upper School candidates, who had some other papers to write on the first three days of next week.

FOUR INVOLVED IN MURDER PLOT FOR INSURANCE

Prisoner Admits He and Youth Killed Montrealer at Widow's Order.

SOUGHT $4,000.

Written Confession Claims Woman Admitted Being in Love With Younger Man.

MONTREAL, July 3 (C.P.) — Four persons were held criminally responsible for the death of Nicola Sarao, 59, after a jury today had heard Deputy-Coroner Pierre Hebert call the affair "one of the most filthy and revolting crimes that has ever come into the coroner's court."

The four are Leon Gagliardi, 29, who allegedly confessed Sarao had been killed for $4,000 insurance, Angelo Donofrio, 19, Mrs. Tomassina Sarao, 45, widow of the victim, and Geovannina Theolis, 69, the widow's mother.

The battered body of Sarao was found Thursday on lonely railroad siding near Blue Bonnets racetrack. He had been clubbed and stoned to death.

According to the document presented by police as a confession of Gagliardi, Sarao had been in danger of his life for several years although the actual killing had been planned a few weeks ago.

On the previous Saturday, the alleged confession said, the two men had lured Sarao to the lonely spot but had lost their courage.

He had known Mrs. Sarao for years, Gagliardi is claimed to have told police. She had come to him to get him to write to an Italian magician but had got no "results." newspaper, to have him cause the death of the husband. The woman had sent some money to the mayician but had got no "results." Then she had asked Gagliardi to get her poison, the document said, and he had bought some harmless drug, charging her $5.

Finally the woman told Gagliardi if he wouldn't kill Sarao, she would kill Gagliardi. She promised him $3,500 if he would push her husband under a street-

Twenty-Four Couples Are Wed In June Breaking All Records In Past 3 Years

June was truly the month of brides in Peterborough this year, the month breaking records for the past three years for number of weddings, statistics at the city clerk's office disclosed to-day. Not only did June set a high mark for weddings, but it also set a new year's high for births.

There were 24 couples who wended the bridal path, which is the high record since May, 1931, when there were 30 weddings.

Births totalled 72, which is only exceeded by May, 1933, when the stork paid 76 visits here.

In June last year there were only 38 births and 18 weddings.

In fact this year has seen a marked increase in weddings over the past few years. For the first six months there have been 91, nine more than during the same period last year.

During the same period this year there have been 302 births, 13 fewer than the first six months of last year.

The natural increase in the city's population has been 180 so far this year, the figures disclose.

FATALLY HURT TRYING TO FLAG THROUGH TRAIN

William King Tried to Stop Ottawa-Toronto Flyer.

Train Crew Unaware of Accident Until They Reached Havelock.

HAVELOCK, July 3.—(Examiner Correspondence). — William King, 63-year-old merchant and postmaster at Blairton, was almost instantly killed at 3.55 a.m. yesterday when he attempted to flag the Ottawa-Toronto flier at Blairton station, 4 miles east of Havelock.

Mr. King had brought Ernest Moore, of Kansas City, to the station, and in making an effort to stop the train he apparently stepped too close to the end of the platform planks. He was struck on the right shoulder by the front part of the locomotive and was hurled for a distance of about ten feet, sustaining injuries to which he succumbed almost immediately.

The train crew, unaware that a fatality had occurred, brought the train into Havelock before they received news of the tragic occurrence John R. Armstrong, of Havelock, was conductor of the train and Robert Walton, of Smith Falls, the engineer.

The jury empanelled by Coroner Dr. J. Holdcroft met at 1 p.m. on Monday and adjourned until Tuesday.

TOLD GOVERNOR OF INTENTIONS SATURDAY EVE

Alberta Premier Will Remain in Edmonton After Retirement.

FEW DAYS TO FINISH WORK.

Crisis Precipitated as Result of $10,000 Verdict to Girl in Seducton Case.

EDMONTON, July 3.— (C P)—Premier J. E. Brownlee has informed Lieutenant Governor W. L. Walsh he will resign. In an official statement to the press today the premier said he informed the Lieutenant-governor Saturday night of his intended resignation and asked for a few days to put his governmental business in order.

Mr. Brownlee also announced he planned to remain in Edmonton after his retirement from public life, and that he would place his resignation before the United Farmers of Alberta caucus which is now in session here.

Coming out of the room in which the caucus is being held Mr. Brownlee stated his resignation had been placed formally before the United Farmers executive and members, but that he doubted the caucus would reach a decision in regard to the matter today.

$10,000 Verdict.

A jury's verdict, awarding Miss Vivian MacMillan $10,000 in a civil action against the Premier, precipitated the crisis. The verdict, which also awarded Allan MacMillan, the girl's father, $5,000, was delivered on Saturday night Acting Chief Justice W. C. Ives refused to enter the verdict, and reserved judgment on application of Mr. Brownlee's counsel for dismissal. He was back at his home in Calgary and there was no indication when the Justice would give his decision.

With reports Mr. Brownlee would resign, political observers looked to Hon. George Hoadley as the next Farmer-Premier. He is a veteran legislator, a member of the House since 1909, and a U.F.A. Cabinet minister since the victory election of 1921. Born in England, he came to Canada in 1890. He is 68 years old. Hon. R. G. Reid, 55-year-old Minister of Municipal Affairs, has also been mentioned as a possible successor to Mr. Brownlee. There was talk of a Coalition Government under the leadership of Mr Hoadley—with Conservatives, Labor and Independents having posts in a reorganized Cabinet—but party leaders refused to discuss the possibility of such moves before the caucus convened.

Child Struck Down Driver Speeds Away

One of the worst examples of hit-and-run motorists in recent months came to the attention of city police last evening.

Betty Deal, aged 5, of Oshawa, visiting here for a few days with Mrs. J. E. Fallis, 215 Bethune Street, was walking across Bethune Street at Sherbrooke Street with other children at 9.10 last evening, when she was knocked down by a car. The motorist backed the car into the child, who suffered cuts about the arms and legs.

Having struck the child, the motorist did not stop. Turning off his lights on the car, the motorist speeded over into Stewart Street, but spectators of the accident secured his number, HF-385.

Police said to-day that they believed the motorist was from Lindsay and that investigations were proceeding.

C.C.F. LEADER TURNS GUNS ON PRISON SYSTEM

Royal Commission is Urged by Woodsworth in House of Commons.

PRISON DEBATE.

Who Ordered Shots Fired Into Bucks Cell Labor Member Asks.

OTTAWA, July 3 (C.P.).—A Royal commission to study prison administration in Canada and the causes of crime, was urged in the House of Commons to-day by J. S. Woodsworth, leader of the C.C.F. Among other subjects he would refer to the commission was segregation or sterilization of mental unfits.

"I want to know who ordered the shots fired into Tim Buck's cell," demanded the bearded C.C.F. leader, referring to the former head of the Communist Party in Canada whose cell in Kingston Penitentiary was riddled by 11 shots during the October, 1932, riots. "There were 900 men in that penitentiary. Why was a political prisoner singled out for that intimidation. The whole thing has a very ugly look to me.

He had been informed, said Mr. Woodsworth, the shots fired into Buck's cell came from the outside of the prison. If guards gave the order to fire, he wanted to know if they had been arrested or disciplined. "It is bad enough to flog men, but even in European countries, it is not customary punishment that guards go outside the prison to take pot shots at a political prisoner in his cell."

The penitentiary debate, which held up prorogation of the House last Saturday, was not completed during the morning sitting to-day and will continue this afternoon when Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, will take the floor.

Minister Not to Blame.

"I want to say I believe the Minister of Justice (Mr. Guthrie) is not to blame for the conditions in Kingston," Mr. Woodsworth said, "but there is no other way of getting at the facts than insisting that the

Panties For Years Promised Quintuplets As Reward For Special Portrait Sitting

ALLENTOWN, Pa., July 3 (C.P.). — Northern Ontario's famed Dionne quintuplets have been asked to "sit" for portraits.

If they do, their parents won't need to worry about the supply of baby pants during the quintuplets' years of infancy.

The request for the portrait sitting and the offer to supply the pants were coupled yesterday in a telegram sent to the babies' parents by an Allentown rayon products manufacturer.

The portrait—an ensemble—would be painted by the firm's artist. The "five future patrons" would be supplied by the firm "with panties to last them for years."

Young Motorcyclist Is Instanty Killed Near Reaboro

JOHN FOWLER, 23 OF LINDSAY DIES IN BAD CRASH

Young Motorcyclist Meets Head-on Collision With Oil Truck.

IN VICINITY OF REABORO.

On Way to Peterborough, Where He Planned to Spend Week-end.

LINDSAY, July 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—John Fowler, aged 23 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perth Fowler, 48 Glenelg street, town, was fatally injured Saturday night about 9.30 o'clock, when his motorcycle collided with a British-American oil truck, driven by Robert Myers, town, and formerly of Peterborough. The fatality occurred on No. 7 Highway, a half mile south of the hamlet of Reaboro, and at a point called Kelly's Corners.

Fowler, it is understood, was on his way to Peterborough to spend the week-end with a friend. He had only purchased his motorcycle from a Peterborough dealer about two weeks ago. The oil truck was on its way from Peterborough to Lindsay, and when near the old stone house, known as Kelly's Hotel, the driver passed a car driven by R. M. Chatersworth, Aylmer street, Peterborough. While swinging the truck onto the middle of the highway, the motorcycle loomed in sight and a collision was said to be unavoidable. The noise of the crash was heard some distance. Young Fowler was hurled a distance of more than 20 feet and landed in the ditch. Myers, the driver of the truck, as well as others who had been attracted to the scene, rushed to Fowler's assistance. He was bleeding profusely from terrible wounds in the abdomen and was breathing slightly.

Dr. Earle Called

A message was sent to Omemee and Dr. Earle hurried to the scene. Traffic Officer Massingham, of Lindsay, as well as Traffic Officer Hornick of Peterborough, also arrived on the scene a short while after the accident. Fowler lived only a few minutes after the collision. He suffered a serious concussion of the pelvis, compound fracture of the left thigh, fractured wrist and rib and body lacerations. Dr. Collision, coroner, Lindsay, had the remains of the unfortunate man removed to Anderson's morgue, town, and an inquest was ordered.

The news of the accident spread like wildfire throughout the district, and hundreds of motorists visited the scene, causing a congestion of traffic on the highway. Fowler was a very popular young man and was employed as carpenter with his father.

This is the second motorcycle fatality which has occurred near Reaboro. Two years ago a tourist from Ohio was instantly killed when his motorcycle crashed into an automobile driven by a former Omemee school teacher.

MONKEY TRICKS

KANSAS CITY, July 3 (CP)—Somewhere to-day there's a monkey with a tummyache—or should be.

Mrs. E. E. Davidson walked into her garden just in time to see the monkey gobbling up some green apples. He hastily finished the one he was eating, threw the core at her and fled, chattering as he went.

Gowns From Paris Mid-Season

Courtesy Harper's Bazaar

These three exquisite gowns are taken from the mid-season collections of Paris' famous couturiers.

Lanvin's Tarantelle, left, is in black satin with big puffed sleeves of white organdie won which are appliqued white organdie narcissi. Note the low line of the straight-across front decolletage. This is typical of many satin princesses, very decollete dresses, with added tops or sleeves of dramatically contrasting fabrics.

The evening dress and cape of black silk organdie trimmed with big appliqued flowers resembling sinnias or sunflowers, center, is called Aloma, and is by Lelong. The flower petals are outlined in jet spangles. The exaggeratedly low decolletage in front, the line of which is emphasized by the heavy diamond encrusted brooches joined by links of platinum set with diamonds, from Boivin, is new.

Worth's Mon Beguin is pictured right. It is a black taffeta gown with a Spanish hemline that is shorter at one side of the front to show the white fluted organdie ruffles on the petticoat.

The same organdie fluting outlines the decolletage and makes the little shoulder cape that is trimmed with silver fox. A big rhinestone pansy brooch is encrusted with diamonds.

German Mourns Executed Brother

VANCOUVER, July 3 (CP)—Alvo Von Alvensleben, German citizen, was still sorrowed and puzzled to-day as he read the news from Berlin that his brother Werner had been executed. Interviewed last night his eyes were damp and low-voiced German ejaculations escaped from him when reporters told him what had happened.

He came in from a Dominion Day holiday of watching the horse races at Lansdowne Park, to read of his brother's death. He still hopd it might not be true.

"I don't undtrstand it. Both my brothers, Werner and Bodo, have been close friends of Hitler, and strong Nazi men. If my brother died, he died standing up. We must all die, but I am sorrowful for his wife and children—one son and three daughters."

"You have two brothers?" he was questioned.

"Two were living. Two died in the German army in the war," he corrected.

Von Alvensleben lived in Vancouver from 1904 to 1914. He went to the United States, was a close acquaintance of the present vice-chancellor Von Papen and attempted to go to Germany with Count Von Bernstorff, German ambassador, when the United States entered the war. He failed and was interned. He visited Germany last in 1922.

O.A.R.M. To Present Suggestions Early

PLANTAGENET, Ont., July 3.—(C.P.).—A general council of delegates of the Ontario Associatoin of Rural Municipalities is being considered by the executive committee of that organization, according to F. A. Senecal, secretary. The proposed, which is elaborated in a circular letter to members of municipal councils in the association, is that the convention should be held as soon as possible after the new Hepburn administration assumes power, with the object of formulating and presenting a request for such legislation as the association shall deem needful.

"It is felt that never before in the history of our province has an opportunity of catching the ear of the powers that be presented itself with better advantage," the letter continues. "A new Cabinet, free from all the entanglements and well-beaten paths which long years of office, for any political party in power, inevitably lead to, will hear our well-considered requests. As provided by our constitution, our association is strictly non-political.

"A Traitor"

BERLIN, July 3 (AP)—"The Autobiography of a Traitor" was the title Ernst Roehm, late Chief of Staff of the Nazi Storm Troops, gave his memoirs.

In them he proudly assumes the title "Traitor" as an honorable distinction for one who turned against the "decadent" pre-Hitler Germany to join Nazi ranks.

The last chapter of the book is now being written—not by Roehm—but by his erstwhile Nazi friends, including Adolf Hitler, who called him a traitor to their cause and summarily shot him.

Hindenburg Ill

PRES. PAUL VON HINDENBURG

While the German nation is in the throes of internal strife, its president, aged Paul von Hindenburg is reported gravely ill. Two faction in Germany are at the moment seeking control. The Royalist faction on one hand is opposed by the 'leftist' Nazis. Chancellor Hitler is as yet steering a middle course, throwing his weight on neither side. More serious trouble is forecast should the president, who is the last link with a conservative government, die.

TRUCE RUMORED BETWEEN PAPEN AND NAZI CHIEF

Vice Chancellor Expected to Resign Though Absolved of Guilt in Uprising.

HOUSE GUARD WITHDRAWN.

28 Known Executed in Storm Troop Purging—Catholics Alarmed.

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Copyright, 1934, by the A. P.

BERLIN, July 3.—A truce between Franz Von Papen, vice chancellor and outspoken critic of the Nazi regime, and his superior, Adolf Hitler, was reported unofficially today.

A guard which has surrounded Von Papen's home since Hitler began Saturday to purge Nazi ranks with bullets was withdrawn today.

Further confirmation of the reports was seen in a stern admonishment by President Paul Von Hindenburg that Von Papen, a former chancellor, must not be harmed. Von Hindenburg placed responsibility for his safety upon the Reichswehr, or standing army, now back in a powerful political position.

Despite reports of the agreement, Von Papen is expected to resign. He has been absolved of guilt in the abortive plot against the government, although some of his subordinates were implicated.

Goering, Vice Chancellor?

Hermann Wilhelm Goering, premier of Prussia who acted as Hitler's iron fist in the grim "purging" of Nazi ranks, appeared slated to succeed Von Papen.

A sharp swing by the government away from radical tendencies is expected if Hitler and Von Papen have come to terms.

Other developments in the tense German scene included:

1. The known dead totalled 28 in the ruthless drive against government foes, waged principally in ranks of the storm troops.

2.—A threat that Nazi bullets "would not be spared" when the time is ripe for execution of Catholic priests was voiced at Ratibor by Helmut Brueckner, Governor of Silesia. News of his speech greatly alarmed Berlin Catholic circles.

Hundreds Attend Camp Meeting

Three stirring addresses were delivered by Evangelist Fred. Squires, of Essex, England, to large crowds gathered under canvas at the Pentecostal camp meeting on Sunday in the grove, foot of Green hill.

Rev. Squire took for his evening text the story of blind Bartimeous, stressing divine healing for the sick in body. In a recent meeting held by the speaker remarkable cases of healing had taken place, among them nine dumb people had been instantly healed and began to talk immediately.

Thousands had professed conversion during the past year as a result of the wonderful cases of healing in the Squire campaign.

The evangelist announced he would be praying for the sick in most every service during his stay at the camp meeting.

Mr. Squire expects to tour Canada with his wife, visiting the main cities in Western Canada.

At the close of the evening service, a score or more responded to an invitation to the front of the large tent to be prayed for by Mr. Squire, after which a number gave testimony to their receiving definite relief to the different ailments.

Presentation Made To Hastings Girl

HASTINGS, July 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—The basement of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church looked lovely on Thursday evening, June 28, prettily decorated in a color scheme of pink and white, when Miss Mary Spooner, a popular and efficient member of the Young People's Society was honored by a very large number from the congregation, who surprised her and presented her with a complete set of kitchen ware in green and cream.

Rev. S. H. Hill acted in a most capable manner as chairman. Miss Jean Webb and Miss Evelyn Godan of Norwood sang, "When You and I Were Young, Maggie"; Frances Kennedy contributed several jokes; Miss Madeline Dodd on the piano and Roy Johnson with mouth-organ, rendered a pleasing duet. Then followed the presentation of the kitchen-ware, placed on a decorated table, over which a white wedding bell was placed, having streamers of white and pink crepe paper reaching to the table. An address, voicing the appreciation of the Y.P.S. of Miss Spooner's sterling worth and extending to her the best wishes of the society was read by William Flatman. Rev. Mr. Hill then spoke most kindly of the bride-elect, who has been a faithful member of the church and Y.P.S., and has endeared herself to all whom she has come in contact, and has given generously of her time and talent to all work in connection with the church.

Miss Spooner, in replying, thanked all for their kindness and thoughtfullness, after which a dainty luncheon was served.

Miss Iona MacPherson, was her sister's attendant, wearing a white sport suit, with hat shoes and gloves to match and carred roses.

Howard Wilson of Hastings was best man. The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Miss Elsie MacPherson, the bridal party taking their places under an arch of evergreens banked with garden flowers, including boquets of the Katopa plant (which blooms only once every seven years) from the gardens of Mrs. J. W. McCleary. The table was centred with a beautiful bride's cake, long streamers, starting from a large white bell, and ending at each corner where candles and white flowers were placed. After the signing of the register, a dainty lunch was served. Miss Doris Ferguson and Miss Elsie MacPherson attending, while Mrs. Alex Abar poured tea and Mrs. Albert Hollings assisted in cutting the bride's cake. Later in the evening the bride and groom left for a honeymoon trip to Toronto and Detroit and on their return will reside in Hastings.

D. PAUL MUNRO DIES INSTANTLY IN AUTO CRASH

M.P.P.-Elect for South Wellington Killed When Car Overturns.

TREE IS UPROOTED

Hamilton Woman and Two Children Riding in Car Are Hurt.

HAMILTON, July 3. — D. Paul Munro, M.P.P.-elect, South Wellington, was instantly killed in an auto crash one mile east of Waterdown on Sunday.

Mrs. Margaret Palmer, 821 Main street east, Hamilton; Margaret Palmer, her two-year-old daughter, and Paul Palmer, her son, aged six, who were riding with him, were injured. Little Margaret Palmer had a fractured skull, it is feared. The mother and son were not seriously hurt. Mr. Munro's head was terribly mangled.

The big sedan failed to negotiate a curve on the winding road which leads from Waterdown to the Toronto-Hamilton highway and the car struck a shallow ditch. It continued for a few feet, then crashed into a tall pine tree, uprooting it. The force of the impact tore one side from the machine, tossed it over and the tree toppled down on the wreckage. Pinned against the front seat with twisted metal holding him prisoner, Mr. Munro, who was at the wheel, died instantly.

Although only a resident of Guelph for 13 years, Mr. Munro, through his outstanding ability as a barrister, achieved success to a degree gained by few young men in the province, both in the political field and in his profession, and it was freely predicted in his own riding that he would have been honored with a portfolio in the Hepburn cabinet had he lived to occupy again his seat in the new Legislature.

Born in Portage La Prairie, Manitoba, Mr. Munro was a son of the late John Munro, a widely known minister and later a teacher in Hamilton. He first came to Guelph in 1915 to enlist in the 29th Battery, C.F.A., with which he served overseas. At the conclusion of the war, after completing his law course at the University of Toronto, he returned to this city to become associated with R. L. McKinnon. In 1924 he was taken into partnership in the law firm, and following Mr. McKinnon's appointment to the bench in 1928, continued to conduct the practice himself.

On June 3, 1933, he was one of the youngest lawyers in the province to be appointed King's Counsel, while in October of the previous year he was appointed Guelph's city solicitor in succession to Mr. Justice Kerwin.

have their hands in this conspiracy against the leader (Hitler)."

(The Jewish Telegraph Agency reported Jews had not been molested during the past few stirring days.)

4.—The Storm Troops, until recently all-powerful, were given a significant blow when their press department was abolished.

5.—The Reichswehr appeared to hold a whip hand, with Hitler dependent upon it for support.

6.—Although 200 Storm Troop sub-leaders were imprisoned, Munich was quiet. The city is Storm Troop headquarters.

Death List Withheld

The Government continued to withhold a death list it had promised.

One eye witness said 60 persons were executed in Berlin alone.

Hitler, having announced his mopping up campaign was completed, devoted his attention to pressing political and economic matters.

The leader, who struck vigorously last Saturday to nip an alleged revolt within his once devoted Storm Troop organization, was heavily guarded during his rare appearances in public.

Hitler during the greatest crisis he has faced since he rode into power found time last night to call on King Prajadhipok of Siam and the Queen at a Berlin hotel.

A tense feeling continued to pervade Berlin. The public appeared bewildered and comment was guarded.

A revamped cabinet appears inevitable and it was expected to be a "middle road" one, although definitely antimonarchical. A number of Nazi "wild men," or extremists, were victims of firing squads.

A Jewish telegraphic agency dispatch from Warsaw said Paul Joseph Goebbels, Minister of Propaganda and with Goering one of Hitler's closest aides, would be sent there as ambassador.

Dispatches from Doorn said former Kaiser Welhelm was anxious for the safety of his sons in Germany but they apparently are safe. Authorities absolved former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm and his bother, Prince August Wilhelm, officially, of complicity in the attempted revolt.

Authoritative quarters said no charge will be made against Von Papen. This quieted to some extent alarm which has been widespread in Berlin.

Telegrams of loyalty to Hitler from all parts of the Reich by his sub-leaders were displayed on the front pages of all morning newspapers, together with columns of editorials which praised the chancellor as the saviour of the Reich.

In his Ratibor speech, Governor Brueckner of Silesa said "The priest belongs in the church, not on the street—we shall wait exactly so long until the trick becomes evident, just as we did last week. We will catch all who are against Adolf Hitler.

Brueckner warned: "If it does not suffice to punish one with arrest on the first day, I will have him shot on the third day if he does not obey."

Hindenburg Improves

President Von Hindenburg apparently is rapidly recovering from an illness at Nuedeck. Although grave alarm had been expressed at his condition. The 86-year-old warrior did much to ease Hitler's path when he congratulated him for having "saved the German people from serious dangers."

A number of persons of high position, including ones close to Von papen, have been jailed or executed. Most of the vice chancellor's aides have disappeared. Storm troopers executed in Berlin, it was learned, refused to be blind-folded and died with the famous "Heil Hitle" on their lips.

LARGE INCREASE GOODYEAR SALES

Tire Sales in Half Year 64.8 Per Cent. Greater Than in 1933.

DIVIDENDS EARNED.

The number of tire units produced and sold by Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Canada in the first six months of the present year shows an increase of 64.8 per cent over the same period of 1933, according to C. H. Carlisle, president, in a letter going to shareholders with dividend cheques for the second quarter of this year. Other lines of products manufactured by the Company shows a very much greater percentage of increase, and the Company has materially improved its position in the industry, states Mr. Carlisle.

During the first six months of 1934, dividends have been earned and surplus increased. Earned surplus as of June 30th, after deducting dividends for the six months, stands at $3,069,421, or $713,570 higher than a year ago. In addition, there is a capital surplus of $463,068. There are 598 shares less of preferred stock outstanding than at the same period a year ago, these having been redeemed by the Company. An additional net amount of $336,626 has been added to the reserve for plant depreciation, and other reserves have been built up by an additional $257,790, which is considerably in excess of requirements.

Havelock Albians Win From Smelters

HAVELOCK, July 3 (Examiner Correspondence). — The local Albion baseball team came out of the doldrums on Friday night to win from the fast-stepping Deloro Smelters by a 12 to 8 score. From the outset of the game it looked like another loss for the Albions as the Smelters ran in eight runs in the first three innings without a reply from the clubmen of any kind. The locals then took a brace and notched two runs in the third and three in the fifth. They followed with three more in the sixth and four in the seventh to take away Deloro's lead and backed it up with good fielding.

The outfield in particular made several brilliant plays. It was the first win for the clubmen in three starts. Harry Sexsmith pitched the entire game for the locals' tallied thirteen strike-outs. Fred Callery of the Smelters' outfit was on the mound for the visitors and had only two strike-outs.

LEGION NEEDS HELP.

The Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion, British Empire Service League, is appealing to the citizens of Peterborough and district through the medium of a tag day on Saturday next for funds with which to carry on the organization's most useful work on behalf of ex-soldiers and their dependents.

The local branch of the Legion has a record of good service to its credit that merits community support.

During the last five years it has been successful, for instance, in obtaining over $90,000 a year in pension claims for local veterans, and also in arranging a good deal of medical attention and D.S.C.R. relief grants for ex-service men in receipt of a small pension. As these pensions are all spent in Peterborough and as the D.S.C.R. grants represent relief for the city taxpayers as they take care of veterans who might otherwise have to be assisted through civic taxes, the monetary benefit of the Legion's work is readily apparent.

The organization assists returned men in securing employment, attends all military funerals and carries on other work in aid of veterans, and these efforts all mean expense.

On the other hand, the Legion's revenue has been materially reduced during the depression by reason of the fact that large numbers of its members have been unemployed and therefore unable to keep up their dues.

Assistance from the public is urgently needed, and The Examiner is confident that it is only necessary to call attention to the urgency of the appeal to ensure a worth-while and generous response on Saturday.

JUST ANOTHER HOLIDAY.

Another Dominion birthday has come and gone and once more the failure on the part of the country generally to recognize the significance of the anniversary has been demonstrated.

Dominion Day, Canada's birthday, has come to mean nothing but a holiday, a day to go to ball games or picnics or on a fishing trip—a splendid holiday but with practically nothing to connect it with the country's history or to impress upon the new citizens in our midst or upon the children of the land the fact that July 1 has been set apart to commemorate the bringing together of Canada's scattered provinces into the Dominion we now know.

From a purely Canadian viewpoint, Dominion Day should be our biggest and most important holiday—just as July 4th is the most significant anniversary celebrated in the United States.

We should not be satisfied to have it merely a day off from work; on the contrary, every Canadian community should endeavor in some way or another to stress the meaning of Dominion Day.

Hon. H. H. Stevens made the happy suggestion recently that newcomers to Canada who have been successful in their application for Canadian citizenship should have this honor conferred upon them at a public ceremony on Dominion Day; that would be one way of calling attention not only to what is involved in the national holiday itself but to the fact that citizenship in Canada is something decidedly worth while.

At all events we as a people are making a serious mistake in adopting an indifferent attitude toward our national birthday; to allow it to drift into the status of a mere holiday is to lose much of the benefit that was sought when Dominion Day was set apart for a national celebration.

A NOTABLE SESSION.

So much important legislation was passed during the session of Parliament just closed that some newspaper correspondents have described it as a pre-election session, the inference being that the Government has pushed through this comprehensive program to go to the country on later in the year.

However close to the mark that speculation may be, it is at least a fact that more far-reaching and advanced bills were discussed and passed during the five months of this session than in any other meeting of Canada's Parliament for many years.

Among the outstanding pieces of legislation were the bill setting up machinery for the establishment of a Central Bank in Canada; another was the marketing bill, providing elaborate and drastic regulations for the orderly marketing of Canada's natural products, and farm mortgage debt adjustment laws passed in an endeavor to relieve harassed farmers of some of their burden of debt and keep them on the land as efficient producers.

Any one of these measures would have made the session notable; the passing of all three and, in addition, the approving of a new electoral act, a new companies act of considerable significance, $40,000,000 public works relief program and important amendments to many existing statutes, constituted probably a new record in the extent of major legislation that met with majorly support in Parliament.

Parliamentary committees and a vast amount of useful work, the most spectacular being the investigation into mass buying, trade practices and business methods carried on by the Stevens Committee, which, operating as a royal commission, is to complete its work in the interim between sessions.

Altogether this five months' gathering of Canada's legislators produced a record crop of new legislation, and has proved one of the most fruitful and perhaps most useful sessions in the history of the Canadian Parliament.

DUBIOUS COUNSEL.

Keeping pace with and understanding the Toronto Star's political viewpoint is always a difficult matter.

Only a few days ago the Star in an editorial on the provincial election pointed out that it would be a mistake to look upon the verdict as expressing general admiration for the Liberal leader and his policies; rather it was the expression of general dissatisfaction with the Henry Government.

Said the article: "It was not a sudden admiration for the Liberal party and its new leader which caused thousands of polling booths to reverse the votes given five years ago."

A few nights later, however, the Star had got around to the position that the people voted for Mr. Hepburn because they approved of his personality, his promises and his speeches, and the Star gravely advises the Premier-elect to continue to "be himself."

"Go ahead with your program," says the Star in effect. "Pay no attention to the advice that many of the leading Toronto Liberals may give you. They are Liberal in name only, and if you listen to them you will probably do nothing and get nowhere."

Furthermore, the Star would have Mr. Hepburn continue the role he has played during the campaign and since; the tell-the-big-shots-to-pack-up—I-assume-the-Lieutenant-Governor-is-a-gentleman—he's-out type of statesmanship and not let the responsibilities of office steady his action or guide his utterances.

We are inclined to think that the Star's first appreciation of the situation was the more accurate, and that its later counsel is decidedly dangerous stuff for Mr. Hepburn to listen to.

The simple truth seems to be that, although Premier-elect Hepburn deserves the utmost credit for the vigor of his campaign, a South Sea Islander could have led the Liberal party to victory on this occasion, for the people of Ontario had decided that they had had enough of the Henry Government, and that was all there was to the battle.

As a matter of fact, thousands, not only of Conservatives but of Liberals, voted for Mr. Hepburn with a certain amount of misgiving concerned over many of the things the young leader said during the campaign.

They, in common with the people of the province generally, are now anxious to see Mr. Hepburn get a fair chance to make good, and they are hopeful that the challenge that provincial problems and the responsibility of heading a Government will bring out the best qualities in the new Premier and demonstrate the fact that he has a flair for constructive statesmanship. He has a glorious chance to win through to success, but large numbers of people feel that he cannot do so if he harkens to the advice of the Toronto Star and keeps on talking and acting like a ward chairman, which is apparently the part the Star would have him play.

Dubious editorial counsel and fawning special articles, over-written as only the Star's staff can overwrite when the whole battery from sob sisters up and down as the case may be is sent into action, would seem to be a greater obstacle in Mr. Hepburn's path than the Conservative opposition.

BLOODLESS REVOLUTIONS.

The magnitude of the political turnover indicated in the provincial elections in Ontario and Saskatchewan has been described as a revolution by some writers and the comparison seems apt. If such a result were aimed at in certain European or South American countries there probably would be a great deal of rioting and shooting. A lot of estimable citizens would lose their lives.

This brings to mind the commendable loyalty to order and system which prevails in Anglo-Saxon countries. The people of such nations decide to change their governments, but they do not think of clubs or machine guns in connection with the operation. Instead they have a lot of ballots printed, and they secretly indicate their desires by marking these in favor of a new regime. It all works out very comfortably. When the government in being discovers that the people have changed their opinion and desire a new deal, they do not become violently hostile and call out the army to shoot down the electors. In most cases the vanquished hasten to the headquarters of the victors to congratulate the latter on their success and to wish them good luck. They realize that the boys who have been promoted to the task of running the country will have their own troubles with friends seeking jobs and enterprising promoters hungry for the opportunity to secure franchises to put over some of their pet schemes.

When it is considered that more than four million people were concerned in the elections in the two provinces and that there does not seem to have been a single disorderly incident in the voting, the situation is almost unique. This is especially so for the reason that, during the last few years, there has been some inflammatory talk by people who claimed that the old order in our civilization must come to a prompt end and hinted that it might be necessary to use violence if other measures of reform failed. Those who made that opinion vocal do not appear to have been taken seriously at all by the electors. In fact, the whole population of the two provinces seemed fairly content to stay with the two old parties that have been foremost in politics in this country practically since Confederation.

It must be admitted that Canadians are a level-headed people who are determined to wrestle with the problems of destiny in a most orderly manner. It does not seem possible that anything could excite them to a display of violence with regard to public affairs. Their recent political action, however, is a significant warning to governments that they are not satisfied with the manner in which public business has been conducted. The demand for more businesslike economy in public administration has made an unquestioned impression. The complaint of the overburdened taxpayer has been voiced with unusual vigor. It is a notification to those who have been elected to take charge of administration that it will be a prudent course to lighten the pressure on the treasury.—Sarnia Observer.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It begins to look as if Dr. McQuibban and W. E. N. Sinclair could be safely listed as among the "forgotten men."

The Stratford Beacon-Herald wishes that Mr. Hepburn could take a look at old man Depression and murmur, "He's out."

With the bass and maskinonge season open, Ontario anglers are unanimous in declaring that if there is any better place in the world to live in than this banner province they have never heard of it.

The Premer-elect is taking a holiday, and the newspaper writers who have been camping on his trail since June 19 are doubtless glad of the breathing spell.

A large amount of notable legislation was passed during the parliamentary session just closed. In this, however, as in everything else, the proof of the pudding will be in the eating.

The twentieth anniversary of the assasination at Serajevo was also the fifteenth anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Versailles.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

SPIRIT OF BROTHERHOOD

Dear Mr. Editor:

It was with great interest I read in Friday's Examiner the address of the Rev. F. Wooten of Trinity Church, at the Kiwanians' luncheon on June 18th, regarding the greater spirit of brotherhood, or as we returned soldier term comradeship.

It is good we all need at present more than ever, as great things can be done by all pulling together thus making a good foundation that all men could stand upon and which would link them together in the common cause of brotherhood, and there was nothing like beginning on a high standard. First and foremost I believe the brotherhood movement stands four square for the liberty of every individual to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience, and that should always be foremost in all brotherhood movements, and in matters that were really vital and essential there would be agreement, whilst in things that were not essential we should exhibit freedom and toleration because nearly every generation in the world's history needed a new movement. I would here quote the words of the song, "John Brown's body is lying in the ground, but his soul goes marching on," but unfortunately in nearly every movement in the world's history the opposite was the case—the old movement the old body went on, but the old spirit, the old fire, the old enthusiasm died out, and that is the thing we have to guard against.

It seems a great many of the differences that separated men were due to misunderstandings, and it behooves every man no matter what difficulties they were in never to make excuses but to face their duties and responsibilities and face them in a cheerful way. Another aspect of brotherhood movement is that every individual in it must be one. "Simply be yourself and never lose you humanity."

Let us liken it as a "game of ball." As in a game of ball man in all varied activities of life must "play the game" whether in victory or defeat, success or failure, they must play the game fairly and squarely, and should all times avoid robbing by insidious and cunning methods the good name of those with whom they were associated.

They should, in fact, endeavour to speak ill of nobody. No age is too great to participate in the game of life. Let them choose their captain carefully, one who is ever ready to help, guide and encourage them, and then success would be assured. Let our Great Redeemer be their Leader and Captain then all will be well. In all games of life and they should never forget the greater the difficulties they would have to encounter and overcome the higher would be the credit in success. The spirit of brotherhood could and would do effective work on the difficult pitches of life. They should wield the bat of courage with character and patience, and success would be achieved by these means and in virtue of good and faithful service.

We should try and be all round men as one could not have too many accomplismments in the game of life. Men should possess and exhibit the true spirit of sportsmanship and never give in until the game was finished. "Deeds not words" should be the motto and should manifest the same practically in our daily life, not in a half-hearted way but zealously and efficiently as possible realizing the great Captain required their aid and assistance in the game of life, where deeds counted for runs; but the important fact was not so much the number of runs they made as the way they had played the game.

Yours truly,
J. ABRAHAM.

IN PRAISE OF ROUTINE

Praise be to routine!

It saves many a life from despair, keeps many a soul sane and steady. Blessed, sturdy, old stick-in-the-mud routine.

It is abused and perhaps rightly. ....Impatiently we damn it, and strain against it....Cursing the dull habits of our days. Getting up in the morning, going to bed at night, tying our shoe laces, shaving our faces, eating the same old food, going the same gait day after day, day after day doing the same little chores ,milking the cows, plowing the fields, winding the clock, locking the door, putting out the cat, cutting the lawn, washing dishes and drying them and putting them away and seeing the same people and dreaming the same dreams and going to the dentist and suffering old pains and having the same old memories, too, and following down the lane of the years the same old ruts that were made by the wheels of yesterday.

Yes, that's routine and it's easy to understand why it should at times become unbearably distasteful.

But it has saved many a life, that routine! When tragedy comes and the soul is harshly assailed and a poor mortal is dazed and made dumb with shock and grief, then sometimes routine is the only salvation....The body wakes first, before the spirit, and goes about its necessary business, doing its habituated chores. Straightens the room. Picks up things. Prepares food. Tends to its knitting. Catches boats and trains. And goes to work.... And little by little it picks up the loose ends and becomes its stronger self again....And the spirit grows ashamed and returns to the working body....and after a while some of the joy of living comes back....through the undisturbing comfort of routine.

If there is to be joy the routine must be broken occasionally. If a man is to be happy he must not stick forever in a rut. If a woman is to get anything out of life she must not go through the same motions day after day. But beneath the excitement and adventure of everyday life must lie a routine that is as regular as the coming of the day and the swing of the seasons and the sure and splendid orbits of the planets.

A Thought

A THOUGHT

Beneath the vast illimitable spaces
Where God has set His jewels in array,
A man may pitch his tent in desert places,
Yet know that God is not so far away.
But in the city—in the lighted city—
Where gilded spires point upward toward the sky,
And fluttering rags and hunger ask for pity,
Grey Loneliness in cloth of gold goes by.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

JOHN A'S NARROW ESCAPE

On this date (July 2nd), in 1859 Canada very nearly lost the services of John A. Macdonald by shipwreck. The Premier was one of a party which left Toronto on July 1 (then not of course, a holiday since the Dominion was not born until eight years later) an excursion to Sault Ste. Marie among the Party were Hon. John and Mrs. Ross, Mrs. Baldwin, and, in addition to John A., Messrs. Rose, VanKoughnet and Sidney Smith, of the government. At Collingwood they took the steamer Ploughbody. All went well for a few hours but just as the vessel sighted Lonely Island in Georgian Bay an accident happened to the machinery which made it necessary to shut off steam. A gale sprung up; the boat, unprovided with sails, was at the mercy of the wind and waves. Some of the crew went off in a small boat to seek aid from Owen Sound, 75 miles away. Meanwhile the vessel drifted helplessly towards the coast until she was within fifty yards of a leeshore, with a heavy swell and a gale driving her directly on the breakers.

All on board gave themselves up for lost, and, taking leave of each other, prepared to meet death with such fortitude as they could command. Suddenly, at a distance of only 45 yards from the land, and in 180 feet of water, the anchors, which had been dragging for 12 miles caught botton and held the vessel fast. For nearly a whole day and night her occupants were helpless, unable to do anything but pray for the relief which came at midnight and the party were taken aboard the steamer Canadian and carried to Owen Sound whence they returned to Toronto.

John A. wrote to his sister: "None of the party will again be near their graves until they are placed in them." He and his companions showed their gratitude by a handsome presentation to Sheriff B. W. Smith, who had led the rescue party. Had he failed there might have been no Dominion Day Holiday for if John A. had gone there might have been no Dominion to keep holiday.

QUEBEC BAPTISED IN BLOOD

On this date, in 1608 Samuel de Champlain founded Quebec. He had arrived that day from Tadoussac. He himself is his best historian:

"On arrival I looked for a place suitable for our settlement, but I could not find any more suitable than the point of Quebec, so called by the natives, which was covered with nut trees. I at once employed a part of our workmen in cutting them down to make a site for our settlement another part in sawing planks, another in digging the cellar and making ditches, and another in going to Tadoussac with the pinnace to fetch our effects. The first thing we made was the storehouse to put our supplies uider cover and it was promptly finished by the diligence of everyone and the care I took in the matter."

But there were traitors in the camp. Jean Duval, the blacksmith, suborned by Spanish money, thought he could seduce his companions into a conspiracy to kill Champlain and hand over the fort to the Spaniards, who were at Tadoussac. The plot progressed almost to fruition, but Captain Testu, the pilot, heard of it and told Champlain, who resorted to a trick. He told the pilot to invite the ringleaders to a party on board his ship where "he had four bottles of wine sent by their friends at Tadoussac." They accepted, went aboard and had started drinking the wine when Champlain appeared and put them under arrest. A majority of the conspirators turned upon the ringleaders. A court was held and (again quoting Champlain) "We decided that it would be sufficient to put to death Duval as the first mover in the conspiracy and also to serve as an example to those who remained to behave properly in future and in order that the Spaniards and Basques who were numerous in the region might not rejoice over the affairs. We decided that the three others should be condemned to death, but meanwhile should be taken back to France and handed over to the Sieur desMonts to receive full justice.

"Duval was hanged and strangled and his head placed at the end of a spike and set up in the highest spot in our fort."

Thus was Quebec baptised in blood!

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

CHICAGO GRAIN

Notable inadequacy of speculative buying went hand in hand yesterday with lower prices for grain, despite the fact that July unofficial crop estimates were bullish.

Vanishing of demand became so pronounced at times that neither in wheat nor in corn was the market readily able to absorb moderate selling to realize profits. As a result numerous stop-loss orders were forced into execution. Acting as a weight on wheat values was continued liberal movement of newly-harvested grain in the Southwest.

Wheat closed weak at the day's lowest level, 2¼ to 2¼ cents under Saturday's finish; corn, 1¼ to 1¾ cents down; oats, ½ to ¾ cents off, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents decline.

Oats production was unofficially estimated at about half a normal amount. As a result, oats prices were accorded relatively more support than was given to wheat or corn.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, July 3 (C.P.). — Weighty steers and export bulls were the only grades of cattle moving readily on the Toronto livestock market this afternoon, and although only one actual price loss, a 25-cent drop in cows, was registered, all other grades were weak. The heavy run was too much for the market to absorb, and only about one-quarter of the supply was sold.

The calf division continued unchanged, while lambs, under a moderate supply, were steady and slightly higher. Sheep were unchanged and hogs unsettled, no definite price having been settled by salesmen and packers.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion livestock branch were: Cattle 4,300, calves 1,400, hogs 1,250, sheep and lambs 1,500.

Weighty steers sold from $4.50 to $5.50 for the bulk, while choice butchers sold about steady at $4.50 to $4.75 and at $5.25 for tops. Common to medium butcher cattle were not moving. Butcher cows were 25 cents lower at $3 to $3.50 for best and canners sold down to $1. Bulls ranged from $2.50 for bolognas to $3 to $3.25 for export kinds. Fed calves sold steady at $4.50 to $6.

The calf division speeded up a little with good and choice vealers going from $4.50 to $5. A few prime ones went at a top of $5.50. Common vealers sold down to $3, while grassers sold from $2.50 to $2.75.

Good ewe and wether lambs made $8.50, while bucks sold at their $2 discount at $6.50. Sheep ranged from $1 to $2.50 cwt., according to quality. A few yearlings sold at $3 to $4.50.

PAPEN'S FATE IS UNDECIDED

ler issued an order to-day putting an end to special measures used to quell the "second revolution," and announced that henceforth the regular courts of justice will handle offenders against the Nazi regime.

Two groups were in conference to determine the further fate of the Fatherland; one was an important session of the Cabinet in Chancellor Hitler's offices, where the Von Papen resignation was being discussed.

Another was a meeting of the inner council of the Nazi party.

Premier Kahr Shot?

From Munich was reported the strongly rumored death of Gustav Von Kahr, the Bavarian Premier who played a vital part in Hitler's 1923 "Beer Putsch." Otherwise there seemed a lull in the sensationally bloody developments that have kept all Germany on edge since Saturday.

It was rumored that Kahr was among those shot to death on Saturday.

Premier Kahr was associated in 1923 with the Hitler plot that turned against him at the crucial moment when the support of Bavarian troop was withdrawn and military forced were directed to fire upon the rebels.

Among the casualties were Hermann Wilhelm Goering. He was wounded. Eleven were killed. Hitler escaped only to be arrested shortly afterwards.

At Munich, where ordinarily many of the Nazi party chieftains do their work, the brown house was deserted. Even Victor Lutze, successor to Ernst Roehm as chief of staff of the Brown Shirts, was absent.

Details Leak Out

In this southern German city, however, the magnitude of Saturday's killing was gradualy becoming apparent despite an official silence.

It was reported there that Nazi vengeance had claimed the life of a Catholic priest, Father Muhler, who was serving a short prison term for outspoken criticism of Chancellor Hitler. It was said he had been shot in his cell.

There was uncertainty as to whether these acts were committed as part of a general plan of action against ostensible revolutionaries or whether they were the acts of irresponsible elements.

At least two members of the Storm Troop Press Department was back of a campaign against the "steel helmet reactionaries" last week in defiance of Chancellor Hitler's orders.

Further indications of the role of the Reischswehr (regular army) in Saturday's bloodshed were given in a statement of gratitude of loyal supporters issued by the Nazi district leader, Adolf Wagner.

Wagner, it was believed, was the person who actually started events on Saturday on his own initiative.

REICHSWEHR IN CONTROL.

BERLIN, July 3 (C.P.). — The Reichswehr, or Standing Army, was the real heir to-day of the situation which developed from Chancellor Hitler's coup against his former associates and "reactionaries."

It stands forth as the one instrument of force on whose support the Nazi regime must rest.

The storm troop organization hated rival of the army, is smashed and virtually leaderless. The "SS," or picked guards, carry the odium of marching their former brown-shirted comrades off to death.

At least it is safe to say that little could be done by Hitler or his right hand man, Herman Wilhelm Goering, against the will of the Reichswehr.

Goering has control of the police, but undoubtedly remembers that when Franz Von Papel, as Chancellor, sent a few Reichswehr officers and privates in June, 1932, to arrest Commander Heimannsberg, head of the Berlin Police Force, not a shot was fired.

Although remaining in the background, the Reichswehr was read last Saturday and Sunday to take a hand if need be.

Minister give the fullest information to the House."

The prisoners were the most defenceless class in the community. They had been deprived of their rights of citizenship and they had no means of making their grievances known.

It seemed to be the policy of the Department to whitewash penitentiary officials, said the C.C.F. leader. Again and again the announcement was made that conditions were satisfactory only to be set at nought a few days later by riots or fires in the penitentiaries.

It was his opinion, said Mr. Woodsworth, that W. B. Meglaughlin, who resigned the Wardenship of Kingston a few days ago, had been "made the goat" for the inefficiency of other officials.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Disappointed

CHICAGO, July 3 (C.P.). — Just wait until Thelma Harter gets her hands on Lawrence!

For two years she thought she had married the son of Clarence Darrow, the eminent attorney. She told all her friends Mr. Darrow was her father-in-law, and when she found out she was only Mrs. Lawrence Harter, it was most embarrasing.

Judge Rudolph de Sort agreed it was grounds for divorce, and said he might approve an alimony adjustment of some sort if someone could find Lawrence.

democracy. Five million tracts voicing this appeal were scattered in Munich, Breslau and Hamburg on Sunday.

Moscow radio stations keep up a running comment on the German situation, mocking Hitler and Goehring as "flunkeys" of big business. Apprehension is keen here in France that Hitler might undertake a sudden move for the purpose of restoring his prestige at home and of diverting attention from the nations economic plight, and might invade or annex Austria or the Saar district. Hence all frontier garrisons have been strengthened to a wartime footing, and the high French command is sending its leading generals to the border.

Franz Von Papen, Hitler's Vice Chancellor almost shared the fate of Ex Chancellor Kurt Von Schleicher, he had several teeth knocked out when arrested, but was later released.

Not A Suicide

Capt. Ernest Roehm was not a suicide, as reported earlier. He was afraid at the last moment, when ordered to put himself out of the way ,and Hitler thereupon had him executed.

The Chancellors dramatic entry into Roehms Villa at Wiessee, where plotters had assembled, shocks even French public opinion, which had not realized that moral perversion so repugnant as that described by Hitler as "unimaginably foul" was involved. German newspapers say there are fully 1,000,000 moral perverts in the ranks of the storm troops.

President Von Hindenburg is seriously ill, and is reported to have suffered a stroke. Friedrich Wilhelm, former Crown Prince, is reported to have fled to Denmark. The uprising was precipitated by an order disbanding the storm troops. Unrest is growing in all parts of the Reich, as demobilized, disarmed and disgruntled storm troopers, nearly two million strong flock homeward, to swell the ranks of the unemployed.

Borders Are Closed

PARIS, July 3.—Pierre Van Paassen flew to Zurich yesterday, and wires from Braunach, on the Austro Bavarian frontier: "Heavy artillery is audible here. The borders are closed. Seventeen Storm Troop captain who escaped and arrived here report that President Von Hindenburg has resigned, appointing Vice Chancellor Franz Von Papen as his successor, but that both are kept prisoners, Hindenburg at his estate at Neudeck.

"The official number executed by the Nazi chiefs now exceeds 80, and 1,500 local leaders are under arrest. This means that the whole Brown Army was involved in the anti-Hitler plot. Mass executions are set for to-night (Monday).

"Among the executed chiefs is Count Helldorff, Commander of Potsdam police, who executed the soothsayer, Hannessen, for Hitler last year. Wilhelm Goehring is directing the bloody clean-up; a report that Hitler was personally in charge of the Munich arrests is untrue—it is merely propaganda by Goebbels to give Der Fuehrer further prestige. Hitler has several times been the victim of attacks of hysteria, during which he believed that all was lost. Goering is not losing his nerve. Hitler is still master, but a different backing. In some regions, the Brown Shirts are in open revolt. Reichswehr regiments have been called from Bavaria to Berlin. All mail in and out of Germany is stopped. This is the beginning of the end of the Third Empire."

Building Permits Total $11,045 In June

The slight increase in the building activity of the city was further reflected last month, figures at the city engineer's office show.

During the month there were 25 permits issued to a total value of $11,045, as compared with a total building value in June last year of $9,365. Total building this year to the end of June is $76,775, as compared with $106,305 during the same period in 1933.

A new building is being erected on Walkerfield avenue by J. H. Keefer ,with John Hornsby as architect. It is estiamted to cost $6,500 and will be two stories of brick veneer and contain nine rooms. It will have the new "warm" air heating arrangement.

On Park Hill Road, E. Reader is erecting a five roomed house of used lumber. It is estimated to cost $700.

"The old woman" said that she would take responsibility for the killing if anything went astray, the document said.

Hired "To Kill"

Three weeks ago Gagliardi met Angelo Donofrio who asked him for a job. "Can you kill?" asked Gagliardi. "Sure, I'll do anything, the alleged confession quoted him as replying.

Gagliardi had met Sarao Saturday and on the pretence of finding him work at a country house had lured him near to the racetrack. There had been a casual meeting with Donofrio, said the document, then Gagliardi and Donofrio had been nonplussed to find they had no weapon.

Last Thursday, however, Sarao had again been induced to go to the unfrequented area and had been attacked and beaten to death with a club and a heavy stone. The alleged confession then declared the body had been placed on the rails to make it look like a railroad accident.

The Crown produced to the jury a bed-stretcher, broken in three pieces. Testimony of police officers was they found one piece beside the body and the other two pieces were located when they took Gagliardi to the scene. The officers said the bed-stretcher resembled others in the home of Donofrio.

The statement was made in the alleged declaration of Gagliardi that he and Donofrio returned to the victim's side to empty the pockets and make it look like robbery.

The coroner said the expression, "the old woman", in the alleged declaration was confusing, but there appeared no doubt Mrs. Theolis was in the plot.

Mrs. Sarao appeared calm and collected as she sat in court and heard the document read which said she had expressed a desire to get rid of her husband and that she was in love with a younger man.

Arraignment of the quartette is expected tomorrow.

Paine Webber.—"The long trading range which has been forming for almost a year, accompanied by steadily diminishing volume, points to a substantial upswing in prices once the up trend is established. Advise continuation of bullish program.

Fenner Beane.—"See no basis for altering our atttitude with respect to the longer term outlook for stock prices. Fall current recession is not likely to go much if at all further.

John Melady & Co. — "Quite a number of uncertainties have been removed from the speculative picture during the past few weeks, and it is altogether likely we will witness a more active market. The Stock Exchange Control Bill has gone through the mill and the make-up of the Control Commission announced; the steel strike seems to have been sidetracked. Congress has gone home to mend fences; the 1933 Securities Act has been partially modified and the government silver buying program is now in operation. However, confidence has not been fully restored. In fact it has only slightly strengthened and the prevailing attitude seems to be one of cautious defence rather than aggressive action.

It was also alleged she had carried on relationships with a local man who had a wife and a couple of children. I. E. Weldon, K.C., appeared for the accused and asked for suspended sentence on condition that she would end these improper relationships. A plea of guilty was entered. The man in the case testified that he had lost his position as a result of his relationships with the woman. Chic Costume Interchangeable

By LISBETH

KNEE ACTION is popular in automobile circles, and judging from the beach costumes in vogue, it is equally liked sartorially.

One way of securing knee action in the wearing apparel is the wearing of shorts, and even if you cover them with a skirt, you can have one that buttons all the way up, and still leaves you free to move around.

The costume pictured is what is known as an interchangeable costume, and is carried out in five strong Mexican colors combined with a solid hue. Stripes are particularly good on the beach this season, and these stripes are broad and vivid.

Top and short, also the coat lining, is made of the bright striped fabric. The skirt, which buttons down the front, with big buttons, is of the solid color.

The suit may be worn with or without the coat and skirt, as you please.

REV. FRANK W. NEWELL INDUCTED IN HASTINGS CHURCH PASTORATE

Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, Representing Peterborough Presbytery, Has Charge of Service.

WARSAW PASTOR SPEAKS.

HASTINGS, July 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—Revs Frank W. Newell, formerly of Blackstock, Ont., was inducted to the pastoral charge of Trinity United Church, Hastings, on Friday night, June 29th. The church which was very prettily decorated with flowers, was comfortably filled for this very important event in the history of the church.

The induction service was in charge of Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, of Peterborough, who acted on behalf of the Peterborough Presbytery. The sermon opened with the hymn, "The Church Has One Foundation," followed by prayer by Rev. Mr. Moorhouse. Rev. Mr. Wilkinson, of Warsaw, delivered the message to the congregation. Rev. Wilkinson, in a very forceful manner, urged the congregation to take their religion very seriously and be ready to make a few sacrifices for it. The message to the congregation was followed by hymn No. 148.

Rev. Mr. Cooke, of Fraserville, gave the charge to the minister. Rev. Cooke spoke of the high standard of men who had gone through for a minister.

Rev. Moorhouse spoke very briefly before calling on Rev. Mr. Newell to come to the front of the church, where the induction service of the United Church was carried out by the former.

After the induction service, members of the congregation as well as many others, spent a social hour in Sunday school room where Rev. and Mrs. Newell were introduced to those present. The ladies served a very dainty lunch.

History of Church.

The "Examiner" was able to secure a short history of historical Trinity United Church.

The intrepid pioneers who first cleared the land and erected humble homes in the Trent Valley district, being industrious, purposeful and possessed of simple and earnest faith, felt that nothing but ultimate disaster could await any community which neglected spiritual culture. Accordingly, the people of Hastings vicinity, whose fathers and grandfathers had, in many cases, listened to the fervent, compelling messages of Wesley and Whitefield in the homeland, gathered themselves together for the purpose of prayer and praise, in communion with God. Under the charge of circuit riders, or "saddle-bag preachers," meetings took place sometimes in the open air, or in the quiet of the forest, but more frequently in the homes of the devoted settlers, who felt that in honouring God by placing their humble resources at His disposal, they, themselves, experienced honour and blessing.

The seed thus sown grew and produced a harvest. As the first decade of the second half of the last century drew to a close, the conviction established itself that a church should be built to provide a spiritual home, a gathering place and rallying centre, for the earnest souls who, in those days, sought to find and to secure God within the fold of Methodism. Many were the sacrifices of faithful men and women, who gave of their time and talents and substance, that a place of worship might be erected. Not by foregoing luxuries, but by depriving themselves of necessities, they provided the means whereby, in 1863, a Wesleyan Methodist Church occupied the site of the present building.

The lot upon which the church stands was purchased on November 10, 1860, from Henry Fowlds, Sr., for the sum of $250.00. The trustees authorized to sign the document of conveyance were: Andrew Shearer, farmer; James, Fleming, farmer; David Pilbeam, cotton manufacturer; Andrew C. Huycke, farmer; Robert Collins, farmer; Adam Beavis, farmer; Henry B. Morton, merchant; John Miller, farmer; Jonathan Fuller, cabinet maker and Richard Waters, farmer.

As first erected, the church was a simple, rectangular, strongly constructed building of red brick, with basement beneath, and bearing above the adornment of a graceful steeple.

First Ministers.

Circuit riders then gave place to regularly stationed ministers, and the charge quickly rose from the status of a mission to that of a selfsustaining field. In 1863 Rev. D. A. Perrin commenced his work as pastor in the new church, being succeeded by Rev. Mark, and he, in turn, by Rev. Weldon. Rev. Wm. Short followed in 1867, his successors being, in order: Rev. Godfrey, 1869; Rev. Robertson, 1872; Rev. Woodsworth, 1874; Rev. Cleworth, 1877 and Rev. Kenner in 1879.

Under the able and effective ministry of these reverend gentlemen, whose pastoral work was often conducted under very unfavorable conditions of weather and roads, the cause grew and flourished until it was felt that more adequate parsonage accommodation could be provided for the resident minister. With the advent of Rev. Lewis, in 1882 tentative suggestions developed into definite plans, which quickly advanced to realization. The former parsonage, bought in 1869 (now renovated and occupied as the home of Mr. W. R. Learmouth), was sold for the sum of $600.00 and the proceeds of sale were applied to the erection of a new building.

The building committee of the new parsonage was composed of A. C. Huycke, J. W. Doxsee, J. H. Scriver, H. Collins, E. Sargent, W. C. Waters, Henry Morton and Wm. McConnell. Under the sanction and direction of these gentlemen the contract was let to Messrs. Prest and Wills, and the house completed in 1885, at a cost of $1,240.00. It has been occupied by succeeding ministers to the present time.

In 1885, Rev. Limbert came to the field. After a term of three years he was followed, in 1888, by Rev. A. R. Campbell. Then came, in succession, Rev. Philips, 1891; Rev. J. A. Jewell, 1894; and Rev. F. Johnson, in 1898. After a ministry of unusual saintliness, Rev. Johnson was succeeded in 1901, by Rev. A. L. Adam, whose untiring devotion and incessant labors hastened his decease in the following year. Rev. T. P. Steel then took up the work, to be followed by Rev. W. Elliott in 1905.

In 1908 Rev. C. W. Barrett, now of Brighton, came into the worthy succession, and immediately directed his energies to the enlargement of the church building. This project materializing, the church assumed its present form and dimensions in 1909. The organizing ability and vision of the pastor coupled with his earnest effort, and faithful presentation of gospel claims, resulted, further, in establishing the cause upon a firm foundation, the effects of his ministry being traceable, in many respects, to the present day.

Rev. T. H. P. Anderson began his faithful labor in 1911, to be followed in 1915 by Rev. Isaac Smith, who in 1919 yielded the duties of the pastorate to Rev. A. R. Walsh. In 1920 Rev. M. L. Hinton, now of Castleton, came to the field, endearing himself to many by his ready and genuine sympathy to all in difficulty or distress, and his unfailing and large-hearted generosity to any in need. During his term of seven years (the longest pastorate in the history of the church), a pipe organ was installed, which continues to give good service under the capable direction of the present organist, Miss Carrie Doxsee.

It was also during this pastorate that the local church, as an organized unit of the Methodist Church, came into organic union with the Presbyterian and Congregational Churches on June 10th, 1925, entering thus into a nobler heritage and an extended opportunity for service.

Rev. A. C. Hie succeeded as pastor in 1927. His two years of service were marked by leadership in Young People's work and numerous renovations, notably the installation of a modern, scientifically operating furnace in the basement of the church.

Rev. H. J. Bell, M.A., B.D., was inducted to the charge on July 5th, 1929, and preached his farewell sermon on Sunday, June 23rd, before going to Blackstock. Rev. Newell, who was inducted on Friday night, coming from there.

Thus Trinity United Church, upborne by the noble traditions and mighty challenge of the past, looks forward with buoyant hope and faith that it shall continue to function as an agent of God in establishing His Kingdom.

Can No Longer Lag Behind Other Nations

Great Britain has decided that she can no longer lag behind other nations in building up a powerful air force and defence system. Under a four-year plan, coast defences will be biult, new aeroplanes will be added to the force. The layout shows a group of popular bombing planes. At RIGHT is a new type of air-gun which fires one-pound shells much after the manner of a machine gun.

BRITAIN PLANS INVISBLE RING OF STEEL AGAINST AIR INVASION

Adopt Four-Year Plan in Bringing Air Force up to Strength.

BOMB-PROOF SHELTERS

By PIERRE J. HUSS
Central Press Canadian Writer

LONDON, July 3. — Confronted with a war-minded Europe and country-wide clamor for security in the air, the British government has set itself to the task of attaining parity in the air with that of any power within striking distance of British shores.

Lingering prospects for a disarmament convention and failing that a pious last hope for a limitation air convention hold in abeyance the larger aspects of Britain's forward march to air equality, but in the meanwhile the air ministry's "brain trust" will be burning midnight oil plotting out the strategies of a secret defence plan whereby Britain will hope to repel any air invader.

Thus, while the R.A.F. is gradually being strengthened in all departments and even more extensively on paper through the application of the "Four Year Plan," the defence experts will be busy drafting the plan that will shield Britain with an invisible ring of iron and steel against any air menance.

To Arm Islands

Skeleton defence plans are already on hand but the greater project has not been completed. It includes, among other intentions, the establishment of "pivotal points," from which powerful air squadrons will operate to cut off any enemy's retreat. Chief among the "pivotal points" will be the Scilly Islands, the Isle of Man, and a broad zone track on the Norfolk coast, near the Wash.

The air forces operating from these striking spearheads will be self-contained, consisting chiefly of seaplanes. They serve a military purpose comparable to that of an outflanking column in land operations.

Each "pivotal point' will be equipped with its own liquid-fuel stores, sufficient to feed its seaplanes over a protracted period. It will function under its own headquarters staff and have its own workshops.

Build Bomb-Proof Shelters

The machines used will be powerful fighters, capable of remaining aloft some 48 hours without refueling. A certain number of trawlers will be assigned to each of these strategic posts, each fitted with anti-aircraft guns and manned by auxiliary gunners especially trained in the use of these weapons.

Another large task presented by the general air defence plan is the provision for the protection of the civil population in case any enemy raiders break through the defence ring. Gas-proof shelters and bomb-proof stations, easily attainable in case of sudden danger, will be constructed and responsibity for their proper use will be placed on the shoulders of the local authorities.

The average speed of fighting machines, it is expected, will be set at 250 miles per hour.

The quest of this air parity means a long, long trail, and the expenditure of millions of dollars.

Stanley Baldwin, the "big shot" of the British government, has shaken his finger at the world, and announced that the empire air force, if disarmament agreements fall through, will be strengthened until it equals the strongest air power. But he also admitted that the task, at best, would extend over some years.

Will Take Four Years

To gain some idea of the job ahead it is pointed out that Britain to secure a semblance of numerical parity, at present would have to consider building an immediate 1200 more aeroplanes at first line fighting strength, leaving the relative proportions of bombers, fighters, general purpose machines, army co-operation machines and the fleet air arm aeroplanes as they are at present. Such a remote possibility will be bridged, therefore, by a "Flexible Four-Year-Plan," in which parity can be reached by stages. In case of emergency the expansion could be completed in two instead of four years.

Up to the present, expansion has been limited to the rate of 40 or 50 machines a year, but there is indication that ten new squadrons will shortly be added to the R.A.F.. Intensive experimental building of fighting aircraft, the establishment of new aerodromes, training of pilots and planning for sudden huge expansions, will feature the first step of Britain's march to parity.

The more fundamental problems to be taken care of are the future necessity of doubling the R.A.F. personnel and finding recruits for pilot ranks. Air clubs and associations are the chief hope in that field.

The general results from a British bid for air parity will be, among others, a pronounced sudden development in Britain's air progress.

LODGES PARADE MANVERS CHURCH

Orangemen Rally From Janetville, Lotus, Pontypool, Bethany.

LIFFORD LINE, July 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—A district rally of the Loyal Orange Lodges of Manvers was held on Sunday afternoon, July 1, at the Presbyterian Church at Manvers Station, when about two hundred orangemen representing lodges from Janetville, Lotus, Pontypool, Bethany and Manvers Station paraded in a body to the church, led by the band of L.O.L., 1022, Bethany, assisted by Port Perry brethren.

An Orange choir, led in the service of song, which included the familiar hymns: "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "Faith of Our Fathers". The male quartette, including Messrs. Harry Preston, J. J. Clarke, Edward Bray and C. White, sang two pleasing numbers, "Launch Away" and "Where e'er I Wander, I'm His Child."

Rev. Dr. Palmer addressed the Orangemen in appropriate words, choosing the subject of his discourse from St. John, 3rd chapter, verse 11: "We speak that we do know, and testify that we have seen and Ye receive not our witness."

Following the church service, the Orangemen again joined in a short walk, arrayed in uniform, orangemen's caps and badges. The church was filled to capacity and a large number sat outdoors in cars during the hour of service.

WOMAN SUICIDES.

GALT. — Mrs. Frederick Slater, middle-aged Norfolk Avenue resident, drowned herself in the cistern of her home during the night. When other members of the family arose to-day they found a note reading: "Iam in the cistern." Deceased had been despondent, it was said, over ill-health since an operation in April last. Coroner Radford said there would be no inquest.

MIDLAND TRIP IS BIG SUCCESS

Local Regiment is Acclaimed by Residents of Midland.

TOOK SPECIAL TRAIN.

The Peterborough Rangers arrived back in this city early this morning after a triumphant week-end visit to Midland. A church parade on Sunday morning, a band concert in the afternoon, and an inspection parade on Dominion Day featured the annual trip of the unit.

The departure from Peterborough was made by special train about midnight on Saturday. Including the members of the band, more than 175 men all ranks joined in the trip. The train itself served as residential quarters for the ranks, while the officers repaired to the Georgian and Queen's Hotels.

Church Parade.

At 11 a.m. on Sunday morning the regiment paraded to St. Mark's Anglican Church, winning the attention of hundreds of Midland residents with their trim showing as they marched behind the band. A large and enthusiastic crowd gathered in Little Lake Park in the afternoon to hear the concert offered by the band. On board the Midland City, the entire unit enjoyed an extended cruise around Georgian Bay.

Col. G. A. Weeks of Lindsay carried out the inspection yesterday morning. He offered congratulations to Lieut.-Colonel G. G. Winterbottom, commander of the Regiment, for the efficiency and appearance of his officers and men. The impressive ceremony of marking on the colors won particular interest from the large body of spectators present for the occasion.

EAVESDROPPING?

Perhaps—

But . . .

There are certain places—the ball park, the hockey game for instance; or street cars and buses where conversations become eloquent, sometimes forceful, but always semi-public.

These daily gatherings offer a vivid cross-section of the thoughts, ambitions, and ideals of an entire people; and it is only one more step to the questions, "Where are all these opinions created?" "What basic agency can be held responsible for the origination of so great a number of ideas?"

The answer lies in a great unconfined power in which the Canadian public places its faith; an institution in which ideas form an ever-changing picture yet maintain a firm grip upon the imagination, the desires, and the buying thoughts of the entire world.

Italians Are Staggering Under Burden of Taxes

MANY ELECTIONS ONLY ONE PARTY ON THE BALLOT

Italians Given No Opportunity to Criticize Fascism.

LIKE SYSTEM

People Are Staggering Under the Heavy Burden of Taxation.

Whether or not Fascism comes to Canada (and the keenest political and economic observers are not agreed that it will not) Canadians should have a complete understanding of the system. It will undoubtedly have its effect.

In the first of a series of articles which began Saturday the form of government of Italy, home of Fascism, was discussed. The second article which follows discusses the laws and the policy of the government, and opens the subject, "Do Italians like Fascism?"

The series summarizes an analysis of Fascism made by the editors of Fortune magazine in their current issue. Through Central Press Canadian, The Examiner presents an impartial summary of their findings.

The first article in this series on Fascism and Italy as analyzed by Fortune Magazine, described the form of government as it centres in Rome around Benito Mussolini. We have also seen that it spreads out to every nook and cranny through the police-like discipline of the members of the Fascist party.

The reader will see more clearly in the subsequent articles how the government spreads down to every laborer through the corporative state and tends to absorb within the state the control and direction of all economic life. But though the state favors the idea of governing people through their occupational categories rather than by the geographical location, nevertheless there exists for each of the ninety-two provinces of Italy a provincial prefect and for each great city a podesta and for each province and city a bureaucracy. Practically all the officials are members of the party; all assigned, not elected, to their positions. Most of the higher officials are not "local" men, but are moved around like army colonels.

Law of Ten Commandments

A totalitarian state must, perhaps, necessarily have a government of men rather than of laws. In any case Italian jurisprudence breaks no new ground. The law is based upon nothing more startling than the Ten Commandments and the code Napoleon—plus embellishments added by Alfredo Rocco, former minister of justice, founding special labor courts and codifying some new Fascist social laws designed to fit the conception of the Hegelian total state. But in Italy a judge like any other bureaucrat can be dismissed by decree. It would be surprising if it were not so. For obviously in the Fascist state there can be no effective appeal by the individual from the government to the courts. The courts are simply the teammates of the police.

Paternal State Policy

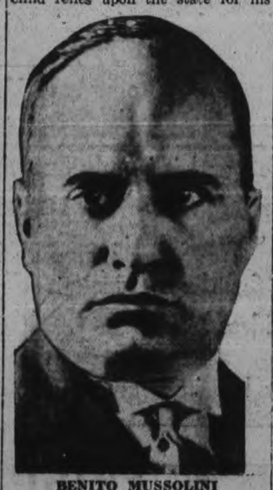
Naturally, the total state is a paternal state. Its policies are strongly marked. It knows what is good for you and gives it to you whether you like it or not. One cardinal policy of the state is self-sufficiency, in consequence of which comes the battle of the wheat, to make Italy independent of foreign producers. Your loaf of bread costs more, as the result, but you do not question for you belong to a great nation, and a great nation must not be dependent on an outside food supply. Another cardinal policy is the policy of gold, for a great nation must have a strong currency, and never mind the excruciating spiral of deflation which that entails.

Another policy is fecundity: Italy must grow until she bursts her frontiers with the sheer disruptive force of her population's pressure. So you are paid a bounty for your bride, and the begetting of children is made a matter of financial pleasure—if you remain a bachelor you are taxed to the absolute limit. Another policy is ruralization: You must get back to the land, for the depression makes it hard for the corporative state to keep even the most loyal of its Fascists in industrial jobs in Italy's cities.

Policies Not Successful

These and many other policies which are noted throughout this series are not all eminently successful. Italians are not going back to the farm and they are not conceiving more children. But if you should go back to the farm or if you should have a baby, life will no doubt take on an exciting quality because these singular events are high policies of state.

No doubt, too, the peasant remains a peasant and the vast majority, even of Italians, will go to their graves having shared little in the excitement of their rulers. But what is perfectly clear is that the Italian people have already become dependent as never before upon their state. The workman is dependent on his Fascist syndicate and the labor bureaus of the corporative state for his job. The industrialist is dependent on the state's credit organizations for capital. The child relies upon the state for his ideas as well as for his camping kit.



BENITO MUSSOLINI

The head of Italy and Fascism is dictator in every sense of the word. When he speaks, the entire nation jumps to obey. He brooks no opposition, but is passionately desirous of having Italians like Fascism. The Italians are given little opportunity of declaring anything else but their like in the matter, for the Fascist code admits no question of Il Duce's commands.

"Do They Like It!"

This dependence has so involved the Italian people in the whole apparatus of Fascism that whether they approve or not becomes, for them, increasingly a secondary consideration. They are in Fascism much as we are all on earth. But the outsider still wants to know: "Do they like it?"

There is no free press in Italy, so it is impossible to tell by reading the newspapers. There are also no riots, no strikes. There is no evidence of the existence of any "underground" opposition of any importance whatever. As a bon mot Il Duce once remarked that the Italian people now possess the jus murmurandi or right to grumble. They grumble, indeed. But no amount of private conversation with the Italians will evoke any more "dislike" of the regime than may be conveyed by a good-natured shrug of the shoulders. The inescapable conclusion of all impartial observers is that the Italians do like it—and that they like it quite as much as any Socialist or Democrat is ever likely to like any Socialistic or Democratic state of which he may ever be a party. Which is not to say that any man who really loves liberty could ever endure the Fascist state. But in this connection the interesting point is not that Mussolini calls liberty a "putrid corpse" and despises democracy. The interesting point (and a point that in invariably missed by all off-hand anti-Fascists) is that in this new kind of autocratic state the autocrat actually seeks the consent of his people.

Wants People to Like It

Far from "not giving a damn" whether the Italian people like Fascism, Mussolini is passionately desirous that his people should like Fascism and he has worked for twelve years to build up their liking in his dictatorial way. This he does, explains Fortune, by frequent "elections."

The means taken to secure an overwhelming vote of si, include every known species of electioneering ballyhoo. Mussolini pumps the entire press full of reasons for voting si, and nary a reason for voting non. As polling day nears, all Italy breaks out in a rash of posters stuck on every wall in sight: "For The Leader! And For the Regime! Vote Si!" All day long motor cars full of eager young Fascists tear around getting out the vote. Of course, this spring, the vote was 98 per cent. si-si-si-si-si. But it is not the percentage that brings the grin on the face of Il Duce—it is the number: 10,000,000 "si's", including even the si of the obstreperous crown prince.

Eight Cents An Hour Wage

The peculiarity of Mussolini's problem lay only in the fact that his was a naturally poor country, and that such things as wages (eight cents per hour average) were already the lowest or nearly the lowest in Europe. But he met the problem in his own peculiar way because he had created his own peculiar state. On the one hand, from almost the beginning of the depression, he unhesitatingly put his state's credit back of the private economy of Italy while on the other hand he swore by Mussolini (what other gods could be swear by?) that he would never, never inflate. The result was in a way colossal. For, from 1929 to June, 1934, no other state, not even those a dozen times richer, came through the debacle with so little disturbance.

But this long crisis has taken heavy and unhappy toll. The obligations of the state are a staggering burden. Taking 32 per cent of the entire national income, the state has reached the limit of the taxing power. Once before, in 1931, the state called upon its people to reduce all wages and all prices by 10 per cent. Dozens of times since then Il Duce has uttered apocalyptic calls for more deflation and still more. And still the pegged gold standard lira is found to be too high and still Il Duce is determined to maintain it. So once again this spring he called by decree for still another 10 per cent reduction of wages and prices.

Make Great Sacrifices

It is hardly an exaggeration to say that no other state, probably not even Russia, would dare to demand the sacrifice that Mussolini is demanding from his people this year. It is one thing to give the people glory; it is another think to make them pay for it. No better view of the Fascist state in action could be obtained than by watching it as it sets out to engineer a nation-wide reduction of the value of every article, including a man's labor.

If Mussolini can put it over—if he can force the already lean and hungry Italian nation to take up one more notch in its belt—he will have done something great and proved that a nation can, by sheer discipline and regimented sacrifice, triumph over world economic catastrophe. He will, of course, have his chance to prove it only if the world does not go completely to hell in the meanwhile. If it doesn't he will have something else to prove, too—whether in normal times, Fascism leans Rightish or Leftish. That the corporative state is without bias will be shown in a subsequent article. But that Fascists fiscal policy definitely favors the classes at the expense of the masses is at the moment equally clear.

Fascism a Religion

Remember, finally, Fortune concludes its discussion of the state, that Fascism is a religion. Packed, jammed and palpitant around Orator Mussolini, the masses—or at least masses and masses and masses of Italians in every part of the realm—have grown accustomed to respond to this religious note.

"Comrades! Black Shirts!" shouts Il Duce. "To whom the highest duties of Fascist Italy?"

"A noi!" roars the crowd.

"To whom the discipline? To whom the sacrifice?"

"A noi! A noi! To us! To us!"

Mussolini's new experiment, the obsession of his life, the Corporative State will be analyzed in Wednesday's article.

This new state is the most talked-about, yet least understood system. Tomorrow's article presents a complete picture of the operation of the Corporative State just now being put into full use in Italy. The article thoroughly analyzes the positions of Capital and Labor.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS

Certainly.....

Take the Children With You.

Sometimes parents who would like to take a vacation involving a railway journey are deterred from doing so by the fear that the children will be uncomfortable and become fretful and irritable. To these parents Canadian National Railways say 'don't hesitate to bring the children along.'

Everything possible will be done to make the trip a pleasure for the little ones, and no other form of transportation can provide them with the attention and comforts which railways do. On long journeys hot water may be had, day or night, for the asking, and at very low prices milk, tea, and fruit can be obtained. In the dining cars special suitable meals will be prepared and served at small cost, and at night the berths provide restful and refreshing sleep.

Children between the ages of five and twelve years travel at half fare, and if under five years and accompanied by a parent or guardian travel free. These fares are available, not only in connection with ordinary railway services, but also with all special trips, week-end and day excursions.

So do not hesitate to give the children a big thrill. Whether the journey be long or short we want them to travel with us, and promise them a hearty welcome.

DR. BRUCE GIVES HEPBURN REPLY

Declares Guardianship of Rights of Every Citizen is Implicit in Limited Monarchy.

RAPS DICTATORSHIP.

TORONTO, July 3 (C.P.)—Opinions of Dr. H. A. Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, on the continuance of the function of the Lieutenant-Governor to-day were before the citizens of the province.

Declaring the guardianship of the rights of every citizen is implicit in a limited monarchy, Dr. Bruce in an address yesterday at a centennial luncheon gave what was interpreted as a reply to Premier-elect Mitchell F. Hepburn's demand that he resign. Among his audience was A. W. Roebuck, K.C., slated for the Attorney General's post in Mr. Hepburn's Cabinet.

The King, he said, was both the ruler and the servant of the people. The monarch and his representatives gave "due and necessary authority to the sanctions and desires of the people."

The principle behind it all is that there is a body of rights belonging to British citizens which any and every government is bound to regard," he went on. "Unless such principle were formally acknowledged, the multitudious voice of a democracy's free citizens would soon be involved in bedlam—unless of course that voice were silenced outright by force."

Declaring under the heel of dictatorship men and women have lost political and constitutional freedom, Dr. Bruce said it was possible to "adopt some things rather than lose everything."

"Our democracy is such that we can preserve what we cherish most and reform all that is an ancronism and a hindrance to progress," Dr. Bruce said. "Thus shall we avoid the fate that has overtaken those who sought by violence to substitute for the old something new and incompatible with freedom.

Four Are Killed In Quebec Crashes

MONTREAL, July 3. — (C.P.)—Four deaths and more than a score of serious accidents marred holiday rejoicing yesterday in the province of Quebec as the rising toll of accidents that started Saturday and continued over the Dominion Day holiday.

One of the deaths occurred by drowning, two in automobile accidents and one when a farmer was trampled to death by an enraged bull. Donat Lamarre, 27, of Montreal, was drowned in the Mille Iles river at Plage Ideale near Montreal and Theophile Charrette, 62-year-old farmer of Pointe Fortune, Que., was trampled to death by his bull—the same that nearly killed his daughter a year ago. Cyrille Hamel, of Champigny, Que., was killed and four members of his family injured in an automobile accident, and Gerard Forest, 26, was killed at Quebec when his car plunged into a ditch and he fractured his skull.

NEW DILLINGER HUNT IS BEGUN

Western Massachusetts Combed After Youth Identifies Gas Buyer.

ACCOMPANIED BY WOMAN.

BOSTON, July 3 (C.P.). — John Dillinger was hunted to-day along the country lanes and trunk highways of Western Massachusetts.

State troopers roamed the roads and searched the backwoods farms. Cruising car squads and motorcycle officers watched the highways for a small sedan bearing Michigan registration plates. Troopers on horseback sought strange faces in the wooded areas and searched abandoned farms.

The concentration of troopers was ordered early to-day, two hours after a motorist who stopped for gasoline in the little village of Whitinsville had been "positively identified" as Dillinger.

The stranger, driving a light sedan with Michigan plates and accompanied by a woman stopped for gas at Whitinsville filling station about 11 o'clock last night.

An attendant named Allen was in charge—an alert youth described by Whitinsville folk as "a reliable man." He thought the stranger at the wheel "looked like Dillinger" and after the machine had sped off on the Whitinsville-Worcester road he told Chief of Police Cullen his suspicions.

Chief Cullen dug out a police circular with the Mid-West bandit's picture, and Allen "positively identified" the picture on the circular as that of the man to whom he had sold gasoline.

Obituary

PETER THORNTON.

His many friends in Peterborough will be grieved to learn of the death at 77 Riverside Drive, Riverhead, Long Island, N.Y., early to-day after a six weeks' illness, of Peter Thornton, at one time a well known hockey player. Mr. Thornton first came into contact with Peterbrough as a member of the famous Orillia junior team which eliminated the Peterborough Bear Cats from the Junior O.H.A. semi-finals in 1912. Later he and his brother Harry became residents of Peterborough, and were members of the Peterborough Intermediate squad for a number of seasons, during which they made many friends here. For a long time afterward Mr. Thornton lived in Buffalo, N.Y., and later moved to Long Island, where he married a Riverhead girl, who survives him. Other sorrowing relatives are his brother Harry and two sisters, Mrs. R. M. Carson and Mrs. Francis Locker, both of Riverhead, Long Island. The funeral will take place at Riverhead on Thursday morning.

P. C. C. SCORES DECISIVE WIN SECOND MATCH

Fine Play by Rev. E. Worrall and D. Mitchell Features County Series Game.

FINAL SCORE 164-74.

(By C. H. Iveson)

The match in the second round of the championship series for the R. C. Matthew's Trophy, was played at Almonte, on Monday, July 2, and resulted in a decisive win for Peterborough, the final score being Peterborough County 164, Lanark County 74.

The locals were without the services of three of their best players, Captain Frank Dyer could not go owing to family bereavement; J. Lawrence and A. Hamilton were unable to make the trip, and the absence of such good all-round players appeared disastrous, but the team overcame the handicap and won very easily. The Lanark team was made up mainly of players from the Almonte Club who are members of the tOtawa District League.

The Peterborough men were at all points the better side. They batted first and opened with Rev. E. G. Worrall and W. Binks, the latter out at 11. And J. Gore at 42. but on Mitchell joining Worrall, a long stand was made, carrying the total to 99, when Mitchell left for a well-played 28, including a 5, and three 4's Worrall was eventually run out for a steady invaluable innings of 53. Jefferson hit freely for 20 not out, and the last man, S. Lorne, showed very good form for his 10, and is a promising young player. Six Lanark bowlers were used, without any particular individual success.

On Lanark going into bat they never made any show of getting the runs against the bowling of Mitchell (6 for 35) and J. Jefferson (3 for 16), except a stand by Walker and E. Simpson for the eighth wicket which produced 21 runs and took the total to 70. Don Mitchell followed up his good batting display, by bowling all through the Lanark innings.

This win sends Peterborough into the semi-finals, or if they draw a bye, into the finals. They are now anxiously waiting the draw for the next round, and are hoping to be drawn at home, for the round which will be played on Civic Holiday.

On Saturday next the Peterborough C.C. play Upper Canada College at Nicholls Oval.

Venturesome Youth Has Had His Share Of Accidents In Seven Years Of Life

HALIFAX, July 3 (CP)—"He's a little venturesome," Eddie Coleman's mother admitted to-day. But she didn't think that even this fact could account for all the experiences Eddie has packed into his seven years of life.

He's been kicked by a horse—he has three holes in his skull to show for that; after two other accidents he's had stitches taken in his forehead; he has broken an arm; he has fallen from a roof; he has been hauled unconscious from the water; once he was in hospital with pneumonia, and he just got home a few days ago after having his tonsils out.

And now he's back in the hospital again—this time with a fractured skull and a broken leg. Yesterday he was dashing across the street near his home when he was struck by an automobile.

But his mother, Mrs. Albert Coleman, is not greatly worried. It's just one more accident to Eddie. And despite his injuries the doctors say he will live.

Lac Bouchette's Mighty Little Hercules Juggles 150-Pound Weights, Lifts Auto

QUEBEC, July 3.—(C.P.)—Victor Delamarre, mighty little strong-man from the Lac Bouchette lumber district lifted 26 average-sized men on a platform and half an hour later carried an automobile up a ladder last night to celebrate his 20th anniversary of his debut into weight-lifting.

The 44 year old, 160-pound Hercules, who holds the world's record for weight lifting with one arm at 109½ pounds, amazed a crowd of 2,500 people with one of the greatest exhibitions of weight-lifting ever seen in Quebec.

Starting with dumbbells, he lifted 303½ pounds with one arm, on the long bar dumbell, juggled with weights around 150 pounds and lifted them several feet. Then he came back to carry a popular make sports model automobile seven feet up a stout ladder. When he got that high a part of the car caught in the ladder and he would go no further. He went down with the weight of the car still resting on his shoulders.

But all the strength in the Diamarre family is not confined to the father. Victor's son, Victor, 13, and Elzear, 6, gave demonstrations of weight-lifting which indicated they would be every bit as strong as their father. Elzear lifted 52 pounds with both hands and went up the ladder with a 200 pound pony hanging from his shoulders.

Error In Haberdashery Tastes Accounts For Man's Arrest And Court Charges

An error in his haberdashery tastes on Saturday afternoon resulted to-day in David Peters, aged 19, of Armour Road, appearing before Police Magistrate Langley on three charges of shopbreaking.

The youth could not resist the temptation to appear down street in his "newest" suit. Detective-Sergeant William Meagher spied Peters and recognized the suit he was wearing as one reported stolen three days before from Grant's cleaning establishment.

Peters was arrested. He pleaded guilty to-day to theft of the suit and a bathing suit from Grant's; also to burglarizing within the past month the Corner Service Station and Davis' taxi office. His total "takings" were roughly $20.

He was remanded until Monday for sentence.

"We had been suspicious of him for some time," Chief Newhall said, "but we could prove nothing until he wore that suit."

Weddings

ROSBOROUGH—NUGENT.

A lovely house wedding took place at half-past two o'clock this afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nugent, 774 Water Street, when their daughter, Elva Claire, became the bride of Mr. Russell Clifford Rosborough, B.S.A., of Orono, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert A. Rosborough of Smith Township.

The Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe solemnized the marriage in the living-room, which was arranged with many lovely flowers and ferns. About thirty-five guests were present.

The bride came in on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, to the wedding music played by her aunt, Miss Vernie Pearson, of Pembroke.

She wore an exquisite cape frock of pale pink suede lace, trimmed with net of the same soft shade. Her hat of pale pink leghorn had a flange of stitched taffeta. Her slippers were of white kid and she wore long white kid gloves, and the gift of the bridegroom, a silver pendant, set with brilliants. Her bouquet was of pink Butterfly roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Opal Rosborough, sister of the bridegroom, was in a frilled cape frock of pale blue organza, with large white hat, white slippers and gloves. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Mr. Gordon Northey of Smith Township, cousin of the bride, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony, dainty buffet refreshments were served in the flower-decked dining-room with Hooper and Sons catering.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Rosborough left by motor for a trip to British Columbia and the United States. On their return, they will live in Orono.

The bride travelled in an ensemble of navy blue sheer, trimmed with taffeta. Her small hot and accessories were all in blue.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bridesmaid was a pendant, to the best man a pair of cuff links, and to the pianiste a silver mesh bag.

LAMORE—MURPHY

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Peter's Cathedral on Saturday morning at nine o'clock when Johanna Louise, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murphy, Elm street, became the bride of George Joseph Lamore, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lamore, Park street.

The bride wore a very becoming dress of powder blue crepe with a short jacket and white hat, shoes and gloves, and carried a bouquet of white peonies and baby's breath. The bridesmaid was Margaret Lomore, sister of the bridegroom, while the groomsman was Harold Chambers.

A reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents. The rooms were attractively decorated with white and pink streamers and flowers.

The happy couple left for a short honeymoon to be spent in Oshawa, and on their return will reside at 715 George street, City.

COLLINS—ROSE

A very pretty wedding took place on Saturday, June 30, at St. Paul's Manse, when William H. Collins, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Collins, 342 Charlotte street, was united in marriage to Iva Mary, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rose, 700 Elcombe Crescent, by Rev. Dr. Barr.

The bride was lovely in a white bridal dress and carried a sheaf of American Beauty roses. Miss Gladys Fountain, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid; while the groom was supported by Mr. Naish. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. The dining room was tastefully decorated in pink and white.

The happy couple left for a short honeymoon, after which they will reside at 342 Charlotte street.

DUDLEY—HENDERSON

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Saturday, June 30, at St. Chad's Anglican Church, Toronto, when Thelma, only daughter of Mr. R. W. Henderson and the late Mrs. Henderson of Ida, became the bride of Edward, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dudley of Toronto. The Rev. T. A. Reid officiated.

The bride wore a travelling suit of powder blue crepe with white accessories. They were unattended. The happy couple left immediately after the ceremony on a motor trip to New York and Atlantic City.

DYMOND—ECOBICHON

On Monday afternoon at St. Paul's manse a quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr when Gladys, youngest daughter of Mrs. E. Ecobichon became the bride of Horace Dymond of Preston, Ontario.

The bride was prettily gowned in pale pink crepe with white shoes and hat and was attended by Gertrude Butcher, who was attired in pale blue crepe with matching accessories. The groom was attended by the bride's brother, Mr. R. Ecobichon.

Following the ceremony a dainty supper was served at the home of the bride's mother, after which the young couple left on a motor trip and upon their return will reside in Preston, Ontario.

ICE TRAYS DON'T STICK
in the FRIGIDAIRE '34
AUTOMATIC ice tray releasing is just one of a host of features by which the Frigidaire '34 makes inconvenient refrigerators entirely out of date. Defrosting, for instance, is automatic. It freezes more ice—faster. It has a clever Utility Basket which groups small packages to save space. It has more room for tall bottles. It has the Servashelf for carrying dishes from refrigerator to kitchen table. Several models are finished in lifetime porcelain inside and out; have double capacity vegetable Hydrators; have shelves adjustable up or down.
THIS FRIGIDAIRE '34 MODEL ACTUALLY USES LESS CURRENT THAN ONE ORDINARY LAMP BULB
But you can't possibly appreciate how greatly electric refrigerators have been improved in the Frigidaire '34 until you see a demonstration. Won't you step in—tonight?

Trent River House Levelled By Fire

TRENT RIVER, July 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—The house and contents of Mr. Sam Ray, of Ivanhoe, were totally destroyed by fire about 9:30 p.m., Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Ray, an aged couple, had retired, and smelling smoke, opened the door and found the ceiling near the chimney to be ablaze. Both managed to escape with their son, who is a cripple.

The fire is thought to have originated from a chimney fire. The house was a 2-storey frame structure and had recently been repaired. Mr. and Mrs. Ray moved there about five weeks ago.

Heat Wave Eases Over Middle West

CHICAGO, July 3.—(C.P.)—The middle-western United States' biggest and best product of the moment—heat—showed signs of abatement there to-day, but surged undiminished over the east.

Kansas and Nebraska, breeding centre of the heat wave, sweltered with the rest of the grain country for the 15th ady. Yesterday's temperature ranged as high as 99, and man's predictions.

continued warmth was the weather

Somewhat cooler weather was forecast for the upper tier of mid-west States, however.

New York and its eastern neighbors wiped their collective brows as the weather man told them expected showers would be too localized to give no relief to-day. The mercury topped the 90 mark yesterday for the fourth successive day.

No relief can be expected until after the Fourth of July," said the foreacster at the New York weather bureau.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

It's just as smart to hand-knit suits and sweaters these days as it is to wear them. That's because a garment, knit by the wearer is a sort of individual model designed and created for just one person. Every woman knows that the directions are for the standard figure and she just combines the colors and individual touches that give the costume her personality.

• • • • • • •

Smart anywhere, and particularly good for travel, are hand-knit suits. They have a casual tailored air that combines well with swagger or travel coats.

• • • • • • •

Some of the better yarns even give the effect of these cleverly woven Rodier, or hand-made "nubbed" materials. Knit garments are often "blocked" to make them hold their shape for a long time. But all the blocking and pressing in the world will never give that well-groomed look if poor yarn is used. Wool of poor dye and uneven strands gives a dingy, uneven finish. The better yarns are standardized and dependable, with an even radiant gloss on every strand, that gives life and body to the garment.

• • • • • • •

The very newest yarn in the smart shops is a delicately colored fast-dye strand with which is twisted a white cotton knotted strand. The white strand makes pastel shades more delicate, and takes the glare from the stronger colors, while the fact that it is cotton makes it wash better, makes it hold its shape, and gives a perfect press and finish.

• • • • • • •

This yarn is remarkably soft and fine and makes a wonderful wool-lace frock. One of these very summery sweaters with long, wind-blown ties can be quickly knitted from this yarn—and it takes only five balls. The small amount of yarn required indicates the encouraging speed with which the yarn knits up. A two-piece frock, with a deep yoke on the skirt, requires only twelve balls, and the garment is as chic as an imported model at ten times the price.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

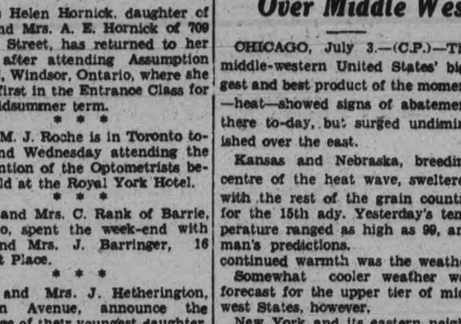
PRETTY AND NECESSARY

When trick counting exceeds 10, results may not coincide with predictions. It may require very clever play to made 5-odd, where 4-odd would mean a spread. South's play of the deal shown was both pretty and necessary, to make 5-clubs. It had to be well played. The joint hands of declarer and dummy counted just 11½ probable tricks, but that half trick count was based upon the supposition that 4 trumps in dummy would be worth ½ trick to the declarer. So they were, the way the hand was manager, but not because 9 trumps broke. Only double-dummy play could have enabled South to pick up East's 3 trumps.



Bidding went: South, 1-club; West, 1-spade; North, 2-clubs; South, 5-clubs.

The opening lead was the Q of spades. East's ace won the trick, and he led back his 8, to clear his partner's suit. South's K won the trick. The hand was a spread in case trumps broke. The declarer led his ace and king of clubs, only to see West discard a spade on the second lead of trumps. East had to be given one trump trick, in addition to the spade trick already lost. Unless the hands were stripped and East forced to lead a suit where one hand could discard and the other hand ruff, game could not be made.

Both declarer and dummy first had to be stripped of hearts. The declarer led his king, then dummy's ace won the next heart trick. The declarer ruffed the last heart held by dummy, ending that part of the strip process. The 8, 10 and J fell from West's hand. Even if East held both the missing Q and 7, he also must hold at least 3 diamonds, supposing that originally he held only 2 spades.

Three diamond tricks next were run Both opponents following suit, giving the declaring side 9 of the 10 tricks played to date. Dummy had left 2 trumps and a single spade, and so did declarer. West held 2 spades and the top heart. East held a single card in each of 3 suits—hearts, diamonds and clubs.

A trump lead gave East a trick with his top club, but that player had to lead either a diamond or a heart, allowing declarer or dummy to discard while the other hand ruffed. East led his top diamond. South let go his last spade. Dummy ruffed, and the last trick was won by leading dummy's last spade and trumping in the declaring hand, just winning 5-odd.

HAIR CATCHES IN WRINGER.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

There are four common diseases of the foot. First, ringworm infection of the skin, so-called athlete's foot, which we will not discuss at the present. Second, flat-foot. Third, corns. And fourth, ingrown toenail.

Flat-foot is due to breaking down of one of the arches of the foot. There are two of these arches—one which runs from the base of the toes back to the heel; another runs from the base of the big toe to the base of the little toe. One of these, you see, is from front to back, the other from side to side. The impress of a healthy foot should show that it is resting on the heel, on the outer border, and across the balls of the toes. In other words, the inner margin of the foot should not touch the floor.

These arches are formed of a series of small bones held together by tendons. The tendons themselves could not support the weight of the average adult body for any length of time without sagging. Their support comes, then, from the muscles of the foreleg These long muscles attach to the bones of the leg below the knee, and throw tendons down around the arches of the feet. It is the breakdown of these muscles which causes the arches to sag and, therefore, causes flat-foot. Sometimes this is due to disease of the muscles, such as infantile paralysis, but mostly it is due to bad habits of standing, walking and the occupations which require a great deal of time on the feet and eventually break the compensation of the muscles.

Flat-foot, as could be imagined from this description, goes through a series of changes, and may be seen in many stages of development. First, there is the beginning of the break, in which the muscles are straining to do their work against undue odds, and we find a foot which shows no special flatness of the archess, but is constantly painful both in the foot and in the leg and knee, where these muscles are attached.

Later, the muscles give way and the foot is actually flat on the floor. In this stage it is also painful. Later on, complete breaking of the arch and loss of compensation of the muscles occurs, and we have what is called a "static flat-foot" which, while it is not a very flexible or useful foot, is not as painful as in the early stages.

Treatment will, of course, depend on the stage of the disease and circumstances. In the early stage, exercise to strengthen the muscles, the removal of undue strain from standing occupation, proper instruction about walking, and proper foot-gear, may prevent any of the more serious consequences of the later stages.

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope, stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

I expect a beauty soap to do what it promises

THAT'S WHY I KEEP ON USING PALMOLIVE!

1 Sometimes it's hard for a girl to know just what to believe . . . But when 20,000 beauty experts agree on Palmolive for keeping skin lovely and young-looking . . . well, that sounds like the real thing to me. Don't you think so too?

2 I like Palmolive's soft olive-green color because, I guess, it reminds me that Palmolive is made only from pure vegetable oils . . . a secret blend of olive and palm oils. You really couldn't buy a better soap at any price.

3 I'm not fooling myself either, when I insist that Palmolive's lather is different—sort of creamy and velvety-feeling. You can actually feel it getting down into your pores and really and truly cleansing. You'll love it for baths

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterboroughs Leading Handwriting Analyst for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Mary McGrath, Madoc, Ont.

The handwriting on your sample depicts energy and ingenious purpose. It shows that you are an intelligent and busy person. You seem to desire to fill each twenty-four hours with as much work as you possibly can either mentally or physically. There is a slight inclination to be impulsive, but usually this characteristic is catered to through your natural generosity. Don't you find that you cannot refrain from giving to others? The small letters reflect a keen interest in beautiful things and a love of good music. There is discrimination in dress, and excellent poise illustrated in the manner in which your capitals assert themselves. Wisdom and excellent perceptions, together with courteous diplomacy belong to you. You are not over indulgent in any manner, but seem to know just how to strike a happy medium, of course this does not apply to your generosity, for in that you will always be independent and indulgent. In affections you are not demonstrative as a rule, yet show your appreciation at all times for favors received, either of material things or love.

Mollie E. Bush, Norwood, Ont.

Your handwriting shows that you wish to be a little different to other people. You have your own ideals and like to believe that they are right. You are perhaps a trifle reticent in expressing your views on any subject, because you object to being derided or laughed at. Yet, deep down inside of you, there is a tightening of the control nerves as though you feel a bodily injury. This is because you know you are right many, many times yet you cannot give yourself the gratification of self-expression. Your type will not argue. You appear too sensitive and submissive, always thinking of the welfare of others. This inarticulate condition causes a mental strain, and actually deters you from releasing the supply of talent and energy which is stored in the retentive brain which is yours. You are very particular about your personal clothing and demand the best. You carry yourself well, and walk quickly. You are energetic, proficient and courteous, considerate, agreeable and adaptable. You are loyal to friends and have a genuine sense of good judgment. Your birth-sign is Leo the Lion. You are ruled by the Sun. January and October are your best months. Sunday your most fortunate day. Your number is six.

D. H. Allan, 112 Crescent St., Toronto.

Your handwriting expresses a very reticent nature. You seem to be afraid to say what you think. You really have no need to feel shy, because your thoughts are deep and quite intelligent. In fact, you see into the depths of problems much more readily than the average person does. You are reserved and conservative, refined and quiet. Perhaps not quite as strong physically, as you would wish. It would appear that you tighten up your muscles and keep yourself at a nervous tension, being unable to relax even in sleep. This tendency will in time to be more than a detriment to your health. Could you not get away from routine and detail for a while? Create a hobby, anything which wil give you pleasure. Do not 'take' yourself so seriously. You possess an energetic, thoughtful brain and more talent than is usual. Your type requires sunshine, love, laughter and happy fellowship. Life is too short to worry over lesser details. Happiness is often found in bringing sunshine to others. Your type as a rule have special ability to work with the hands, and the women are usually excellent at fancy work, but dislike routine. Many successful authors are born under the same sign as you are, which is Taurus the Bull and ruled by Venus. Friday is your luck day, with May or July as fortunate months.

Mrs. John Robertson, Roseneath, Ont.

Your handwriting represents keen interest in current events. You enjoy keeping up with the times, and you are very interesting as a conversationalist. The large capital letters depict a generous disposition, but the small uneven letters which follow show that you do not allow your better judgment to get stale as it were, because you use discretion at all times and so balance this generous characteristic. You can be argumentative when the occasion demands, but you do not as a rule encourage an argument. Your plans are made with quiet deliberation. You are thrifty and cautious. Strict as to moral code and religion. Your type as a rule make excellent housekeepers, but are inclined to resent intrusion into their domain, and utterly abhor anyone who has the slightest tendency to create untidiness or disturb furniture once it has been placed just so. Generally speaking, you are modest and unassuming, but that does not mean that you will let yourself be downtrodden by anyone. You can and do, stand up for your own rights, and demand attention at the psychological moment. Your number is five, and your birthsign is Libra the Balance. You are ruled by Venus. August and December are your best months, with Friday as the lucky day.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

HAMILTON closes up today after a very successful meeting. Art Hullcoat is sure knocking them dizzy at this plant, saddling three more winners on Saturday but he still has Uncovered to put across. Young Kitty was in a soft spot on Saturday but was the victim of a very poor ride by Nick Wall. To begin with he was asleep at the switch when the barrier was sprung and then entering the home stretch when in a swell position to go in front by going on the outside, he tried to squeeze through a small opening on the rail and got pinched off. At that the game little Seagram mare finished third, keeping her record for the year of never being out of the money in eight starts.

Tommy Gorman opens his meeting at Syracuse, N.Y. tomorrow and will have plenty of horses. The New York track is different from any other insomuch as it has a solid concrete fence all around it instead of the wooden one in use at most tracks. The reason for this is that this track is used sometimes for automobile races. Tomorrow will be a big day at all the United States tracks on account of it being July 4th holiday. Fort Erie also opens up and being practically a Buffalo track they expect a bumper turnout. All the stables now at Hamilton will ship over and there are numerous horses on the ground from other plants.

STEPHAN JR., a recent double winner is to be sold to dissolve a partnership and whoever gets him will get a real race horse. He is a little unruly at the post but will win as many races as any plater over a long racing season. They have old Mr. Gaiety over at Fort Erie resting up for the meeting which opens next Wednesday at the border track. The old boy was never in better condition that he is right now and it will take a good home bred to defeat him.

We notice Mintmagi is down at Mount Royal and if this one gets a track with a little mud it will just be a case of hanging up the numbers. Horometer is being rested up for a few weeks due to a slight leg ailment, and then will be taken to Saratoga with some more of the McLaughlin string to try their luck with the good ones across the line. Freethinker has not won a race this year and the time is about ripe for him to turn in a winning effort. This one was an outstanding King's Plate favorite a few years ago.

Petes Drop Ten Inning Struggle To Nationals

Thrills Aplenty as Rival Squads Fight Bitterly for Verdict

Williams And Deyell Hold Limelight With Brilliant Performances On Respective Mounds—Knotty Lee Chased From Petes' Bench For Disputing With Umps.

FORD ENDS GAME WITH DOUBLEPLAY IN 9TH; KONOPKA TOPS LOCAL SWATSMITHS WITH 3

In a thrilling ten-inning C.O.B.L. game at Riverside Park yesterday, the Petes were nosed out by Belleville, 3 to 2. A holiday crowd of over a thousand yelling fans watched the most dramatic ball game seen here in years. It was packed with thrills and tense moments as the rival squads battled bitterly all through.

With the game early assuming the nature of a pitchers' duel between Williams and Deyell, sparkling baseball was the order. The players fought for every point and rode the umpires hard. Knotty Lee was chased from the Petes' bench in the fifth for disputing Umpire Meagher's judgment on allowing Williams to use a discolored ball and refusing to let Deyell do the same. The finish of the tilt came with a grand Belleville climax, Ford pulling off a double-play with the tying run on second.

Williams in Rare Form.

Chief Williams was in rare form and had his curves picking the corners to baffle the batters all afternoon. While he gave nine hits, they were scattered, and he had the homesters rolling to the infield throughout. Williams fanned eight and walked none, bearing down in the pinches. Archie Deyell also hurled lovely ball to give the Nats just eight hits and fan four. He was a bit wild, however, to walk three and throw three wild pitches. The big righthander fielded his position in fine style but made one error in judgment that was costly when he tried to get a runner at third in the tenth when he didn't have a chance.

Leads Nats With Willow

Green topped the Nats with the willow, getting three hits in four times. Utronki had two in five, and Scarlett hit a double. For the Petes, Konopka led the way with three hits in five appearances. Burton and Foley each clouted a two-bagger.

Kerr, Ford and Green all did some fine fielding for the visitors, with Williams also handling a few. Both Kerr and Utronki drew applause for fine catches. Batten, Murray, Foley and Ash turned in a sparkling defensive game for the losers.

Belleville got a run in the first frame before Deyell settled down. Utronki singled to centre and moved up twice on wild pitches, scoring on Green's hit. Kerr, who walked, got around to third but was nailed at the plate. They got their second run in the third. Kerr reached first on a fielder's choice when he forced Utronki, who singled, at second. Green hit to right field and Kerr scored on a bad throw by Dallin. The Petes threatened in the second and third but did not get a run till the sixth when Foley doubled, took third on an out and raced home on Green's miscue. They got one more in the seventh. Deyell singling, going to third on Konopka's hit and getting home when Sig was trapped between first and second.

Try Hard In Ninth.

The Nats tried hard to win it in the ninth, Scarlett doubling, going up on a wild pitch but being cut off at the plate by Murray on an attempted squeeze play. They won out in the tenth. With one out, Green singled, Mills was safe on Murray's error. Weir rolled to Deyell who threw to third but everyone was safe. Blaker grounded to Deyell who pegged home and got Green, but Whatley tried to make it a double-play and threw wild to first, letting Mills trot home. In the Petes' half, Konopka led off with a single and was sacrificed, but Foley lined out to Ford, who promptly doubled Konopka off second.

THIRTEENTH WIN FOR LEFTY GOMEZ

New York Yankees Shutout Red Sox for Eighth Straight Victory.

Lefty Gomez's 13th triumph of the year against only two defeats marked New York Yankees' 5-0 shutout of Boston Red Sox. The victory, the Yankees' eighth in succession, enabled them to increase their lead over Detroit Tigers to two games. The Tigers punched out 19 hits while Tommy Bridges was allowing only six, to beat Cleveland Indians, 9-2, in the first game of a double-header, but Bob Holland's double in the ninth drove home Sammy Hale with the run that gave the Indians the second game, 6-5.

Alphonse Thomas gave up seven hits and Red Kress, substitute first baseman, clouted two home runs as Washington beat the Athletics, 7-3, and returned to third place, the Red Sox dropping to fifth again. St. Louis and Chicago were idle.

MURRAY'S FOUR-PLY BLOW IN 8TH FRAME WINS FOR LEE CLAN

Calladine Hurls Clever Ball To Chalk Up His First Win Of Season On Local Mound, Holds Dukes To Seven Safeties—Team-mates Give Him Perfect Support After Third.

MURRAY, FOLEY, BURTON, L. HOLLINGSWORTH GIVE GOOD EXHIBITIONS IN PETES' GARDEN.

Homers by Tommy Foley and Bud Murray brought victory to the Petes, 5-4, in their first invasion of Oshawa this summer on Saturday. Foley's smash over the rightfield fence came in the fifth with two runners on and sewed up the count at 4-all. Murray banged his four-bagger also over the barrier in deep right to win the game in the eighth. A crowd of seven hundred saw a fine ball game.

Bill Calladine chalked up his first win of the year on the locals' mound, pitching first-rate ball to hold the Dukes to seven hits, five of them coming in the third and fourth innings when they got all their runs. He got better as the game progressed and held the homesters to a lone hit the last four frames. He struck out four and walked four, besides fielding his position fine and getting a hit. His support was perfect after the third.

Knox Hurls Good Ball

Walter Knox went good on the Oshawa slab, fanning seven and allowing seven hits and four walks till he was taken out at the end of the eight for a pinch-hitter, Lefty Frink finishing up in good style. Their support was good most of the way, Red Hollingsworth and Young being a big help in particular. Murray, Foley, Burton and Len Hollingsworth all looked good defensively for the Petes, all the outfielders pulling off some sparkling running catches. Foley and Murray led the local clouters with two hits each in four times, while Kitchen topped the Dukes with two safeties in four trips.

How They Scored

The Petes got a run in the first, Konopka getting a walk, stealing second, taking third on Foley's infield hit and tallying on Murray's single to right. A walk, two steals, a sacrifice, two errors, a single by Wallace and Mathews' triple gave Oshawa two in the third. They counted two more in the fourth on singles by Peacock and Malott, Hurst's double and an out. Only one man reached first after that.

With one out for the Petes in the fifth, Calladine was safe on an error and Batten followed with a single. Three runs crossed the plate on Foley's homer over the fence in right. They failed to threaten then till the eighth when, with one out, Murray poled his drive over the fence in the same direction that Foley's went. The fans gave both home-run clouters a big hand, though it meant the game for the Dukes.

Bob Holland, Indians—Doubled in ninth to drive home winning runs against Tigers in second game.

LEAFS DIVIDE DOUBLE-HEADER WITH BUFFALO

Toronto Wins First Game 4-3, Loses Second 3 to 2 on Home Grounds.

ROYALS SPLIT PAIR.

(By the Associated Press)

Changing managers in mid-season apparently is not a cure-all for losing baseball teams. At least it has not proved the remedy for Baltimore Orioles, who shifted from Frank McGowan to Joe Judge June 22, and Syracuse Chiefs, who released Andy High last Thursday and placed the team temporarily in charge of first baseman Bill Sweeney.

Since Judge took over the reins at Baltimore, the Orioles have lost just as consistently as they did under McGowan's guidance, dropping all except two of the 11 contests. The Chiefs played four games, three of them with Baltimore, and broke even.

Stars Win Odd Game

Syracuse took the odd game of the series with the Orioles yesterday when Joe Judge's hurlers poved just as ineffective as ever and the Chiefs pounded out a 13-5 decision behind the steady hurling of Fred Fussell, former Pittsburgh pitcher. Three of the nine hits off Fusell were homers by Marvin Olson, George Puccinelli and Woodley Abernathy.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Buffalo Bisons played a doubleheader and ended all-square. The Leafs won the opening game 4-3 and the Bisons took the seven-inning nightcap 3-2. Both games were exhibitions of effective pitching. Sheriff Blake and Bert Cole nosing out George Milstead in the inaugural game and Ken Ash beating Gene Schott and two successors in the second. The first game was decided in the ninth when Moore, Toronto centerfielder, connected with his fourth hit of the game to send Hary Rice home with the winning run.

Rochester Red Wings and Montreal Royals also broke even in a twin bill for the second straight day, the Wings leading off with an 8-3 victory and the Royals squaring accounts with a 4-3 decsion in the second. Rochester was outhit in both games but some timely hitting on the part of Johnny Mize beat the Royals. Mize singled with the bases loaded in the third and connected with a homer in the seventh to drive in four runs.

Cy Blanton, Pittsburgh Pirate farmhand, gave up only four hits and fanned 13 men as Albany Senators defeated the league leading Newark Bears, for the third successive time, 3-2, in a night game. Albany picked up eight hits off Charley Devens in the seven innings he worked, one being a home run by A. Powell. The victory enabled Albany to strengthen its hold on fourth place, the Senators now leading Montreal by a full game.

PETES CINCH BALL VERDICT IN 8TH FRAME

Anderson and Kingdon Connect for Triples to Help Peterborough Cause.

GOOD MOUND WORK.

Herb Ralph's hustling juvenile gang batted their way to a well-earned victory over the Bowmanville intermediates on Saturday at Riverside Park. With the aid of some lusty slugging on the part of Kingdon and Starr and sparkling defensive play by the whole team, they clearly showed their superiority over the Rubbertown aggregation. Going into the last of the eighth leading 4-1, they filled the bases and after 1 run had been walked in, Kingdon strode to the plate and poled a long tripie into the grass in right field scoring 3 more runs to put the game on ice for the Terriers.

D. Osburne on the mound for the visitors allowed one less hit than Anderson, the Peterborough hurler, but was shaky in the pinches. He wavered in the opening inning and permitted the Petes to obtain a lead which they never lost for the remainder of the contest. He settled down after that, however, striking out six and walking four while allowing eight hits and eight runs. "Tip" Anderson, the Terrier pitcher, struck out five and allowed but one free ticket to first.

Kingdon Leads at Bat

Kingdon led the offensive for the winners with two hits out of four trips to the plate, including a triple and single, while Thorburn, first-sacker for the Terriers, had two singles out of five attempts. 'Tip' Anderson helped his own cause with a three-bagger, giving him one hit out of two official times at bat, and Eddie Starr, his battery mate, had two for four, a single and a double.

For the Rubbertown boys, McVeen the catcher, had two hits for three tries. A. Osburn two for four, while Bagnall, right fielder had the longest hit of the game, a home run deep into left field in the eighth inning, driving in A. Osburne, who had singled ahead of him, for two of their three runs.

Airtight Defence.

The Terriers' defence was airtight, no misplays being charged against them, while their opponents made three. G. Clark in left field for the vistors caught several hard hit fly balls which might have otherwise gone for extra-base hits.

The Petes split even over the week end. They went to Oshawa Saturday and copped a nice 5-4 win, but dropped a 3-2 heart-breaker to Belleville here yesterday. They were two swell ball games to watch. It seems that the locals are a better road team this season than a home outfit. They've won two out of three away from home so far, while only winning two out of five in Riverside Park. It's too bad for the home fans, but at least yesterday's game didn't send them away crabbing. Everybody was tickled at the game, even if the Petes did lose it. No fooling, it was one of the nicest games we've ever seen. Packed with drama, color and thrills, it kept over a thousand rooters atwitter from start to finish.

* * * * * * *

You'll be hearing arguments pro and con over that game for a week. It had so many possibilities, so many places where it could have been won, so many reasons why it was lost—yeah, the second guessers ought to have a whale of a time now! Chief Williams twirled a fine brand of ball, bending his sweeping hooks to nick the corners and forcing the locals to ground out with regularity. But Archie Deyell was right in there, too, after a shaky start. He was tossing 'em in like a veteran and had the Nats eating out of his mitt most of the way, besides doing some smart fielding. Both sides turned in good defensive playing, though each side earned only one run.

* * * * * * *

Archie probably tossed away the game himself when he made a play to third in the tenth, having little chance of getting the runner, instead of throwing to first. Then, Cy Whatley made sure the tussle was lost by uncorking a wild heave to first in an attempt to make a double-play, letting the winning run in. However, the boys were trying hard and it was just tough luck. They looked in a fair way of getting it back in their half of the overtime frame when Konopka got his third hit and Calladine sacrificed him to second. But Foley lined out to short and Sig was doubled off second. Still, it was a sweet battle.

* * * * * * *

Knotty Lee was put off the locals' bench for arguing with Umpire Meagher. We didn't Blame the Petes' coach a bit, as Meagher was letting Williams use an old ball for several innings, and he stopped Deyell from using it. The Chief had the ball battered up to his taste and he was breaking his hooks two feet! What's sauce for the goose shouldn't be apple-sauce for the gander. It got to be quite a game by Catchers Mills and Whatley to keep the old ball in the contest, and for a time it looked as if it would have to be thrown into the river to get rid of it.

* * * * * * *

Outstanding features to the game, we thought, were: Ash's first-basing and ground-covering....Murray cutting off a runner at the plate on a squeeze play....The drama present when the whole Petes' infield would come in close in attempts to keep a runner on third from scoring....Whatley's blocking of Scarlett in the ninth (Cy's pad was ripped open by the spikes)....Houston's slide home when he ran for Deyell....Running catches by Dallin, Utronki and Kerr.... The high feeling between the opposing players....Konopka's hitting and the fielding of Batten and Murray.

* * * * * * *

Saturday's tussle was a nice one, too. Bill Calladine and Walter Knox hooked up in something of a hurlers' battle and both were good. Bill got better as the game progressed, having a fine curve that fooled the Dukes. Foley's homer over the rightfield fence with two on, when the Petes were trailing 4-1 in the fifth, was a life-saver. Then, Bud Murray made sure of the tilt by conking one over the same fence in the eighth. The seven hundred fans didn't like it a bit. The two homers wouldn't go for four-baggers at Riverside, but still they were noble clouts. No Oshawa player has hit one there in two months of play this year. Foley also played a fine game in the outfield, with Len Hollingsworth and Burton also making nice catches. It was sweet revenge for the 4-0 pasting the Dukes handed us here.

* * * * * * *

Herb Ralph's juvenile Terriers beat Bowmanville, 8-3, here Saturday. Being in Oshawa, we didn't see the game but hear it was a good one. Tip Anderson hurled nice ball and got good support at bat and afield. The local kids look good, though they don't want to get too cocky about beating this intermediate team as no doubt there are several other juvenile squads around Ontario that could do the same thing.

* * * * * * *

Oshawa Dukes went to Kingston yesterday and spit a double-header, winning and losing in two slugfests. Accounts of the tilts and the present loop standing appear elsewhere. It's been years since there was such a close race in the C.O.B.L. Here it is the first week in July and there is only one game's difference between the Ponies in first place and Belleville in fourth, with the Petes and Dukes tied for second place! The locals go to Belleville Thursday, the Nats are at Oshawa Saturday and the Dukes play in Peterborough a week from this Wednesday. We've got two open Saturdays here, the Petes going to Oshawa a week from this Saturday.

* * * * * * *

Picking 'em off the grapevine: Gals' softball game this eve is at King Edward Park at 6.15 .... Brintons play Johnston's Tires at Central .... Oshawa softballers didn't show up last p.m. and two picked teams staged a burlesque .... Don't forget tonight's' E.P.L. game between Cogs and Fosters at six at the Ex. Umpires McCarney and P. Calladine refused any fee for umping the juvenile ball game at Riverside Sat'day in order to aid the local team .... Doug Mowry will manage the juvenile O.A.S.A. entry .... Deyell deserves credit for going in yesterday and pitching and fielding a nice game despite a sore ankle .... Calladine replaced Batten because Bill is a righthand hitter.

To J. T. Braund and his rink goes the honor of winning the "Tip Top Tailors" Trophy and with it the individual prizes—four pairs of white flannels.

Under weather conditions that could not be improved on, 24 rinks from the local club competed in this annual competition.

Never before in the history of the club has such a splendid response been given as was the support to the annual tournament sponsored by the "Tip Top Tailors" Limited.

Ken Sloan, local manager for this firm, in presenting the cup and four pairs of white flannels to J. T. Braund's rink, expressed to the club, the committee, and the bowlers in general, the appreciation of himself and his firm for the wonderful support the bowlers had given this tournament.

The 2-1-0 system, that has been adopted by all clubs in the Central Ontario Lawn Bowling Association, was used, and made quite a hit with everybody. The green were fast and in excellent condition, and too much praise cannot be given to the green's keeper and the green's committee.

Down at Oshawa, Peterborough was represented by one rink skipped by G. Gimblett. Although not successful in bringing home any prizes, still the boys had a good time.

TIP-TOP WINNERS

1st.—A. Bell, R. Knox, V. Tully, J. T. Braund (skip); Tip-Top Tailor Trophy; each one pair of white flannels.

MANAGERS DIFFER FROM FANS IN SELECTING PICKED TEAMS

Terry and Cronin Losing No Time in Naming Teams for All-Star Game.

ON JULY 10TH.

(By Alan Gould, A. P. Sports Editor)

NEW YORK., July 3.—(AP)—After blue-pencilling the recommendations of Gus H. Fan on how the rival major league All-Star teams should take the field for the battle at the Polo Grounds, one week from today, Managers Bill Terry of the National League and Joe Cronin of the American League made public today their selections for each 20-man squad.

Differ From Fans

The two young pilots, who take over the jobs handled last year by Connie Mack and John J. McGraw, were vested with final authority, in the effort to put the strongest possible teams together. The final results of the newspaper balloting were made public yesterday and Cronin and Terry lost no time demonstrating where they differ sharply with the fans who had the final say-so a year ago.

Cronin, besides naming Frank (Pinky) Higgins of Philadelphia Athletics to play third base instead of the veteran Jimmy Dykes, Chicago White Sox manager, who had a 10-to-1 margin in the poll, and selecting Al Simmons of the White Sox to start the game in the outfield in place of Earl Averill of Cleveland Indians, radically shifted the pitching list.

Gomes Is No. 1 Flinger

Cronin agrees with the fans that Vernon (Goofy) Gomez of New York Yankees is the No. 1 flinger in the League but instead of picking Earl Whitehill of Washington Senators, Lefty Grove of Boston Red Sox and Willis Hudson of the Indians, the next three choices in order in the popular poll, he has selected Red Ruffing of the Yankees, Mel Harder of the Indians and Tommy Bridges of Detroit Tigers, with Jack Russell of his own Senators for mopping up duty.

There are no surprises, otherwise, in the American League lineup. Lou Gehrig, Charley Gehringer and Cronin himself will round out the infield with Higgins while Babe Ruth and Heinie Manush will share the outfield duty at the outset with Simmons. Cronin departed from the voting list in picking Sam West of St. Louis Browns for reserve outfield work, instead of Carl Reynolds of the Red Sox, besides selecting Rick Ferrell of the Red Sox in preference to Rollie Hemsley of the Browns for back-stopping and to Bill Dickey and Mickey Cochrane. Ferrell caught the entire all-star game for the American League at Chicago last year.

Terry Set In National

Bill Terry hasn't decided yet whether his team-mate, Travis Jackson, the popular choice, or Arky Vaughan of Pittsburgh Pirates, will start at shortstop but otherwise he has comparatively few differences with the verdict of fandom. The only noteworthy shift is that Mel Ott of New York Giants will be a starting outfielder along with Joe Medwick of St. Louis Cardinals and Chuck Klein of Chicago Cubs, leaving Wally Berger of Boston Braves, third choice in the poll, for reserve duty. Jie Traynor, Frank Frisch and Terry complete the infield.

Terry named only two catches, Al Lopez of Brooklyn Dodgers and Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs, in order to have an extra infielder. He substituted his own Joe Moore in the list of outfield reserves for Kiki Cuyler of the Cubs, who outvoted Moore, and chose Fred Frankhouse of the Braves, leading National League pitcher, in preference to Paul Dean of the Cardinals or Guy Bush of the Cubs. Frankhouse fared poorly, for some unexplained reason, in the poll, but Terry agrees with the fans otherwise in naming Carl Hubbell, Dizzy Dean, Lon Warneke and Van Mungo for pitching duty.

Clubmen Must Win To Keep Loop Lead

Cogs play Fosters in to-night's East Peterborough Baseball League game at six in the Exhibition Grounds. The league-leading Cogs will be trying hard to keep ahead of the fast-stepping Electrics and will trot out their strongest team this evening. Russ Kitchen may do the flinging, while Billingsley, Masterson and Vannest are all available. Fosters, who have been playing good ball lately but are outlucked repeatedly, may start Lefty Dunkerley who held Cogs to a tie the last time he faced them. The strengthened Foster crew will make a determined try to get a playoff berth and must start winning to do so.

These E.P.L.teams are putting on some good battles at the southend diamond but only a handful of fans attended regularly. However, to-night's game may see a better crowd as the Cogs have a fairly large following. Then, too, a number of rooters are pulling for the hard-luck Foster gang. If the weather is right, these two outfits should put on a nifty struggle and ball fans might find it well worth their time to drop down and watch it.

AUSTRALIANS WIN AGAIN.

LONDON, July 3 (C.P. Cable).—The touring Australians to-day defeated Surrey by six wickets in their cricket match that started on Saturday. Surrey went to bat first on Saturday and ran up 175, only to have the visitors reply with 251. In the second innings the home team got 184, but Australia came back to-day with 111 for four wickets.

Don Bradman, who has not been doing so well on this English tour, cut loose to-day to score 61 not out.

CRICKET CLUB WINS FROM WHITAKER'S

City II Scores 101 for Six Wickets Against 63 Runs for Their Opponents.

A return match between the two local teams was played at Nicholls Oval Saturday, June 30, and resulted in a win for the P.C.C., the final score being Whitaker's C.C. 63, Peterborough C.C. 101 for 6 wickets.

Whitakekr's C.C. batted first and the innings was featured by a brilliant display by Archie Hamilton, who scored 36 out of a total of 63; except for a defensive innings by Jefferson, the rest of the team did little against the bowling of Don Mitchell and the Rev. E. Worrall, the latter finishing up the innings by doing the "hat trick," dismissing Jefferson, Brown and Spence with three successive balls.

The Peterborough Club, by steady batting, passed their opponents' total with three wickets down, and the total at the call of time was 101 for 3 wickets. Hamilton followed up his batting success by taking 3 wickets at a small cost.

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

Chapter 38

"How did you hear of Mr. Tait's death?" Pointer asked the Italian woman before she could speak.

"From Miss Naylor. His cousin. She has always been kind to me. She told me over the telephone at once."

"Where is Miss Naylor?" Pointer asked, raising his voice.

"I'm here." Etta was in the drawing room and now came out. "I'm more sorry than I can say for this dreadful scene. Knowing how John had always been to Mrs. Ricci, I thought she would like to send some flowers."

Etta certainly looked appalled at the outcome of her action.

"But why telephone her at once?" Pointer insisted.

"It is a comfort sometimes to be able to send flowers." Etta eyed the Italian with anything but a friendly look. But Mrs. Ricci still paid no attention to her.

"You want to be arrested, I wonder why?" Pointer said casually, looking at her with a skeptical, bored eye. As he knew it would, it roused her to a still more reckless passion.

"You, too, mocka me?" she asked, "you, too, think I cana do nothing? That I have done nothing? You cannot arresta me withouta proof. There is no proof. If you arresta me I shall say I am given to saying mad things. You cannota arresta me without proof, and you cannota find any proof, and you will nevaire find any proof."

"Oh, please——" It was Mrs. Burnham's voice. "Are you going to arrest her?" she asked under her breath, "or is the poor thing quite mad?",

"How did you do it?" Pointer asked the woman. A routine question, but something might slip out which would show whether she had any knowledge of what had killed Tait.

"You willa nevaire find out!" gloated the Italian woman, hugging her arms across her breast as though to hug a secret against her very heart. "Nevaire"

"Oh, mama, why are you so?" her son expostulated, trying to take one of her arms. She flung his hand off, and did not take her eyes off the apparently petrified figure of Lady Tait, who, every vestige of color drained from her face, still stood where she had been standing.

"It's not possible!" came now in a sort of strangled gasp of horror, "it's not possible——" Lady Tait could not finish; she stared hollowly at the other woman, who again showed her strong clenched teeth in half-mad elation and triumph.

"You understand that I'm the detective officer from Scotland Yard in charge of the inquiry; are you making a confession, which you are willing to have taken down and signed, that you murdered Mr. Tait, presumably with the assistance of this son of yours?"

She cast a glance of most unmaternal scorn at the moon-faced youth whose collar seemed to have grown higher at the inspector's words.

"No, no! I am a hairdresser," came in a quick voice of terror from him. "I am not like mama. None of us are like mama. She told me to come with her. I have left several good customers waiting in my shop—I must return. I have nothing to do with what mama does," he fairly squeaked.

"Look at him!" the signora commanded Pointer, "at Hudson Giacomo Tait. This woman here"—she pointed to Lady Tait—"says he is not her son's son. She lies. But there are times when I could thinka him no son of my own." She advanced on the young man as though to shake him. Hudson Giacomo Tait beat a hasty retreat down the stairs. His mother followed. Pointer went after them on to the pavement. He lifted his finger to a taxi, a Yard taxi, that was hovering near on purpose.

"Where is this shop of yours?" he asked the young man who showed the whites of his eyes as he shot a frightened glance, first at him, then at his mother. Pointer could not say which of his two companions he feared the more. On the whole, he thought the mother.

"Rupert street, Soho Square," he twittered, "but why are you coming?"

"After what your mother has just said I want to see your shop, and where she lives."

Hudson Giacomo seemed to cower in his corner, his mother swelled out in hers.

"You will finda nothing," she asserted, cocking her head proudly, "nothing. You cannota prove one thing. And until you cana prove things you cannota arresta me." She spoke as might his lordship on the bench. "Hudson, your tie is crookeda, put it straight." As the young man seemed unable to do it, she leant forward and wrenched the tie violently under his chin. Then, folding her hands with a satisfied smile on her lips, she closed her eyes.

When the taxi stopped at a small but neat looking barber's, she prepared to get out, but Pointer stopped her.

"I want to see the place alone, with your son."

For a second she looked as though she would froth up, but after a look into the meditative eyes on her own, she subsided. "Do nota be long. I cannota waita long," she called after the two men.

There was no doubt as to the hasty relief with which Hudson Giacomo stepped into his little shop and closed the door. There he sank limply into a chair.

"It is the weather," said a stout gentleman in Italian who was being lathered.

"No, it is my mama," wailed the hairdresser. The customer laughed. The assistant shaving him laughed too The young man turned to Pointer. "Come into my private room. We can talk there."

Pointer nodded. His eyes were on two trays of boutonnieres under a glass case. Among them were some lilies of the valley. Each sprig half enveloped in its own tiny leaf. A long look at them and he was prepared to swear that they were the same as those which he had seen in Strange's buttonhole. He stopped out again, up to the driver, one of his own men, and told him in a low tone, apparently concerned with something about the rear lights, to go into the shop, and buy a packet of razor blades, and then one of the little artificial lily of the valley boutonnieres which he would find in the glass case to his right as he entered. He was to get it put up for him in a box bearing the shop's name, or failing that, wrapped in paper with name and bill enclosed. That done, Pointer returned to Hudson Giacomo, who fairly pulled him into a stuffy little back room and fumbled for a bottle of Chianti, muttering "Ciao" at intervals in distraught tones of self-pity.

"What do you want with me?" he asked wildly; "what is the use of asking me? Ask mama. I know nothing. Ask mama!"

"She helps you here in the shop?" Pointer asked sympathetically.

Hudson Giacomo nodded mournfully. "Nearly every day she comes and finds this and then that wrong. She generally takes the till. The customers like her. They find her funny." Hudson Giacomo's tone suggested that their sense of humor must be unusual.

The Chianti seemed to put heart into Hudson Giacomo.

"It was the papers saying that Lady Tait was going to give all that money to Mr. Tait. They made mama angry. When Miss Naylor came to see us last week my mama thought she came from her. Perhaps she did, but not to bring any money. Why should she? Mama always talks about Lady Tait owing us her son's money. But no one likes to give money away; mama certainly does not. Mr. Tait used to send us some every quarter. It was with it that my papa bought me this shop. It is a nice shop. I am a very good hairdresser. Trade is good. What do I care for the Tait family? Nothing at all."

For Wednesday, July 4

The planetary configurations ruling on this day hold augury of much stirring about in the pursuit of pleasure and excitement, with tendencies to unusual outlay and extravagant use of funds. The energies may be found under high tension, with a disposition toward quick decisions as well as impulsive action. But in all discretion is enjoined, especially in social, domestic and romantic engagements, where some change is indicated.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a lively and enterprising year with faculties and forces stimulated to bold ventures and to attain advantages either by direct routes or by resort to expediency and subtlety if need be. But beware speculation, extravagances and other financial loss.

A child born on this day may be keen, quick-witted, enterprising but thriftless.

JUST AMONG US GIRLS

By GLADYS GLAD

BATH ROUTINE WILL AID TO REDUCE HIPS, THIGHS

The very affable Billy Grady, expert talent selector for the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio and one of Broadway's best-loved characters, certainly comes into contact with a good deal of feminine pulchritude in the execution of his duties. Billy, you know, covers all the Broadway shows in search of potential motion picture stars. And he claims that, while a good many of the girlies he sees have beautiful faces and are perfectly formed from the waist up, too many of them possess heavy thighs and hips.

It isn't only in the theatrical world, however, that you see gals whose otherwise flawless figures are ruined by over-plump hips and thighs. There are women in every walk of life that are the unhappy owners of such hips and thighs. And their figures seem disproportionate merely because of this over-development.

The genial Billy Grady, however, recently told me of a bath routine that he often suggests to girls whose figures lack symmetry and perfection because of such overdevelopment. Billy claims that this routine, if followed faithfully and supplemented by proper exercising, takes actual inches off the lower part of the body. And the procedure really is very simple to follow.

According to Billy, the first bath that should be taken in this routine contains bicarbonate of soda. The tub of water should be tepid, and enough bicarbonate of soda added to give it a cloudy appearance. The body should be immersed in this bath and allowed to soak for a while. The second night, an Epsom salts bath should be taken. The amount of Epsom salts used depends upon the amount of water in the tub. Usually, however, one of those large containers is sufficient. On the third night, a starch bath should be taken. In this case, enough starch should be used to make the water milky.

After the third day, the three bath routines should be repeated in the same order. And on the seventh day, an ordinary hot bat should be taken. If you wish to try this, you may find it effective. But remember, proper exercises, such as the ones in my "New Figure" booklet, are also required to give the body suppleness and symmetry.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Astringent

Rose May: An effective astringent for a sensitive skin can be made of equal parts of rosewater, glycerine, and witch hazel. If this astringent proves too drying, reduce the amount of witch hazel used.

Fat Legs

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Every left-handed player I've known, with one exception, has beaten himself at golf.

How?

Simply by being one-handed conscious while trying to play a two-handed game. Golf is distinctly a game wherein both hands must work in absolute harmony.

This harmony can't be had as long as the player remains terribly conscious of one hand.

It so happens that a left-handed person thinks more about his strong hand than does a right-handed player. The one exception mentioned above is Marvin Schenck, a theatre corporation executive, whom I've had as a pupil.

I undertook to teach Schenck on the condition that he forget about being left-handed and do everything about the game with the same mental attitude as a right-handed player. His mental attitude perhaps more than my instructions has kept him consistently close to par.

A member of a foursome I played with recently at the Detroit Golf club was Joe Mack.

Mack employed several famous pros such as Mike Brady and Walter Hagen at his home club, Oakland Hills, the scene of many big competitions.

Being a sponsor of golfers and tournaments Mack is well versed in the lore of instructors. In fact he knows too well the popular ideas concerning various parts of the swing.

For example, he has nursed the notion that the right-hand punch at the moment of impact should cause a full free follow through. On the contrary too much right shortens the action after impact because the right hand forces the club to swing sharply around the left leg.

A swing that finds the left side in control finishes properly through the momentum of the club after impact.

Kawartha Netters Win In Tournament

In an exhibition tennis tournament over the holiday on Peterborough Club courts, the Kawartha Club netters defeated the Peterborough players, 4 matches to 3. Some sparkling tennis was shown in the various events with the home club being successful in the second men's doubles, the first mixed doubles and the ladies' doubles.

Following are the results: First men's singles—J. Donaldson, Kawartha, defeated R. Friend, 7-5 and 6-4; second men's singles—E. Rigby, Kawartha, defeated A. Ward, 6-4, 9-7; first men's doubles—H. R. Sill and C. R. Crowe, Kawartha, were successful over J. Kirkwood and G. Kirkwood 6-3 and 6-3; second men's doubles—W. Holgate and M. Cruthers, Kawartha, lost to H. Hammell and B. McPherson, 6-1, 1-6 and 6-3; first mixed doubles—Miss J. Allin and S. A. Shields, Kawartha, lost to Miss M. Donaldson and W. Perks, 6-0, 6-0; second mixed doubles—Miss K. Benson and G. R. Langley, Kawartha, won from Miss R. McKee and W. Howden, 6-3, 6-2; ladies' doubles—Mrs. G. R. Langley and Mrs. M. Cruthers, Kawartha, lost to Miss G Carvolth and Miss A. Macdonald, 6-4 and 6-2.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY EXAMINER

Girl Is Awarded $10,000 In Brownlee Case

DEFENCE MOVE FOR DISMISSAL IS CONSIDERED

Judge Disagrees With Verdict Brought in by the Jury.

FATHER GETS $5,000

Evidence Inadequate for Criminal Charge, Opinion of Bench.

EDMONTON, July 3.—(CP).—The civil action by which Vivian MacMillan, 22-year-old stenographer, sought damages from Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta, was upheld today. The girl charged the 50-year-old Premier with seduction. The jury verdict, delivered Saturday night, awarded Miss MacMillan $10,000, and her father, Allan MacMillan, co-plaintiff in the suit which alleged seduction, $5,000.

Justice W. C. Ives reserved judgment on a defense motion for dismissal of the verdict. The motion, entered by M. M. Porter, K.C., defense counsel, was based on the appeal that no damage to the plaintiff had been proven.

Four Hours' Deliberation.

The jury's verdict came after more than four hours' deliberation, while a packed courtroom waited in silence, and ended a trial of six days, three days of which had been occupied in hearing testimony of the plaintiff, improper relations, the former Edson High School pupil alleged had been carried on by the 50-year-old Premier for a period of nearly three years.

Neither of the principals was present in court when the jury returned the verdict. The verdict was relayed to them at their homes. Allan MacMillan, father of the plaintiff and a former mayor of Edson, was seated at the table with his counsel. Beside him was John Caldwell, Edmonton medical student, against whom the Premier had withdrawn a counter-claim charging conspiracy.

It was unofficially reported that Premier Brownlee, head of the Alberta Government since 1925, advised Lieutenant-Governor E. L. Walsh he would resign office immediately.

Jury's Verdict.

The jury of six stated they found the plaintiff, Miss Vivian MacMillan, former stenographer in the Alberta Attorney-General's office, had been seduced in October, 1930, a short time after her arrival in the city from Edson.

"Did this defendant seduce the plaintiff, Vivian MacMillan?" the jury was asked.

"Yes," was the reply, given through the jury foreman.

Mr. Justice Ives immediately expressed his disagreement with the verdict. He did not enter judgment and reserved decision on a motion for dismissal of the action, entered by M. M. Porter, K.C., associate counsel with A. L. Smith, K.C., in the Premier's defense.

In dismissing the jury, Mr. Justice Ives said:

"Gentlemen of the jury: You are excused and you may go. I think I should say openly and publicly while you are here that I strongly disagree with your decisions. That is all, you may go."

Mr. Brownlee entered the Alberta Government as Attorney-General August 13, 1921, serving under Premier Herbert Grenfield in the United Farmers of Alberta Ministry. He succeeded Grenfield to the premiership November, 1925, and has held office continuously since that time. A lawyer, he practiced in Calgary before entering public life. Born at Port Ryerse, Ont., Mr. Brownlee was educated in Eastern Canada, taught school there and then journeyed west as a young man.

The case was put in the jury's hands at 3.55 p.m., following the summing up of Mr. Justice Ives and completion of addresses by Neil Maclean, K.C., for the plaintiffs, and Mr. Smith for the defendant.

The jury found that both Miss MacMillan and her father suffered damages through actions of Mr. Brownlee.

In asking for the dismissal of the action, Mr. Porter, the associate defense counsel, declared there had been no damage proven which in any way would have impaired the girl's ability to render service at home, nor had she herself lost a single minute.

Mr. Maclean objected to say: "May I say this court cannot render a verdict contrary to the jury."

He said the trial had cos. Mr. MacMillan $500 in jury fees: He had had to mortgage his home at Edson to obtain them, and could not stand the cost of obtaining another jury and trial.

"That is not a reason which should influence a judgment of this kind," remarked the court.

Scenes From Edmonton As Premier Faced Seduction Charge

Suing Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta for $25,000 alleging seduction, Miss Vivian MacMillan is seen, LEFT, leaving the courtroom after a hearing during the sensational trial in Edmonton. She is also shown extreme RIGHT, from her most recent photo. Centre of layout shows Premier Brownlee (in front) with his bodyguard also leaving the courthouse. The premier threatened cameramen with imprisonment if they persisted in taking his photo and was held a virtual prisoner for more than an hour in the boiler-room of the building as he sought to escape newspapermen. He is also shown inset, lower right. TOP CENTRE shows Judge William C. Ives, acting chief justice of the Alberta Supreme Court who heard the case, together with a jury. Below is seen A. D. MacMillan, former mayor of Edson, Alta., who was joint plaintiff with his daughter against the premier. Premier Brownlee was found guilty and Miss MacMillan was awarded $10,000 and her father $5,000.

BERLIN, July 4.—(AP)—Chancellor Hitler returned to Berlin at 1:30 p.m. today from his momentous conference with the aged President Paul Von Hindenburg, silent as to the outcome of their conversations which may sway the future of Germany.

The Chancellor immediately plunged into a series of conferences with cabinet ministers.

Hitler, young and vigorous in contrast to the aged president, ended his interview at the latter's home in Neudeck early this morning.

Foreign Papers Banned

BERLIN, July 4 (AP)—Three foreign newspapers were banned from Germany to-day, until further notice, for their accounts of the "second revolution."

The issues of the newspapers describing events of the last few days were confiscated.

Copies of foreign newspapers, which are permitted to enter Germany are eagerly snatched up by German readers, since German papers can print only official communiques and official comments.

U. S. CELEBRATES FOURTH OF JULY

Thousands Seek Resorts as Heat Increases For Independence Day.

2 DEATHS REPORTED.

NEW YORK, July 4 (AP)—Generally favorable weather throughout the United States lured the citizenry from their home to-day to celebrate the Declaration of Independence—some to pay with their lives before the sun goes down.

One hundred and eighty-five died last year, many in automobile accidents.

The East generally looked for some relief from the torrid spell. New York, however, expected another hot day, despite a shower last night which drove the temperature down 16 degrees from the 91 which had left several deaths in its wake.

Two deaths were reported yesterday near Boston and one in Western Pennsylvania. Another heat fatality occurred in Ohio, while the total in St. Louis rose to 28 after 15 days of unrelenting heat.

Premature celebrations during the day brought injuries to a few persons. Robert Zizka, a blacksmith of Footville, O., suffered a shattered right hand and eye injury when a cannon exploded. Mrs. Carl Retan of Des Moines, Iowa, was injured when a package of firecrackers exploded on an automobile seat. She fell out of the car, suffering severe cuts on her head.

RELIEF WORKERS QUIT.

THOROLD.— Relief recipients to the number of about 150 almost 100 per cent. of the total list are on strike here to-day for more food and less work. Among the complaints listed is one against having to do grave digging for which the municipality is paid and for which they receive food, partly paid for by the government.

FOUR INVOLVED IN MURDER CASE PLEAD GUILTY

Victim's Widow, Her Mother, Two Men Appear in Montreal Court.

YOUTH TALKS.

Hints From Police Lead to Belief Others May Be Arrested.

MONTREAL, July 4 (CP)—Charged with the murder of Nicola Sarao, whose battered body was found near Blue Bonnets race track here a few days ago, four persons, including the victim's widow and mother-in-law, pleaded guilty in Arraignment Court to-day and were remanded until July 11 for preliminary inquiry.

The four charged are Tomasina Theolis Sarao, the widow; Giovannina Theolis, Mrs. Sarao's mother; Leone Gagliardi, 29, who is claimed by police to have confessed, and Angelo Donoforio, 19.

A document produced at the coroner's inquest yesterday and claimed to be Gagliardi's confession, stated Sarao had been killed for his $4,000 life insurance.

The specific charge against each of the four is that they conspired with one another "and with other persons" to kill Sarao and that he was actually killed June 28. Whether the expression "and with other persons" meant police expected to make further arrests could not be learned.

A stocky, grey-haired woman, in a shabby grey coat sat huddled on the bench in the dock and rose to her feet when the name of Giovannina Theolis was called.

Mother, Daughter Fight

She was the mother-in-law of the victim in the case, excused attendance at yesterday coroner's inquest, who came into the official limelight yesterday afternoon when she joined battle with her daughter in the cells at detective headquarters and had to be separated from her. She stood quietly at the Bar, her hands folded on it, looking straight ahead of her, through half-closed eyes, her head somewhat bowed, while the charges against her were read, but spluttered voluble Italian when the interpreter told her what it was all about. She left the dock quietly, however, and her place was immediately taken by the remaining three accused.

Police said to-day they had a statement from Donoforio. They did not make known the nature of the statement, nor was there any indication whether it would be produced at the preliminary hearing.

United Farmers Resume Session To-day After Debating Till Midnight.

THREE CONSIDERED.

All Are Silent—Coalition Gov't and Early Election Rumored.

BY GEORGE FINLAY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

EDMONTON, July 4.—(CP)—Election of a leader and possibilities of a triple party alliance engaged the attention of a United Farmers of Alberta caucus for the second day.

A day and night session which ended shortly after midnight failed today to bring a decision on the appointment of a successor to Premier J. E. Brownlee and discussions were carried over another day.

Many names came before the caucus during the long drawn out session including those of federal members and present cabinet ministers in the Brownlee government. Among those mentioned were Robert Gardiner, U.F.A. leader in the federal house, Hon. Geo. Hoadley, Minister of Health in the Alberta government and R. G. Reid, Provincial Treasurer.

Officially, however, no word came from the meeting. In a cheerful mood, the members trooped from the council chamber early this morning but all were silent when approached for a statement.

Reference to the history of the Neill chain of shoe stores was traced as a bright thread in the speeches

Court's Ruling Will Not Affect Premier's Intention to Resign He States.

EDMONTON, July 4.—(CP)—Dismissal with costs of the action of Vivian MacMillan, Edson stenographer, against Premier J. E. Brownlee, was the judgment of Acting Chief Justice W. C. Ives in a written judgment filed at the Edmonton Court House today. Miss MacMillan, former government stenographer, in a civil action for damages against the premier, alleged seduction.

After a court hearing lasting one week, a six-man jury in Supreme Court awarded Miss MacMillan $10,000 and her father, Allan MacMillan, $5,000. Mr. Justice Ives, who presided, refused to enter the jury's verdict, and reserved decision on the defence motion for dismissal.

In his written judgment filed here today the judge said:

"In my view of the law the action must be dismissed with costs, including costs of discovery, and only one bill should be taxed. No evidence being offered by the defendant on his counterclaim. It will be dismissed with costs including discovery."

In a special verdict in answer to questions, the jury found seduction had taken place on October 13, 1930, and named Premier Brownlee.

HOUSE DEBATE GETS TO PRISON

Prisoners Start Hooting When Word Reaches Cells on Mysterious Channel.

OFFICIALS NOT TALKING.

KINGSTON, Ont., July 4.— (C. P.)—Incredible though it may seem, it was learned to-day that convicts of the Kingtson penitentiary on Tuesday knew about the discussion going on in the House of Commons, regarding penitentiary matters and yesterday afternoon and evening gave vent to their feelings by continued hooting and yelling, which however did not assume serious proportions.

It was learned to-day that apparently some convict in the cell block was giving a speech from the confines of his own cell, and in amid the hooting could be heard "hear, hear."

It was the first time in weeks that the convicts had set up a howl, out penitentiary officials simply would not enter into conversation with newspapermen, who sought to get in touch with them.

From well informed sources, it was learned to-ady that the convicts have been for the most part, marking time waiting to see what developments there are. Many in a position to know contend that everything is not yet serene inside the penitentiary walls.

MADAME CURIE CO-DISCOVERER OF RADIUM DIES

Noted French Woman Succumbs of Anaemic Condition in 66th Year.

FAMOUS SCIENTIST.

Twice Awarded Nobel Prize in Chemistry—Honored by Many Gov'ts.

SALANCHES, France, July 4 (A.P.)—Mme. Marie Curie, the little woman whose work with her husband in a makeshift laboratory gave humanity the priceless gift of radium, died to-day.

For many weeks she had been under treatment at a sanitarium here for anaemic condition. She was 66.

Pierre Curie, the young Paris professor who was the co-discoverer of the element, died in 1906, stuck by a truck only a short while after he and his wife had won lasting fame.

Although honored by countless governments and societies as one of the most distinguished scientists and women of all time, Mme. Curie shrank from public view. She stayed at work in her laboratory whenever possible.

Twice she was given the Nobel prize in chemistry. In 1922 she became the first woman elected to the French Academy of Sciences, 12 years after she had been defeated for membership in the body.

Benefitted Thousands

Thousands of victims of cancer have benefitted from the Curies' discovery of radium, one of the world's rarest and most valuable substances.

Only a few ounces of it have been segregated. It is obtained from pitchblende. The effect of radium on human tissue has opened entirely new medical and scientific fields.

Western Ontario Members Press Gov't to Pay Farmers' Cattle Losses.

OTTAWA, July 4.— (CP) —The corridors of Parliament were given over to summer sightseers today. After a strenuous session lasting five and a half months, Canada's law makers were on their way home. Today found only a few members in their offices, and some of them were cleaning up preparatory to making an early exit.

After a couple of false starts, parliament finally prorogued last night. It was not a colorful ceremony when compared with the opening scene last January. Only half a hundred of the 245 members gathered behind the Senate rail, while within the Chamber, where Commoners may not tread, were but a dozen Senators.

The Governor General, in blue and white uniform, read the Throne Speech. It emphasized improved economic conditions in the Dominion reflected in increased revenues and a greater volume of inter-Empire trade. It reviewed legislation of the session mentioning, in particular the bills establishing the Central Bank and amending the Bank Act, the Marketing Act, Companies Act amendments, farm-debt relief and loan measures, and the $40,000,000 public works program for unemployment relief. It closed with an expression of admiration for the spirit of the Canadian people as manifested during a period of difficulty.

Negro Is Blamed For Fatal Brawl

CHATHAM, Ont., July 4 (C.P.).—One of three men held here as a result of the death of John Bresina, 40-year-old Chatham resident, caused his death, a coroner's jury has decided. Bresina died at the hands of Frederick Turner, 29-year-old Negro, the jury found last night.

Bresina received fatal injuries in an early morning brawl on June 24. Turner, Earl Brown 33, Negro, and Cyril Secka, 30, white, face charges of taking part in the affray.

According to the evidence, the coroner's jury heard, two fist fights occurred. The jury's verdict said Bresina came to his death from "the effect of blows administered by Turner." A knife was found beside his body near the Canadian Pacific Railway crossing on William Street, but evidence showed it had not been used in the fight.

Secka appeared at the inquest with a bandaged foot. He said it was injured during a tussle with Brown.

EXPECT ONTARIO PAPERS TO CARRY ADS ON LIQUOR

Odette States He Will Make Suggestions to Hepburn Government.

BE FIRST SINCE WAR.

New One Man Commission Busy in Parleys With Brewers, Growers.

TORONTO, July 4 (C.P.).—Ontario newspapers and periodicals will be permitted to accept advertising from breweries and distilleries if the recommendation of Edmond G. Odette, selected as a one-man commission to replace the present Liquor Board, is accepted.

Mr. Odette said here last night he would ask Mitchell F. Hepburn, Premier-elect of Ontario, who has named him to the new position, to sanction return of liquor advertising to Ontario. It was banished with war-time prohibition and was not allowed under administration of the Liquor Control Act, which inaugurated government control in 1927.

Mr. Odette said he had felt for a good many years that Ontario papers were unfairly prevented from accepting the advertising when publications from other provinces and from the United States carrying it came into the province. He emphasized this was only his "opinion," and any action he might take would have to be sanctioned by Mr. Hepburn's Government.

Need Be No Delay.

Authorization of the advertising need not await proclamation of the beer and wine sale amendments to the Liquor Act passed at the last session of the Legislature, he said. But the Premier-elect had promised to proclaim the amendments without delay and he would help him in this as much as possible.

His appointment had been announced in advance of Mr. Hepburn's taking office, the commissioner-designate said, in order that he might start work immediately on the new regulations. He had arranged a series of conferences with representatives of the brewing interests and distilleries, grape growers, wine manufacturers, hotelkeepers, restauranteurs, Moderation League, civic heads and the Ontario Temperance Association to get their views.

"We want to please all sections of Ontario, is possible, with our regulations," he said.

Gedura, who escaped with three others from the Ontario Reformatory at Mimico last Friday. The other three were captured Saturday, one at Galt and two more between Galt and Guelph.

An automobile believed stolen in Galt by the two escaped prisoners was found abandoned in a church shed at Foxboro, four miles north of here.

FARMERS ASK LOSSES BE PAID

Western Members Claim Government Assisted Firm to Fit Up Ships.

PROSECUTION LIKELY.

OTTAWA, July 4 (C.P.).—Liberal and Conservative members from Western Ontario united in a last-minute demand that farmers be compensated for losses totalling $40,000 through the handling of their cattle by the bankrupt Richelieu Corporation, of Montreal, in the House of Commons last night. Their efforts were, however, unsuccessful.

The House was nearing prorogation when the matter was drawn to the attention of the Government. It was charged that farmers of Western Ontario had been 'robbed' by this corporation, and the Government was urged to "come across and pay the bill." Grants were made to this company to fit up two vessels with stalls for carrying cattle to the Mother Country.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett declined to accept the view that the Government was liable in the matter. It was perfectly obvious from the statements made, he said, that there really never was a company, and that three men were personally liable.

While willing to investigate the matter thoroughly and to expend some money in prosecutions if necessary, the Government was not prepared to pay compensation because men had made unwise bargains.

The names of President Richardson, of the Richelieu Corporation, James Macdonald, Montreal, and E. A. D. Morgan, Montreal barrister, were mentioned in discussion as being leading spirits in the organization.

our mouths,'" said one cabinet minister as he emerged from the council chamber.

Brownlee Silent

Premier Brownlee did not leave his office until eleven o'clock, but refused to discuss the situation. "I have no statement to make to the press. Immediately there is I will tell you. I will be frank with you."

There was unofficial talk of a Coalition government being formed and of an early election, but all party leaders refused comment. One thing was certain. Constitutionally, the new premier would not be required to call an election immediately. The present term of the U.F.A. Government does not expire until June, 1936. Under the constitution, Mr. Brownlee's successor could appoint his cabinet and carry on, unless defeated in the House.

With a jury judgment against him in the civil action of Vivian MacMillan, former civil service stenographer, Mr. Brownlee visited Government House Saturday night, he disclosed in an official statement issued yesterday. He informed Lieut.-Governor W. L. Walsh of his intentions to resign and asked for a few days to put governmental business in order. This request was granted.

VON HINDENBURG REAL DICTATOR OF THIRD REICH

Hitler Ends Momentous Interview Expected to Decide Nazi Policy.

NO DETAILS.

All Germany and World Await Decision Whether Papen Stays or Goes.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press

BERLIN, July 4—Paul Von Hindenburg, to whom the army and millions of Germans are devoted, appeared to-day to be the dictator of the future of the third Reich.

Adolf Hitler, comparatively young and vigorous chancellor, ended a momentous interview with the president early this morning at Neudeck.

None knew the result of that conference. But it was expected to decide the course of the whole Nazi policy. Hitler dares not go over the head of the 86-year-old Von Hindenburg, who has the now dominant Reichswehr, or standing army, at his beck.

When Hitler left the president's estate in east Prussia early this morning he went to the nearby castle Fickenstein for a few hours sleep before hurrying back to Berlin. Fickenstein is owned by Count Hermann Dohna, intimate friend of Von Hindenburg.

Von Papen?

Whether Franz Von Papen, vice-chancellor, Hitler's stern critic and Von Hindenburg's staunch friend, would continue in the cabinet was a paramount issue discussed by the two. Not only was it important to Germany but also to the world.

If Von Papen stays Hitler will be hindered in a reported scheme for tightening the Nazi reins on the government; if he goes a sweeping cabinet shakeup is predicted.

A big question mark remaining from the "second Nazi revolution," born of plots and bloodshed, was whether the veteran Von Papen has already quit and Von Hindenburg called Hitler to Neudeck to remonstrate.

Circles close to the vice-chancellor declared he had not resigned, but that Von Papen, always the soldier, told Hitler of his willingness to step out should Von Hindenburg see fit.

Widespread reports last night that Von Papen had resigned were premature. It was pointed out that under terms with which Von Hindenburg accepted Hitler's regime early in 1933 Von Papen was to be in the Cabinet to act as the President's confidante and informant, a check and a balance.

"Purging" Halted.

Although stern warnings went out to opponents, Hitler and his associates have called a halt to his "purging" process in which numbers met death at the hands of firing squads.

The Government said the total slain was "less than 60," but one eye-witness said that number was killed in Berlin alone.

"Von Papen is not at all surprised that he is the victim of the whole movement," said an associate who saw Von Papen on the eve of his epochal address at Marburg on June 17 in which he castigated many aspects of the Nazi movements. This was the first open criticism of the regime by a high official.

The Vice-Chancellor's attitude, the frield said, is this:

"I know that I am the standard-bearer in this movement for purification; a sort of target for many attacks, but even if I am shot down, politically speaking, that makes no difference—somebody must pay."

There appeared no doubt that Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Premier of Prussia, would be Vice-Chancellor if Von Papen leaves the Cabinet.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 3.—(C.P.)—T. Merritt Moore, auctioneer of Aylmer, says he is ready to sell the offcial cars at Queen's Park if and when called upon to do so. Alderman Malcolm McIntyre brought up the advisability of such action, pointing out that it would not only safeguard those using the benches from possible injury if motor cars should accidentally jump the street curb, but also would be better for pedestrians on the street.

When the chairman of the Parks Committee took exception to such a suggestion, Alderman McIntyre said he was putting it forth as a citizen and member of the Council and for the best interests of citizens at large.

Alderman Cotton seconded Alderman McIntyre's motion to have the benches moved, and it carried

Alderman Hamilton stated that members of the Council and citizens of the city appreciated the work Alderman Stocker did on the parks and his intense interest in maintaining their beautiful appearance. NEW HIGH SCHOOL CORNER STONE IS OFFICIALLY LAID AT MADOC

Dr. S. Eaglestone Performs Ceremony After Inspiring Addresses by Notables.

PROGRAM OF SPORTS.

MADOC, July 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—Dominion Day was celebrated in Madoc by the laying of the cornerstone of the new High School and a program of sports.

Shortly after 1.30 p.m., the chairman of the day, Mr. W. E. Connor, welcomed the large gathering of interested spectators on behalf of the board; and the ceremony was opened by the singing of The National Anthem and "O Canada." The singing was led by a school chorus under the leadership of Miss L. West. Mr. George Maybee acted as pianist. Following the singing, Rev. Mr. Hunter offered a short prayer.

After inviting the speakers to the platform, the chairman introduced the first speaker, Rev. Father Meagher, who congratulated the board on their foresightedness in erecting a modern, up-to-date building in spite of the cost. He congratulated the teachers on their success in the past year and warned the people that the teachers needed the co-operation of the students and the parents to make their task a success.

The second speaker, Mr. James F. Hill, thanked the board for the invitation to attend the ceremony, and spoke of the Federal side of Dominion Day.

Dr. Faulkner, the next speaker, assured the gathering that he and Mr. Hill would work side by side for the good of the needy communities of Ontario, and now that election was over, everyone should work side by side for the good of the country.

Free School of Debt

Rev. Doggett is the new minister advised the board to work untiringly to procure aid from every source, so that the burden of tax should be unnoticed in the municipality, and he urged that when the school opened it would be entirely free from debt.

Rev. Doggett i sthe new minister at Queensboro, and spoke for Rev. Mr. Rivers, who was unable to be present.

Mr. C. M. Wallbridge, Reeve of Madoc village, mentioned the many public buildings which the village council had sponsored: the Armouries, the Fire Hall, the Skating Rink, and finaly the new school.

Mr. McQuire spoke of the memories that were recalled when he used to look at the desks and seats in the old school; memories of pupils who have gone out to make a name for themselves in the world. The greatest lessons learned in the schools were those of idealism, and those of conduct, and the lesson of mixing with others. He congratulated the board on their planning and looking ahead.

Mr. Anderson, Principal of the High School, expressed the regret and hardship felt by the pupils and teachers in the loss of the books and notes lost in the fire. Probably the greatest loss to the community was the priceless records that were destroyed; records dating back to 1878.

The audience then joined in singing "The Maple Leaf," led by the school chorus.

The Stone is Laid

Dr. S. Eagleson was chosen by the board to perform the ceremony of laying the stone, as he had served on the board for a great number of years, and had done much for the good of the school. When introduced by the chairman, Dr. Eagleson gave the following address:

"An old adage says that some men are born great, some achieve greatness, and other have greatness thrust upon them. I feel that I belong to the latter class, inasmuch as I have been chosen by my colleagues on the Madoc High School Board to perform this important duty of laying the cornerstone of the new High School.

"It has been the custom for many centuries to lay the cornerstone at the north-east corner of important public buildings. It is considered the most important stone in the edifice and is usually laid with impressive ceremonies. Among the ancients those ceremonies are well portrayed by Tacitus, in the history of the rebuilding of the Capitol at Rome.

Procession of Virgins

"The preliminary ceremonies consisted in a procession of vestals or virgins, who, with chaplets of flowers encompassed the ground, and consecrated it by libations of living water, and after solemn prayer, Helvidius, to whom the care of rebuilding the Capitol had been committed, laid his hand on the fillets that adorned the foundation stone, and also the chords by which it was to be drawn into place. At that instant the magistrates, the priests, the senators, the Roman knights and a number of citizens, all acting with one effort and general demonstrations of joy, laid hold of the ropes and dragged the ponderous load to its destined spot. They then threw in the ingots of precious metals which had never been melted in the furnaces.

"This stone must be perfectly square on its surfaces, and in its solide contents a cube. It lies between the north, the place of darkness, and the east, the place of light and thus symbolizes the progress from darknes sto light and from ignorance to knowledge. The stone is carefully examined by the square, level and plumb, and is declared to be well formed, true, and trusty.

"The corner does not appear to be adopted by any of the heathen nations, but to have been peculiar to the Jews, from whom it descended to the Christians. In the Old Testament it seems always to denote a prince or high personage, and hence the Evangelists consequently use it in reference to Christ, who is called the Chief Cornerstone.

"This brief resume of the history of the cornerstone points out to us the great significance of this stone and of the ceremony attending its laying.

"It is peculiarly fitting that we should gather here to-day to perform this duty, and from the foundation laid to-day may we all see arise a building perfect in its parts and honorable alike to the architects and builders.

County High School

"This school is not just a local institution, but a County High School and we confidently hope that in the years to come a large and ever increasing concourse of students from north, south, east and west will graduate to this education centre to receive a training and education that will fit them to become good and useful citizens of this great country of ours.

"From the citizens gathered here to-day, I ask your loyal support and hearty co-operation in our future educational work. From the students, I request you to do your part in making Madoc High School one of the best in the province. With high ideals and diligent application to your studies and sports, you can add your names to the roll of successful graduates of this school.

"That this school shall always prosper is my earnest wish on this occasion."

The Scroll

The secretary of the school board, Mr. G. C. Moon, presented Dr. Eagleson with a silver trowel, and the scroll was read by Mr. S. B. Wright of Deloro, and was as follows:

"In the name and by the favor of the Deity whom we serve: On the second day of July, A.D., 1934, in the twenty-fifth year of the reign of our Gracious Sovereign, King George the Fifth, by the grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India;

"Contractor.—G. F. Hasken.

"The cornerstone of Madoc High School was laid by Dr. S. Eagleson in the presence of the Reeve of the neighboring township, numerous officials, members of Parliament, teachers, and pupils, and a large concourse of citizens. In the stone was deposited a number of our common coins, local newspapers, a Holy Bible, and this scroll,

"Dated at Madoc this second day of July, A.D. 1934: W. E. Connor, Chairman of the High School Board; G. C. Moon, Secretary-Treasurer."

The scroll with some modern coins, papers and a Holy Bible, was sealed in a lead container and deposited in the stone. The stone was then declared laid and the cavity was sealed with a silver trowel. The ceremony was closed by singing "God Save the King."

GUTHRIE WANTS FULLEST PROBE

penitentiaries, with particular attention to Kingston, which blew up Saturday prorogation plans. Discussion was featured by a statement from Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, in which he made it quite clear that he wanted the fullest inquiry into the Kingston situation.

The Minister punctuated certain statements which have been made about the grey prison on Lake Ontario. There is no "hole" in which dangerous prisoners languish in solitude, he said; there is no such thing as solitary confinement in any Canadian penitentiary. He blamed A. E. Smith, of Toronto, secretary of the Canadian Labor Defence League, for instigating most of the dissatisfaction with penitentiary administration in Canada.

From the C.C.F. benches Agnes Macphail, the only woman member of the Commons, offered the minister a number of suggestions for penitentiary improvement. One of her points was that a travelling board should go from prison to prison interviewing men and making recommendations. She also advocated payment to prisoners for work done.

Ask Pay for Cattle Losses.

For the rest, the House had a varied program. It discussed the international whest agreement for a time, and Prime Minister Bennett stated that this country would observe its provisions in every respect.

The penitentiaries discussion occupied a long time, and then Western Ontario members asked for compensation to farmers who lost $40,000 through the handling of their cattle by the bankrupt Richelieu Corporation of Montreal. A somewhat strenuous debate followed. Prime Minister Bennett, while promising to take steps to investigate the matter, refused to accept the principle that the Government should be called upon to pay because men had made improvident bargains.

At last, with business concluded, the Commoners attended His Excellency in the Senate, and the fifth session of the 17th Parliamet was ended.

Explains Shots at Buck.

Mr. Guthrie, replying to Mr. Woodsworth and Miss MacPhail, said a rifle, a revolver and a shotgun were used by guards to fire into the cell of Tim Buck, Toronto Communist leader, during the riots of October, 1932, in Kingston Penitentiary.

Buck, serving five years in Kingston as a Communist, was enticing the men to further rioting, the Minister said. He was in the fourth tier of cells, 35 or 40 feet above the floor, with the men surging below him, knocking off cell locks with planks and boards. He would rush to his cell door, exhorting the men to stand up for their rights, and make a demonstration that would force changes in prison regulatons.

To frighten the Communist prisoner and keep him quiet, guards fired into his cell from the floor below, the Minister said, although he did not know who ordered the firing. There were three shots, one from a rifle, one from a pistol, the third from a shotgun. The shots were fired when Buck was in the rear of his tiny cell, away from the grilled door.

Eleven bullets or shotgun pellets pierced the ceiling of the cell

Object Only to Frighten.

"The purpose was not to injure him," said Mr. Guthrie, "but only to frighten him, and, as I said the other day, dissuade him from making further speeches." The fact that Buck was not injured by the shooting was clear evidence there had been no intention of shooting him. After the three shots he was quiet for the rest of the day.

Prompted by the minister's account of the shooting, E. J. Young, Liberal member for Weyburn, said it was comparatively safe for a man with a rifle to shoot into Buck's cell, but it was extremely hazardous with a shotgun because of the spreading effect of the shot. From 35 or 40 feet, it would have been impossible to miss Buck if he had been staiding at the door of his cell. Any guard who would take such a chance, should not be permitted to carry firearms.

Defends System.

For two hours, the Justice Minister presente da general defence of penitentiary administration with the following highlights:

"There is no "hole" or dungeon in any Canadian penitentiary. In Kingston, there are nine cells under the keeper's hall used for recalcitrant prisoners, lighted without sanitary arrangements, but well ventilated.

The paddle is used to punish prisoners only as a last resort with three to 10 blows the usual application. "There is nothing brutal about it, the prisoners only resent the indignity of the thing."

John "Two-Gun" O'Brien, an American citizen, was kept from Aug., 1931, until a few weeks ago in the prison of isolation for leading an abortive attempt to escape. He had been considered one of the most dangerous men in the prison.

"There is no such thing in any Canadian penitentiary as solitary confinement and there hasn't been for at least 30 years."

There has been no shackling to cell blocks for at least two years.

"The man who has instigated most of the unrest against penitentiary administration in Canada is A. E. Smith" (of Toronto, secretary of the Labor Defence League).

Trouble Staffs With Reds.

It seemed strange that most of the agitation in Kingston, culminating in riots, started soon after the seven Toronto Communists arrived there.

The Communists never have been in the punishment cells. They have been working on the prison docks, the lightest job in the prison, selected by themselves.

All Communists—five of the original seven are still there—are in good health. The five will be liberated as the others were, when one-half their term has been put in, providing they are first offenders and their prison record has been good.

Warden Lax in Duties.

Warden W. B. Megloughlin, who resigned a few days ago, was lax in his administration of prison regulations.

The two C.C.F. leaders pressed for a Royal commission as the only way of getting to the bottom of the causes of penitentiary unrest.

Miss MacPhail, for years an amateur penogologist made the following recommendations to the minister:

Incorrigible prisoners should be isolated and given indefinite sentences. If their conduct was black enough, they should never be liberated.

The superintendent of penitentiaries should be a penologist.

There should be more segregation of prisoners—first offenders by themselves andd no mental unfits in the penitentiaries at all.

A psychiatrist should be appointed to each prison, to watch over prisoners and advise the warden and doctors.

Prisoners should be paid for the work they do. They should be made to attend school regularly.

A travelling parole board should go from prison to prison, interviewing men and making recommendations.

Slight Damage Done Campbellford Fire

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 4. —Fire Chief Charles Davidson, had rather an unusual experience yesterday afternoon, the fire was in the rear of his own garage and service station. Sam Clegg noticed the flames coming from a pile of waste between the canal wall and the show-room, and immediately turned in the alarm, the brigade responded promptly and in less than half an hour had the blaze under control— the cause is believed to have been spontaneous combustion due to the solid brick construction, the building suffered only slight damage, which is fully covered by insurance.

LESLIE YEO.

HAVELOCK, July 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—This community was saddened when it was learned on Sunday morning, that Leslie Yeo, aged ten years, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Yeo, had passed away at midnight Saturday after a few days' illness from appendicitis.

Les, as he was fondly called by those who know him best, was a lovable little fellow and always greeted his friends and acquaintances with a cheery smile. He was a great lover of hockey, and never tired of talking about the game and his hockey heroes. A sad feature in connection with the death is the serious illness of his mother, who has been confined to bed for the past month.

Weddings

COWELL—MACDONALD.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, beautifully decorated with ferns, hydrangea, and delphinium, was the setting for an interesting wedding at five o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, when Helen Laura, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. MacDonald, became the bride of John Beattie Cowell, only son of Mrs. Cowell and the late R. T. Cowell of Campbellford.

Rev. J. C. Grier, of Lindsay, assisted by the Rev. J. C. Robinson of Campbellford, officiated. The wedding music was played by Charles E. Allen of Stirling. Miss Grace MacDonald, a relation of the bride, acted as soloist, and sang "Until" and "O Perfect Love."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a graceful model of ivory bridal satin. Her veil was of tulle, with coronet-effect headpiece of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of American Beauty roses, and lily of the valley. She was attended by Miss Muriel McDonald of Colborne, and Miss Dorothy Ackerman, cousin of the bride, of Toronto, who acted as bridesmaids. They were becomingly attired in poiret gowns of turquoise blue suede lace with small fitted lace hats and flared veils. They carried shower bouquets of gypsy yellow roses. Little Miss June McMullen, cousin of the bride, acted as flower-girl. She wore a gown of peach, pussy-willow crepe designed on princess lines of ankle length, and wore a matching hat and flared veil. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and baby's breath.

The best man was Mr. Gordon Bailey of Stirling, and the ushers were Mr. Owen Hendy and Mr. Alexander Little. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received, wearing a gown of old rose pebbled crepe, with leghorn hat and corsage of yellow roses and fern. The groom's mother also received, wearing a gown of silver grey chiffon with matching hat and shoes and corsage of red roses. At the close of the reception, little Miss Bernice McMullen presented a bouquet of roses and maidenhair fern to Mr. and Mrs. F. J. McMullen, grandparents of the bride, on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. Mr. McMullen graciously replied.

Later the bride and groom left on a motor trip to Montreal and Quebec, to return by Rochester and Buffalo. The bride travelled in a suit of primrose yellow pebble-crepe, with leghorn hat and matching accessories. The groom's gift to the bride was a necklace of black onyx with marcasite trimming. The gifts to the bridesmaids were silver compacts, to the soloist a bracelet and brooch set in pastel shades, to the flower girl a monogramed silver bracelet, to the best man a set of ebony military brushes, to the organist a monogramed silver belt and tie-clip and to the ushers gold-plated cigarette cases.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL CORNER STONE IS OFFICIALLY LAID AT MADOC

Dr. S. Eaglestone Performs Ceremony After Inspiring Addresses by Notables.

PROGRAM OF SPORTS.

MADOC, July 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—Dominion Day was celebrated in Madoc by the laying of the cornerstone of the new High School and a program of sports.

Shortly after 1.30 p.m., the chairman of the day, Mr. W. E. Connor, welcomed the large gathering of interested spectators on behalf of the board; and the ceremony was opened by the singing of The National Anthem and "O Canada." The singing was led by a school chorus under the leadership of Miss L. West. Mr. George Maybee acted as pianist. Following the singing, Rev. Mr. Hunter offered a short prayer.

After inviting the speakers to the platform, the chairman introduced the first speaker, Rev. Father Meagher, who congratulated the board on their foresightedness in erecting a modern, up-to-date building in spite of the cost. He congratulated the teachers on their success in the past year and warned the people that the teachers needed the co-operation of the students and the parents to make their task a success.

The second speaker, Mr. James F. Hill, thanked the board for the invitation to attend the ceremony, and spoke of the Federal side of Dominion Day.

Dr. Faulkner, the next speaker, assured the gathering that he and Mr. Hill would work side by side for the good of the needy communities of Ontario, and now that election was over, everyone should work side by side for the good of the country.

Free School of Debt

Rev. Doggett is the new minister advised the board to work untiringly to procure aid from every source, so that the burden of tax should be unnoticed in the municipality, and he urged that when the school opened it would be entirely free from debt.

Rev. Doggett i sthe new minister at Queensboro, and spoke for Rev. Mr. Rivers, who was unable to be present.

Mr. C. M. Wallbridge, Reeve of Madoc village, mentioned the many public buildings which the village council had sponsored: the Armouries, the Fire Hall, the Skating Rink, and finaly the new school.

Mr. McQuire spoke of the memories that were recalled when he used to look at the desks and seats in the old school; memories of pupils who have gone out to make a name for themselves in the world. The greatest lessons learned in the schools were those of idealism, and those of conduct, and the lesson of mixing with others. He congratulated the board on their planning and looking ahead.

Mr. Anderson, Principal of the High School, expressed the regret and hardship felt by the pupils and teachers in the loss of the books and notes lost in the fire. Probably the greatest loss to the community was the priceless records that were destroyed; records dating back to 1878.

The audience then joined in singing "The Maple Leaf," led by the school chorus.

The Stone is Laid

Dr. S. Eagleson was chosen by the board to perform the ceremony of laying the stone, as he had served on the board for a great number of years, and had done much for the good of the school. When introduced by the chairman, Dr. Eagleson gave the following address:

"An old adage says that some men are born great, some achieve greatness, and other have greatness thrust upon them. I feel that I belong to the latter class, inasmuch as I have been chosen by my colleagues on the Madoc High School Board to perform this important duty of laying the cornerstone of the new High School.

"It has been the custom for many centuries to lay the cornerstone at the north-east corner of important public buildings. It is considered the most important stone in the edifice and is usually laid with impressive ceremonies. Among the ancients those ceremonies are well portrayed by Tacitus, in the history of the rebuilding of the Capitol at Rome.

Procession of Virgins

"The preliminary ceremonies consisted in a procession of vestals or virgins, who, with chaplets of flowers encompassed the ground, and consecrated it by libations of living water, and after solemn prayer, Helvidius, to whom the care of rebuilding the Capitol had been committed, laid his hand on the fillets that adorned the foundation stone, and also the chords by which it was to be drawn into place. nI that instant the magistrates, the priests, the senators, the Roman knights and a number of citizens, all acting with one effort and general demonstrations of joy, laid hold of the ropes and dragged the ponderous load to its destined spot. They then threw in the ingots of precious metals which had never been melted in the furnaces.

"This stone must be perfectly square on its surfaces, and in its solide contents a cube. It lies between the north, the place of darkness, and the east, the place of light and thus symbolizes the progress from darknes sto light and from ignorance to knowledge. The stone is carefully examined by the square, level and plumb, and is declared to be well formed, true, and trusty.

"The corner does not appear to be adopted by any of the heathen nations, but to have been peculiar to the Jews, from whom it descended to the Christians. In the Old Testament it seems always to denote a prince or high personage, and hence the Evangelists consequently use it in reference to Christ, who is called the Chief Cornerstone.

"This brief resume of the history of the cornerstone points out to us the great significance of this stone and of the ceremony attending its laying.

"It is peculiarly fitting that we should gather here to-day to perform this duty, and from the foundation laid to-day may we all see arise a building perfect in its parts and honorable alike to the architects and builders.

County High School

"This school is not just a local institution, but a County High School and we confidently hope that in the years to come a large and ever increasing concourse of students from north, south, east and west will graduate to this education centre to receive a training and education that will fit them to become good and useful citizens of this great country of ours.

"From the citizens gathered here to-day, I ask your loyal support and hearty co-operation in our future educational work. From the students, I request you to do your part in making Madoc High School one of the best in the province. With high ideals and diligent application to your studies and sports, you can add your names to the roll of successful graduates of this school.

"That this school shall always prosper is my earnest wish on this occasion."

The Scroll

The secretary of the school board, Mr. G. C. Moon, presented Dr. Eagleson with a silver trowel, and the scroll was read by Mr. S. B. Wright of Deloro, and was as follows:

"In the name and by the favor of the Deity whom we serve: On the second day of July, A.D., 1934, in the twenty-fifth year of the reign of our Gracious Sovereign, King George the Fifth, by the grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India;

"Contractor.—G. F. Hasken.

"The cornerstone of Madoc High School was laid by Dr. S. Eagleson in the presence of the Reeve of the neighboring township, numerous officials, members of Parliament, teachers, and pupils, and a large concourse of citizens. In the stone was deposited a number of our common coins, local newspapers, a Holy Bible, and this scroll.

"Dated at Madoc this second day of July, A.D. 1934: W. E. Connor, Chairman of the High School Board; G. C. Moon, Secretary-Treasurer."

The scroll with some modern coins, papers and a Holy Bible, was sealed in a lead container and deposited in the stone. The stone was then declared laid and the cavity was sealed with a silver trowel. The ceremony was closed by singing "God Save the King."

The Bubble Dance

CHICAGO, July 4.—(A.P.)—Censors for a preview of Sally (I-wear-a-fan) Rand's new dance, but she wouldn't let them have it.

Back at the World's Fair for her initial appearance to-night, Sally defied them with the retort that they couldn't stop a show they hadn't seen yet.

"I can get an injunction to prove it," she said.

Sally's new dance has to do with a gigantic transparent bubble, which is to float away from her, leaving her standing alone in a pair of sandals and a folk village.

penitentiaries, with particular attention to Kingston, which blew up Saturday procrogation plans. Discussion was featured by a statement from Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, in which he made it quite clear that he wanted the fullest inquiry into the Kingston situation.

The Minister punctuated certain statements which have been made about the grey prison on Lake Ontario. There is no "hole" in which dangerous prisoners languish in solitude, he said; there is no such thing as solitary confinement in any Canadian penitentiary. He blamed A. E. Smith, of Toronto, secretary of the Canadian Labor Defence League, for instigating most of the dissatisfaction with penitentiary administration in Canada.

From the C.C.F. benches Agnes Macphail, the only woman member of the Commons, offered the minister a number of suggestions for penitentiary improvement. One of her points was that a travelling board should go from prison to prison interviewing men and making recommendations. She also advocated payment to prisoners for work done.

Ask Pay for Cattle Losses.

For the rest, the House had a varied program. It discussed the international wheat agreement for a time, and Prime Minister Bennett stated that this country would observe its provisions in every respect.

The penitentiaries discussion occupied a long time, and then Western Ontario members asked for compensation to farmers who lost $40,000 through the handling of their cattle by the bankrupt Richelieu Corporation of Montreal. A somewhat strenuous debate followed. Prime Minister Bennett, while promising to take steps to investigate the matter, refused to accept the principle that the Government should be called upon to pay because men had made improvident bargains.

At last, with business concluded, the Commoners attended His Excellency in the Senate, and the fifth session of the 17th Parliamet was ended.

Explains Shots at Buck.

Mr. Guthrie, replying to Mr. Woodsworth and Miss MacPhail, said a rifle, a revolver and a shotgun were used by guards to fire into the cell of Tim Buck, Toronto Communist leader, during the riots of October, 1932, in Kingston Penitentary.

Buck, serving five years in Kingston as a Communist, was enticing the men to further rioting, the Minister said. He was in the fourth tier of cells, 35 or 40 feet above the floor, with the men surging below him, knocking off cell locks with planks and boards. He would rush to his cell door, exhorting the men to stand up for their rights, and make a demonstration that would force changes in prison regulatons.

To frighten the Communist prisoner and keep him quiet, guards fired into his cell from the floor below, the Minister said, although he did not know who ordered the firing. There were three shots, one from a rifle, one from a pistol, the third from a shotgun. The shots were fired when Buck was in the rear of his tiny cell, away from the grilled door.

Eleven bullets or shotgun pellets pierced the ceiling of the cell

Object Only to Frighten.

"The purpose was not to injure him," said Mr. Guthrie, "but only to frighten him, and, as I said the other day, dissuade him from making further speeches." The fact that Buck was not injured by the shooting was clear evidence there had been no intention of shooting him. After the three shots he was quiet for the rest of the day.

Prompted by the minister's account of the shooting, E. J. Young, Liberal member for Weyburn, said it was comparatively safe for a man with a rifle to shoot into Buck's cell, but it was extremely hazardous with a shotgun because of the spreading effect of the shot. From 35 or 40 feet, it would have been impossible to miss Buck if he had been staiding at the door of his cell. Any guard who would take such a chance, should not be permitted to carry firearms.

Defends System.

For two hours, the Justice Minister presente da general defence of penitentiary administration with the following highlights:

"There is no "hole" or dungeon in any Canadian penitentiary. In Kingston, there are nine cells under the keeper's hall used for recalcitrant prisoners, lighted without sanitary arrangements, but well ventilated.

The paddle is used to punish prisoners only as a last resort with three to 10 blows the usual application. "There is nothing brutal about it, the prisoners only resent the indignity of the thing."

John "Two-Gun" O'Brien, an American citizen, was kept from Aug., 1931, until a few weeks ago in the prison of isolation for leading an abortive attempt to escape. He had been considered one of the most dangerous men in the prison.

"There is no such thing in any Canadian penitentiary as solitary confinement and there hasn't been for at least 30 years."

There has been no shackling to cell blocks for at least two years.

"The man who has instigated most of the unrest against penitentiary administration in Canada is A. E. Smith" (of Toronto, secretary of the Labor Defence League).

Trouble Staffs With Reds.

It seemed strange that most of the agitation in Kingston, culminating in riots, started soon after the seven Toronto Communists arrived there.

The Communists never have been in the punishment cells. They have been working on the prison docks, the lightest job in the prison, selected by themselves.

All Communists—five of the original seven are still there—are in good health. The five will be liberated as the others were, when one-half their term has been put in, providing they are first offenders and their prison record has been good.

Warden Lax in Duties.

Warden W. B. Megloughlin, who resigned a few days ago, was lax in his administration of prison regulations.

The two C.C.F. leaders pressed for a Royal commission as the only way of getting to the bottom of the causes of penitentiary unrest.

Miss MacPhail, for years an amateur penogologist made the following recommendations to the minister:

Incorrigible prisoners should be isolated and given indefinite sentences. If their conduct was black enough, they should never be liberated.

The superintendent of penitentiaries should be a penologist.

There should be more segregation of prisoners—first offenders by themselves andd no mental unfits in the penitentiaries at all.

A psychiatrist should be appointed to each prison, to watch over prisoners and advise the warden and doctors.

Prisoners should be paid for the work they do. They should be made to attend school regularly.

A travelling parole board should go from prison to prison, interviewing men and making recommendations.

TEST OPINIONS.

WINDSOR, Ont., July 4.—(C.P.)—Consideration of applications for hotel and restaurant wine and beer licenses will be withheld until E. G. Odette will present at the first sitnamed a one-man Liquor Control Board of Ontario, has had time to thoroughly investigate the inclinations of the district in which each applicant is situated and also give consideration to Local Option demands, the Border Cities Star said yesterday.

The matter of Local Option districts will be among the first concerns of the new official.

Slight Damage Done Campbellford Fire

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 4. —Fire Chief Charles Davidson, had rather an unusual experience yesterday afternoon, the fire was in the rear of his own garage and service station. Sam Clegg noticed the flames coming from a pile of waste between the canal wall and the show-room, and immediately turned in the alarm, the brigade responded promptly and in less than half an hour had the blaze under control— the cause is believed to have been spontaneous combustion due to the solid brick construction, the building suffered only slight damage, which is fully covered by insurance.

Obituary

MRS. WALTER DYER.

The funeral took place on Monday of Elizabeth Baker, widow of Walter Dyer, who predeceased her six years ago. There are left to mourn her loss two daughters, Mrs. A. Simmonds of this city, and Mrs. C. Cutt of Rochester, N.Y., also four sons, Will, Frank and Reg., all of this city, and John in Ottawa, also twelve grandchildren.

LESLIE YEO.

HAVELOCK, July 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—This community was saddened when it was learned on Sunday morning, that Leslie Yeo, aged ten years, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Yeo, had passed away at midnight Saturday after a few days' illness from appendicitis.

Les, as he was fondly called by those who know him best, was a lovable little fellow and always greeted his friends and acquaintances with a cheery smile. He was a great lover of hockey, and never tired of talking about the game and his hockey heroes. A sad feature in connection with the death is the serious illness of his mother, who has been confined to bed for the past month.

Weddings

COWELL—MACDONALD.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, beautifully decorated with ferns, hydrangea, and delphinium, was the setting for an interesting wedding at five o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, when Helen Laura, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. MacDonald, became the bride of John Beattie Cowell, only son of Mrs. Cowell and the late R. T. Cowell of Campbellford.

Rev. J. C. Grier, of Lindsay, assisted by the Rev. J. C. Robinson of Campbellford, officiated. The wedding music was played by Charles E. Allen of Stirling. Miss Grace MacDonald, a relation of the bride, acted as soloist, and sang "Until" and "O Perfect Love."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a graceful model of ivory bridal satin. Her veil was of tulle, with coronet-effect headpiece of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of American Beauty roses, and lily of the valley. She was attended by Miss Muriel McDonald of Colborne, and Miss Dorothy Ackerman, cousin of the bride, of Toronto, who acted as bridesmaids. They were becomingly attired in poiret gowns of turquoise blue suede lace with small fitted lace hats and flared veils. They carried shower bouquets of gypsy yellow roses. Little Miss June McMullen, cousin of the bride, acted as flower-girl. She wore a gown of peach, pussy-willow crepe designed on princess lines of ankle length, and wore a matching hat and flared veil. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and baby's breath.

The best man was Mr. Gordon Bailey of Stirling, and the ushers were Mr. Owen Hendy and Mr. Alexander Little. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received, wearing a gown of old rose pebbled crepe, with leghorn hat and corsage of yellow roses and fern. The groom's mother also received, wearing a gown of silver grey chiffon with matching hat and shoes and corsage of red roses. At the close of the reception, little Miss Bernice McMullen presented a bouquet of roses and maidenhair fern to Mr. and Mrs. F. J. McMullen, grandparents of the bride, on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. Mr. McMullen graciously replied.

Later the bride and groom left on a motor trip to Montreal and Quebec, to return by Rochester and Buffalo. The bride travelled in a suit of primrose yellow pebble-crepe, with leghorn hat and matching accessories. The groom's gift to the bride was a necklace of black onyx with marcasite trimming. The gifts to the bridesmaids were silver compacts, to the soloist a bracelet and brooch set in pastel shades, to the flower girl a monogramed silver bracelet, to the best man a set of ebony military brushes, to the organist a monogramed silver belt and tie-clip and to the ushers gold-plated cigarette cases.

SUMMER VISITORS.

It is undoubtedly true, as the Brockville Recorder and Times puts it, that Canadian communities do not always appreciate the value of the permanent summer trade of the visiting families who each year spend the holiday season in their midst.

A great deal of emphasis has been placed on the importance of cultivating the transient tourist trade, but after all these motoring visitors who spend an hour or two in passing through such cities as Peterborough mean very little compared to the purchasing power of the summer residents who live in our district for two or three months every year and who buy all their supplies in local stores.

As our Brockville contemporary truly says, they were here before the transient tourist trade ever originated and they will be here after it has vanished.

There are hundreds of these families who come to this part of Ontario every year, and whose summer homes at Stoney Lake or Rice Lake or Chemong mean good customers for the stores of Peterborough.

They spend more than a whole regiment of transients, and it is about time that fact was recognized and these permanent visitors of our received the cordiality and hospitality we are always being urged to extend to the on-the-move tourists who are here to-day and headed for somewhere else at a 60-mile clip to-morrow.

Long before the motor car brought in this new type of visitor the cottage-owning American was firmly established in our midst, and was giving generous patronage to the business places in this city.

CONTINUING THE PROBE.

There will be general approval of the decision that the Stevens Committee, which for months has been investigating unethical business practices, is to continue its work in the interval between sessions, operating as a royal commission.

This was the recommendation of the committee itself, and the members deserve thanks for their public-spirited action, inasmuch as they will receive no financial reward for the time they will have to give to the probe.

It is proposed that after the members of the committee have had a vacation they will re-assemble and the work of digging into the operations of various industries will be resumed, the fishing industry being listed as one of the first to be studied when the probe gets under way again.

By the next session the investigation will have been completed, and it will be possible then to introduce legislation before Parliament to correct some of the conditions that have been revealed, should the committee arrive at the conclusion that parliamentary action might be successful in curbing the evils uncovered and giving workers and the general public a new deal.

It is a wise decision to proceed with the investigation; to have postponed further inquiry until the beginning of next year would have been a mistake that would have been unfair both to industry and to the country, and there will be approval in all quarters over the fact that the committee will continue its work as a royal commission during the next few months.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS.

In its latest bulletin the Motor Vehicles Branch of the Ontario Department of Highways sounds a general warning to the effect that inasmuch as the season is now approaching when the greatest amount of traffic is encountered, particularly on the rural roads, it becomes increasingly necessary to practice safe driving and walking habits.

"The need for this greater co-operation for safety," says the bulletin, "is even more obvious when we consider that during the first five months of this year—the period of least traffic—the number and seriousness of accidents have shown increases from last year's total."

The figures for May, 1934, show 685 accidents reported, resulting in 44 deaths, injuries to 645 persons and a property damage loss of $52,411. The corresponding figures for May of last year were 638 accidents, 39 deaths, 588 injuries and $53,153 property damage.

In the first five months of this year accidents have increased about 2 per cent. and fatalities were 122 or 3 more than in the same period last year.

The department makes these timely and pertinent remarks in regard to drivers, and they should be carefully noted:

"If there is one characteristic common to all automobile operators, it is probably the resentment felt when attention is drawn to their poor driving," says the article. "We dare to criticize almost anything our close associates do, but if we intend to hold them as 'close associates' we would do well to keep their driving faults to ourselves. Indeed, the unpopularity of backseat drivers is probably due to the fact that they are often justified in their criticism and so offend the vanity of the man at the wheel.

"This attitude of superiority and self-confidence on the part of motor vehicle drivers is the indirect cause of a great many mishaps. If he is involved in an accident or a near-accident, the conceited driver will almost invariably try to place the responsibility on the other driver. Indeed, were we to believe them, the accident problem would be at an end as soon as this mysterious 'other person' could be located and taken off the road.

"Irritating incidents occur in traffic very frequently. In almost every case each driver feels that the other is to blame and castigates him with great fervour. A little self-analysis would often show each driver that he was at least partly to blame; and a little study would enable them to recognize and correct their faults so that they might drive in greater comfort and security in the future.

"Reports of motor accidents appear in the newspapers with such monotonous regularity that it is not surprising that most people will agree that something should be done about the situation. Most people are convinced that the cause of these accidents is 'reckless driving.' But few have anything but a vague notion of what constitutes reckless driving, and fewer still, if indeed any, will admit that their own actions are ever dangerous. When drivers and pedestrians can be brought to an understanding of their shortcomings, and will correct them, the accident problem will just about vanish. But as long as every driver or pedestrian continues to blame the 'other fellow' for every mishap or difficulty, accidents will also continue to occur."

WE'RE EATING LESS.

Undoubtedly the unusual economic conditions of the last few years are responsible for the fact that Canada's consumption of meat, butter, cheese, etc., has shown a considerable falling-off.

Although the population of the Dominion was greater by 473,000 in 1933 than in 1930, smaller quantities of beef, mutton, poultry, butter, cheese and eggs were consumed last year than three years ago.

Pork was the only meat product to show a gain during the period, the consumption registering an increase of just over a pound and one-half per head of population.

Among the other meat products Canadians consumed 56.09 pounds per capita in 1933, as against 65.77 in 1930.

The consumption of sheep and lamb gained in 1931 and in 1932, but last year had fallen below the 1930 mark, which was 6.92 pounds per capita. Last year the people of the Dominion disposed of only 6.32 pounds per head of population.

For all kinds of poultry the figures are as follows: 11 pounds per head in 1930, 10.86 in 1931, 10.69 in 1932 and 10.68 in 1933.

Butter declined from 30.59 pounds per head, cheese from 3.63 pounds to 3.30, and eggs from 24.93 dozen per head to 21.45 dozen.

The pork figures show that the consumption jumped from 72.92 pounds per head in 1930 to 83.47 pounds in 1931 and 85.61 in 1932, and while there was a falling-off in 1933 to 74.58 pounds per head, that figure was still a pound and one-half better than the per capita consumption three years before.

PUBLIC WORKS AND PROSPERITY.

There is a better feeling in the Canadian construction industry these days.

From a purely statistical viewpoint the gains made during 1934 have been encouraging with contracts awarded in the first five months of this year almost 100 per cent. above the corresponding figure of 1933. Building permits in leading Canadian cities have been slower to show improvement, but even here the trend is in the right direction with May figures (latest available) 40 per cent. higher than for the same month last year.

Then there is the $40,000,000 public works program announced recently from Ottawa. Although this is a modest plan compared with the much larger program originally mooted, it will probably achieve two things. It will strengthen the morale of the industry by giving employment and new buying power at a point where it is badly needed. Secondly it may tide over the industry during a time when the forces of natural recovery are laying the foundation for the larger and more important development which will eventually be necessary in this country.

The force of the latter argument lies in the belief that the new Bennett program will prove of maximum benefit in this country because, either by accident or design, it has apparently been exceedingly well timed. Thus officials of loan and mortgage companies point out that at the present time there are ample funds available for first-class building loans, once the post-depression construction ball starts rolling. This was by no means true a year or two ago, so that if a similar construction program had been started at that time, the probability of private construction subsequently keeping the ball rolling would have been very slim.

Great Britain is currently enjoying a building boom of substantial proportions despite the fact that government policy has been opposed to artificial construction aids such as a huge public works program. In the United States the opposite is true, with this basic industry still very much in the doldrums despite the allotment of billions of public money for building purposes.

The moral seems to lie in the fact that prosperity in the construction industry is better served by a cheap and plentiful supply of money and by an atmosphere of business confidence, than by artificial stimuli such as government contracts. This would seem also to be Canada's cue to the restoration of prosperity in the construction industry.—Financial Post.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Border Cities Star is worried about the delay in introducing beer by the glass. A lot of thirsty weather is being wasted, the Windsor paper seems to think.

With Mr. Hepburn out of the reach of reporters, there is a distinct lull in Ontario politics.

Mayor Stewart of Toronto has been suggested as new leader for Ontario Conservatives. It is a safe wager that bright idea originated in the Queen City.

Tourist traffic has been brisk for the past week, and present indications are that this will be a better summer resort season than for several years.

Fifteen motor and drowning fatalities over the week-end in Ontario are a reminder that safety first rules are still being neglected with tragic results.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

A BOOK IN YOUR HANDS.

I hold a book in my hands.

I have read the title, I have noticed the name of the author. I do not know him, never saw his name before. . . . All I know is that he has written a book, gone through all that struggle of setting many words on paper, suffered the pangs, lived the joys, of getting it published. And here, at last, it is in my hands. As far as I am concerned, he wrote it only for me, just for me . . . It is mine. I am the judge. I am the material upon which he works. But I, too, am the final critic and test. . . . Me. . . . (You, too, if you hold his book in your hands.)

But what do I ask of this book?

If he has written it to amuse me, I demand that it do so. If he has written a "mystery," it must mystify me. If he has written a tale of travel and far countries, he must take me far away from here. . . . If this is all he has intended to write, I shall not ask too much of this book.

But if he has tried to set down the lives of human beings, of such people as I have known, as I have seen and touched, if he has tried to create men and women and their encounter with irony and fate and joy and grief and ecstasy and torment on this moving globe, then I shall ask that he tell me the truth!

He must not baby me. He must not shield me from the truth he has seen. He must respect me, if he would have me respect him. . . . He must believe that I am capable of receiving the truth that he has found, that I, too, may stare into the darkness or face the blinding light of his discovered wisdom. He must write for me as though I were his equal. He must be fair, he must be honest.

And must try to be worthy. I will not ask that his people be good, or strong, always brave and honest and decent. I shall insist only that they shall be real and walk the streets of life as I do, ask only that I may reach out and touch them as though we stood side by side. . . . That's all. I ask no more.

And here's this book that I hold in my hands. This stranger. This clown, this genial fellow, this faker, this dreamer, this doer, this villain, this hero, this unknown being. . . . I turn to the first page and begin my adventure.

DISCRETION

Discretion of speech is more than eloquence.—Bacon.

Imports of American machinery into Japan increased 27 per cent last year.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 95c to $1; oats, 40c to 45c; barley, 48c to 50c; corn, 65c to 70c; rye, 48c to 50c; buckwheat, 58c to 60c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Prices were generally steady on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday, although cheese firmed slightly and butter developed a slightly easier tendency in late trading.

Eggs were generally quoted for grading shipments of carlots or less at 22c to 23c for A-large, 21c to 22c for A-medium, 20c to 21c for B, and 19c to 19½c for C. Receipts were 856 cases.

The butter market, after being quoted during the morning at prices the same as Saturday, shaded off slightly in the afternoon. Fresh No. 1 brought 19c to 19½c a pound in carlots or less. Small lots to the retail trade were 21c for solids and 22c for prints. Arrivals were 2,028 boxes.

Cheese was up ½c for Ontario colored at 10¾c to 10¾c. Quebec cheese was quoted at 10c to 10½c, steady.

The potato market was steady, New Brunswick Mountains selling for 80c to 85c per 80-lb. bag, Quebec whites 70c to 75c for 80-lb. bags and Prince Edward Mountains $1 to $1.05 per 90-lb. bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

European political uncertainty, as well as dark aspects of the crop outlook in Europe and the Southern Hemisphere, served somewhat to rally wheat prices yesterday.

Unexpected strength shown by wheat quotations at Liverpool yesterday, despite Monday's sharp downturns of prices here, attracted special notice, and was commented upon as significant. Another stimulus for upturns of wheat prices here was belief that the peak of the domestic harvest movement of wheat in the Southwest had been passed.

Wheat in Chicago closed firm, ¼c to ¾c above Monday's finish; corn ⅛c to ⅜c down; oats at ⅛c decline to an equal advance; and provisions showing 2c to 7c gain.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, July 4 — Steadiness in outside markets and bullish crop news reported from the United States and Europe, failed to uncover any support on the Winnipeg grain market yesterday. Wheat futures prices closed ⅝c to 1c lower, July at 75¼c, October 77½c, and December 78⅝c.

Values were pushed to the session's low marks in the final minutes of trading, as a mild selling wave made an appearance.

Offerings came chiefly from Southern sources, with little aggressive buying in the market. Export sales aggregated only 250,000 bushels of Canadian wheat.

Private estimates showing a large decrease in the prospective United States wheat crop featured the day's news. The report said the combined winter and spring wheat crops in the United States would total only 516,000,000 bushels.

Cash grains spreads closed unchanged. Coarse grains trading also was dull, with narrow price changes.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

PROVINCE OF ALBERTA.

The name of the province itself recalls the happy auspices under which it came into being. The Marquis of Lorne was governor-general of Canada at the time and the name was given by him as a graceful tribute to his wife, H.R.H. Princess Louise Carolina Alberta, fourth daughter of Queen Victoria.

The Province of Alberta was created a provisional district May 8, 1882, and erected into a province in 1905. The naming incident occurred about 1882.

Roosevelt Party Off 13,000-Mile Cruise

Aboard U.S.S. Gilmer accompanying President Roosevelt, July 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt and his shipmates were afforded a real test of their sea legs today as they headed due south toward Haiti and Puerto Rico.

The cruiser Houston, bearing the presidential party, proceeded through rough seas last night and early today at a fast clip of 18 to 20 knots. The Houston dipped and pitched, and the trail-destroyers bobbed about like corks.

Mr. Roosevelt enjoyed his second day on the Atlantic today, relaxing and taking things easy with his sons, Franklin, Jr. and John. But he remained in touch with the White House by wireless.

The Houston was off the Florida coast today and proceeding far out at sea. The schedule called for the first stop Thursday at Haiti and the first landing Friday at Puerto Rico. His 13,000-mile voyage will take the president into the Pacific, to Hawaii and the United States West Coast.

Germany Isolated By Pagan Doctrines

LONDON, July 4 (CP-Havas).—"Germany has ceased, for the moment, to be an integral part of modern Europe," The Times said today in an editorial denouncing the sanguinary methods pursued by Chancellor Adolf Hitler in exterminating his opposition.

"The gulf separating Germany from other European powers has been widened by the Third Reich's constant glorification of force, by its pagan doctrines, its merciless persecutions, the suppression of all freedom of speech and thought, its epidemic of spys and its constant propaganda to keep the country in a state bordering on hysteria," the paper said.

"The country has gone back to conditions that prevailed during the Middle Ages," The Times added. "It shows a savage contempt for forms of justice that are sacro-sanct in all the civilized countries of the world. As the details of the atrocities committed in the last few days filter through, incredulity give way to a sense of horror."

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Red Williams

THREE RIVERS IS 300 TODAY.

On this date, in 1634, LaViolette established a fort at Three Rivers, the half-way port between Quebec and Montreal, and as a consequence, the tridluvien city will to-day begin the celebration of its tercentenery, which is to continue through the summer and be figured in the Jacques Cartier celebration from Gaspe to Niagara. As a matter of fact, the history of Three Rivers goes much farther back than 1634, for it is recorded that Pon tgrave and Chauvin stopped at the m outh of the St. Maurice river as early as 1599, while in 1603 Champlain, accompanied by the same Pontgrave, sailed up the St. Lawrence to examine the suitability of Three Rivers as a military and trading post, as a result of which the Hundred Associates established themselves on the plateau, now the centre of Three Rivers.

Six years later Champlain returned with a great expedition to war on the Iroquois. There followed nine years of fighting, during which the small band of whites at Three Rivers narrowly escaped massacre, as a result of treachery. A treaty of peace with the Iroquois was signed in 1624, when, an historian says: "there never was see in Canada such a large gathering o Indians from the various nations and tribes."

After the opening of the LaViolette fort in 1634, a golden era began; settlers flocked in; the fur trade was developed; Three Rivers became the nursery of explorers whose foot prints can be traced all over the American continent especially notable being the de la Verandrayes. . . . The city's growth was much aided by its proximity to St. Maurice, the first iron forges in Canada worked from 1787 until the beginning of the present century, and where hundreds of cannon balls were made to be used in the defence of Quebec in 1690 and 1759.

The Three Rivers of to-day, with a population of 50,000 owes much of its progress and prosperity to the harnessing of water power, all its many industries being operated by "white coal". It has also made great progress in its harbor and claims now to be the "second greatest port of export on the St. Lawrence". English speaking Canada will join to-day in wishing Three Rivers further prosperity in its next century.

Fear Of Fire Water Put End to Sun Dance

TOWAOC, Colo., July 3 (AP)—The fire water of the white man has put an end to the Sun Dance of the Ute Indians, cutom of centuries.

Their wrinkled, sun-beaten faces showed concern as Chief Billy Coyote and John Miller made the announcement that because they feared whiskey would cause the sacred Sun Dance to end in a brawl this year they have called off the annual ceremonial.

The Sun Dance is for the purpose of stalling young members of the tribe to the rank of full-ledged Braves, and for three days the dancers go without food and water as they chant and dance the ceremonial inside a barrier of cedar posts.

The Indian Chiefs indicated they did not blame reservation officials for the ease with which Indians may purchase liquor, but rather blamed the young braves, who, they said, will obtain whiskey no matter how hard the reservation officers try to stem the flow.

ELDORADO CLOSES SEVEN CENT GAIN

Other Silver Issues Steady in To-day's Trading on Toronto Mining Board.

TORONTO, July 4. — (CP.)— While the mining list rocked about a little to-day and closed with insignificant changes in the main, accumulation of some of the cheap gold issues at slightly higher prices continued. Eldorado was given a trip over the roads, down to 1.76 and up to 2.10, after it closed 7 cents net up at 2.02. Other silver issues were steady.

The big gold stocks were avoided, because apparently, of the holiday on the New York market. Teck, the only active member of the group, closed unchanged, and McIntyre in an odd-lot sale, closed $1 down.

Central Patricia was the most active of the golds and it registered a small advance. B.R.X. moved up 6 cents to 1.31, and other issues recording small advances included Reno, Gunnar Gold, Greene Stabell and Bradian was up up 29 cents to 3.50.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, July 4 (CP)—Montreal Stock Exchange listings were slightly stronger during this afternoon's session, but losses of the earlier trading were not entirely recovered although many were reduced. Closing prices were around the highs of the day.

International Nickel and Canadian Pacific both recovered losses and closed with small fractional advances. National Breweries recovered a loss of ½ when it sold back to 27, and closed there unchanged. Industrial Alcohol "B" closed unchanged at 7⅛ after selling at 7 for the greater part of the day. The "A" stock maintained a minor advance.

U. S. HOLIDAY CUTS VOLUME

Brewery and Interlisted Shares Hold Majority of Gains at Close.

MISCELLANEOUS WEAK.

TORONTO, July 4 (C.P.)—Industrial stocks stirred just enough to-day to keep the market alive and few issues moved far from their previous close. The holiday across the line helped to cut down the volume of trading. Brewery and inter-listed shares had a majority of gains at the close while food, oil, steel and miscellaneous groups were on the down side by small fractions.

Late in the afternoon International Nickel partly made up for a sluggish morning and had a net gain of 20 cents at the close. Ford "A" and C.P.R. also closed higher. Walkers common lost ground in slow trading while Industrial Alcohol gained and Distillers Seagrams closed unchanged.

Some buying came into the brewery group and net gains of ¼ to ½ appeared for Canada Malting, Walkerville Brewery and Canadian Wineries. Brewers and Distillers added 5 cents.

16-Foot Seaserpent Sports In Couchiching Giving Rama Indian Shock Of Lifetime

ORILLIA, Ont., July 4 (C.P.)—Joseph Stinson, 60-year-old Indian from the Ojibway band on the Rama Reserve, to-day told of coming upon a sea serpent on Lake Couchiching.

"I thought it was a dead-head or something when I first caught a glimpse of it floating toward the deep water off the shore from Chief Island," the aged man said. The serpent was more than 16 feet in length, Stinson declared.

"This dead-head was gliding slowly along the water about 100 yards from shore," the Indian related. "It was heading toward the middle of the lake. Suddenly it shot out of the water and instead of a head it revealed itself as a monster of at least 16 feet in length.

"I became a little excited when I saw it jump for I didn't have a club or anything to protect myself with except an oar."

About six years ago a fisherman reported seeing a similar serpent in the lake.

Largest Crowd Since R101 Tragedy Turns Out for Collett Funeral.

LORD MAYOR'S SON.

(By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, July 4 (CP Cable). — Funeral service for Squadron Leader Stanley Collett, son of Lord Mayor Sir George Collett, was held to-day at St. Paul's Cathedral in the presence of the largest and most solemn crowd seen in the region of the Cathedral since the memorial service for victims of the R-101 crash.

Squardon Leader Collett was killed in a crash Saturday during Royal Air Force manoeuvres at Hendon.

The Prince of Wales sent a wreath and was represented by an equerry.

The coffin, draped in a Union Jack, was borne to the Cathedral on an Air Force tender. The pallbearers included the Marquis of Clydesdale who flew over Mount Everest last winter; Lord George Hamilton and Squadron Leader Walter Leslie Runciman, son of the President of the Board of Trade.

Use Private Car

When the procession reached the Mansion House from Finsbury Armoury, the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress stepped into a private landeau, instead of the official coach, with the young widow, and the Lord Mayor's five other sons, all of them more than six feet tall, followed in automobiles.

The procession was met at the west door of the Cathedral by Very Rev. Dean Ralph Inge, and other clergy of St. Paul's. At the end of the service members of the family stood under the great portico while trumpeteers from the Air Force sounded the "Last Post."

During the service an aeroplane flew over the Cathedral and dived in salute.

The squadron leader's body subsequently was cremated. The ashes will be scattered next Saturday over Hendon aerodrome from an Air Force plane.

CHICAGO, July 4. — (CP)— The police had John Anselmo at headquarters because they heard he had tried to kill Mrs. Anselmo. John saw his wife in the next room and knocked over four policemen, a pair of bailiffs and a court clerk in his rush to get her. A squad of coppers subdued him.

JUDGE DIFFERS ON JURY AWARD

the defendant moved for dismissal of the action on the ground that there was no evidence of any interference with the daughter's services to the parent to which he was entitled and no evidence that the seduction in any way interfered with the daughter's ability to serve.

"It is quite clear that the daughter left her home in Edson with the consent and approval of her parents and was accompanied to Edmonton by her mother. It is equally undoubted that no illness resulted from the seduction and no evidence that the ability of the daughter to render services was in any way interfered with."

Following the jury's vedict last Saturday awarding the plaintiff damages Premier J. E. Brownlee placed his resignation in the hands of Lieutenant-Governor W. R. Walsh.

The Edson girl, with her father, a former mayor of Edson as coplaintiff, entered action against Mr. Brownlee in September, 1933. After many adjournments, the case came before a jury on June 25 with a verdict reached late last Saturday night.

Damage Gist of Action

"In my opinion," Mr. Justice Ives judgment continued, "the matter is well settled that damage is the gist of the action and I am also of opinion that the damage necessary to found the right of action in the woman must be of the same character as gave the master his right of action—that is, loss of service.

"I see nothing in our statutes to convey a contrary intendment of the legislature. In my view of the law, the action must be dismissed with costs, including costs of discovery, and only one bill should be taxed.

"No evidence being offered by the defendant on his counter-claim, it will be dismissed with costs, including discovery."

The MacMillans can appeal the case, but have not as yet announced what action, if any, they will take.

Intends to Resign

EDMONTON, July 4 (CP)—The judgment of acting Chief Justice W. C. Ives in dismissing the action of Miss Vivian MacMillan against Premier J. E. Brownlee will not affect his decision to resign.

"So far as I know at present, it will not affect my decision," Mr. Brownlee stated when advised of the judgment.

No Decision

EDMONTON, July 4 (CP)—Caucus of United Farmers of Alberta members of the Alberta Legislature, considering the resignation of Premier J. E. Brownlee, contained here to-day and it was indicated there was little hope of naming a successor to the Premier before nightfall.

Great excitement was caused among the members when the judgment of Acting Chief Justice W. C. Ives, dismissing the seduction action of Vivian MacMillan against Mr. Brownlee was made known at the Legislative Buildings.

FATHER'S SPECIAL CARE BRINGS DEATH TO CHILD

POINTE DU LAC, Que., July 4.—(C.P.)—A father's solicitude for the safety of his children brought about the death of Paul Emile Cantin, two and a half years old, here to-day, when he was crushed under the wheels of a heavy farm wagon.

Irenee Cantin, a farmer, set out early this morning with a wagon loaded with earth for road grading. Several of his children accompanied him, perched on top of the load.

When he reached a railroad crossing, Cantin made the children get down off the wagon, fearing they might be jolted off in the rough passage over the tracks.

Paul Emile, unknown to his father, fell under a rear wheel as he walked beside the wagon. The heavy vehicle crushed the boy's chest and shoulder. Cantin turned about and drove home as fast as he could, but the child died an hour later.

CONNECTICUT CREW OUSTED IN THAMES CUP

Kent School Finishes Two-thirds of Length Back of Strong British Quintin Eight.

AT HENLEY REGATTA.

HENLEY - ON - THAMES, Eng., July 4 (A.P.) — Kent School, of Connecticut, defending champions, were eliminated in the first heat of the Thames challenge cup competition of the annual Henley Regatta to-day by Quintin, one of the strongest British eights.

Kent finished two-thirds of a length back over the mile and 156 yards course. The time 7:11.

Picked as the probable finalists until thte draw put them together in the first heat, Kent and Quintin staged a battle royal of blades all the way down the course.

The Americans made a heroic bid in the last eighth of a mile and shot the stroke up to 41 in a desperate effort to wipe out Quintin's narrow lead. But the Englishmen rallied with them, brought their own stroke up just as high, and struck the finish line well in front.

Quintin led from the start and had a half length lead at the end of the first half mile. Kent School cut that down to a quarter length at the mile but could not keep the blistering pace to the finish.

The Yale University lightweight eight defeated the first Trinity eight by a length in the Thames Challenge Cup competition, the same event in which Kent School was beaten. Yale's time was 7.15.

In the Diamond Sculls eliminations Herbert Buhtz of Germany, the present holder, defeated Guglielmo Douglas of Uruguay, representing the Montevideo Rowing Club by three lengths, covering the distance in 8 minutes 39 seconds.

E. Wingate of the Verta Rowing Club won from E. C. Branco of the Brazilian Flamingo Rowing Club in another heat. The Englishman won by three lengths in 8 minutes 56 seconds.

Henry Bigbee of Princeton defeated H. L. Warren of England by four lengths in the Diamond Sculls. His time was 8.56.

Yale's 150-pound lights defeated Trinity by a length and Tabor Academy, of Marion, Mass., eliminated Maidenhead by five lengths, both is the Thames Cup competition. A Yale four-oared shell, competing for the Wynford Cup, easily beat Molesly.

Canning Plant Is Operating At C.P.C.

The big cannery at the Canada Packers' plant started operation on Monday. At present it is working at peak production canning early peas, and within the past week between 65 and 70 employees have been added to the plan't payroll, according to G. S. Matthews, manager.

The peas are being obtained from this district. "The crop appears to be fairly good, but in Western Ontario the crop is reported to be practically ruined," Mr. Matthews said. "We expect to have a good season."

The brand of peas canned by the local plant is the York Canned Peas, which has earned an enviable reputation on the market.

The cannery will be busy during July and part of August canning peas, and then will start canning tomatoes, it was learned.

HERBERT BEAVER

ROSENEATH, July 3. — The funeral of the late Herbert Beaver last week was largely attended. The service was held in the house, and conducted by the Rev. Mr. Sinclair, Baptist minister of Cobourg, assisted by the Rev. R. W. Paton, M.A., B.D., of the Roseneath United church, who read passages of Scripture from the 91st Psalm, and St. Johns Gospel, 14.

In addressing the gathering Rev. Mr. Sinclair spoke words of sympathy and comfort to the bereaved relatives, and Mr. and Mrs. Trendor of Peterborough, sang very sweetly together a duet, "Face to Face."

Corporative State Only Beginning To Function

HARMONY SOUGHT BY MUSSOLINI BETWEEN THE BIG INDUSTRIALIST AND MEMBERS OF WORKING CLASS

Organizes Capital on One Hand and Labor on the Other.

SYNDICATE FOR EACH.

Tends to Favor Capital Rather Than Labor in Italy.

In the first two articles in this series on Fascism and Italy, as analyzed by Fortune magazine, the government of the state was discussed. This showed that Benito Mussolini was practically the state himself since he is supreme dictator of Italy in every sense of the word.

Today's article analyzes the much-discussed Corporative State which only now is beginning to function in Italy after years of preparation. In theory it is supposed to link labor with capital.

This series, summarized from Fortune magazine, which has made a study of the entire system, is presented exclusively by The Examiner through Central Press Canadian.

It is an extraordinary fact that not 50 per cent of the people who read these articles on the corporative state, have the least idea of what the corporative state is. Extraordinary because everyone knows, and has known for years, a lot about Mussolini, and in some respects, the corporative state is to Mussolini what the new deal is to Roosevelt.

The corporative state is an idea for creating a genuinely modern state by welding together—eventually—the entire nation into a system or organization based on everyone's utility to the state. Since a large part of most people's utility (particularly in the modern world) is their economic utility, the corporative state's organization is to be based largely on occupation categories. Thus the Itadian laborer is linked to the state through labor syndicates which are part of the state. Similarly, the capitalist is bound to the state through organizations of capitalists which are also part of the state.

Some critics claim that the corporative state does not exist. Others, that it is not the chief instrument of planned economy. The state owns a big chunk of the railways and shipping. It has a monopoly on tobbaco and salt; it owns post-office and telegraph.

Blueprints of Corporative State

If the corporative state today is neither nothing nor everything—what then is it? We present the blueprints. Not blueprints of an unbuilt temple, but of a vast social-engineering project much of which is dynamically functioning today.

Blueprint No. 1 is the charter of labor. If the Fascist state has a constitution this is it. It is an economic Magna Charta; a large statement of the rights and especially of the duties of labor and capital, posted up for all to read and for the state to interpret as its purposes unfold.

In accordance with this charter, the wages and conditions of all labor are fixed by contracts—exceedingly detailed contracts—entered into by employees and employers are enforced by the state.

The farmer who employs no help is not apt to be a member of either a syndicate or an association. He meets the corporative state only in the form of general rules and regulations—and in the markets. But in their various categories all the other farmers are tied by labor contracts, fixing hours as well as wages; the big landowner, the small landowner, the man who rents from a landowner, and their respective employees.

Work Social Duty

The charter declares work to be a social duty. Property remains private. Private initiative is exalted as "the most effective and valuable instrument in the interests of the nation."

Partly in accordance with the specific labor contracts and partly by reason of national institutions set up in accordance with the charter, the Italian laborer is showered with social benefits. Maternity benefits, free medical attention, insurance against various diseases as well as accidents, an indemnity to any worker who is "fired" through no fault of his own, a holiday every year with pay; Italy claims to be the most advanced of all nations in social welfare.

And strikes are prohibited.

Blueprint No. 2, is the blueprint shown in the illustration, the structure of he corporative state.

Strikes are Illegal

As to this vast hierarchical structure, one word more: Mussolini proclaims that the humblest ditch digger can appeal, through his syndicate, to the highest power in the land. Appeal, that is, on matters that really concern him—his wages, the rent he has to pay with those wages, his housing conditions, etc., etc. As to vague and high matters of state, Mussolini does not value the advice of the ditch digger. Indeed Il Duce has proclaimed as a doctrine "the fruitful and unassailable inequality of men."

Blueprint No. 3 continues the Fortune series, declares all strikes and lockouts illegal. Mussolini led up to this gradually, getting the workers—even the syndicalists, who believed that disorder was their greatest weapon against capital—to follow him. By clever manouevring he managed to pass, in 1926, what is now known as "Royal Decree No. 1130."

For blueprint No. 4, we come smack on to the contemporary scene and to the top of the corporative state by entering the imposing ministry of corporations buildings. Not even the new air ministry comes anywhere near rivaling it in Fascist swank. Mussolini is the minister of corporations and president of the national council of corporations.

Worker's Names on File.

Altogether the system takes in about $14,000,000 a year—dues from all the workers and employees of Italy. Out of this, 17 per cent is, according to law, piped back to be spent on educational and vocational training work. Some 10 per cent goes to the treasury as a fund to keep the ministry operating—to pay for clerical hire and mechanical running expenses. A mere 1 per cent (it used to be 10 per cent, but that turned out to be more than necessary) goes to the Bank of Italy as a fund to guarantee the collective labor contracts. The rest gets used up by the multitudes of associations, federations, and confederations which form the sinews of the corporative state.

The ministry's clerks and branches perform one vital function—they exercise, through free employment agencies, an almost complete monopoly of labor. You as a unionized employer get your syndicated help from the corporate labor office—where there is one, for this network is incomplete as yet. You do not pick your men. And a job hunter does not pick you. His qualifications and your wants are filed in the labor bureau's elaborate index.

Jobs By "Pull"

White-collar jobs are still to be had in Italy, as everywhere else, through friends or relatives or because of past performance, without aid of the state agencies. It should further be noted that even with manual labor the registration system is not working without a good deal of confusion.

The corporative state covers the direct economic interest of labor 100 per cent. But for the business man, labor is only one of a variety of interests and problems. What about markets, and prices and raw materials and trade practices, etc., etc.? What blueprints has the corporative state for planning and developing and nurturing a greater capacity to pay?

Blueprints for Business

Blueprint No. 5 is what we might calls the favors or services that a government can render to business. In this respect, the corporative state functions like a chamber of commerce, but with decisive authority.

The point to be made here can be put this way:

Although former U.S. President Hoover and Mussolini held similar ideas on the value of private initiative, the great difference in their point of view upon the relationships between the state and industry is that Mussolini could only regard the relationship as a highly honorable marriage, whereas Mr. Hoover looked upon it—or was politically forced to look upon it—as an illicit liaison. The American business man under Mr. Hoover had, when he needed succor, to sneak through the servants' quarters; the Italian business man went in and goes in, proud and unashamed, through the front door.

Prices Are Fixed

Blueprint No. 6 decrees that industry must consult Mussolini before building, enlarging industrial establishments.

Blueprint No. 7 has to do with the fixing of prices by consent of a percentage of the industrialists.

That Italy's socio-economic ship of state has been driven so smoothly through the typhoons of recent years is, to say the least, no mean achievement and it challenges comparisons with far mightier crafts. It has been an achievement not of rugged individualism but of state tirelessly busy from bridge to boiler room. But the corporative state has not been the compass and it has been only part of the crew.

Wages Are Low

The corporative state's control over labor works more smoothly than its control over the other phases of economic life. Noting this, Democrats (to say nothing of Socialists) charge that Fascism favors capital at the expense of labor. So far as Fortune can discover there is no conclusive evidence on this point. The argument remains important but largely theoretical.

Real wages in Italy are certainly low. As late as 1930 the statistics of the international labor office at Geneva showed that they were the lowest in Europe. (Now Nazi Germany ranks lowest.) Even after allowing for the many services that the state supplies to the people, it is practically certain that the standard of living has not been raised at all. Despite the fact that no other European nation has raised the standard of living, nevertheless as long as Fascism cannot point to a clear gain in standard of living it is reasonable to doubt whether state-controlled syndicates of labor do really constitute an effective means of pushing the claims of labor.

Now, of course, the cardinal tenet of Fascism is that it and its servants and its courts favor neither capital nor labor. Fascism favors only the state. The individual, high or low, is nothing. The state is all.

Little Profit Made

But does the Fascist state favor capital? In recent years it has undoubtedly been engaged in bolstering business rather than curbing it. And for an obvious reason, namely that business and government have been thrown together in a desperate defensive struggle against world forces of economic debacle. But certainly no one can say that Italian business has profited unconscionably in these years. Therefore, not until there are profits instead of deficits to be divided can it be determined whether the bias of Fascism is to divide equitably between capital and labor.

The theory of private industry remains. Is it already a delusion? Can it be reconciled with a state which lives only for itself and which is already so deeply involved in all processes of economic life? Only this summer Il Duce announced that he would finance the next war by taking over all business 100 per cent, lock, stock and profits.

With all this tremendous organization, what is Mussolini doing for the people of Italy? What about the youth of the land?

In the fourth article in this series will be discussed the subject, "Body and Soul," and will tell of the transformation of youth in Italy. Watch for this interesting article tomorrow.

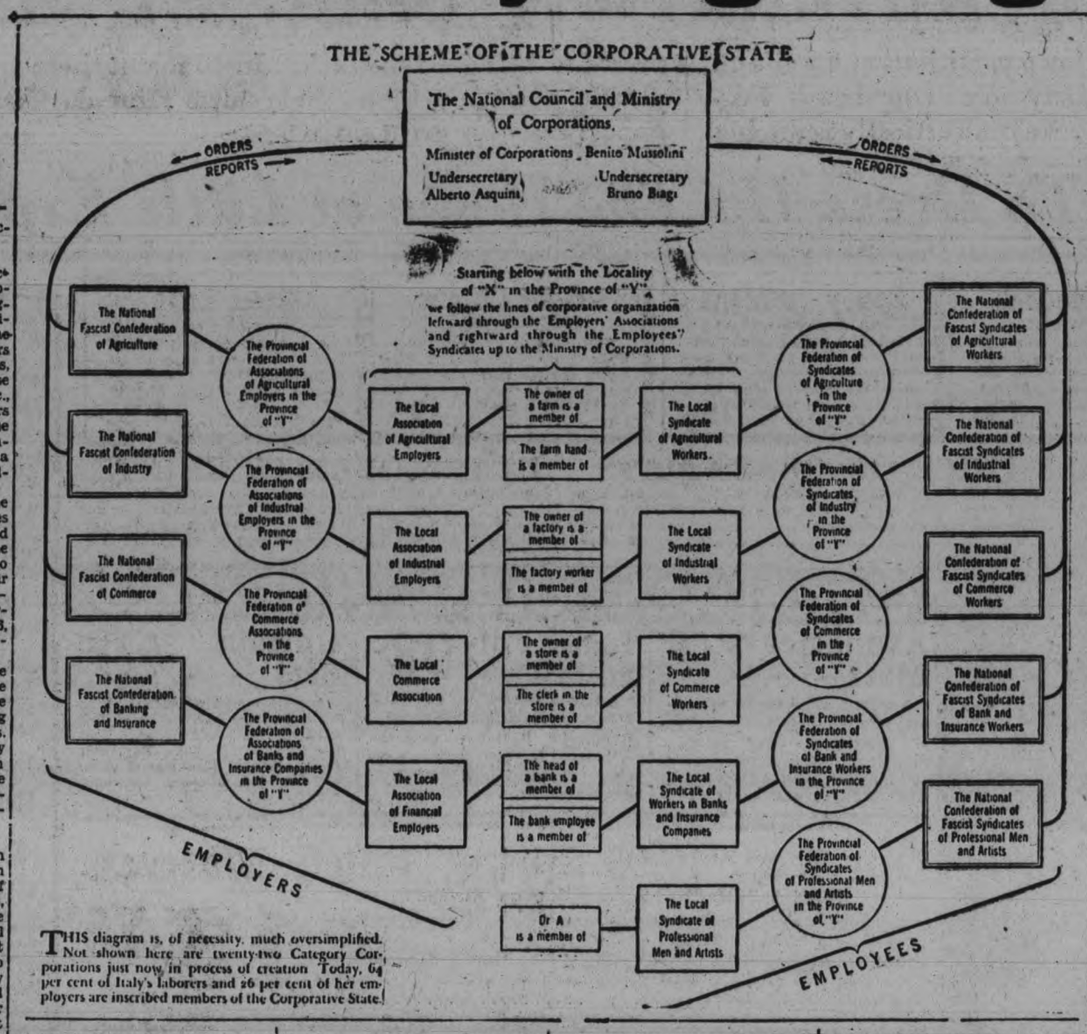
Myocarditis is an inflammatory affection of the wall of the heart.



THIS diagram is, of necessity, much oversimplified. Not shown here are twenty-two Category Corporations just now in process of creation. Today, 64 per cent of Italy's laborers and 26 per cent of her employers are inscribed members of the Corporative State.

R. J. KIDD ENDS LONG SERVICE

which followed the dinner with Mr. McLaughlin as chairman. The business was founded nearly seventy years ago in Barrie by Robert Neill, senior. His son, Robert, joined him after three years' experience in the general store business, and later came to Peterborough in 1885 to open the first branch of the Neill enterprise. That was the earliest of the merchandising chains, and a forerunner of the centralized buying and supervising management that has since revolutionized virtually the whole field of mercantile operations.

Store Location Unchanged

For half a century the name of Robert Neill has survived all the personal changes on George street, Peterborough's central retail mart, and has remained as a trade sign over the door on the identical property where the late Robert Neill opened the local branch, later to become the company's headquarters, fifty years ago.

New links were gradually added to the chain, and in 1917 the business was re-organized as a joint stock company. The fire in January 1918 was the first serious reverse the late Mr. Neil encountered, but it provided the opportunity of securing additional adjoining space on which the splendid store was erected and opened in November of that year.

Meanwhile, Mr. Kidd had come to Peterborough in the employ of the B. F. Ackerman Company, harness manufacturers, of which he was plant manager, and with his expert knowledge of leathers and the responsibility of which he had shown himself capable with the Ackerman Company, he attracted the attention of Robert Neill and accepted a position with him on January 1, 1903, and eventually became Vice-President and General Manager.

After Mr. Neill's death in 1921 Mr. Kidd was made President and Managing Director, and now in his retirement retains a direct interest in the company as a member of the Board of Directors.

Half Century Here

Mr. Kidd has been more than fifty-one years a resident of Peterborough, associated with two enterprises, one manufacturing and the other merchandising, that in their long establishment here are regarded as essentially local. In his later responsibility as head of the Neill stores, Mr. Kidd has been known for a generation chiefly as the local manager by the buying public of the city and district. Perhaps not such a vivid personality as the late Robert Neill, whose memory has not faded from the hearts of his friends, Mr. Kidd has been one of the outstanding business men of this city. His character created public confidence in the impression of efficiency which flowed from his manner and bearing; his cheerful, kindly greetings to customers indicated a personal interest springing from human depths and not simply from business satisfaction; and as first impressions were later verified, Mr. Kidd won a sound and secure place in the esteem of a legion of customers who regarded him as a friend.

Back of the local contacts and the management of the Peterborough business were all the details of supervising the other stores in the Neill chain, a responsibility which becomes more manifest when the group of branch managers assemble as they did last night.

Mr. McLaughlin spoke regretfully of Mr. Kidd's retirement, but said that it had to be accepted as one of those changes which inevitably come with the passing of the years. He particularly emphasized the appreciation which was felt toward Mr. Kidd by the company and the late Mr. Neill's family for the successful development of the business during the thirty-one years of his assistance in promoting it.

Two Difficult Periods

"When in March 1920, the late Robert Neill passed on, it was fortunate for his family and the company that they had in Mr. Kidd an executive of so many years in the active management of the business," Mr. McLaughlin said. "It was especially important for the reason that about that time, after several boom years following the war, a business depression set in with a period of falling inventories. Facing that condition, Mr. Kidd had a difficult time, for business generally had to face losses. During the last few years similar conditions have had to be met, and I wish to take this opportunity of saying how much the family of the late Robert Neill and the company appreciate Mr. Kidd's management during those periods.

But, the time comes when a man feels that it is advisable not to work hard, and so Mr. Kidd intimated some months ago his intention of retiring. I might say that some time this year will be the fiftieth anniversary of the late Mr. Neill's coming to Peterborough. He opened here the first branch store in the chain. It was the beginning of the first chain of shoe stores in this counrty, and I believe it was the first chain in any other line of merchandising. The Robert Neill Limited chain, therefore, dates back to the time when Mr. Neill's father began business in Barrie, and that is well on to three-quarters of a century ago.

I am sure that all the branch managers have a great pride in the company. I know the branch managers have been very faithful and loyal, and all connected with the business hope that it will continue to have a great future."

Director's Tribute

H. A. Clarke said he had been a director of the company for fourteen years, and during that time had recognized the stirling character and ability of Mr. Kidd.

"I soon realized that he was a man of strong personality, and the years have developed an affection which I am glad to speak of this evening. When the subject of Mr. Kidds retirement was broached I felt rather panicky for I knew how the business had flourished under his management. Hqwever, the directors made a careful survey to select a successor and Mr. Collins was finally engaged. I am sure that he will give his best endeavor to the business, and I ask you all to give him the whole hearted support which you have given to Mr. Kidd."

Mr. Kidd's Reply

In responding to the toast in which the assembly honored him, Mr. Kidd said he was affected by mingled feelings of gladness and sorrow. His regret was that the active associations with the business and its staff had come to an end. His work of more than fifty years in Peterborough was finished.

"I have been with the Neill Company for thirty-one years and a half," Mr. Kidd continued, "and while we have had our ups and downs, with the perplexing times of 1920 and 1921, and again from 1929 up to the present, they have been interesting and happy years. But, if it had not been for the loyal support of the branch managers and our local staff I could not have carried on. The only way any business can succeed is through real co-operation. We have had that to the very limit in both our local and branch stores, and I always felt that there was not one member of our staff in this city who would hesitate to come to me and talk over any problems with me.

The family of the late Robert Neill has always been kind and considerate, and that has been a great assistance. Mr. Clarke, too, has always been very encouraging, and with that personal background I could not do anything else but to go on and make the very best of it.

I was with Mr. Neill for seventeen years, and never a cross word passed between us. He seemed to have a great understanding of men. We understood each other, and that meant a great deal to me. When Mr. Neill died and was gone from the business I realized that he was a man whose equal I have never met. He was always fair, he was honest to the cent, and he was exacting in his business policy, which was that if a thing was not right it had to be made right. He was a man to place responsibility in others. I know he did with me, and if one is honest of course he could do nothing else but his very best to prove that such confidence was justified.

And now the time has come for me to lay down my tools, and the Neill family and the directors have been good enough to arrange this dinner. I thank them all for their kindness to me. I wish to thank Mr. Blewett who has been my associate manager, and to say that he has been true, and loyal and responsible. I cannot say a word too strong in his favor. He and I have never had a serious word. Of course, being Irish there were probably occasions when I showed some flash.

"I have enjoyed my work, and also the associations with our entire staff. I offer them and the company my very best wishes, and if there is anything I may be able to do in the future I shall always be delighted to do it."

The Neill Standard.

Mr. McLaughlin remarked that he was glad that Mr. Kidd had recalled the business ideals of the late Robert Neill.

"We hear of them to-night from Mr. Kidd, and we should always keep them in mind. All our branch managers should keep before them the standards and ideals on which Mr. Neill founded the business."

Mr. McLaughlin then introduced Mr. Collins with a brief review of his business career. He said that Mr. Collins had come from Petrolia where he had entered the shoe business as a youth, and then had joined the staff of the T. Eaton Company with whom he had held important posts in the shoe departments of their Toronto and Montreal stores. He left that company and went to Agnew-Surpass in London and Toronto where his ability to build up business had been particularly marked.

"Mr. Collins comes to us with very important experience in this line of business with the biggest merchandisers in this country, and I feel confident it will be a valuable experience to the Robert Neill stores."

A Man's Size Job.

In acknowledging the introduction Mr. Collins said that he was deeply impressed with the fact that he faced a man's size job in trying to fill the shoes of R. J. Kidd as manager of a business of the importance of Robert Neill, Limited, and also in trying to take his place in this community. I thank the board for my appointment, and I shall try to build from the foundation laid by Mr. Neill and Mr. Kidd. May I ask the same co-operation that has been given to Mr. Kidd, for I know it is going to be a hard job taking his place."

Dean of the Managers.

W. J. Carlisle, manager of the Lindsay branch, said that in September it would be forty years since he joined the Neill company.

"I have always had the highest respect for Mr. Kidd. He did not spare himself in his own work, and as manager I knew I could take any troubles to him and get a sympathetic hearing and good advice. As one of the oldest managers, I assure Mr. Collins that he will have the best of co-operation. I think the Neill staff everywhere is of the highest type. They are men of ability, resourceful and willing to work. Mr. Kidd has arrived at the time when he can enjoy the results of his labor. He has had a full life with scope for his ability, and he has had his reward. We all hope that he will live long to enjoy the rest that has come to him."

Vincent M. Eastwood, representing the Neill family, said he had always regarded Mr. Kidd as the personification of the Neill business.

"I know how highly he is respected in Peterborough, and I can say to the visiting managers that the compliments they have been paying to Mr. Kidd represent the esteem in which he is held also by the public generally in this city and district."

Mr. Blewett's Tribute.

C. E. Blewett, assistant manager, recalled that he had been associated with Mr. Kidd since 1915 as head clerk, and after Mr. Neill's death as assistant.

"Mr. Kidd has always been kind and considerate, and anxious to further the interests of the staff as well as the business. He has a wonderful personality, and it has been a privilege to work with him. I don't think there has ever been a real disagreement between us. I am glad he is going to take a well-deserved rest. Since 1920 he has had a great many problems, especially during two periods of depression. I wish for him many years of happiness, and I bring to him the best wishes of the staff of the Peterborough store, who asked me to convey them to him. I am glad of the opportunity to welcome Mr. Collins, and to assure him of the co-operation of the branch managers and their staffs, all of whom I know personally. Every one of them has the welfare of the Neill stores at heart, and I wish for Mr. Collins every success."

The branch managers spoke in turn, recalling memories of Mr. Kidd's supervision and endorsing the sentiments of the earlier speakers.

Mr. Bissette presided at the piano for a number of choruses, including Allouette, and after the National Anthem was sung, the managers chatted with Mr. Kidd and bade him a business farewell.

VIENNA BLAZE CREATES ALARM

Prince Storhemburg Tightens Guards After City Hall is Fired.

BOMBING IN SALZBURG.

VIENNA, July 4 (A.P)—Vienna's city hall, former socialist stronghold, was the scene of a possibly incendiary fire yesterday and reports from Salzburg said police headquarters there had been dynamited.

The fire at the city hall, although quicky extinguished, caused the greatest excitement in government circles. Emil Fey, minister of public security, rushed to the scene with other high officials.

Prince Ernst Von Starhemberg, head of the Heimwehr, boarded a plane for Salzburg immediately on receipt of news that an explosion had occurred at the marble hall of the Toscanisen Palace, where both the provincial director of public security and the Salzburg police have their headquarters.

Blast on Second Floor

Although the building had been closely guarded, an explosive was placed on the second floor, just outside the door of the Security Director's private apartment. The bomb caused heavy damage but none was reported injured. Police suspected that workmen recently employed in repairs may have built a time bomb into a partition into the wall.

Prince Starhemberg on his arrival immediately called Fascist Heimwahr leaders into conference, seeking to tighten protective measures.

The blaze in Vienna's city hall started among carpets, piled in a small storehouse in an inner court. Damage was estimated at less than $5,000.

The elected municipal authorities were driven from the building during the February civil war between Socialists and the Government. After that the Socialists called it, "Our Stolen City Hall."

Wedding Shower For Hastings Girl

HASTINGS, July 4.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The basement of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was the scene of a very pleasant social evening on Thursday, June 28, when over a hundred young people and friends gave a shower in honor of Miss Mary Spooner, popular young member of the church, whose marriage to Roy Johnson on Monday, July 2, was one of the social events of the year.

The chairman for the happy social evening was the pastor, the Rev. S. H. Hill, B.A. The basement was very beautifully decorated in pink and white, this color scheme also being carried out on the small tables which were tastefully arranged around the room.

A short program was given by the following artists: Miss M. Dodd, Roy Johnson and F. Kennedy, of Hastings; Miss E. Godin, Jean Webb and Mrs. Rogers, of Norwood.

W. H. Flatman then read a very appropriate address and made the presentation of a beautiful set of kitchen utensils in ivory and green. Miss Spooner replied to the lovely address and thanked the young people for their very generous gifts.

A very dainty lunch was served by Miss L. Dodd, convenor for the young people.

TORONTO, July 4 (CP) — Safe-crackers had everything set to blow up a five-ton strongbox in the office of the Imperial Refining Company here. The combination had been knocked off, a four-foot cord fuse inserted; the fuse had been lighted.

Office workers discovered this lay-out to-day when they returned from the holiday week-end vacation. The fuse had burned away at the bottom and there was no explosion. Another safe also had been tampered with.

The two boxes contained $5,000 worth of silver, gold and platinum, company officials said, and $200 in cash.

65 Youngsters Attend Jackson Park Camp

HE LOOKS LIKE A MILLION DOLLARS

That is What is Said of the Man Who Wears Fashion Craft Clothes.

Remarkable values in Fashion-Craft tailoring are again strikingly demonstrated at the local Fashion-Craft Shop, where men's and young men's suits are being offered this week for $22.50. These suits will be tailored to one's individual measure from good quality cloths, the style will be correct in every detail, and their wearers will then be clothed with distinction. The price is certainly remarkably low, but an assurance against inferiority is found in Fashion-Craft's guarantee that only an earnest desire to speed up business during the quiet summer months, commercially, makes such a drastic price reduction possible. Another important feature of this men's suit sensation is Fashion-Craft's assurance that the same tailoring, lining and trimming are embodied in these $22.50 suits as enters into their very much higher priced ones. And so at this sale men's ideals of smartness, economy and comfort may be said to have been realized, and an unusual opportunity offered men who affect the latest fashion in their clothing to dress fashionably well at little cost.

Fashion-Craft Shops need no introduction here. For years and years they have enjoyed a Peterborough City and Country wide reputation as a style and quality centre "for men who care", and Fashion-Craft never deviates from that "one hundred per cent. value" policy upon which their business is built and flourishes. "There goes a man who looks as if he amounted to something," is said about men who wear good clothes. And Fashion-Craft clothing is good, unquestionably so.

Weddings

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the churchof Our Lady of Lourdes, Toronto, on Monday morning at 8 o'clock, when Blanche Mildred, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. After the wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Dore left by motor for a short honeymoon to Niagara Falls.

The young couple received many lovely gifts from a large circle of friends.

TRAMP SHIPPING TO GET SUBSIDY

Aim to Abolish Foreign Subsidies, Aid British Firms.

1,000,000 SET ASIDE.

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 4 (CP Cable)—The government to-day announced its intention to apply a $10,000,000 subsidy to the British tramp ship industry and at the same time to aim at reduction or abolition of all shipping subsidies. The dominions, it was clear, would be asked to co-operate in the war against subsidies.

The scheme announced in the House of Commons by Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, was termed a "defensive" measure which will be confined to vessels carrying tramp cargoes under tramp conditions. It was aimed, Mr. Runciman said, to secure abolition of foreign subsidies and greater employment of British shipping and seafaring classes.

He said it would be given only on condition that ship-owners formulate a plan satisfactory to the government and including measures designed to prevent the subsidy being dissipated by domestic competition of British ships carrying tramp cargoes and to ensure that it is directed effectively to securing greater use of British tramp shipping at the expense of foreign subsidized shipping.

These requirements, Mr. Runciman told the house, entail a "real measure of organization of tramp shipping." The subsidy, he said, would be given for one year only and would be revocable if circumstances leading to its introduction here later.

Magistrate's Court

Convicted before Magistrate Langley in traffic court to-day on charges of reckless driving, several motorists had their driving permits suspended for short periods.

Alex Pickett, Omemee, was fined $10 and $4.25 costs for reckless driving and had his permit suspended seven days. On a similar charge, Herbert McPhee, Lindsay, was fined the same amount, but his permit was suspended only two days. Douglas Young, aged 18, of Ancaster, for the same offence was fined $15 and $3.25 costs.

For failing to produce her driving license, Mrs. Pearl Chamberlain of Norwood, was fined $2.50 and $3.75 costs. Alex. Muir, Lindsay, was fined $3 and $3.75 costs for operating a car with faulty lights.

Board Of Education Fails To Get Quorum

One short of a quorum, Peterborough Board of Education regular monthly meeting failed to materize last evening, and the proceedings were adjourned to the first Tuesday in September.

Barred from the Library in the Collegiate Institute, where Inspector A. Mowat had the various examination papers in safe-keeping, six members of the Board waited in vain in one of the classrooms for the best part of an hour for arrival of a seventh member to complete a quorum.

Those atetnding the meeting, in addition to Secretary G. H. Thompson, included E. F. Reid, chairman; Mrs. W. R. Morris, and Messrs. J. A. McKone, George Patton, J. A. Middleton and W. J. Hancock.

IN MEMORIAM

HUGGINS—In fondest memory of our mother, Mrs. Thompson R. Huggins, Sr., who fell asleep in Jesus, July 4th, 1923.

The depths of sorrow we cannot tell,
Of the loss of one we loved so well.
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep,
Her memory we shall always keep.
Her faint last wish we should like to have heard,
And breathed in her ear one parting word;
Only those who have lost are able to tell
The pain of the heart in not saying farewell.

—Ever remembered by her family.

IN MEMORIAM

IRELAND—In loving memory of my dear husband, James Wesley Ireland, who died July 4th, 1932.

There is some one who misses you sadly,
And finds the time long since you went,
There is some one who thinks of you always
And tries to be brave and content.
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember,
No one on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed.
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness,
The world can never fill.

—Always remembered by his Wife and Family.

Goering Frees Prince "Too Stupid To Plot"

BERLIN, July 4 (AP)—With a crisp "Get away—you are too stupid to have done anything," Prussian Premier Herman Wilhelm Goering is reported to have absolved Prince August Wilhelm, fourth son of the ex-Kaiser, from complicity in the German coup, says the Exchange Telegraph News Agency.

The words were said to have been uttered at the end of a close questioning of which the Prince, a former Nazi member of the Reichstag, was subjected following upon the rounding up of the Prince's close friend, Karl Ernst, Berlin Storm Troop leader, and others.

Ernst met his death, reportedly at the hands of a firing squad. The Prince is believed to be in Berlin.

114 Children Are Seriously In Need Of Camp Attention

If Situation Is To Be Handled Adequately This Year Provision For Larger Daily Attendance Has To Be Made, Dr. C. B. Waite Declares

INCREASE IN NUMBER OF UNDERNOURISHED RESULTS FROM CONTINUED DEPRESSION

The most serious situation in regard to undernourishment among children of Peterborough which has yet been encountered in the history of the Kiwanis Jackson Park Health Camp was revealed yesterday as the camp was thrown open for another season. "Physically they are the worst lot we have ever had," Dr. C. B. Waite stated, commenting on sixty-five youngsters admitted this morning.

If the situation is to be handled adequately this year, provision for a larger daily attendance than in the past years will have to be made, Dr. Waite intimated. At present, 114 children seriously in need of the camp benefits are on the list for attendance but the camp capacity restricts the daily quota to about 65. For the time being, the children in most need will be taken first and the possibility of increasing the camp capacity will be considered, the doctor reported.

Depression Blamed

Dr. Waite said that the increased seriousness of the situation this year was thought to be the result of the continued economic depression. A large portion of those enrolled yesterday were from families on relief but not all, he said. The children have been selected during the past two months through applications by their parents, through recommendations of Dr. A. W. McPherson, acting medical officer of health, and of other doctors in the city. Realizing that a great many of the families in which undernourished children are likely to be found never see a daily paper, the committee in charge of the camp gave it publicity directly through the public schools this year and uncovered a considerable number of deserving cases.

Under the direction of Miss Florence Vickers, a registered nurse who has had charge of the camp for several years past, the daily program will be much the same as in former seasons. Buses hired by the Kiwanis Club from the Border Transit Company collect the children at various points through the city about eight o'clock each morning and carry them to the camp. Three substantial meals, morning noon and evening, are provided for the children at the camp. Milk is one of the largest items on the bill of fare. Each child is required to rest at least one hour after luncheon, more delicate youngsters being retained longer. The remainder of the time is spent in informal games in the park, group contests, play on the slide or the swings and wading in the stream. Despite the shallow water, several learned to swim in the stream last year, Dr. Waite said. The return to the city is made between 6.30 and 7.00 p.m.

Require Two Months

In some cases two weeks will be sufficient to bring the weight of the undernourished youngsters up to normal but many of those now enrolled will require the entire two months' benefit. Due to the unusually heavy demand on the camp facilities, the children will have to take their turns, making room for newcomers as soon as they are up to normal. Dr. Waite states that there is no difficulty inducing the children to come to the camp for they are quite eager for the daily outing aside from parental or medical orders.

Last year the average gain in the camp during the summer was between three and four pounds. One child gained 12 pounds during his visit. A daily check of weights is made by the nurse and Dr. Waite gives his time generously to a constant supervision of the health of the children.

Dr. G. R. Scott, Dr. C. M. Scott, and Dr. F. C. Neal also take an active interest and give valuable assistance in the operation of the camp Included on the Kiwanis Camp Committee are E. S. Maybee, Carl Campbell and John I. Allen. Mrs. R. R. Hall and other workers in the Peterborough Health Association contribute their services freely.

Guelph, Ontario, Pay Munro Last Tribute

GUELPH, Ont., July 4 (CP) — Guelph and Ontario paid last tribute to-day to D. Paul Munro, barrister, and member of the Ontario Legislature for South Wellington, who was killed in an automobile accident three days ago near Waterdown, Ont. Thousands of persons attended a public funeral service in War Memorial Hall at the Ontario Agricultural College.

Among them were Mitchell F. Hepburn, youthful Premier-elect, whose Liberal party was swept into power in the Ontario general elections 15 days ago, and a number of party leaders. Mr. Munro won South Wellington for the party and had been prominently mentioned as a possible Cabinet Minister in the new Government.

The public service was conducted by Archdeacon G. F. Scovil, rector of St. George's Anglican Church here, a former army chaplain, and Rev. R. M. Field.

FOOTWEAR MEN ARE ASKING CUT

Seek Reduction in British Preferential Duty on Boots and Shoes.

SUBMIT WAGE SCALE.

OTTAWA, July 4 (C.P.).—Application for a reduction in the British preferential duty on boots and shoes from 25 per cent. to 15 per cent. was made before the Tariff Board to-day by the Incorporated Federated Association of Boot and Shoe Manufacturers of the United Kingdom. This was the first public hearing by the board since early spring.

Putting forward the case of the British exporters of footwear, A. C. Somerville reminded the board that the basis of application was Article 11 of the Anglo-Canadian trade agreement which allows British manufacturers to compete in the Canadian market on an equal basis with domestic producers, the determining factor being the relative cost of economical and efficient production.

It had been found impossible for the British and Canadian manufacturers to establish common ground in the matter of production costs, said Mr. Somerville. However, he submitted cost summaries for the scrutiny of the board and the Canadian manufacturers. He asked that the Canadian opponents of his application be required to do the same.

Rate a "Genuine One."

Mr. Sommerville emphasized that the minimum wage rate in the British footwear industry was a "genuine one." The majority of the firms covered by agreement with the National Union of Boot and Shoe Operatives were on piece work, wherever possible.

"Under the agreement the average piece worker must receive 25 per cent. above the minimum wage and in some of the districts manufacturing footwear for export to Canada, piecework statements range between 35 and 47½ per cent. over the minimum wage," said Mr. Somerville. "The localities exporting footwear to Canada are in the main highly unionized. In Northampton alone, where there are 42 shoe manufacturers, there are six trade union officials, so that any departure from the agreed piece-work price is practically impossible."

Replying for the Shoe Manufacturers' Association of Canada, S. Roy Weaver of Montreal presented what he termed the "high spots" of the Canadian brief.

The market open to the Canadian manufacturers was that of only 10,000,000 people, whose buying of footwear varied as a result of a wider range of geographical, climatic and occupational conditions. In contrast the British manufacturers had a home market of 45,000,000 population, compact and very largely homogeneous.

In their brief the British manufacturers had set forth their belief that the Canadian footwear producers were enjoying an excess of 7½ per cent. in tariff protection. In spite of that, no British firm had ever thought of establishing a branch factory in Canada.

"It would be quite unfair if British firms, which are unwilling to take the risks which Canadian manufacturers have taken by investing their money in Canada, were able, from the safe anchorage of an established volume in their own home market, to cut into Canadian trade, except on such terms as will make full allowance for the handicaps imposed on the Canadian manufacturers by the volume factor," said Mr. Weaver.

The board challenged Mr. Weaver's assertion that competition in the Canadian market from the British manufacturer was severe. Chairman George H. Sedgewick did not think that with the Canadians enjoying 97 per cent. of their own market and the British getting only a proportion of the remaining three per cent., this competition could in any way be regarded as severe.

HEENAN TO GET SEAT IN KENORA

Liberal-Labor Executives Decide it Best Earl Hutchison Resign.

USED IN OTHER FIELD.

KENORA, Ont., July 4 (C.P.)—Liberal and Labor executives from all parts of this riding were unanimously agreed to-day the Kenora seat in the Ontario Legislature should be made available to Hon. Peter Heenan, former Federal Minister of Labor and choice of Premier-elect Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario for the provincial portfolio of lands and forests.

At a meeting last night the Liberal-Labor executives approved the action of Mr. Heenan in accepting the offer of the portfolio. Regret was expressed, that in order to open this seat, it would be necessary for Earl Hutchinson, only Liberal-Labor member of the Ontario Legislature, to resign. It was felt however, Mr. Hutchinson's services would be used in some other field to carry on his efforts on behalf of Labor.

Mr. Heenan expressed his appreciaon of the endorsation of his action and his pleasure at the prospect of again representing Kenora constituency.

Two Doomed Brothers Wait Upon Death As Creeping Paralysis Approaches Brain

BELMONT, O., July 4 (C.P.). — Their bodies twisted by a mysterious malady that already has claimed seven male members of their families since 1868, two brothers wait for death in their home in the hills near here.

A clinic of 50 specialists once examined Glen W. Dietrich, 16, and John L. Dietrich, 17, but the experts were unable to diagnose the disease other than to say it is a form of paralysis.

The malady, apparently a strange hereditary disease which afflicts only the male members of the family, always appears when its victims are five years old. The seven previous victims died when they were 18.

Dr. D. W. Turner, the family doctor who has attended two paralyzed youths since they were infants, said to-day he didn't know why they were afflicted with what he called "creeping paralysis" but said he was certain they were doomed.

"I know that the disease of these boys is creeping paralysis, but I do not know why it strikes them at five years of age and kills them at 18." Dr. Turner said "I do not know just why the male offspring of the daughters of the house are affected and not the other children."

"It is my opinion," he added, "these boys will not live more than a year. The paralysis will likely strike the brain any time now That seems to be the history of the disease."

Astor And Ex-Fiance Play "Ring Around The Rosey"

Revelation of correspondence between many-millioned John Jacob Astor (left) and the family of Eileen Gillespie, New York deb, preceding and anteceding their broken engagement, was promised by (centre) Mrs. Lawrence Gillespie, the girl's mother, following an indignant reply by young Astor to a derogatory announcement of the Gillespie family which accompanied the belated return of his $100,000 engagement ring by Miss Gillespie (below). The ring goes next to Ellen Tuck French, Astor's new fiancee, shown at top right.

Perhaps the outstanding feature of the elocution contests at the B.C. Musical Festival was the victory of Yuki Yoshida, a Japanese student at Vancouver, who won the finals, competing against winners of all classe. The adjudicator, Dr. James Lyon of London, declared that her work was practically perfect and awarded her 297 out of a possible 300 points. Miss Yoshida is a native daughter of British Columbia, her parents residing on Vancouver Island.

Somewhere along the Nova Scotia coast is a little drab-colored boat, The Imp (shown above), about 15 feet over all, manned by a stolid mariner, Larry Tom (inset), 26-year-old Hollander, headed for Dutch Guinana, South America. Only the present depression or a strong love of adventure could have decided a lone seaman to venture on such a journey, some would say, and perhaps in this case, it is a little of each, for Larry Tom is both out of work and a rover by nature. Preparing the past few weeks for his trip, he scoffed at any dangers attached. "I will coast down to Yarmouth," he said, "keeping close to the shore. If successful that far, I will then cut across the Bay of Fundy and then down from the coast of Maine to Key West, Florida. From here I will go to Cuba, across to the Gulf of Mexico, to Colombo, along the Panama, Ecuador and to Dutch Guiana." He expects to spend some seven months in reaching his destination.

Rasputin's Daughter Sues Again

Spectres from the former imperial czarist Russian throne loomed once more with news that Tatyana Rasputin Solovieff, daughter of the famed black bearded monk who virtually ruled the Russian empire, is to revive her four-year-old suit for damages in French courts against Prince Youssoupoff, for the murder of her father, in 1917. She seeks to obtain a share of the $125,000, which the prince's wife won from a Hollywood film company for defamation of her character as portrayed in the movie "Rasputin and the Empress," in which the prince is shown slaying Rasputin.

Left, three-pieced striped cotton shirting set; second, three-piece twin sweater string outfit; third, white linen skirt, cross-bar shantung blouse; four, coin-dotted silk jacket dress; five, ribbed frock; right, plaid gingham.

The feeling that one is equipped with the correct clothes for that long looked forward to vacation, gets you off to the right start for your outing, and gives you that feeling of security that prepares you to have a thoroughly good time.

Select any or all of the clothes sketched in this group, and you can go anywhere and be smart and comfortable.

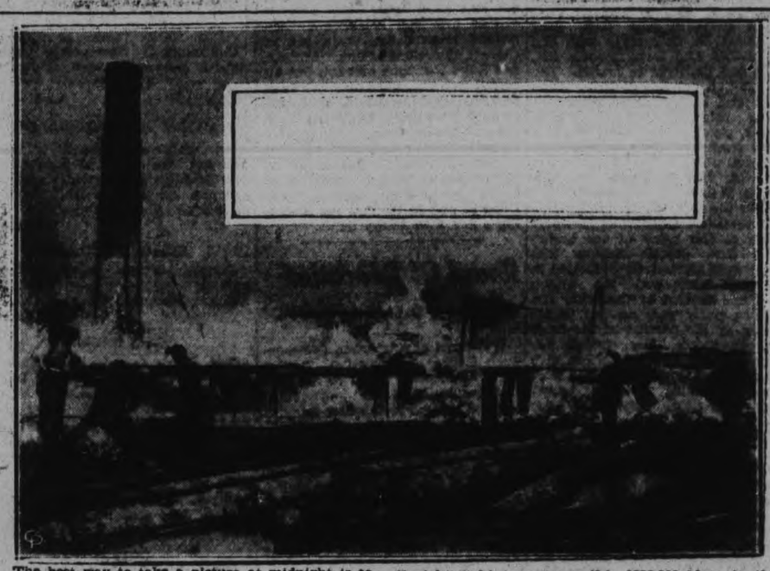
Cool cotton shorts are worn everywhere this summer, and a new version is this three-piece striped cotton shirting set sketched at the extreme left. The shirt is like a teddy and does not pull out in active games of tennis or golf, or when you are gardening. The shorts have pleats in front; the skirt buttons all the way down. You can buy it in white with red and brown stripes, or white with brown and yellow stripes.

Now what could be smarter than the two next costumes? The first is a three-piece twin sweater string outfit that looks hand-knitted, in white, porcelain blue, pink or maize. Next is a tailored linen skirt worn with a shirt blouse of shantung in cross-bar pattern, and is sporty in white with red, blue or green.

Coin-dot fabrics have a way of making you feel and look cool and summery for long or short trips, or for just staying at home. The dotted silk jacket and dress, four, is ideal to wear to restaurant luncheons, bridge parties or the club, or dinner with a movie afterwards. The dress has cap sleeves, pique flowers and patent leather belt; the coat has three-quarter puffed sleeves.

It's very smart to have one dress of finely ribbed material that looks like silk—but probably isn't. The second frock from the right is lovely in white, maize, flesh or blue, with capelet sleeves and big pearl buttons.

It also is chic to have one plaid gingham in your summer wardrobe, especially if it's finished with crisp white pique collar and cuffs, as is the model at the extreme right. Navy blue or red plaid is equally smart for this frock.



The best way to take a picture at midnight is to set fire to a huge lumber mill and wait until the flames brighten things up. They certainly brightened things up for Victoria, B.C., firemen who fought an all-night fight to conquer this $250,000 blaze in the Moore and Whittington Mill which wiped out 1,000,000 feet of lumber and threw 150 men out of work. And this picture of the sensational fire was taken at midnight, when the fire was at its height.

Seven people lost their lives in this tangled mass of wreckage that was a "luxury" airliner. It crashed in the Catskill mountains, New York, after taking off from Newark. Investigation shows that a passenger from Buffalo, William Bader, a chemical engineer, was alleged to have been carrying explosives in a bag. Witnesses report that the aeroplane exploded before the crash. Meanwhile U.S. government agents have taken a hand to suppress any information leaking out concerning the papers and other materials said to have been carried by Bader. It is reported that he carried secret documents on U.S. navy explosives. Several of the seven passengers and crew were thrown clear of the wreckage, others were burned beyond recognition. The photo shows the wreck with workmen searching for bodies.

THURSDAY, JULY 5TH

A day of unforeseen and surprising developments may be looked for, according to the predominant lunar and mutual aspects of the planets. These strange conditions may call for change, travel, new environment, offering good opportunities if wisely directed, although there may be minor delays or setbacks.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of sudden change, calling for travel, removal, new environs, interests and associates. These, although attended by minor setbacks or obstacles, should open up fresh opportunities, enlisting the substantial support of old institutions or elderly persons.

A child born on this day may be skilful, adventurous, inventive and industrious, but headstrong and wayward, although personally likable and popular.

Hot or cold, meat loaves are always delicious. But after a sweltering summer day, they are most appetizing when accompanied by fresh vegetables or a sparkling gelatine salad.

* * * * * * *

Crumbly meat loaves are neither attractive nor appetising, and yet these have been the difficulties of home-made products. The tested recipes given here, overcome those faults and give loaves that have a flavorsome brown crust, and tender, moist content within.

* * * * * * *

A "binder" or precision ingredient is used that takes up the meat and vegetable juices and keeps the loaf firm. That ingredient is the unsweetened quick cooking tapioca. It cooks in five minutes and does not interfere with the flavor or color of the meat loaf.

* * * * * * *

These loaves are perfect for summer, and may be served hot or cold, so it is always well to have one in the refrigerator.

* * * * * * *

Veal Loaf Roast: 1 tablespoon minced onion, 2 teaspoons butter, 1-3 cup five minute tapioca, 2½ teaspoons salt, dash of cayenne, dash of celery salt, 1 pound veal ground, 1 pound pork ground, 1 cup milk, ¾ cup hot water and 4 tablespoons butter. Brown onion slightly in butter, combine with minute tapioca, seasonings, veal, pork, and milk. Form into loaf pans. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) or until done, basting frequently with mixture of water and butter. Serve hot or cold. Serves 10.

* * * * * * *

Meat Loaf Roast (using cooked meat): 4 tablespoons five minute tapioca, ½ teaspoon salt, dash of cayenne, dash of black pepper, 1 teaspoon Worcestshire sauce, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 3½ cups ground cooked meat (veal, pork, ham, etc.), ¾ cup tomato juice or meat broth, ½ cup hot water, 2 tablespoons butter. Combine minute tapioca, seasonings, onion, parsley, meat and tomat juice. Shape into loaf in roaster or turn into loaf pan. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 30 minutes, basting frequently with mixture of water and butter. Serve hot or cold. Serves 6.

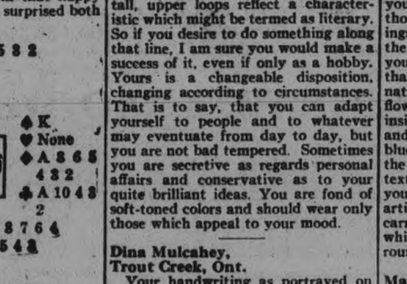
CONTRACT BRIDGE

Written for Central Press

By E. V. SHEPARD

DOUBLING A FORCING CALL.

Even an opening bid of 2 sometimes may be redoubled informatorially, asking partner to respond with his best suit, as was the case with the hand shown. The dealer sat South, at my right, a few nights ago. He was vulnerable. We were not in that happy position. What followed surprised both sides equally.



Bidding went: South, 2-spades, on a freak 2-suitor, which must go game provided North had minimum support for either major suit. I made an informatory double, upon ability to support strongly any call made by East. North bid 3-spades. It would have been all the same to East had North jumped to 4-spades. After that informatory double nothing could have prevented East from bidding. East bid 4-diamonds. South shifted to 4-hearts. West bid 5-diamonds, intending to double further bidding by North and South; North went 5-spades; East 6-diamonds; South, doubled; West, redoubled; North, 6-spades; East, doubled on 2 aces; South, redoubled; East 7-diamonds; South doubled.

The opening lead was the ace of hearts fearing that oen or the other opponent might ruff a spade lead. East ruffed, leaving 2 good hearts in dummy, even if they were useless.

Two rounds of trumps pulled all those missing, with the lead left in dummy. Three leads of high clubs from the West hand captured the missing K in the North hand. Then the balance of the hand was spread by East, fulfilling a grand slam contract undertaken over an opening bid of 2-spades. This was better for us than setting the doubled and redoubled 6-spades a trick, even if our opponents were vulnerable.

The Meaning of Being Vulnerable

A rubber at contract bridge terminates when one side wins two games. A pair becomes "vulnerable when it wins its first game," and remains so until the end of that rubber. If the other side wins a game it also becomes vulnerable and remains so until a new rubber begins. Penalties when vulnerable count twice as much as when not vulnerable. Hence the name vulnerable, because penalties hurt worse. The idea of vulnerability is to make the side winning the first game more careful in bidding, thus affording the other side a better chance to even the score. This makes the rubber more interesting than when one side runs away with the score.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

If just before a rainstorm there is one part of your foot that hurts so bad that you wish you had some serious disease, such as cancer, in exchange for it, you won't need to be told very much about corns.

The explanation of this increase of pain in corns due to changes in weather is debatable, but one theory is that it is due to certain physiological changes that take place in the body. Just before a storm the humidity is high and the atmosphere is charged with moisture, and as this increases, elimination of fluids by the skin is slowed up. In order to attempt to discharge this moisture, the superficial blood vessels are engorged and this is as true in the feet as in any other part of the body and hence the corn swells and becomes painful. In support of this theory is the fact that the pain at this time is of a throbbing, pulsating character.

Corns are simply reactions of the skin to pressure and irritation, and can almost certainly be said to be due to faulty footwear.

Ingrown toenail is not always as easy to diagnose as might seem. There is a condition which is known as "callous nail groove", which closely imitates it.

Ingrown toenail is a nail which, probably because it has been improperly cut, has grown into the skin along the nail groove. The nail of the big toe and of the small toe bear the largest amount of brunt of shoe pressure and, therefore it is more likely that they will receive some form of home treatment which so often results in the ingrown toenail. The nail of the little toe, however, is too small and undeveloped to create the condition, so most ingrown toe nails occur on the big toe.

After the nail has penetrated the skin, infection and ulceration may occur, with inflammatory reaction and the production of proud flesh. The treatment is to reduce the infection, and by proper plugging with cotton, protect the skin of the nail groove from the growing nail until it has become healthy.

If the victim is familiar with the principles of antisepsis, and knows the structure of the nail bed he can relieve himself but in severe cases it is advisable to call in the help of a surgeon or podiatrist. Incidentally I believe that practitioners of podiatry have developed into an extremely competent profession. For most foot troubles I believe they are more reliable than most general practitioners of medicine or surgery, and this is, I think, largely because they are more interested in feet and take more trouble and do more for them.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterboroughs Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Melville Wills,
Grand Central Apts.,
Peterborough.

The handwriting for analysis describes you as one with rather a nervous tendency. You seem to be careful as to detail and routine, yet you really do not care for that type of work. Your tall, upper loops reflect a characteristic which might be termed as literary. So if you desire to do something along that line, I am sure you would make a success of it, even if only as a hobby. Yours is a changeable disposition, changing according to circumstances. That is to say, that you can adapt yourself to people and to whatever may eventuate from day to day, but you are not bad tempered. Sometimes you are secretive as regards personal affairs and conservative as to your quite brilliant ideas. You are fond of soft-toned colors and should wear only those which appeal to your mood.

Dina Mulcahey, Trout Creek, Ont.

Your handwriting as portrayed on your sample indicates that you are very pleasant and friendly. Your disposition is refined and genteel. You do not care to participate in quarrels. You are sympathetic and enjoy the companionship of a few really trustworthy friends, but do not make too many at a time. You have a rather good imagination and this should make you a most interesting conversationalist. You are genuine and truthful. Sometimes, I think you will note that you are inclined to act upon impulse, and at these times your heart overrules your head. You are not aggressive or arrogant, but you are logical, discerning and observant. You conduct yourself with intelligence and propriety at all times. Friends should appreciate you for what you are, and should listen to your words of wisdom.

Mrs. Sarah Dinsdale, Bridgenorth, Ont.

Your handwriting as delineated on your card for analysis, describes you as a person with a genial nature. You may not always be in the best of good humor, but as a rule you are quick witted and jolly. You are an excellent worker when you are in the mood, but you have variable spasmodic moods and do not always feel just like exerting your energies. You appear to desire to keep your home in order, and you feel terribly upset if some one thoughtlessly disarranges your furnishings. Your imagination seems to get the better of you and when it does, you think that things are much worse than they really are. One of your nature, should be fond of music and flowers. Bright colors should have an insistent appeal to your many moods and tend to cheer you when you feel blue, but be sure that you choose only the right shades which will match the texture of your skin, your hair and your eyes. Your capital letters show artistic talent, and I think that you carry this trait out in the manner in which you arrange your home surroundings.

Mary Scollard, Curve Lake, Ont.

Your handwriting as portrayed on your sample shows that you are one who will brook no interference as regards freedom of thought and manner of living. You are the possessor of independent thought and cannot be rushed into anything. You like to take your own time about everything, and you are easily offended if any one endeavours to make you 'hurry up'. You accomplish about the same amount of work each day, and appear to live in a monotonous routine. A little excitement once in a while should do you a great deal of good. You should be an excellent organizer because of your splendid ability to study minute details and to want to boss others about. This characteristic will no doubt stand you in good stead later on, when destiny places you on a sound footing in the world of every day affairs. You are the type of person who is never a minute early or a minute late, and I presume you are often laughed at for your punctilliousness.

BE BEAUTIFUL

By GLADYS GLAD

"Dear Miss Glad: I have quite a few ugly blackheads on my face, and I find it most difficult to eradicate them. I was advised to try hot towels on my skin to open the pores, and then to remove the extraneous matter. Do you think this a good plan? LEAH"

I personally think that hot towels are too drastic a treatment for the tender skin of the face. If you steam and scald your face with hot towels, the muscle fibers of the skin will become weakened and the facial muscles will grow relaxed and flabby. The purpose of hot towels is to open the pores so that the dirt that clogs them may be more easily removed. But you can accomplish this more safely by massaging the skin for a few minutes with an oil or cleansing cream. The lubricant will soften the skin and open the pores effectively. And after that, a soap and water cleansing should help to remove all extraneous matter from them.

"Dear Miss Glad: I've just received the most beautiful permanent—and it's all through the excellent advice in your 'Beauty Culture' booklet that I managed to do so. You see, I used that dandruff remedy first, until my scalp was entirely cleared. And then I used the hot oil reconditioning treatments. And they certainly did thicken my hair. However, my nails are very soft and often split and peel. Can you offer a remedy?

BERTHA"

The condition of the nails that you complain about may be due to some deficiency in your diet, or to some internal condition. A physician's advice is usually best to get at the basic cause of the trouble. Oiling the cuticle, however, is helpful as a corrective measure. Soak your fingertips in warmed olive oil several times a week. In addition, insert a generous amount of cold cream or nourishing cream under each nail nightly before retiring. Also, if you apply two or three coats of a good liquid polish to your nails, it will help to prevent them from splitting and peeling.

"Dear Miss Glad: You once had an article in the paper about a camomile tea shampoo for light hair. I'd like very much to try this, but neglected to cut out the formula. Could you advise me as to how the shampoo is made? BLONDIE."

To make the camomile shampoo, place a handful of camomile flowers in a pint of water and bring it to a boil. Then strain the mixture through cheesecloth and allow the resultant solution to cool. Next, take a small cake of castile soap, cut it into fine shavings and add a pint of water to it. Allow it to simmer over a low flame until all the soap is dissolved. Then combine the camomile solution with the soap solution and permit the entire mixture to cool. The hair should be lathered with this mixture three times, and the third lather should be permitted to remain on for 5 or 10 minutes. Then the hair should be rinsed thoroughly, and a camomile solution should be used as the final rinse.

Mouth Wash.

Bella: A good mouth wash can be made by dissolving one-fourth teaspoon of borax, one-fourth teaspoon of salt and one-fourth teaspoon of peroxide in a glass of warm water.

Standard Weight.

Joseph: I think that a man 25 years of age and 5 feet 11 inches tall should weigh about 162 pounds.

Editor's Note: To obtain Miss Glad's pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" write, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

HAMILTON WOUND up one of the most successful meetings in the history of the Association yesterday. Monday, the holiday drew the largest crowd of the meeting and over two hundred thousand dollars passed through the wagering machines on that afternoon. That is important money these days. Wrigley Field who has been slowly rounding to form was going along nicely in the lead on Monday and looked almost a sure winner when he suddenly went lame. He will be on the shelf for a time now. Bill Weant outbid several others and purchased Stefan Jr. for $1000. Bill certainly got a bargain as this one is a real race horse. He won't be long paying back his purchase price.

We were glad to see Nat Ray finally win a purse with Stealingaway. She has been knocking at the door all summer, but this was her first win since last winter in Florida. She should register a few more now that she has started. Indian Dance who was meeting with fair success around these parts has been shipped to Montreal and will strut his stuff at the Mount Royal track for a while. He should be a stand out in plate company down there. Donny Johnny is another old time favorite up this way that should gather in a few purses down at the eastern metropolis. Lloyd Gentry lost his good plater Arrowswift via the claiming route at the recent Long Branch meeting and his new owner took him down to Rockingham Park. Gentry thought so much of him that he went all the way down there and waited until he was entered in a claiming event and claimed him back again.

× × ×

CHAT EAGLE has been shipped over to Fort Erie and should win at the first asking. He is in tip top shape and only lost his last race at Hamilton by a whisker. Mrs. Foster is another that should make her presence felt at the border track. Trainer Mason who saddled a number of winners earlier in the season around Woodbine and Thorncliffe has got in wrong with the powers that be and is to appear on the carpet at the next meeting of the C.R.A. In the meantime all his horses are barred from starting. It is alleged that the saliva tests show he had been using some hurry up drops. The powerful Hatch Stable will not be seen at Fort Erie as Lloyd Gentry and the C. R. A. have not as yet patched up their differences. He was to have appeared before them last Friday but he would not attend the meeting without his lawyer and they would not admit the lawyer no headway was made.

In the meantime the Canadian Racing fans are the losers as they are deprived of the chance to wager on these fine horses from one of the most powerful stables in America. They have sent Faux Pas over to Detroit and take it from us, both he and his stable mate Frumper will knock them dizzy one of these days. They are both under the wing of that clever Oakville conditioner Willie Wilson.

Fosters No Match For Cogs As They Lose 22-2

BILLINGSLEY IS EFFECTIVE ON CLUB MOUND

Fosters Put Up Wretched Display of Game While Cogs Look Smart in All Departments.

ONE-SIDED TUSSLE.

Cogs handed Fosters a terrible pasting in an E.P.L. game at the Exhibition Grounds last night, beating them 22-2 in six innings. A handful of fans saw Fosters put up a wretched display of baseball, being helpless pitching, hitting and fielding, while Cogs looked smart in all departments. Lefty Billingsley let Fosters down with three hits, no two to an inning, as he fanned seven in a good exhibition of flinging. The two Foster runs were unearned, Dunkerley was wild and ineffective for Fosters and gave way early to Clark, with C. Smith finally taking a turn on the mound in the last frame.

Manager Davis got into uniform and caught a good game for the Clubmen, besides leading his players at bat with four safeties in five, though on percentage Padgett and Cadd were better, each having a perfect game with the willow, three hits in three appearances. Every Cog clouter got at least one safe blow. H. Smith got a triple and a scratch single to lead Fosters, with Hutchinson getting the only other hit. Darkness brought a merciful ending to the long drawn-out and one-sided affair.

BRINTONS WIN IN LATE RALLY

Carpet-makers Overcome Early Lead of Tiremen for 15-11 Victory.

LOOSE FIELDING.

Coming from behind in the latter stages of last nights game at Central, Brinton Carpet nosed out Johnston Tire 15-11. The Tiremen piled up an early lead of 5 runs in the first inning but were held scoreless from then till the eighth and in the meantime Brintons were pecking away at their lead lead till they went out in front in the seventh frame and were never headed after that.

Bill Abbott did the hurling for the Brintons and while he got away to a rather shaky start in the first inning, pitched beautiful ball for the remainder of the contest, not a run being scored against him till the eighth when with a big lead he eased up and coasted home with a winning margin of 4 runs. Freddie Elliott worked for the losers and did a good job till the seventh when he began to weaken. His support lapsed several times and this brought about the defeat.

Archie Weir and Ross Currie led the Brintons attack with three hits each out of five times at bat, while Newson and Smith each connected for three-baggers. For Johnstons, Stanger, the second baseman with two hits out of four trips to the plate was their heavy slugger, while Jimmy Ellis connected for a long home run in the last of the ninth.

The fielding on both sides was rather loose, the infield of the Deckmen looking particularly weak while in the outfield, despite a heavy wind and strong sun, many fine catches were pulled off. Johnny Playford for the Carpet men and McQuade for Johnstons shining in this respect.

The line-ups:

Brinton Carpets—H. Dormer, 2b; Smith, 1b; Playford, cf; Calladine, c; Weir, lf; Newson, 3b; Currie, rf; G. Dormer, ss; Abbott, p.

Johnston Tires—Starr, c; Dorrington, 3b; Stanger, 2b; Montgomery, rf; Ellis, 1b; McQuade, cf; Anderson, lf; Crary, ss; Elliott, p.

YANKS HALTED BY RED SOX AFTER 11 INNING STRUGGLE

Hamlin's Hurling Too Much as Tigers Defeat Cleveland Indians.

SENATORS BEAT MACKS.

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Roy Johnson has stolen brother Bob's home run thunder just long enough to ruin New York Yankee's hopes of setting up a new season major league record for consecutive victories, cut their American League lead to one game, and boost Boston Red Sox into fourth place.

All these developments came about when Roy picked out one of Johnny Murphy's deliveries and drove it into the right field stands with one man on in the 11th inning yesterday. That home run, only his third of the season against the 24 with which his younger brother, Robert of the Athletics enabled the Red Sox to top the Yankees 10-9.

Charley Ruffing, who had pitched three successive shutouts and 29 consecutive scoreless innings, was bumped by the Red Sox for one run in the first inning and then was pretty thoroughly shellacked before he retired with none out in the fifth. Three home runs, including Lou Gehrig's 21st, kept the Yankees in the running and sent the game into overtime but Johnson's drive shattered their winning streak after it had reached eight in a row, equalling the string Chicago Cubs recently piled up in the National League.

Meanwhile the battling Tigers of Detroit moved to within a game of the pace-setters by trimming Cleveland in the odd game of the series 7-2. The defeat dropped the Indians into fifth place, a full game back of the Red Sox. Luke Hamlin, celebrating his 28th birthday, stopped Cleveland with six hits while the Tigers hammered Monte Pearson and Lloyd Brown for 12, including Goose Goslin's home run with one aboard in the third.

Despite home runs No. 22 and 23 for Jimmie Foxx, the Athletics surrendered a 12-6 decision to Washington Senators who thus protected their grip on third place, a half game in front of hte Red Sox, and five behind Detroit. Joe Cronin and Jonathan Stone matched Foxx's home run feats and otherwise made good use of 14 hits off Sugar Cain and Roy Mahaffey. St. Louis and Chicago took the day off.

Lou Chiozza, Phillies— Raked Brooklyn pitchers for single, double and triple.

Joe Medwick, Cardinals — Gathered homer and single against Cubs' moundsmen.

Bill Urbanski, Braves — His homer accounted for winning three-run margin over Giants.

Roy Johnson, Red Sox — Poled home run with one man on base to break up extra inning game with Yankees.

KLEINKE HOLDS TORONTO CLUB TO TWO BLOWS

While Redwings Score Five Unearned Runs in First Innings for 11-1 Win.

BEARS SWAMP CHIEFS.

Buffalo Moves Into Sixth Place by Nosing Out Montreal Royals 7 to 6.

(By The Associated Press)

One of the finest pitching efforts of the International League season stood to-day to the credit of young Norbert Kleinke of Rochester Redwings.

The Redwing right-handed, a graduate from the New York-Pennsylvania League, let Toronto Maple Leafs down with two solitary hits last night as Rochester punched out an 11-1 victory. Singles by Manager Ike Boone and Harry Rice were the only breaks in Kleinke's pitching armor. The Redwings scored five unearned runs on three hits and two errors by Joe Morrisey in the first inning and coasted in the rest of the way. All told, they combed the offerings of Al Hollingsworth and Gene Schott for 14 hits of which Borgmann and Brown contributed three apiece.

Newark, led by George Selkirk, swamped the Syracuse chiefs, 12-6. Selkirk rapped out two doubles and four singles in six trips to the plate, drove in two runs and scored four himself. Syracuse hit Marvin Duke hard in the 2 2-3 innings he worked but Hank McDonald pitched well in a relief role. Bill Sweeney, acting manager of the Chiefs, hit a home run inside the park in the ninth.

Bisons in Sixth Place

Buffalo moved into sixth place, ahead of Syracuse, by nosing out Montreal Royals, 7-6, in a night game at Buffalo. Ollie Carnegie's double and three singles set the batting pace for the Bisons, who were forced to come from behind three times in the early innings to stay in the game. Carnegie also pulled the prize fielding play of the game, making a great catch of a long drive with the bases filled with Royals in the eighth.

Fourth place Albany, trailing Toronto and Rochester by 4½ games, subdued the last place Baltimore Orioles, 14-5, in a night duel at Baltimore. The Senators blasted out 21 hits off three Oriole throwers.

CAMPBELLFORD COPS DECISION

Clerks and Maroons Clash in Exhibition Tussle—Latter Wins by 10-5 Count.

ELGIN TRIUMPHS

HASTINGS, July 4.— (Examiner Correspondence.)—The main attraction from a sporting standpoint in the village on the holiday was an exhibition softball game between Campbellford Clerks and Hastings. The game, which was witnessed by a large crowd, proved to be the best played on the local diamond, the visitors getting the decision by a 10 to 5 count. With the exception of the third innings, when Campbellford got four runs and three more in the seventh, the locals made a good showing against the classy visitors.

Elgin Wins, 26-3.

Elgin and the Clerks played off their tie game of two weeks ago in the Hastings and District Big Five Softball League as part of the holiday double-header. The rural boys took the measure of Dr. Hay's revamped line-up of Clerks in a big way by the tune of 26 to 3. Whitred pitched good ball for the losers, but his support was terrible, while his opponent Preston was backed up by some classy fielding and had the game well in hand throughout.

FRED PERRY, ENGLISH NET ACE ELIMINATES WOOD OF NEW YORK

While Jack Crawford Wins From Frank Shields, Top-Ranking American Player.

BITTER STRUGGLES.

WIMBLEDON, July 4 (CP-AP)—An All-British final in the Wimbledon tennis championships was assured to-day when Fred Perry, English ace, eliminated Sidney B. Wood of New York, after Jack Crawford, the defending champion from Australia, had defeated Frank Shields, top-ranking American player in the semi-finals.

Perry put out Wood 6—3, 3—6, 7—5, 5—7, 6—3, after Crawford had rallied after being down two sets to Shields to finally beat him in one of the most brilliant struggles any capacity gathering at Wimbledon ever has seen. Scores of the Crawford-Shields match were 2—6, 4—6, 6—4, 6—3, 6—4.

Both Perry and Crawford were carried to the full limit of five sets by their American opponents before going on to victory before a crowd of 25,000 that packed the Wimbledon stands.

Shields, playing perhaps the best tennis of his career, seemed on his way to victory over Crawford, rated No. 1 in the world ranking, as late as the fifth game of the final set, where the American led 3 to 1 in games. But Crawford, in superb form, hit one of his invincible streaks and ran out the deciding set.

FRED PERRY

We have from time to time, taken a good bit of jollying as to who are the three gentlemen that appear at the head of this column, that we feel that an explanation might not be out of place.

It seems that during a game the other evening a skip and his vice appealed to a certain member of the games committee for a ruling....We do not know the exact nature of the argument, but judging by the smile of the little fellow the other boys are not getting very far.

This is not exactly a puzzle and as we don't want to give information away — you will just have to figure it out for yourself.

The next big event at our club will be the ladies' annual tournament to be held on Thursday — commencing at 1 p.m.....This contest is always looked upon as being one of the attractions of the year.

We understand from the ladies committee that a big entry is expected and all they need now is favorable weather.

There will be nothing special on at the club to-night and we suggest that it would be a good chance for to catch up on a few postponed games.

Owing to the fact that the ladies tournament is to be held on Thursday and that the greens will be occupied for a little while after tea, the games committee has asked all games scheduled for Thursday to commence play at 8.15 p.m. instead of 7.45 p.m.

Elmwoods Defeat Indian River 10-5

DOURO, July 4—In an uproarious game Douro Elmwoods beat Indian River, 10-5, in an East Peterborough tilt last week. It was easily the best game of the season. The River held Elmwoods scoreless until the fifth, but when they got going they made it pay. In the third inning, Elmwoods got three men on with none out, but were unable to score, Walsh bearing down hard. Garvey, playing a new position at second, went well and teamed up good with Moher on short, to pull a few snappy plays.

Elmwoods pulled off two double plays; the first in the league this years. One, a Moher-to-Garvey-to-Towns combination; the other, Walsh to Towns. The latter play helped especially good, as it broke up a River rally, they having three men on at the time. H. Fitzgerald in centre for Indian River made a beautiful catch of a hard-hit fly. The teams:

CARDS-PIRATES GAIN ON LEADERS

Urbanski's Homer Gives Braves Runs That Beat New York Giants.

St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates, third and fourth respectively in the National League, picked up a full game on the two leaders, New York and Chicago. Bill Hallahan allowed 13 hits, but was effective with men on the bases and the Cardinals trounced the Cubs, 7-3. The winners piled up a 6-0 lead on Guy Bush in the first four innings and scored their final run on Joe Medwick's homer in the eighth. Pittsburgh, getting top-rate pitching from Ray Lucas, blanked Cincinnati Reds, 10-0. While Lucas allowed only six hits, the Pirates collected 13 and scored seven runs in the seventh and eighth frames.

Roy Parmelee, making his first start since his operation for appendicitis, was wild and ineffective, and the Giants dropped a 5-2 decision to the Braves. The Phillies scored seven runs in the eighth and walloped Brooklyn, 11-2.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By C. J. P.

Somewhere in this section of the paper—we hope it's slipped into the "Obituary" column—is an account of an E.P.L. game that was allegedly played last night. By actual count, the score ended 22 to 3 for Cogs over Fosters in six innings! Yeah, that's no misprint, 22-2 was what we summed it up, and it's unlikely that any recount will be asked. Here are a few more figures: Cogs stole 19 bases; only eight of the two dozen runs were earned; Fosters had six errors (overlooking a flock of scratch hits) of commission, and about a dozen miscues of omission; Manager Davis returned to the wars and got fourt hits, while Padgett and Cadd had perfect evenings at bat. Every Cog hitter got at least one safe one. Billingsley fanned seven and gave but three hits. Ho, hum, and that's enough figures to do us for a month.

• • • • • •

We won't be breaking any confidences by saying that the game was putrid. It was marked by "B.O." all through—and we don't mean box office! Fosters' pitching was rotten, their hitting was worse, and their fieldnig was—but, then, there may be ladies and kids who read this column. Cogs, on the other mitt, played fine ball, despite a couple of boots that figured in both Foster runs. The crowd was small, amused and game. The fans stayed to the bitter end, probably in fascination—wondering if there was anything else screwy that could be injected into this jamboree. The umpires looked as if they had just come through a hard winter when the affair ended, and we wore out two pencils and a lot of patience trying to score the darned thing!

• • • • • •

However, Fosters aren't due to play for two weeks and they plan on shaking the outfit up like a furnace on a sub-zero night before their next game. They intend getting some new players. They can hang the can on half a dozen they've got now as the team only has a couple or three ball players on it. Of course this team started after players too late in the Spring and the best of them were nearly all signed up. Still, there are quite a few good ex-juniors and also intermediates around town or within a few miles of town, and Fosters will likely trot out a remodelled squad next time. They'd better or they wont draw a corporal's guard and it takes plenty of potatoes to run a baseball club.

Brintons finished strong to win out, 15-11 over Johnston's Tires in the men's softball game yester eve at Central. Abbott started off mighty shaky for Brintons but steadied away shortly and tossed the Tiremen for a long string of horse-collars till he eased up in the late stages. Elliott was also okay on Johnston's slab but weakened toward the end and you can't weaken very much when you're gunning 'em in to those Carpetmen. His teammates also booted a few bad ones. There was a lot of heavy hitting and some wobbly fielding, but it was a nice tussle. Orphans and Brintons clash Thursday.

Runners-up also get prizes. And there is a softball throwing contest for men. Check up and see that it's sanctioned by the O.A.S.A.

"Father, dear father, come home with me now, for the score has reached thirty-one!" That might have been the plaintive wail of a lot of kids at King Edward Park last p.m. when Keene gals walloped C. G. E. 31 to 26. We don't know as, fortunately or unfortunately, we were mixed up in plenty of other grief at that E.P.L. landslide. Reports sifting back from the lasses' large-ball front were to the effect that it was a heavy slugging tussle—we can believe that—and each side used three pitchers. A swell crowd turned out, but the game was too wide-open to give 'em any real thrills.

Efforts by the local Kiwanis lacrosse team to get Cobourg here this Thursday proved unavailing. Cobourg was willing to play it Wednesday but Riverside Park couldn't be obtained that night. The Lakeshore lacrosers are right on the Petes' heels with two wins in three starts while the locals have copped three victories in three games. Belleville has won one in four and Campbellford has dropped two.

Douro Girls' Team Defeated By Zion

For the first time in about ten years a girl's team has begun to operate in Douro. The game was an exhibition one against Zion early Saturday evening. It was a good game and the lasses deserve credit for the showing they put up. Aided by the Snowden girls, who play on the C.G.E., the Zion crew came out on the long end of an 11-7 count. Condon, Douro pitcher, went good with a few streaks of wildness. Young, on the opposing mound, also went fair, but was subject to wildness also. Teams:

Douro.—Condon, p; Walsh, c; White, 1b; Hayes, 2b; Allen, 3b; Towns, ss; Farley, lf; Clark, rf; Ryan, cf.

Zion.—Young, p; Slattery, c; M. Snowden, 1b; Powers, 2b; Connelly, 3b; W. Snowden, ss; Fitzgerald, rf; Cavanaugh, lf; L. Cavanaugh, cf.

Score—Zion 11, Douro 7.

ONTARIO CRICKET II SCORES DECISIVE VICTORY AT TORONTO

Wining Team Triumphs By an Innings and 59 in Inter-provincial Series.

BRILLIANT FIELDING.

TORONTO, July 4.—The inter-provincial two-day match between Ontario and Quebec, played on the grounds of the Toronto Cricket Club at Armour Heights, resulted in a decisive defeat of the visiting eleven when, after Ontario replied with 307 to Quebec's 135 first innings, the Quebec eleven were dismissed in their second innings for the small total of 113, after batting for two hours and a half yesterday. The beginning of play, which was resumed shortly after 11 a.m., gave Billy Bell, captain of the Ontario side, an opportunity to reach the century mark, and he was accorded hearty applause and congratulations when, following two scoring strokes (one of them to the boundary), the coveted mark was gained. His faultless innings, which terminated on his scoring two more runs, included twelve "fours."

Only twenty-three runs were added to the Ontario innings for the last three wickets where play in this match continued yesterday. Jemmott was responsible for capturing the wickets of Tippett and Wallace, and thereby only two runs being scored off his deliveries, he improved his analysis from 3 wickets for 96 to 5 for 98. Captain Lloyd and K. H. Ross again opened the Quebec innings, but within five minutes the latter was smartly caught by Lloyd Percival off Tippett at between square leg and mid on. Without adding to the score his partner in Tippett's next over gave the alert young Rosedale player an even more difficult chance at the same position and it was no less expertly accepted.

TONY CANZONERI.

The comeback road has proved successful so far for Tony Canzoneri, battling Brooklyn beauty, who defeated Frankie Klick, of Los Angeles, by a technical K.O. in a bout, the winner of which won the right to challenge for Barney Ross' lightweight title. The bout was fought in Brooklyn before a crowd of 12,000.

Indian River Easily Defeats North Douro

In a game postponed since last Tuesday on account of rain, Indian River beat North Douro 30-6 Saturda evening. It was the worst game played. It was dull and uninteresting, with the score showing a tendency to go cricket. Walsh for the most part had the opposing batters at his mercy, and only in the sixth did they get away. Thompson pitched a fair game but his support was so bad that nothing can be said about it.

The teams:

Indian River—Robinson, c; Walsh, p; Lonergan, 3b; M. Doherty, 2b; R. Doherty, rf; Cavanagh, lf; H. Fitzgerald, cf; Heffernan, 1b; Herb Fitzgerald, ss.

North Douro—Allen, rf; Thompson, p; G. Condon, 1b; Jim Delaney, 2b; S. Condon, ss; Dwyer, lf; Leahy, 3b; J. Delaney, cf; Triggs, c.

Score:

Indian River.. .. .. ..472 169 1—30
North Douro.. .. .... 00 006 0— 6

Umpires—F. O'Connor at plate, J. Walsh on bases.

Two Soccer Players Given Suspensions

The only important business transacted at the meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Association, last night, was the ordering off the field of play in the game between the Canada Packers and Canadian General two weeks ago.

After hearing the evidence of the two players implicated and the representatives of the clubs on behalf of the respective men, the executive unanimously agreed that such tactics on the field of play must stop and decided that the C.G.E. player be suspended for three games. A one-game suspension was handed out to Canada Packers' participant for his part in the fiasco.

Saturday, July 7th—Canada Packers meet Lindsay in the semi-final of the Injured Players' Cup. A. Frick, referee.

Tuesday, July 10th—Caledonians versus Deloro in semi-final of Injured Players' Cup.

There will be a special meeting held after the Tuesday night game on King Edward Park.

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

CHAPTER 39

Pointer had one rule in capital cases, or inquiries that could involve capital charges. He never questioned a child about its parents, or a parent about their children, nor a husband about his wife, nor wife regarding her husband. There was always some other way of getting at the truth than by trapping a garrulous tongue into some admission which might darken all their days. But he could question Hudson Giacomo about Miss Naylor. It was Etta Naylor, the one who interested Pointer, who had been coming regularly to see the signora, he now learned.

"This feeling your mother seems to have against Lady Tait," Pointer said cautiously, "has it shown itself any stronger since Miss Naylor's last visit?"

"Possibly. I thought the papers . . ." suggested Hudson.

"But she might have heard about it from some one else, Miss Dundas or Mme. de Souza."

"Miss Dundas, who is she? I have never heard mama speak of her; as for Madame de Souza, she comes here, mama sees to the tinting of her hair; she has it brightened now and then. But how would she know about Lady Tait's money? Is she a friend of Lady Tait's?"

Pointer said that he did not know. So Mrs. de Souza was in the habit of coming to this shop. . . . He went out into the shop. He now produced his freshly made little snapshot of Strange.

"Seen anything of him lately? I know he comes here."

Hudson Giacomo did not know the face and said so, but at Pointer's request he showed it to his two assistants. One of these at once identified it as that of a gentleman, previously unknown to him, who had come in in a great hurry yesterday morning and had bought three boutonnieres—lily of the valley.

He was quite sure of the man, he said; the gentleman wore gloves and had rather a difficulty in consequence, in separating two notes which stuck together; the salesman wondered why he didn't pull a glove off, rather than fumble as he did.

"When was this?"

"Exactly at 12. He, the salesman was in a hurry to go to his dinner."

"Did the man look around the shop before choosing the boutonnieres? Anything that helps to fix date and identity," Pointer said to Hudson Giacomo; "we're making some inquiries as to the man's actions."

No, the salesman said that he was just going out himself when the man jumped out of a taxi, kept it, hurried in on foot; he thought he looked at the name over the door as though he had not been there before, looked about him as though for something, stepped over to the glass case and bought the boutonnieres, taking them away with him, and being very quick about the whole transaction. Neither Hudson Giacomo or his mother were in the shop at that moment.

"I saw one today and thought it very well done. I took it for natural."

Hudson Giacomo beamed. "Are they not pretty? My sisters make them. There are no others like them. But they are too fragile. We are not going to make any more. These camellias here are much liked, too, see."

But Pointer took up a lily of the valley sprig.

"They don't look fragile," he said, examining it carelessly.

"It is the leaves, the spun glass is too fine, it breaks if you touch it. And the lily bells drop off. But these camellias——"

Pointer put a lily of the valley boutonniere into his coat and insisted on paying for it. He did not care to have it as a gift. Signora Ricci was a dangerous woman, whether a guilty one or not. And she knew Mrs. de Souza. . . .

"And how many sprigs did Miss Naylor buy?" Pointer wanted to know next. He still trifled with his own as though chatting idly now.

"I do not think she bought any. I do not know. I was not here. But there seemed to be none gone when I returned."

Back in the taxi, he took his seat again. Signora Ricci did not open her eyes. He had the address of where she lived, a small hotel, from Hudson Giacomo. As the cab stopped, she opened her eyes, stared at his boutonniere, but said nothing, as he sailed into the dingy, garlic-smelling, but apparently crowded old house, the Citta de Milano.

"Where is the padrone?" she asked a waiter who was flicking dust off the bread in the dining toom. On being told that he was out, she seemed to lose all interest in Pointer.

"Whata do you want of me?" she asked, as though he had forced his company on a lady.

"Just talk things over in general," he said vaguely. "Can we talk in here?"

Signora Ricci led the way into a tiny room where a round table nearly touched the four walls and a stuffed canary hung from the chandelier.

"Now what is it?" she asked, sitting down facing him. She looked by no means a fool, he thought. Education might not have come her way, but her native wits would be keen and sharp. Violent she was, and he thought, vindictive. Courage, too, was in that face, or rather recklessness.

"I want you to tell me about your son and Mr. Tait," Pointer said gravely. "It's a painful thing to have to ask a mother, but we can't help that. Why did your son kill his father's half-brother?"

The signora jumped up. Out came a flood of words. Imbecile was the mildest of them. Pointer waited until her fury had spent itself for a moment.

"Come, come, Mrs. Ricci," he said then, very officially, "certain facts, facts, Mrs. Ricci, link your son—not you—with Mr. Tait's death. I'm sorry for you, of course, but didn't you directly incite him?"

"Incite?" she queried.

He explained. She seemed to swell again with fury and contempt.

"Look at me and then at him! Would I needa Hudson Giacomo to acta for me in any matter?"

There was a step on the stairs. In came a large, fat, but still very handsome man with his Trilby set askew on his curly thick black hair.

"Giacomo!" his wife fairly snapped at him, "this is a police officer. He has come abouta the death of John Tait. He knows I did it, but he cannota arresta me because he cannota prove that I did it. Oh, I am clever! Clever! Too clever to be caught. But do not forgeta, Giacomo mio"—she thrust her face almost against his, her fine teeth bared—"do not forgeta, my husband, that when I threaten I do. And what I threaten I do."

Giacomo Ricci was pale as he turned to Pointer

"What does this mean? My wife must be drunk!"

"But drunk or sober, she carries out her threats, piccolo mio. Make no mistake about that."

"In this case I think she is screening her son," Pointer said slowly. "He is probably the real criminal."

"Eh, what is that? What do you mean?" Ricci spun round in horror. "What are you saying about Giacomo?"

"It looks as if he had murdered his father's half-brother, Mr. John Tait." Pointer spoke very gravely.

Both the Italians went up into the air. Both raved together in their own tongue for a few minutes. Like two cats they spat and swore at each other. Finally the man roared in English, which he spoke as well as Hudson Giacomo:

"Giacomo would not hurt any one. He does not know this man John Tait. Why should he kill him? This woman here, what has she been saying that has led to the arrest of my son."

"Our son," she said in a tone of quite unexpected gentleness.

SOME FINE BASS TAKEN IN LAKES

No Record Muskies Reported Taken in First Few Days of Fishing.

MANY AMERICANS.

No stories of record bass or mas-kilonge have yet been reported to The Examiner but some fine ones were pulled out on Sunday and Do-minion Day in the lakes and rivers of this district. From an early hour Sunday morning, the shore waters of Stoney, Chemong and Rice lakes have been dotted with patient anglers trolling and still fishing.

Bass fishermen had considerably more luck than those who went af-ter muskies in Clear Lake and Stoney Lake over the holiday. The landing of a few lunge and some bass up in the three and four pound class in reported from Chemong. At Rice Lake, a number of those who went after bass had to return home satisfied with a catch of pickerel but others accounted for some fine specimens of the gamer fish.

Bait vendors at strategic points on the highways leading north from Peterborough and at the principal lake ports are doing a rushing busi-ness. Many American tourists are already in the region and a steady passage of cars bearing foreign li-cense plates through the city was noted today.

San Francisco Strike Involves Railroaders

SAN FRANCISCO, July 4 (AP)— A new threat to the peace of the port of San Francisco, involving the state-owned belt line railway, appeared to-day after Tuesday's bloody rioting left more than a score wounded on the waterfront.

The railway become involved as the striking longshoremen, police reported, threatened to drive train crews from their jobs and tear up the tracks if they attempt to shunt box cars to and from Piers 30 and 32.

The San Francisco Chronicle re-ported it had learned that the joint marine strike committee represent-ing all Pacific Coast Maritime unions out on strike had determined to reject the offer of the National Longshoremen's Board to act as ar-bitrator in the bitterly contested dispute now in its 56th day.

THIS IDEA OF CUTTING THINGS TO THE BONE CAN BE OVERDONE

THREE SENTENCED COUNTY JAIL TERMS

Court Case Follows Fracas at Kinmount Dance Six Months Ago.

LINDSAY, July 4. — Six months ago at a public dance held at Kin-mount, ("Scotty") Ed. Dawson, a young Scotsman from Toronto, and a member of a road camp, was kicked in the face, had several stitches put in his lip, and lost some teeth, in a melee which took place. At the time four Kinmount men, Grant Austin, George English, Bert Austin, and William Young were charged with assault and do-ing grievous bodily harm, as well as committing an unlawful assembly. They elected to be tried by a higher court and appeared before Judge McGibbon yesterday in a case that lasted the entire day. Following the evidence His Honor sentenced Grant Austin to three months in the county jail, English and Bert Austin to thirty days in the county jail, and Young to suspended sen-ence for two years.

Crown Attorney Anderson prose-cuted defendants and introduced their past records, showing that the first three had been convicted be fore, there having been several con-victions against English, who at one time conducted the Central Hotel on William Street, town. C. J. Frost appeared on behalf of the accused.

Orange Lodges Will Parade In Port Hope

Members of the various Loyal Orange Lodges, the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association, and the Ju-veniles of Peterborough County are to attend Divine Service at George Street United Church Sunday even-ing, where the special preacher for the occasion will be the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, pastor of Murray Street Baptist Church.

Members of the County Orange Association will meet at the Orange Hall on Brock Street, at 6.15 p.m. and will march to the church headed by the Salvation Army Band. The band will take part in the service, and afterwards is to lead the par-ade from the church south on Water street on a circular route north on George street to the War Memorial in Confederation Park. In the park a special commemoration service is to be held at which County Orange officers will deposit wreaths on the memorial in honor of the war dead.

On Thursday, July 12, it is ex-pected that approximately 1,000 Orangemen, women and children will journey to Port Hope to par-ticipate in the big celebrations in honor of the "Glorious Twelfth," to be held in the centennial town. Other counties that will take part in the Port Hope celebrations will include, East and West Durham, Northumberland, Victoria and On-tario.

For the accommodation of mem-bers of the Order from Lindsay and intermediate points, the Canadian National Railways announce they intend to run a special train at re-duced rates leaving Lindsay for Port Hope at 8 a.m.

Lowell Thomas Gets His Facts Twisted

Peterborough people who were among the millions who listened to the nightly news broadcast of Lowell Thomas, famous American commentator on world affairs, last evening were slightly taken aback to get the real "lowdown" on the Canadian political situation. With calm assurance, Mr. Thomas reveal-ed that Mitchell Hepburn will be elected "Premier of Canada" in the next election, and that it was the desire of a woman, Agnes MacPhail, to have the last word which caused postponement of the prorogation of Parliament last Saturday.

Well, maybe we're wrong, but it seems to us we read somewhere that Mitchell Hepburn has just been elected the new Premier of Ontario. And it seems that Mr. Thomas was totally ignoring the valiant efforts of Mr. Woodsworth in connection with the prorogation of Parliament matter. At any rate, to be on the safe side in future, Mr. Thomas might substitute some news from Turkestan or Mesopotamia in place of his items from Ottawa.

WELSHMEN HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC

Eight Members of St. David's Society Gather on Bank of Otonabee River.

GOOD SPORTS PROGRAM.

An event which will be memor-able to members of St. David's So-ciety for a long time was the an-nual picnic of the society held on Monday last. The picnic ground was adjoining the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Simmonds on the banks of the Otonabee river.

In the early afternoon the cars began to arrive, until the party numbered upwards of eighty per-sons. The weather was delightfully warm, and the spot ideal for picnic-ing. The afternoon sports included swimming and boating for the younger members, and horseshoe pitching for the older ones.

A program of races and contests drawn up by Mr. and Mrs. George Blowers concluded the afternoon sports. Alex Kirkcaldy acted as starter, and Messrs G. Blowers and C. Armstrong officiated at the win-ning post, these three being mem-bers of the men's social committee. The winners received their prizes from Mr. and Mrs. J. Henderson.

The races and winners were as follows:

Children under 7 — Margaret Jones, Joan Jefferson.

Young ladies—Gwen Davies, Ka-thryn Edwards.

Young men—Eric Gardner, Alfred Mills.

Girls 7 to 12 years (egg and spoon) — Lola Bradbury, Aileen Hughes.

Ladies' egg and spoon—Mrs. R. Jones, Mrs. T. Davies.

Men's egg and spoon—Mr. R. Jones, Mr. H. Morton.

Boys' sack race—Stanley James, Glyn Davies.

Young ladies sack race—K. Ed-wards, G. Davies.

Ladies' sack race—Mrs. A. H. Simmonds, Mrs. E. Bradbury.

Men's sack race—A. Mills, E. Gardner.

3-legged race—L. Whalon and E. Simmonds; G. Davies and B. Brad-bury.

Ladies' shoe race—Mrs. V. Mills, Mrs. R. Jones.

Thread needle race—Mrs. Brad-bury and Mrs. T. Davies; Mrs. V. Mills and Mr. A. Mills; Mrs. Arm-strong and Mr. Parry.

Ladies' bean race—Mrs. T. Davies, Mrs. Bradbury.

Nail driving contest (men)—Mr. Joe Henderson.

Extra Races

Boys under 14—E. Simmonds, L. Whalen.

Girls under 14—G. Langdon, E. Hill.

A series of tug-of-war contests caused much amusement, and ex-citement ran high particularly when six young men tested their strength against nine young ladies, only to be overcome ultimately by the ten-acity and strength of the fair sex.

The tea hour found the company in groups along the river bank en-joying the good things to eat.

During the evening, the Rev. J. L. Hughes (president) on behalf of the society extended to Mr. and Mrs. Simmonds a very hearty vote of thanks for allowing the use of their grounds, and accommodation. This received very hearty applause. Mr. Hughes also referred to V. Mills, vice president for securing the grounds and making arrangements in connection with the same, all of which had entailed a great deal of work. Those who had undertaken the transportation were also re-membered. A great reception was given to Mrs. George Blowers, who made her first public appearance at a St. David's gathering since her return from hospital, and whom Rev. Hughes referred to as a "loyal devoted member and first secre-tary".

Regret was expressed by the pres-ident at the absence of J. Morris who was in Toronto owing to ill health, and the hope for his speedy recovery was expressed.

At the conclusion of the presi-dent's remarks, the company rose sang the Welsh National Anthem. As darkness approached a huge camp fire was lit on the river bank, and the members gathered round and enjoyed community singing, many old Welsh airs being includ-ed. Further enjoyment was provid-ed by the addition of an orchestra composed of the following players: Vivian Mills, Arthur Barnes, Har-ry Brooks, Alf Brooks and Harry Simmonds, T. Whalon.

Those who kindly provided trans-portation were: Rev. J. L. Hughes, Messrs M. Parry, H. Morton, G. Blowers, J. Henderson, G. Siddall, and Mrs. T. Hughes.

The president, vice president and past president were in charge of the general arrangements for the day.

Streptococcus Germ Is Found In Milk

HAMILTON, Ont., July 4.—(CP) —Tests made by Frank J. Elliott, chief chemist at the General Hos-pital here, have revealed that two of the 10 cows of a herd on a Dun-das farm carried streptococcus germs in the milk. The tests were the second made, the first having failed to reveal any streptococcus germs. A third cow was dry and the other seven cows had germless milk.

Seven persons contracted septic sore throat from the source, two of them, Mrs. A. McArthur and Elen Hunter, dying. Miss Flora Hunter, who was critically ill with the same disease, is now recovering.

Frisch Fined $100

CHICAGO, July 4 (A.P.). — Manager Frankie Frisch of St. Louis Cardinals was fined $100 and Coach Mike Gonzales $25 yesterday by President John A. Heydler of the National League for failure to leave the field immediately when ordered to do so by Umpire Bill Klem in Monday's game with the Cubs.

Frisch, Gonzales and Pitcher "Dizzy" Dean were ousted by Klem for too strenuous a pro-test over Klem's decision on a pop fly.

FOUR MEN ESCAPE FROM CONSTABLE

Quartet Were in Car Stolen at Toronto—License Plates Changed.

LINDSAY, July 4.—Chased by Night Constable Alfred Hodgson, four men riding in a stolen car on the Fenelon highway managed to make their escape, two of them after a fight with the constable when they had abandoned the car. The officer brought the car to Lind-say and it proved to be one stolen in Toronto, the license plates hav-ing been changed. In the car was found a pile of stolen goods, some of which is claimed to have been stolen from a gasoline station at Cambray a week ago, consisting of sweaters, wearing apparel, cigarettes and tobacco.

Constable Hodgson was on the lookout for the men after he had been notified four men had forced open the gas pump at a garage in Coboconk and filled the tank of their car with gas. A nearby resi-dent noted the car license number. In the road pursuit, the constable overtook the men and they made for the bush. Two got away and the others were brought to a clearance, but after a stiff fight they also es-caped.

MAY MATCH WINDSOR LAD AGAINST AMERICAN HORSE

LONDON, July 4 (C.P.-Havas). — Windsor Lad, winner of the Epsom Derby, may race in the United States, declared the London Mirror yesterday.

The Maharajah of Rajpipla, his owner, received a cable from the president of the Narragansett Rac-ing Association, suggesting a match race between Windsor Lad and an American horse.

The Maharajah replied that, in view of Windsor Lad's many en-gagements in England, which in-clude the Eclipse Stakes and the St. Leger, he was unable to make a de-cision now, but the matter may be considered at a later date.

Captain H. A. Buck, American sportsman, is reported coming to England as the representative of several United States racing asso-ciations which are making efforts to get some outstanding British racing horses to take part in a spe-cial race in Los Angeles, Cal., for a prize of $100,000.

ANNIVERSARY AT COTTESLOE WELL ATTENDED

Rev. Mr. Ferguson of Keene is Guest Speaker—Special Choir Music.

CHILDREN'S PICNIC

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, July 3. — There was a large congregation at the morning anniversary services in Cottesloe church, when the Rev. Mr. Ferguson, of Keene, took charge of the service, preaching a very earnest sermon from Ezekiel ii, v. 1: "Stand upon thy feet, and I will speak unto thee."

Warsaw United choir led the service of praise, giving two selections, "Jesus, Lover of my Soul," a quartette with obligato taken by Mrs. Wilkinson, and a chorus by the whole choir.

Cottesloe people very kindly entertained members of the visiting choir and those who accompanied them to dinner.

The congregation is not holding an entertainment but the members and adherents are contributing a thank offering.

At the evening service every available corner was filled with benches and chairs brought in from neighbour's houses.

Mr. Ferguson preached a wonderful sermon on "The Coming Church and Brotherly Love in the Church," stressing that the rising generation will be the church, and these young people will be what we make them. The speaker emphasized the great need of the present generation setting an example of godliness.

The Keene choir led in the praise service, giving two selections, as well as "Lead Kindly Light,' by a male voice quartette, unaccompanied.

The offering was large and gratifying. At the communion service in the United church, Warsaw, on Sunday evening, several united with the church by certificate, and four young people by profession of faith. This latter was especially gratifying to the minister.

Children's Picnic

Long before nine o'clock children on Monday were gathering near the United Church for that joy of children's hearts, a ride in a truck to a picnic ground. J. A. Crowe conveyed between 35 and 40 to Birdsall's picnic grounds. Many more came in cars with their elders. At the grounds were a goodly number of friends and those who had moved away from Warsaw. Before dinner the children were swimming, playing in the sand and otherwise amusing themselves, while their elders engaged in watching them and in general conversation. Dinner was served promptly at noon when all sat down on the grass in groups quite close.

The prizes for the races were mostly money, which the children spent at the booth.

First was the swimming race by the boys of Mr. Sloans class: 1 Percy Cooper, 2 Kikor, 3 Ivan Watts. Girls' swimming race,1 Edna Payne, 2 Maizie Robinson, 3 Enid Darling. Running races, girls up to 5 years, 1 Barbara Payne, 2 Dora Clysdale, 3 Shirley Sloan. Boys up to 5 years, Stanley Thompson, John Wilkinson, Douglas Evans; girls, 6-8, E. Clysdale, Ruth Wilkinson, Marian Sloan; boys 6-8, Leslie Little, Sherwood Moore, Irvin Payne; girls, 9-11, Meta Payne, Dora Payne, Dorothy Payne; boys, 9-11, Leslie Little, Reid Crowe, John Darling; boys, 12-14, Percy Cooper, Beryl Payne, Cecil Bolton; girls, 12-14, Edna Payne, Edna Rollins, Merle Bell. Young mens race, van Payne, Bill Robinson, Percy Cooper.

Shortly after four o'clock, the committee, Mrs. Digweed, Mrs. G. G. Taylor, Mrs. Wilkinson, Miss Lena Miller, Mrs. W. Darling, Mrs. Fred Crowe, Mrs. Allen Payne, Mrs. J. A. Sargent and Mrs. F. Gormley served supper.

Orangemen Attend Service On Sunday

HASTINGS, July 4.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The annual church service of the local Orange lodges was held on Sunday evening at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. The two local lodges, the L.O.L. and L.O.B.A., with the junior lodges, as well as members from Norwood, Havelock, Roseneath and Campbellford, met at the lodge hall on Front street west and formed a parade, two hundred strong, which was led by the Union Jack, and marched down Front and up Bridge and across Albert to the church.

Historical old St. Andrew's was filled for the special service. Rev. S. H. Hill, B.A., the pastor, was in charge of the service. Rev. Hill took as his text 1 Cor. 16:13, "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, you like men be strong."

Special choir music was supplied by the choir, under the direction of W. H. Flatman, organist.

At the conclusion of the service the lodges changed their route of march, going across Albert to Victoria and down it to Front street east and to the lodge hall on the west end.

ACCIDENTS INCREASE.

Fatal accidents last month reported to the Board were 29. There were 23 in May and 11 in June last year.

Total benefits awarded for compensation and medical aid in June amounted to $360,059, bringing the amount awarded during the half year ending June 30 to $2,061,064 as compared with $1,802,445 during the corresponding period of 1933.

NEW INSURANCE FOR WISCONSIN

System for Unemployment is First to be Tried on Large Scale in U. S.

BENEFITS JULY 1, 1935.

MADISON, Wis., July 4 (C.P.) — Wisconsin proving grounds for many social theories, was watching the progress Tuesday of its latest experiment—unemployment insurance.

Born of the depression the state's compulsory unemployment insurance law officially went into effect when Wisconsin workers went to their jobs on Sunday. So far as is known the Wisconsin insurance system is the first to be tried in the United States on so large a scale.

July payrolls will form the basis upon which unemployment insurance premiums will be paid by employers. Every Wisconsin employer who has given work to at least 10 persons for at least 18 weeks must make contributions to the insurance fund, the first payment to be made on August 1.

Employers are given the alternative of submitting voluntary plans which, if approved by the Industrial Commission, may be used in place of the State Compulsory Act. Many employers are seeking approval of voluntary plans.

Until the fund amounts to $55 reserve per employee the premium under the Compulsory Act will be two per cent of the payroll. When the fund amounts to $55 but less than $75 reserve per employee the rate will be one per cent, and when the fund amounts to $75 or more, the contributions will cease unless the employer desires to provide more adequate reserves for his men.

To permit accumulation of a reserve no benefit payments will go to the employees until July 1, 1935. An eligible unemployed person may receive a maximum of 10 weeks of benefit payment during a calendar year. The total benefit is in ratio of one week of unemployment benefit for each 4 weeks of employment.

NO READING BEFORE AGE OF 7.

TORONTO.—Dr. Louis Jacques, of Los Angeles, told the American Optometric Association, which opened four days of convention sessions here yesterday, that children should not be permitted to read before the age of seven.

"A child's eyes," he said, "do not properly co-ordinate until he is at least seven years old and every child should have its eyes examined on entering school." Dr. Jacques said most children in the United States and Canada start attending school at too early an age.

RAMSDEN FOR MAYOR

TORONTO. — Controller George Ramsden became 67 years old to-day and he celebrated the occasion by announcing he will run for Mayor at the next civic elections on Jan. 1, 1935. Mayor William Stewart and others who may be candidates six months hence admired Mr. Ramsden's foresight, but made no comment.

Weddings

JOHNSTON—SPOONER.

HASTINGS, July 4.—(Examiner Correspondence). — St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was the scene of a very lovely summer wedding on Monday afternoon, July 2, when Mary Etta, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Spooner, became the bride of William Robert Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Johnston, of Hastings. The Rev. S. H. Hill, B.A., B.D., pastor of the church, was the officiating clergyman.

The church looked beautiful decorated with a profusion of summer flowers. The ceremony was performed before a bank of peonies, roses, Canterbury bells and forget-me-nots, interspersed with ferns, the five guest pews being marked off with bows of white tulle and sprays of roses.

To the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by Miss Hazel Whitred, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father, and looked charming in her wedding gown of white mousseline de soie, made in graceful princess lines, high neckline, in cape style, puffed sleeves tied with bows, and the skirt being fashioned with three tiers of ruffles at the hem. A conventional bridal veil of embroidered silk net, arranged in cap effect, caught with orange blossoms at the sides, was worn. Her shoes and hose were of matching shade with her dress. She carried a large arm bouquet of Talisman roses and baby's breath, tied with long streamers of ribbon.

The bridesmaid was the bride's only sister, Miss Annie Spooner. She wore a lovely frock of pale pink mousseline de soie, fashioned with frills from the knees to the hem, a dainty blue sash, large mohair picture hat of pink, gloves, tinted slippers and hose in the same blending shade. Her bouquet was of butterfly roses and baby's breath.

Miss Betty Spooner, only niece of the bride, as flower girl, looked very sweet in an Alice in Wonderland dress of pale yellow organdy, with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of yellow roses tied with pale pink ribbon.

The groom was supported by Clarence Gillespie, and the ushers were Everett Hess, Russell Learmouth and Stanley Fife.

During the signing of the register William Flatman, organist of St. Andrews Church, sang "I Love You Truly."

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother, Mrs. Spooner, receiving the guests in a gown of white syringa crepe with accessories to match and wearing a corsage of roses and forget-me-nots. She was assisted by the groom's mother, Mrs. Johnston, who was dressed in a blue crepe ensemble with white accessories and a corsage of roses and forget-me-nots.

The dining-room where the wedding supper was served was decorated in pink and white. The table, which was centred with the large three-tier wedding cake, was most effective with silver baskets containing pink carnations and tall pink candles in silver holders. Four girls, one from each of the churches, served. They were Misses Lily Dodd, Madeline Bond, Margaret Battersby and Mary Jones.

Later the bridal party left for their honeymoon, the bride wearing a smart pink syringa crepe ensemble with white hat and accessories.

Guests from out-of-town were: Miss Eileen Spooner, of Edmonton, Alberta; Mr. George Spooner, of Smith Falls; Mr. and Mrs. H. Waters, of Warkworth; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fields and Billy, of Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Johnston, of Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. McAvory, of Trenton; Mrs. Chesritt, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Archie Campbell, of Toronto; Mr. Russell Learmouth, of Oshawa.

VON PAPEN SLATED SAAR COMMISSIONER

PAPEN'S HOUSE IS AGAIN RAIDED BY HITLER AIDES

Rumors From Munich State Archbishop Faulhaber is Held Prisoner.

HUNDREDS FLEEING.

Mourners Barred From Von Schleicher Funeral—Victims' Bodies Burned.

BERLIN, July 5.—(AP)—The home of Vice Chancellor Franz Von Papen was again raided by Nazi police last night.

The information was hurriedly communicated to an Associated Press correspondent by Von Papen's wife when he accidentally met her on the street as she was taking a walk.

During last Saturday's events secret police entered the Von Papen residence and held him a virtual prisoner for several days.

Frau Von Papen was quite alone dressed in a grey and black tailored suit. She seemed to be deep in thought as she walked along.

"You have had exciting times of late," the correspondent remarked to her after a brief exchange of greetings.

Frau Von Papen, furtively looking around, said in an undertone, "Yes, it wasn't exactly nice."

Then, after another glance up and down the street, she said "We had visitors again last night. Not even the kitchen was spared. Naturally we would like a different 'watch' from the one now posted before our house. Of what good is a watch if it lets persons through?"

The Vice Chancelor's wife would say nothing further. Quickly shaking the correspondent's hand, she disappeared in the direction of her home a moment later.

Frau Ernst Suicides?

BERLIN, July 5.—(C. P.-Havas)—It was rumored today that Frau Karl Ernst, wife of the executed Berlin - Brandenburg storm troop leader, had committed suicide.

The marriage of Ernst a few months ago, it was recalled, was attended by Hitler, the late Captain Roehm, General Goering and many other Nazi notables.

Campaign Reopened
BY A. D. STEFFERUD
(Copyright, 1934, by the A. P.)

BERLIN, July 5.—Reports indicating the Nazis have re-opened a vigorous anti - Jewish campaign reached Berlin from provincial centres today, along with rumors that Michael Cardinal Faulhaber, Archbishop of Munich, is held a prisoner.

These disquieting reports, along with ones of growing dissatisfaction in such important cities as Munich, pointed to continuing dissension and fear.

Cardinal Faulhaber has been a severe critic of the Nazi regime. An attempt was made last January to assassinate him. The rumors, which were unconfirmab , said he was under guard at his home in Munich.

News of the slaying of four person in Silesia "for attempting to escape while being transported" July 2 was one of the strongest indications of anti-Jewish violence.

Hundreds of persons were reported to be fleeing from Germany.

Population Uneasy.

BEFUDDLED WEDDING BUREAU BARS LICENSE TO SIAMESE TWIN

Clerk Throws Up Hands in Despair at Plural Answers to Singular Questions.

WILL TRY ANOTHER STATE

NEW YORK, July 5 (A.P.).—Unable to decide on the plural aspects of the situation, perplexed authorities of the city marriage license bureau to-day refused a marriage license to one of the much publicized "Siamese twins."

The whole thing shattered the aplomb of Chief Clerk Julius Brosen, usually iron nerved about marriage matters, and he threw up his hands in despair after listening to plural answers to singular questions.

The question of how many people were getting married was handed to the city corporation counsel's office.

In no time at all, back came the ruling: "No license." No explanation of the processes of legal reasoning accompanied the decision. It was just "no."

The quest for a license is to be taken to New Jersey, where the twins—joined together since birth—hope for better luck.

The twins—Violet and Daisy Hilton, 26 years old—wanted to marry or, rather—that is to say, Violet wanted to marry—what is meant is, that Violet and Daisy wanted, Violet to marry —.

The license was to have been taken out in Violet's name, to simplify things.

Only One Bridegroom.

There was only one prospective bridegroom named Maurice L. Lambert, 29-year-old orchestra leader, who lives at the same apartment as the twins.

Daisy said she already had a fiancee—Harry Mason, a pugilist, who, she added, is at present in England.

The twins gave Violet's occupation as an actress; said they are four feet 11 inches tall, weigh 196 pounds, and are joined physically at the hips.

While waiting for the bemused officials to make up their minds, Violet told newspaper men she first met her prospective husband when he joined the twins' vaudeville troupe a year ago as musical director.

Daisy broke in to say she, too, was to be married as soon as her fiancee was able to enter this country. She hoped it would be within the next six months.

MEXICAN SECRET POLICE LOSE CAPTIVE GENERAL

MONTERREY, Mexico, July 5 (AP)—While government secret agents kept a close watch over a house here last night, General Antonio I. Villareal, defeated candidate in Sunday's presidential election, cut a hole in the rear wall and escaped.

The government charged supporters of Villarreal hatched a revolutionary plot and therefore ordered him kept under guard.

Two of Villarreal's principal supporters, Professors Aurello Manrique and Antonio Dias Soto Y Gam, escaped with him. They took a northbound train at a nearby station bound for the United States, it was learned.

Cash Flavoerd

TOLEDO, O., July 5 (AP)—Somebody in Toledo had a $205.68 cup of coffee to-day.

Mike Gasparis, grocer, the soul of caution, hid $127 in cash and a $78.68 cheque in his coffee grinder when he closed his store last night. This morning, bright and early, a customer asked for a pound of coffee, ground on the spot. Gasparis' clerk obliged. The coffee was ground. So was the money and the cheque.

USE OF SHOTGUN CLIMAXES FIGHT BY OLD FRIENDS

Prisoner Dashes for Weapon After Quarrel Over Kitchen Stove.

SHOT GOES WILD.

Woman Screams and 'Phone Call Brings Port Perry Police.

LINDSAY, Ont., July 5 (C.P.).—An alleged attempt to shoot a friend at Seagrave on Wednesday has resulted in the arrest of Thomas Chilbern, who is said to have taken a pot shot at John Kemp in a small room where they quarreled while putting up a stove. Both men are old age pensioners, and consequently more than 70 years of age.

Mr. Kemp has been living with Mr. Chilbern and his wife for a couple of years, and the old gentlemen were commonly regarded as good friends. It is not known what caused the argument that led to Mr. Chilbern's alleged threat to shoot his friend and sent him scurrying upstairs for his shotgun. When he came down, it was stated at Seagrave this morning, he pointed the gun and pulled the trigger.

The shot went wide, but it had startling effects all the same. Mrs. Chilbern started screaming, and Mr. Kemp ran out of the house and telephoned the police at Port Perry, who came in quickly and took Mr. Chilbern away. He is held in custody in Whitby jail.

173 MEET DEATH UNITED STATES 158TH BIRTHDAY

Nation's Fourth of July Celebrations Prove Sanest in Recent Years.

FIREWORKS KILL 2.

Drownings Take Toll of 70, Road Crashes 69, Other Mishaps 34.

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—The United States celebrated its 158th birthday anniversary in the sanest manner in recent years, with the lowest number of deaths since 1929.

A total of 173 men, women and children gave up their lives on the anniversary of the signing of the declaration of independence, a drop of 10 from last year and only about one third of the number who perished in 1931.

The sharpest decrease was in the number who died as a result of the use of fireworks. Only two persons perished from this cause, as compared with seven in 1933. A five year old Chinook, Mont., girl was one of the victims. The other was a negress, killed in Minneapolis when a rocket skipped over the ground and struck her in the chest as she stood amid a crowd of celebrators.

Hundreds Injured

Thus the campaign for a "safe and sane" Fourth, started in 1907 by James Keeley, then an editor of a Chicago newspaper, appeared to be gaining ground. Hundreds of persons, however were treated for minor injuries from fireworks. Among them 2,200 in New York city.

Drowning was the principal cause of yesterday's fatalities, with a total of 70. Automobiles claimed 69 and for the first time since 1931 were responsible for fewer deaths than the bodies of water to which the holiday crowds flocked for relief from the heat.

Other causes accounted for 34 deaths, including five burned to death in the wreckage of an aeroplane at St. Ansgar Iowa; three prisoners crushed to death in the collapse of a grand stand at the Welfare Island Penitentiary, New York; the death of a racing driver at York, Pa., and that of a parachute jumper at Streator, Ill.

57 Red Gangsters In Leningrad Court

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R., July 5 (C.P.). — Russian courts will grapple with a newly developing gangster problem on July 7, the date set for trial of 57 men led by Peter Lupanoff and Ilya Igoroff.

The men are charged with terrorizing, killing, and robbing workers in the Neva quarter of the Leningrad factory section. They are mostly workers thrown out of factories for failure to observe disciplinary measures.

Red corners and factory club houses where Bolshevist literature and pictures are displayed and Communist speeches delivered, have been repeatedly attacked and meetings broken up by assailants armed with knives.

MARIE UNCHANGED

SANTA BARBARA, Calif, July 5 (AP)—With virtually no change in her condition since she passed a major crisis a week ago, Marie Dressler, 62, film star, continued to rest comfortably to-day at the C. K. G. Billings estate here, where she is critically ill from a complication of ailments.

A Wiser Bird

DENVER, July 5 (CP)—Alexander, "head-man" of the city's ostrich flock, stood wearily before the city park water trough and tried to see how long he could hold his head under. It was a scorched and painful head and Alexander's one good eye (when it was above water) stared malevolently toward the spectators' walk. All this because someone threw a firecracker into the pen and trustful Alexander picked it up.

BROWNLEE QUITS HON. R. G. REID IS NEW PREMIER

Provincial Treasurer Will Become Premier of Alberta.

MINISTER 14 YEARS.

New Premier Will Be Sworn in Early Next Week.

By George Finlay
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

EDMONTON, July 5.—(C.P.) — Member of the United Farmers of Alberta Government since its formation in 1921, R. G. Reid, Provincial Treasurer and Minister of Lands and Mines, to-day succeeded Hon. J. E. Brownlee as Premier of Alberta.

Mr. Brownlee announced to the press he had formally tendered his resignation at Government House, and that Mr. Reid had been named as his successor by the party caucus, which has been in session here two days.

Mr. Reid will be sworn in next Monday or Tuesday it was announced. He will be the only nonnative born Provincial Premier in the Dominion. He was born near Glasgow, Scotland, Jan. 17, 1879.

Resignation of Mr. Brownlee, which followed the civil action for damages brought against him by Vivian MacMillan, former government stenographer, was accepted by the United Farmers of Alberta executive after the long caucus. The damage action alleged seduction.

Swimmer Killed In 110-Foot Dive

VANCOUVER, Wash., July 5 (AP)—Roland McCall, 25, a well-known swimmer and diver here, lost his life to-day when he dived from a span of the Interstate Bridge to the Columbia River, 110 feet below.

McCall came to the surface of the river a moment after he had plunged into the stream, but his body sank within a few seconds. It was not immediately recovered. His dive was a feature of the annual mid-summer regatta.

TWO DIE IN HAMILTON OF DREAD STREPTOCOCCI

HAMILTON, July 5.—(CP)—Two deaths from the dreaded streptococcic infection were reported here today. In both cases the victims were out-of-town residents who had been admitted to local hospitals.

Miss Flora Hunter, aunt of the late Ellen Hunter and a relative of the late Mrs. A. McArthur, of Dundas, both victims of the disease recently, died at St. Joseph's hospital at noon. Stuart W. Roy, Phm.B., of Stoney Creek, died at the general hospital this morning. In the case of the latter the poisoning was not of the contagious variety, physicians stating that there was absolutely no evidence of a streptococcic epidemic.

Noted Historian Recalls 1812 U.S. Parallel Of Great Britain's War Debt Moratorium

LONDON, July 5 (CP-Havas)—Great Britain's moratorium on debt payments to the United States is not without what appears to be an exact counterpart in the United States' relations with Great Britain, Francis Hirst, historian and economist, pointed out to-day in a letter published in The Times.

In 1812, he wrote, a special convention was signed whereby the United States agreed to settle commercial debts valued at more than $11,000,000 by payment of $2,664,000 in three annual installments.

"I am not concerned," Hirst wrote, "with the question of whether this parallel constitutes a precedent, but it shows that the problem of transferring debts of gold or silver money is an old one and it also shows that three of the most honorable and distinguished statesmen of American history, George Washington, Alexander Hamilton and Thomas Jefferson, can be cited for the view that a government which by its protective and shipping policy makes it difficult or impossible for debtors to pay their debts in goods or services, cannot justify or equitably complain if those debts are not paid, even though there is legal stipulation in the treaty that they shall be paid."

TO BE DEPOSED AS NAZI PARTY'S SECOND IN LINE

Vice-Chancellory Expected to Go to Rudolph Hess. Hitler's Right Hand Man.

Country Verge of Revolt.

Official States Bloody Executions Ended—Leaders Need Rest.

By A. D. STEFFERUD
Copyright, 1934, by the A.P.

BERLIN, July 5. — Franz Von Papen, the burr under the saddle of the Nazi regime, will be stripped of the Vice Chancellory, the Foreign Department of the Nazi party indicated today, but he will be permitted to remain in the cabinet as Saar Commissioner.

Even the furniture was removed from Von Papen's old office and a scaffolding erected outside the building for alterations and a thorough cleaning.

A party spokesman said an entire Nazi staff would replace Von Papen's men in the Vice Chancellory.

Von Papen himself declined to be interviewed saying his position would not be fixed definitely until after discussions with the Chancellor.

One of his secretaries said the Vice Chancellor would remain in Berlin rather than take a leave for the sake of his health, but a Nazi party spokesman insisted he would take a long rest.

Hess to Get Post?

Rudolph Hess, Minister without portfolio in the Nazi Cabinet, rather than Wilhelm Goering, Prussian Premier, is now being mentioned in some party circles as a possibility for next Vice Chancellor.

Hitler was understood to feel it would be better for the party if Hess, who holds Hitler's power of attorney in all party matters, should become Vice Chancellor. Goering, it was felt, has more power now than any Nazi, excepting the leader.

A Nazi spokesman stated definitely to-day that the executions following Saturday's climatic upset are definitely over, but it was regarded as fairly certain that the promised official list of those dead, said to number "under 50" will never be published.

The rumor of Cardinal Faulhaber's being held prisoner in Munich was disquieting to Catholics throughout the Reich. He has been a severe critic of the Nazi regime. An attempt was made last January to assassinate him.

Country Real Threat

BERLIN, July 5 (AP)—Reports of disturbances in Bavaria and Silesia encouraged belief in many circles today that the real threat to Nazi

FLORIDA CITY DECLARES STATE OF EMERGENCY

KEY WEST, Fla., July 5 (AP)—This picturesque city, at the southwest tip of the United States, has declared a state of emergency because of economic adversities, and called on the State and Federal Governments for help.

Left stranded by a gradual shift of trade and industry, Key West and its County, Munroe, adopted resolutions, surrendering all their legal powers to Governor Dave Sholtz. They are the first to do so in the history of Florida.

More than half their population is unemployed.

GRANDSTAND COLLAPSES KILLING 3, HURTING SCORE

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—Three men died and approximately three score were injured as a grandstand collopsed, pitching 200 patients of the city's correction hospital into a struggling mass of humanity.

Eleven hundred other patients of the institution, where a riot marked the Fourth of July a year ago, joined guards and doctors in orderly rescue work. Officials, who had arranged yesterday's festivities largely to prevent a repetition of the disorder, called police, but reinforcements found nothing to do.

ALBERT AUSTIN DOMINION BANK CHAIRMAN DIES

Ex-President Was Son of Institution's Founder—Passes at 77.

WAS WHOESALE GROCER.

Secured First Franchise For Street Railway in Winnipeg 1880.

TORONTO, July 5 (CP)—Albert William Austin, chairman of the Board of the Dominion Bank, and former president, died here to-day at the age of 77. His father founded the Dominion Bank and was president until his death in 1897.

Mr. Austin, who also was president of Consumers Gas Co., and of the Canada North-West Land Co., had been ill since January, 1932. His condition became critical only a few days ago and death was sudden.

Last year he gave up his position as president of the bank, closing an active banking career of 60 years. He remained chairman of the board.

His immediate family with him at the end included his son, J. Percival Austin of Barrie, Ont.; Mrs. Stanley Seton Thompson, and two nieces, Miss Adele and Miss Margaret Austin.

Starting his career as a junior clerk in the banking institution of his father, Austin strayed from his financial career only slightly. He entered the wholesale grocery business in 1877, and three years later went to Winnipeg, where he secured

Government Has No Intention of Forcing Ulster Into Irish Free State.

PROVISION IN TREATY.

LONDON, July 5.—(C. P. Cable.)—The Government has no intention of forcing Ulster into a United Ireland, Dominions Secretary J. H. Thomas told the House of Commons to-day. The secretary added that "neither this government nor any government will coerce Ulster into an agreement against her will."

Mr. Thomas made his statement in reply to a question by James Maxton, on behalf of Thomas McGovern, his Clydeside Laborite colleague who was absent. Mr. Maxton asked whether "the government are prepared to consider ending the dispute between the Irish Free State and this country on the basis of a United Ireland under one Parliament."

Provision in Treaty.

The Irish treaty which set up the Free State, Mr. Thomas added in reply to another question, contained a provision for agreement between Northern Ireland and the Free State, providing both parties could come to terms. "But," he said, "recent events in Southern Ireland have not been calcualted to inspire Northern Ireland to enter into an agreement.

He declared there was no member of the Government who would not welcome an agreement between the two sections of Ireland, but that an attempt to dictate its terms would lead to a situation that would be disastrous in the end.

TOOTHACHE SAVES 4 LIVES.

DIGBY, N.S.—A toothache probably saved four lives to-day.

It woke seven-year-old Rita Stanton. Her cries roused her mother, Mrs. Burrel Stanton, who found the home ablaze as she walked to the medicine chest for a toothache remedy.

She awoke her husband and their nine-year-old son, and they escaped downstairs with Rita. The house was completely destroyed.

Her left ankle and leg were severely cut or mangled.

Sandwich nearly had a clean record, as just nine hours before close of the half year period a visitor at a bathing beach a few feet inside the Sandwich town limits was drowned.

REGINA, July 5 (CP) — Dirt farmers, members of the Farmers' Unity League, gathered here to-day in annual convention with delegates in attendance from all parts of Canada. Preliminary business and appointment of committees occupied attention of members at the morning session, with more important matters scheduled for discussion later in the day. The convention will conclude tomorrow.

More than 160 delegates were registered at the convention headquarters. Many are from Saskatchewan but others came from Ontario in the East and British Columbia to the West.

Rioting Is Renewed San Francisco Docks

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.— (A. P.)—Rioting broke out again on the water front here to-day. Police charged a group of 200 strike pickets and hurled tear gas bombs at the men.

At least one of the pickets was injured seriously. Vassili Zakharoff, a member of the Marine Cooks and Stewards Union, was clubbed over the head and knocked unconscious.

As the police charged the pickets hurled a few rocks.

Fire broke out in a box car, containing an automobile. The fire department tore out the side of the car and extinguished the blaze.

A tear gas shell set fire to weeds on top of Rincon Hill.

The riot occurred at Bryant and main street, near Pier 20.

GERMANY WILL PAY INTEREST UPON TWO LOANS

Fulfilling of Young, Dawes Bond Agreements Averts Trade War.

DEAL WITH BRITAIN.

Washington Demands Even Break—Holds $1,500,000,000 Obligations.

LONDON, July 5 (AP)—British financial quarters welcomed with relief and satisfaction to-day the conclusion of a debt arrangement with Germany.

Under the agreement reached yesterday Germany will pay interest on Dawes and Young loan bonds held by British subjects, despite its recent moratorium.

A threatened trade war was averted by the agreement. Other long and medium term obligations held by Briton will not be serviced during the six months' moratorium.

The Time expressed belief the agreement in some way woud rehabilitate German credit which has been quite unnecessarily impaired and would be fatally damaged if Dr. Hjarjar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, persisted in his earlier intentions.

Nevertheless, the paper does not think it goes very far in restoring confidence in Germany's financial future.

"Unless during the agreements six months of currency," The Times said ,"osemthing is done to reverse policies which have led to the present impasse, there can be little hope of any substantial rehabilitation of Germany's credit."

May Open to Others

BERLIN, July 5 (A.P.)—A high Reichsbank official said to-day in discussing the Anglo-German debt agreement that "the same way is open to other countries through diplomatic channels."

Conclusion of the transfer agreement in London was regarded on the whole here as a signal success for German negotiators. Official quarters pointed out neither wanted a trade war and both were anxious that free mercantile interchanga should suffer as little hindrance as possible.

Satisfaction was expressed that full recognition had been given the German standpoint — that the debtor nation can only be expected to meet its liabilities when given a chance to accumulate sufficient foreign exchanges through export of manufacturers.

U.S. Asks Even Break

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—The United States will demand that Germany give Americans an even break with Britons in the payment of debts.

This became known to-day as the official reaction to news that the Reich has agreed to pay interest for a least six months on Dawes and Young Loan Bonds held by British subjects.

About $1,500,000,000 of German obligations are held in this country. Authoritative sources said a new note asking equality may be dispatched to the Reich. If no note is sent, diplomatic conversations to that end are expected to be pressed.

CAPTIVE ADMITS SLAYING GENTRY

Murdered Bodyguard to Klu Klux Leader for Abusing Woman Friend.

'GOOD DEED FOR SOCIETY.'

JEFFERSON, Wis., July 5.—(AP)—Carl Church, captured as the slayer of Earl Gentry, erstwhile bodyguard to D. C. Stephenson, former Indian Ku Klux Klan leader, confessed the crime, authorities said today shortly after he was arrested at Fort Atkinson, near here. Sheriff Joseph T. Lange and Fort Atkinson officers caught Church last night as he lay asleep in a winery.

"I am not sorry in the least for the act I committed as I feel that I did a good deed for society when I killed Earl Gentry," Church, an itinerant painter and known as George (Slim) King, was quoted by Sheriff Lange as saying.

He committed the act, he said, because Mrs. Carrie Gill, 59-year-old widow, accused of plotting with Church to bring about Gentry's death, had been abused by Gentry and because "she was kind to me when I was sick." Mrs. Gill, whose late husband was a well-to-do tavern keeper, is being held for first degree murder and admitted, the investigators said, that she gave Church $60 to slay Gentry.

A 4th in Jail

ATLANTA, Ga., July 5 (AP)—Al Capone enjoyed his Fourth of July—he took time out from work in the shoe shop at the Federal Penitentiary to watch a two-hour boxing show.

The one-time big gang leader of Chicago, in the best of health, climbed on a bench and shouted advice to the boxers, and wagered cigarettes on the outcome of the fights, cigarettes being the legal tender of the penitentiary. The show was an all-prison affair.

Capone entered the prison two years ago. He is serving a sentence of 10 years for Federal income tax evasion.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 5.— Fire which broke out at 11 p.m. Wednesday night did considerable damage to Baker's Egg Grading station, Front street. The alarm was given by a passing motorist who noticed flames shooting from the roof of the building. Defective wiring is believed to be the cause. Loss estimated at about $500 is fully covered by insurance. This is the third outbreak in this building within a year.

BROWNLEE CASE MAY BE TAKEN PRIVY COUNCIL

Edmonton Civil Liberties Protective Association to Aid Vivian MacMillan.

WILL SOLICIT FUNDS.

Premier Announces He Will Retain Seat as Private Member.

(By George Finlay, C.P. Staff Writer.)

Edmonton, July 5 (C.P.). — Repercussions from the civil action of Vivian MacMillan, pretty 22-year-old stenographer, against Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta to-day moved from the political to the public sphere. An organization, known as the Civil Liberties Protective Association, prepared to aid the young typist in taking her case to higher courts.

Miss MacMillan sued the Premier for unstated damages on an allegation of seduction. The case was heard before Mr. Justice W. C. Ives and a jury of six, who found in favor of the former Government stenographer, awarding her $10,000 and her father $5,000 as co-plaintiff.

Mr. Brownlee's resignation, as Premier of the Province, rested with the Lieutenant-Governor, as yet unaccepted.

George D. Koe, president of the Civil Liberties Protective Association, maintained Mr. Ives' judgment "turned the clock back 300 years," and announced the organization would hold public protest meetings to raise funds to assist the MacMillans in carrying on an appeal. It would aid in taking the case to the Privy Council, if necessary, he said.

Costs To Pay.

Under the Ives' judgment, the MacMillans would be required to pay between $1,200 and $1,500 of Premier Brownlee's legal costs, together with their own legal fees, which have not yet been estimated. They have already paid jury fees of $500.

Mr. Brownlee, while verifying reports of his resignation, stated he would retain his seat in the Legislature as a private member for Ponoka.

It was reported that the caucus, which resumed sittings at 10 a.m. would make an announcement early to-day, naming the Premier's successor. Prominently mentioned in Parliament corridors to take over the office was the name of Hon. R. G. Read, Provincial Treasurer.

Liberal, Conservative and Independent party leaders were in the city, but early indications that a coalition government might be formed, dwindled. Members attending the caucus included Norman F. Priestly of Calgary and Mrs. R. W. Price of Stettler, both prominent in executive branches in the United Farmers of Alberta.

W. R. Howson, Liberal leader, said there had been no question of his party participating in a coalition government. There had been, however, he said, reports of an agreement being reached with Conservative, Labor and Independent groups on cabinet representation.

Fred Moyer, leader of the Independent group of four, arrived here early to-day from his home in Drumheller.

Youth's Hand Hurt In Electric Mixer

CAMPBELLFORD, July 5.—(Examiner Correspondence.) —Harold Outingdyke, 18, had his left hand badly injured when his arm was drawn into an electric mixing machine he was operating at Ferguson's Bakery, late Tuesday night. Fellow employees hearing his cries for help, rushed to ris rescue and turned off the power, but not before the two middle fingers were terribly crushed.

Dr. H. B. Longmore dressed the wounds and the lad was taken to his home, where he is reported to be doing nicely.

Five Iowans Die As Plane Crashes

ST. ANGAR, Iowa, July 5 (A.P.).—State investigators to-day sought the cause of an aeroplane accident which claimed the lives of five Iowans bent on a fourth of July holiday sight-seeing trip. Their bodies were burned beyond recognition when the plane fell before the eyes of 2,000 holiday spectators.

Those who died in the plane were Fred Symington, the pilot; Edward Libersky, 36, and Vaney Libersky, 30, both of St. Angar; Marvin Miller, 20, and Gladys Meker, 20, both of Grafton, Iowa.

Witnesses said they believed Symington was attempting to land as quickly as possible with a failing motor when the crash occurred.

Swimmer Is Injured Healy Falls Rapids

CAMPBELLFORD, July 5 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Swept down the rapids below Healey Falls while bathing, Don Couch, a visitor from Toronto, was badly bruised about the body and legs, from coming in contact with jagged rocks. Being a strong swimmer he managed to make the shore in an exhausted condition, and is resting at his parents' home here. The removal of a stop log at the dam was responsible for the extra flow of water, and signs are being placed warning bathers of the existing danger.

Painful Piles

Go Quick—Prevent Cutting—No Salves.

When sore and painful Piles distress and upset you, and salves give insufficient or only temporary help, and wish is to avoid operation; isn't it best to at once try HEM-ROID—the internal remedy for piles?

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was convinced early in his career that the cause of Piles was internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel—the hemorrhoidal veins filled with stagnant blood—and that the right and safe way to get freedom from Pile agony was to remove the cause with an internal medicine. Immediately the doctor set to work to find a remedy. He succeeded and called his prescription HEM-ROID.

Pile sufferers everywhere are benefiting by Dr. Leonhardt's internal treatment, so why doubt or delay longer when McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store and other good druggists say, "No matter what kind of Piles you have, one bottle of HEM-ROID tablets must show you the safe clean way to get rid of your pile misery or money-back."

Shatterless thermometers, which it was thought would be a great boom to manufacturers of dairy products, have not proven satisfactory, high temperatures having a tendency to obscure the scale.

PAPEN'S HOUSE IS AGAIN RAIDED

be recovering its equilibrium from the "second revolution." correspondents in provincial sections appeared unable to get through despatches and disquiet was felt over conditions outside Berlin.

Delegates from throughout Germany were assembling at the little town of Flensburg, in Schleswig-Holstein, for the congress of Nazi leaders of all districts.

Joseph Goebbels, Minister of Propaganda, and Adolf Wagner, Bavarian Nazi leader, who took the first steps to quell the revolt, had already arrived early to-day and were awaiting Chancellor Hitler.

Leaders were expected to seek some means of coping with the crisis created by the widespread revolt in storm troop ranks—a revolt which has apparently reached greater proportions than the Goveriment allowed to be generally known.

A conference last night between Vice-Chancellor Franz von Papen, broken representative of the "Old Germany," and Chancellor Hitler, ambitious standard-bearer of the third Reich, was expected to have far-reaching results.

Von Papen, through the intercession of President Von Hindenburg, is to remain in the Cabinet, but will go on sick leave.

Permanent Leave Absence?

What he and Hitler, the latter fresh from an interview with Von Hindenburg, talked about was not divulged to-day. But it was generally believed Von Paper's possibly permanent leave of absence from office shared importance with the troubled internal situation and the death of Hubert Von Bose, Von Papen's secretary.

Von Bose's death, the treatment of Von Papen's co-workers and himself have weighed so heavily upon him that his early departure from politics is foreseen. He stayed away from a Cabinet session which approved laws sanctioning the drastic measures used in nipping the storm trooper rebellion.

Von Hindenburg, it was believed, spiked Hitler's reported hopes of making Herman Wilhelm Goering, Premier of Prussia, Vice-Chancellor.

If Von Papen goes on permanent leave, the inner Nazi councils may be free to go ahead with their reputed project of pushing toward a completely Nazi Cabinet and fulfilment of the dream of a bigger army and a unified church.

The Nazi Party organization, some sources said, has been disrupted by the widespread implication of subleaders in the storm troop conspiracy.

Other Troubles.

The domestic crisis is not the only problem. Foreign Governments have expressed concern over "the foreign Power" with which this government charged the "traitors" conspired.

Several protests have been made to the Foreign Office over the government's failure to disclose the "Power."

The government insisted the death list was "less than 50," although unofficial sources said several hundred had been killed since last Saturday.

Fritz Beck, head of the Foreign Academic at Munich, was one of the most recent known victims.

Wreaths of flowers decorating the graves of storm troops at Munich who were "liquidated" in Hitler's purging program were removed by official order.

Mourners Barred.

Police in Berlin prevented mourners from attending the funeral of former Chancellor Kurt von Schleicher and his wife, killed on Saturday when the "clean-up" began.
